REPORT.

To the Legislature of Maine:

In compliance with the laws of the State, I have the honor to submit the following report and lists of additions made to the State Library during the year ending December 31, 1870:

The amount received by appropriation was one thousand dollars ($1,000), and a balance unexpended from the previous year of one hundred and thirty-one dollars and seventy-six cents ($131.76), making a total of eleven hundred and thirty-one dollars and seventy-six cents ($1,131.76) received for the use of the library during the year.

The amount of expenditure for the same time, for the purchase of books, and incidental expenses, has been ten hundred and forty-eight dollars and ninety-one cents ($1,048.91), leaving unexpended a balance of eighty-two dollars and eighty-five cents ($82.85) for the use of the library till the next annual appropriation shall be received. A large part of this amount will be required in payment for books already ordered, but which are not yet received.

The lists of books submitted with this report show an increase of the library by purchase of 459 volumes, consisting of law books, 57 volumes, miscellaneous books, 358 volumes, periodicals, 44 volumes.

The donations have increased to 203 books, documents and pamphlets for the last year, while the exchanges show no material variation, 325 books, documents and pamphlets having been received during the same time; so that the aggregate accessions of all classes has reached the number of 987 during the year.

The same general attention has been given during the year as formerly to the completion of imperfect sets in the various departments, so far as the library funds would warrant, and a due regard to the purchase of later works seemed to render judicious. Such missing parts of sets as can easily be obtained at reasonable prices, have been nearly all supplied, and those still needed are only to be obtained by careful search, and in process of time; so that the increase in this particular direction has apparently not been so great as the last year, though in the sets of State Reports several important spaces have been filled, and in the other departments a reasonable progress has been made.

The donations, as stated above, have somewhat increased during the year in number and value, and the library is specially indebted for much of this increase to the attentions of the Senators in Congress from Maine, and to the Hon. John Lynch, M. C., each of whom have generously supplied the library with valuable Congressional documents.

The exchanges have continued during this year with the several States and institutions with the same satisfactory results as in former years; in the continuation of the series of reports and laws, and the accumulation of much valuable information, that has been made the subject of judicial or legislative investigation in the several States. During the year, lists of duplicates in the library of our own publications, and also lists showing the present condition of the publications of each State, in our possession, have been in preparation, to aid in securing complete sets of the laws and reports of other States; and from the uniform courtesy and valuable assistance already received from the various State officers, and the generous promises of assistance so soon as they have information to enable them to act properly in the matter, we may reasonably hope for considerable additions in this department during the year.

Ten volumes only have been lost during the year, and those injured by reason of the imperfections in the roof have been repaired and returned to their places upon the shelves. These defects in the roof of the Capitol building have been repaired, and a danger which was rapidly becoming more serious, has been removed. An enlargement of the second room in the library, to which I had the honor to call the attention of the Legislature in my last report, has been made by the Superintendent of Public Buildings, under the direction of the Governor and Council, and I am confident that this appropriation of what was mere waste room in the building, to its present purposes, with due regard to economy of expenditure, and the great need of the library, will commend itself to your judgment as one eminently fit to be made. It contains shelf-room for the State documents of the several States, so far as we now have, or shall for the present be able to obtain them, for the later Congregational documents, and a case of newspaper files; and thus renders available a considerable mass of information that heretofore has been, from difficulty of examination, nearly or quite useless.

It was thought possible, at the issue of the last report, to arrange the books upon the shelves in this new room in connexion with the regular library work, after the repairs had been completed, and before the close of the year. This has been done; but the indexing and binding of pamphlets, which I had hoped to complete before the present time, has not been finished. No delay will be occasioned during the present year by the presence of workmen and the prosecution of repairs, and this work will be completed at an early date.

His Excellency, the Governor, with his Council, who are the legal Board of Trustees of the State Library, have given much valuable attention during the year to the needs of this department, and assistance in its management; and it is believed, that while it is continually enlarged by gradual accessions, its condition is one of real improvement and increasing value. That it is approaching the condition for which it was designed by its founders, and becoming more and more useful, while it is at the same time a monument of the wisdom of the legislation of Maine, that provided for and maintained such a depository of learning at the Capitol of the State.

It has been long well known and acknowledged, that the benefits of large and well appointed public libraries are confined to no special locality, and at the present time, the rapidity and ease of communication is so great, that the accumulation of books for reference at the various centres of business, is coming to be recognized as a public necessity; and instead of being the resort of mere bookworms and men of leisure, they become storehouses of valuable learning, frequented by all classes, thus helping to mould the thought and direct the action of all. They remove the necessity that has forced the professional man, who would know his duty well, to encumber his office with costly volumes, seldom, after the first examination, to be used. They enable the agriculturalist to know the history of the pest that destroys his herds, or wastes the products of his fields, and the remedies he should adopt, and teach him how to gather from the tests of science the assurance of success in the cultivation of the soil, by a full acquaintance with its properties and uses, without the purchase, for perhaps a single reading, of costly works of reference. They present the merchant and banker with clear and full expositions of the principles that govern the successful transaction of business, and the laws that control in financial operations, assisting in the formation of the wisest plans, in the light of the experience of the past, and investigations of the present time, at only the cost and trouble of examination; and they give the statesman, who would learn from the history of the race his own duties, and the dangers of his time, from well filled alcoves ready at his hand, the works he must consult, which, for the use of a single citizen, are only to be afforded by the most wealthy, and secured by the most fortunate individuals.

Valuable as such libraries are to the general public, they are especially important to the various departments of a State government. To the Executive they give the most reliable information upon the various subjects that may be under examination; to the Legislature at its sessions, the most complete history of the State possible, especially with regard to its legislation, and kindred topics; to the Judiciary they are of special value, giving, with little labor, the benefit of the fullest consultation with legal authorities of other States and countries to assist the wisdom of the court in the interpretation of the legislation of the State. That such a library, well appointed and arranged, may be open as a reading-room for all citizens is not inconsistent with these uses and advantages, being so well cared for that losses would be infrequent, and the annual selections adapted at the same time to meet the public necessities and secure a healthful and permanent growth.

In all selections for purchase it is desirable that the best books be secured as near the time of their issue as practicable, that it need not become necessary in after time to practice the ill economy of purchasing such works at a greatly increased cost, as the date of their publication becomes more remote.

I do not doubt that it will be your pleasure to make such appropriation for this department as will comport with a proper regard for its necessities and uses, and assure its steady and successful growth, at the same time it shall be entirely consistent with the truest economy and the best interests of the State.

JOS. T. WOODWARD, State Librarian.
