REPORT.

To the Honorable Governor and Council of the State of Maine:

The undersigned, Bank Examiner for the State, has the honor to present the following report of his proceedings and of the standing and condition of the several banks under his supervision for the current year :

BANKS OF DISCOUNT AND DEPOSIT.

The only banks of this character acting under the authority of the State are the Eastern and Mercantile of Bangor ; and these are doing no business except in closing up their affairs. A statement of their present condition accompanies this report.

SAVINGS BANKS.

On the first of January 1875, there were sixty-four savings banks and institutions doing business in this State.

Banks in the hands of Receivers.

Since that time and before the commencement of the present year, five of these, namely, the Winthrop, Solon, Bucksport, Lewiston and Newport banks and institutions have been placed in the hands of receivers, and two of them, the Winthrop and Lewiston, have made final dividends to their depositors and have closed up their affairs, as appears in the last annual report of my predecessor. The following statement shows the present condition of the other three, the progress made in settlement and an estimate of probable future dividends to the depositors, founded upon the reports of the receivers made to me November 3, 1879 :

Banks Closing Business.

Four other banks, namely, the Hartland, North Anson, Saccarappa and Stockton have been voluntarily closing up their business under the charge of their own officers. Statements of the condition of each and of the progress made in closing, may be found in their appropriate places among those of the other banks. From these it will appear that the Hartland bank has paid its depositors in full except $42.41, which amount is on hand ready for payment when called for.

In the case of the North Anson bank, the assets have been disposed of and a final dividend of 5 1-2 per cent. declared, making 95 1-2 per cent. in all to depositors, including interest to October 1, 1878, and equal to the whole amount of deposits and interest up to the time of suspension of business.

The Saccarappa and Stockton banks have paid their depositors in full, but in the latter case, at a loss to the treasurer of several hundred dollars, who has assumed the liabilities that the assets of the bank were not sufficient to meet in full.

Banks with Deposit Accounts Reduced.

During the years 1877 and 1878, thirteen of the savings banks of this State, owing to losses and depreciation of their assets, had their deposit accounts reduced by order of court, in various amounts, ranging from ten to fifty per cent. of the amount of their deposits. While all the banks doing business during these two years have been called upon, to a greater or less extent; as was to have been expected, these whose accounts have been reduced, were more largely called upon for the repayment of deposits that remained after the reduction. These calls have all been promptly met, and the banks have been gaining in resources and are in a stronger condition than at the time of reduction. The Calais bank, whose accounts were reduced twenty-five per cent. has, by order of court, made a dividend of five per cent. on the amount of deposits previous to reduction, amounting to $12,809.17, and equal to twenty per cent. of the reduction. The Franklin County bank, which was reduced twenty-five per cent., has also been ordered by the court to make a dividend payable on the first of January, 1880, of ten per cent. on the amount of deposits previous to reduction, equal to forty per cent. of the reduction. The Androscoggin County bank has also filed a petition for permission to pay a dividend of ten per cent., on which a hearing is to be had at an early day in the coming year.

The first of the following tables exhibits the amount of deposits of these banks before and after the reduction, the amount of deposits November 3, 1879, with the amount and the rate of decrease. The second table shows the amount of liabilities of these banks at the time of the yearly examination in 1879, the amount of reduction of deposits, and the total of these two items which together constitute the total of liabilities, absolute and contingent, and the assets of the banks at the time of the examination as valued on the books of the bank, and also at their market and estimated value.

* After dividend $12,809.17.

It is to be noted, however, that the full amount of these assets are not in all cases available for the payment of the reduction, although the greater part of them are so available. Earnings that may have accrued since the decree of the court on new investments are not applicable to the payment of the reduction. The valuations put upon the real estate are less reliable than those of securities which have a definite market value. It is hoped, however, that with the revival of business the value of the real estate and the real estate loans will not be less than that put upon them. On the basis of this valuation, it would seem that the Bridgton, Franklin county and Pembroke banks have assets sufficient to pay their liabilities in full, including the reduction, whenever they shall be able to realize on their securities, and that several others have nearly enough for this purpose.

Wiscasset Savings Bank.

