Amount of capital due January 4, 1856, $54,636.

Amount of capital paid in Jan. 4, 1856, 55,497.

The holder of each unsurrendered share is entitled to receive from the funds of the association the sum of $300, when that sum shall have been accumulated, for distribution among all such holders then remaining. In consideration of a sum advanced from the funds, these holders surrender their right to participate in the final distribution without ceasing to be members, and without any release from their obligation to pay their monthly dues as before, and also paying interest upon the sum advanced.

Accordingly the holders of the surrendered shares are to be considered as debtors to the association; the others as persons with money invested in its capital and entitled to participate in its profits at its termination; entitled also to the privilege of becoming borrowers if they shall see fit.

The amount set opposite the shares is the amount of monthly dues required to be paid in up to and including our last day of payment, the 4th instant. Some members have paid in their dues in advance, while others are in arrears, which occasions the difference between the amount of "capital due and of capital paid in."
