Approved February 26, 1909.

Chapter 63.

An Act to amend Section one of Chapter thirty-eight of the Private and Special Laws of nineteen hundred and seven, relating to fishing in Songo River, so called, in the County of Cumberland.

Be it enacted by the People of the State of Maine, as follows:

Section one of chapter thirty-eight of the private and special laws of nineteen hundred and seven is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

'Section 1. It shall be unlawful to fish for, take, catch or kill any fish of any kind in that part of Sebago lake known and called Songo river, from a point opposite of what is now known as Oliver's camp, a place in said lake known as the mouth of Songo river, to Songo lock, so called, from September first of each year to May first of the following year. Provided, however, that it shall be lawful to dip smelts in the usual way. It shall be lawful to fish, as provided in the general law for fishing, in Crooked river, from its junction with the Songo river up as far as what is known as Crooked river bridge.'

Section 1, chapter 38, special laws, 1907, amended.

Fishing in certain part of Sebago lake, regulated.

Approved March 3, 1909.
