"Hon. W. E. Lawry, Secretary of Maine Senate:

Dear Sir:—

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of January 11, transmitting the joint order of the Senate and House inviting me to address the Legislature of Maine on 'The Story of New Sweden' on Wednesday evening, January 17, in the Hall of the House of Representatives. Please convey to the honorable Senate and House of Representatives of Maine my sincere thanks for the high honor thus conferred and the great pleasure it gives me to accept this distinguished invitation.

(Signed)

W. W. THOMAS."

The above communication was placed on file in concurrence.

The SPEAKER: Members of the House, it so happens that Mr. Thomas is present. It is not often that we have a Speaker of the House who has served two terms. Mr. Thomas was Speaker of the House of Representatives in the years 1875 and 1876; and as we have just read the reply of Mr. Thomas to this joint order, I am going to ask him to stand up and say something to this House if he sees fit. (Applause.)

Mr. THOMAS: Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House of Representatives of Maine: It is indeed a great pleasure, as well as a high honor, to meet you here in the Hall of the House of Representatives, to look you in the eye, and to be assured of what I knew before that the State of Maine continues to send her best men to legislate here in this Capitol building. It also brings to mind freshest memories of now more than two score years ago when I had the privilege of taking part in the Legislature of Maine, and when I was striving with all my might, as I know you gentlemen legislators of today are striving, if possible to do something for the good of our grand State of Maine.

The subject of the colonization of our wild lands with industrious and thrifty farmers, thus increasing our rural and agricultural population, upon which the welfare and the prosperity of the State of Maine so much depends, is now again attracting the attention of our citizens all over the State. In any discussion of the future colonization of Maine, it is well, I am sure, to take into consideration the founding of the colony in our State nearly half a century ago which has proved a complete success. Nearly fifty years ago a little band of resolute men, with their wives and children, sailed from the lofty north of Europe across the stormy Atlantic, landed on the shores of America, cut their way to the back woods of our State, and there founded the prosperous and successful colony of New Sweden. It will be my privilege, by your invitation, to address you this evening upon the circumstances and causes which made that colony possible, and which have contributed to its success. Such causes and such circumstances it is well that we take into contemplation now when the future colonization of Maine is one of the topics of the hour. I shall have the pleasure and honor of meeting you again—I hope all of you—this evening at eight o'clock. Come, gentlemen and bring your friends with you, and I will try to give you a little information and to entertain you and not be tedious. I shall have the pleasure of addressing you this evening and I hope you will all come and hear me. (Applause.)

On motion by Mr. Jordan of Cumberland,
Adjourned until tomorrow morning
at ten o'clock.