The unfortunate condition of the finances of the town of Wiscasset has caused embarrassment to the bank in that place. At the time of the annual examination, June 5, it was ascertained that since the first of March the bank had received notices for the withdrawal of $42,547.72, an amount equal to over thirty per cent. of its deposits, of which about $22,000 was unpaid, the calls on the same having not then matured. Aside from these calls, and from the fact that the bank had a portion of its means invested in the notes and bonds of the town of Wiscasset, and on loans secured by mortgages upon real estate in said town, the bank was found to be in a sound and healthy condition, with a fair surplus. Although able to respond to the calls that had thus far been made upon it, it was not deemed safe or equitable for the bank to continue to draw upon its convertible assets in order to pay those who might first call for their deposits, and thus leave the burden of a possible loss to fall upon those who might allow their money to remain, or who might be the last to call. With a view to secure the interests of all the depositors and the public, with the concurrence of the bank officers, an application was made to the Honorable Judge Danforth of the Supreme Court for a temporary injunction to restrain the present payment of deposits until a hearing could be had. In accordance with this application a temporary injunction was ordered, and a hearing appointed for July 3. At this hearing the injunction was so far modified as to permit the payment of twenty per cent. of the deposits, and as thus modified was continued to the October term of the court, at which time it was continued for further hearing to the term of the court in April, 1880. This bank has assets sufficient eventually to meet all its liabilities, unless the value of the real estate in the town of Wiscasset held as security for loans to the amount of $21,500, should depreciate to such an extent as to render these loans of small value. Even in this case the loss to depositors would be small, as the surplus of the bank would be sufficient to cover a good part of this loss.

Dexter Savings Bank.

Under the advice of his Excellency the Governor, in the early part of the year I visited the Dexter Bank with reference to the irregularities and defalcations charged against Mr. Barron, the late treasurer. I made an examination of the regular books of the bank, that is, the cash book, ledger and trial balance from July 1877, and of the petty cash book from the January following to the time of his death, which embraced the entries in relation to which the irregularities were then charged. This examination, which in my opinion did not confirm the charges of defalcation, although some discrepancies were found to exist between the two cash books, was made the subject of a special report and was given to the public. I understand that further investigations have been going on under the direction of the officers of the bank, but with what results I am not informed.

General Condition.

The condition of the several banks is fully set forth in the record of the annual examinations and in the abstract of the treasurer's reports made on the third of November, and in the tabulated statements, all of which form a part of this report.

Deposits.

From an examination of these statements, as compared with those of previous years, it will appear that, while for the year 1876 the deposits of the banks decreased $4,264,549, and for the year 1877 $920,381, and for the year 1878 $3,725,320, or, deducting the amount of reduction ordered by decrees of court in the deposits of thirteen of the banks $2,743,565, the decrease for the past year has been only $186,363.14. This decrease took place mainly in the first part of the year, only about $40,000 of it having occurred during the last six months. This would seem to indicate that the lowest point had been reached, and that with the revival of business and an increased confidence in the ability of the banks to meet the demands made upon them, we may expect that in the future they will not only hold their own, but will have larger amounts of deposits entrusted to their keeping.

Reserves.

These reports will also show an improvement in the condition of the resources of the banks, whether we look at the amount of profits and reserves as they stand on the treasurers' books or at the amount of their surplus on the basis of the market and estimated value of their securities. The net reserve and profits held by the banks as shown by their books, at the time of the yearly examination in 1878, amounted to $783,386.28, while at the same examination in 1879 they were $887,087.56, a difference of $103,701.28, or one-half of one per cent. The surplus of the banks, on the basis of the market and estimated value of the securities, was, in 1878, $878,965.51, and in 1879, $1,057,976.32, a difference of $179,010.81, equal to nearly one per cent. In each case the contingent liability of thirteen banks, on account of the reduction of deposits by order of court, amounting to $1,035,481.03 in 1878, and to $1,022,671.86 in 1879, has been deducted from the surplus and profits. The gain in the profits and reserves as shown by the books may be fairly taken to represent the net profits acquired by the banks during the year, and is just about equal to the amount required by law to be set aside yearly; while the gain in the surplus, on the basis of the market and estimated value of the assets, embraces in addition the increase in the value of the securities. These gains are not large but they exhibit progress in the right direction, and if continued, will soon place the banks on a basis so firm that their soundness will not be questioned. This appreciation in the value of the assets of the banks, while it strengthens them for the time being, cannot be relied upon as a certain element in their prosperity. These securities which have advanced in price, may, and not unlikely will, decline again. It must also be taken into account that, so far as this enhanced value consists in premium on bonds, having a definite time to run, it will, as the bonds approach maturity, diminish year by year until it is finally extinguished. Prudence would therefore dictate that a sufficient sum should be set aside every year to meet the constant lessening of this premium. I may add in this connection, so far as the present surplus of the several banks is concerned, that if the entire premium on this class of securities were extinguished, they would each of them, with perhaps a single exception and that in an amount less than two hundred dollars, still retain a surplus. The law wisely prohibits the dividing of all the earnings of the banks among the depositors and provides for a reserved fund to be increased year by year until it amounts to five per cent. of the deposits. Some of the banks already have this amount of reserve and more on hand; and it is a question which deserves the careful consideration of the legislature whether it would not be wise to make provision for a larger reserve in the case of them all. If it is urged that the depositor is entitled to receive all that his money may earn, it may be replied that the soundness and stability of the institution itself through which he is enabled to obtain a dividend at all, depends upon the amount of its reserve, and that as he receives in the increased strength of his security the advantage of a reserve previously acquired, so it can be no hardship for him to contribute to the strength of his own deposit in the future or of other depositors if he withdraws his own.

Investments.

The following table shows in a condensed form the amount and per cent. of the different classes of securities held by the banks in November of each of the last three years.

	26,898,432 76		23,173,112 22		23,052,663 00

It is gratifying to notice that the banks are more inclined to reduce their real estate loans, and to increase their investments in United States bonds. The latter have gone up from $982,869.47 in 1877, to $3,266,521.36 in 1879, or from 3.7 per cent. to 14.2 per cent. of the assets, while the real estate loans have been reduced within the same time from $7,496,441.70 to $5,383,617.32, or from 27.8 to 23.3 per cent. A more detailed statement of the different classes of securities held by the banks may be found in table D. The non-paying investments do not vary materially from those held last year. In one or two cases payment has been resumed, and in others the securities have been disposed of, although others have been acquired, mostly by the exchange of bonds for stock. Some of these stocks and bonds have advanced considerably in price during the year, which gives the hope that they will ultimately become paying investments or that the banks may be able to dispose of them without material loss. A list of these non-paying investments may be found in table E.

Dividends.

While the amount of the dividend is of much less consequence than the security of the deposit and the certainty of its repayment when needed, it is the legitimate desire of the depositors to receive as large a dividend as is consistent with these more indispensable requisites. The banks, not including those that have been closing up their business, have made dividends the past year as follows: One, 6 per cent.; twenty-five, 5 per cent.; two, 4 3-4 per cent.; nine, 4 1-2 per cent.; two, 4 1-4 per cent.; thirteen, 4 per cent.; two, 2 1-2 per cent., and one has made no dividends. The amount of dividends is no indication of the relative strength or success of the banks making them. Some of the stronger and more successful have preferred to make not more than four or four and a half per cent. dividends for the year, deeming it more for the interest of their institutions, and the depositors to do so, and to reserve the balance to meet any possible future adverse contingency. The provision of the statute prohibiting the payment of more than five per cent. in dividends during the year—except in extra dividends after the accumulation of a considerable surplus—has had a beneficial effect in checking the competition between banks in relation to the amount of dividend, and has thus removed one of the temptations to investment in bonds paying high rates of interest, but of inferior security, which has been the cause of much of the loss and embarrassment, the banks have suffered in the past. This practice has measurably ceased, and a more healthy competition is apparent in the ambition to exhibit a genuine and solid surplus.

Special Deposits.

Some of the banks, especially in localities where there are no banks of discount and deposit, find it for the convenience of their customers and the public to receive special deposits of a business character which are not expected to participate in the dividends made to the regular depositors. This does not seem to be contemplated in the law governing savings banks, or to be in consonance with the theory on which they are established. I am not aware, however, that any especial harm has arisen from this practice, or that any is likely to result in the immediate future; but it is easy to see that this practice, if carried to a great extent, and especially if it should embrace the negotiation of drafts and bills of exchange, and the doing a general brokerage business, might lead to serious complications, and might unfavorably affect the interests of the regular depositors. This subject derives additional interest from a recent decision in the Supreme Court of New Hampshire, in which it was held, in the case of an insolvent savings bank, that these special depositors were entitled to a preference in the distribution of the assets, and to be paid in full. On the supposition that these deposits were made under the sanction of the law, this decision would seem to rest on sound legal principles; and if a like interpretation of law should prevail in our own State, the danger to be apprehended to the regular depositors would be increased. I therefore recommend that the savings bank law be supplemented by an enactment, placing all deposits of whatever kind upon the same footing as to eventual liability of repayment, and as to the notice to be given for withdrawal.

Expenses.

The expenses of the savings banks are moderate in amount. No extravagance is apparent in their management. In table B is a column which gives the expenses of the several banks, amounting in the aggregate to $70,913. These are generally given in round numbers, and may not in all cases cover the full amount of incidental expenses; but making the proper allowance for these, the annual cost of management is 35 hundredths of one per cent. In New Hampshire it is 37, in Massachusetts 27, in New York 44.

Taxes.

The greatest expense of the savings banks is in the amount of taxes paid to the State, which amount to one per cent. on the average of the deposits. Assuming it to be the settled policy of the State to continue this taxation, I respectfully suggest that the collection of this tax is without expense to the State, that there can be no evasion or concealment as to the amount of property to be taxed, that the tax is assessed upon the last dollar, and to the full value of the dollar, whilst almost all other kinds of property is subject to concealment or undervaluation; and further, that these deposits are to a great extent the earnings and savings and small inheritances of minors and widows, and of people of very small means; and that this class of property, which if any kind of property is to be favored, is the kind to receive the favor, is bearing more than its proportionate share of the public burdens. I therefore urgently recommend the reduction of this tax from one-half of one per cent. every six months to three-eighths of one per cent., and that the amount required to be set aside from the earnings of the banks to enlarge their reserved fund be increased in a proportionate amount, or from one-fourth, as is now required, to three-eighths of one per cent. every six months, until this fund shall amount to seven and a half per cent. of the amount of deposits, instead of five per cent. as now provided by law. This course, if adopted and persevered in, would give a strength and solidity to these institutions, which to the State itself, would more than compensate for the loss of revenue that would result.

Design and Requisites.

Until some more valuable agency can be substituted, the savings banks must be considered as one of the beneficent institutions of the State, which it is the duty of the State to foster and strengthen by judicious legislation and careful supervision. The purposes and scope and limitations of their office should not be lost sight of and may be shortly stated as follows:

1. To receive in moderate amounts the deposits of suitable persons offering them.
2. To keep and invest these as safely as the nature of human things will permit.
3. To repay them on demand, and
4. With such moderate earnings as may arise from such investments.

“To receive in moderate amounts.” It is not desirable to have large deposits from single individuals. Those who have such to offer are able to make their own investments. They do not strengthen the bank. In times of stringency they are most likely to be drawn out to its embaraassment. "From suitable persons." The money of the suspicious, or nervous, or panicky individual, or class may be declined. They may be sparks to the tinder. "To keep and invest safely." This is the one indispensable requisite that overtops all others and must yield to none. "To repay on demand." In the present condition of the system this cannot be an absolute requirement as to time. All property cannot be converted at once. Depositors are liable to panics. A suitable time must be taken, if necessary, to realize upon assets. But in the ideal system, immediateness of payment is an element. "With moderate earnings." Moderate, because large dividends cannot be made with due regard to safety of investment and promptness in payment. The requisites to be observed in the investment of funds in the perfect savings bank stand in the following order. SAFETY, CONVERTIBILITY, Profit.

In closing this report I desire to acknowledge the courteous treatment and kind assistance rendered me by the officers of the banks, and the readiness with which they have afforded all information desired in relation to the condition of the institutions under their charge, and to bear witness to the general faithfulness and care with which they have executed their trusts. That mistakes have not been made in the past, it is not necessary to cliam. That experience has been gained for the future is equally true. The efficient supervision of my predecessor and his admirable method of statement in presenting the condition and standing of the banks has had much to do in allaying the tendencies and drift of the times which were threatening the insolvency of some of the banks, and the weakening of others. With the experience gained in the crisis through which the banks have passed, with the continued fostering care and guardianship of the State, with an increased confidence on the part of the public, with a revival in the productions, the industries and the business of the country, and with the consequent increased earnings and savings of the people, we may look for an enlarged opportunity for the savings banks of this State to fulfil their beneficent mission.
