STATE OF MAINE.

Adjutant General's Office, Augusta, Dec. 31, 1880.

To his Excellency DANIEL F. DAVIS,

Governor and Commander-in-Chief:

SIR: I have the honor to herewith submit my report as Adjutant General, Acting Quartermaster and Paymaster General for the year ending December 31st, 1880.

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

GEORGE L. BEAL,

Adjutant General.

REPORT.

The militia organization of this State has undergone many radical changes the past year; all of the old men have been discharged, and a new organization with new enlistments has been perfected, and it is with the utmost pride that I look upon our militia organizations to-day as compared with those of former years; the character and standing of the officers and men have been greatly improved, and with a few exceptions, I think are all that can be desired to make good soldiers; many of the very best young men are soliciting the privilege of enlisting in the companies, knowing that the higher the standard the better the composition of the men.

I have given much thought to military matters the past year, to know how the militia could be benefitted and improved without increasing the expense to the State; and I think the present organization, if left to be completed, and the appropriation made sufficient to carry out the law with the new rules and regulations, the State will have reason to feel that the militia is no burden.

I am well aware that many look upon this part of our government rather disdainfully, and support it with less zeal and willingness than the Executive, Judicial, or Legislative portion; yet no citizen would for a moment think that our State should be without a militia.

The time was, and God only knows how soon it may come again, when this branch of our government will be in the minds of the people paramount to all others.

The expenses of sustaining the present force are very small compared with those of other States; and people should bear in mind that nearly every man belonging to the militia pays out from his own pocket more dollars than he receives from the State.

ORGANIZATION.

The Legislature of last Winter passed a resolve, approved February 14, 1880, authorizing a commission to be appointed by the Commander-in-chief, to revise, amend, or add to the laws relating to the Militia.

The following were appointed by General Order No. 9, dated February 14, 1880: Brigadier General, Charles W. Tilden; Colonel, Joseph B. Peaks; Lieutenant Colonel, Daniel White; Lieutenant Colonel, J. Marshall Brown; Major, Frank E. Nye.

The commission reported to the same Legislature a very concise, practical, militia law, well adapted to the wants of the State, which was adopted with some slight amendments.

The changes in the law have occasioned a reorganization of the entire Militia; all officers have been newly commissioned, and all men enlisted and mustered into service.

As now provided the Militia is divided into three parts: Enrolled, Reserve, and Active or Volunteer. The first two are not subject to any duty, unless in case of war, or for the purpose of preventing, repelling or suppressing invasion, insurrection or riot, or in aiding civil officers in the execution of laws, and then only when the active force shall be insufficient for that purpose.

From the thirteen old infantry companies twelve were reorganized to conform to the requirements of the new law, and one, the Belfast City Guards, was disbanded.

Four new ones have been organized, in the towns of Dexter, Dover, Rockland and Waterville, making sixteen companies now organized into two regiments of eight companies each; the first regiment having its headquarters located in Portland, and the second in Bangor. The Frontier Guards of Eastport have also been reorganized, and remain at this time, unattached to either regiment.

The Androscoggin Light Artillery, of Lewiston, was disbanded, and the First Platoon of First Maine Battery of Light Artillery enlisted and organized from the same. The Second Platoon was located in Portland, and is composed of a fine body of young men, who will make one of the most efficient organizations in the service.

These two platoons are now thoroughly organized as First Maine Battery of Light Artillery, and armed with four Napoleon twelve-pound guns. Also, each is provided with forty Springfield breach-loading rifles and equipments, which make them useful for either artillery or infantry.

New uniforms, arms and equipments have been furnished throughout, and the arms turned in from the old companies have been re-issued to the reserve militia, making every company completely armed and equipped.

RIFLE PRACTICE.

Your attention is respectfully called to this subject, as one of the most important connected with the militia.

The rules and regulations adopted by General Order No. 18, and the appointment of Colonel E. C. Farrington as Inspector, has done a great amount of good, and has demonstrated the wisdom of the authority given to establish this system.

Colonel Farrington has given much time and study to this subject, and is thoroughly conversant with the National rules and regulations governing the practice, qualifying him so to instruct and develop marksmen, which will place the Maine Militia well up in rank.

The Inspector's Report and recommendations have my approval; and I would impress upon all interested, the continuance of this system, which must be recognized as part of the soldiers' drill, and of more importance than all others.

Duties.

But one day's service has been ordered for inspection of the two regiments the past year.

The First Regiment, Colonel J. M. Brown, was inspected at Portland, September ninth, by Lieut. Colonel John T. Richards, of your Excellency's Staff.

The Second Regiment, Colonel Daniel White, was inspected by companies, at their armories, by Brigadier General Charles W. Tilden, Inspector General.

The reports of these officers, relative to the condition and efficiency of these commands, are submitted with this report, for your consideration.

Frequent inspection of the companies, and the property under their charge, should be made, as in no other way can it be kept serviceable, and the different organizations kept up to the proper standard.

ENCAMPMENTS.

The law provides, and it is intended for the troops to be called together for camp duty each year; and there is nothing to familiarize the officers and men with the duties of a soldier in the field but this, and on the score of economy, I think it more economical to have a portion of the inspection, and also the rifle practice, at these times, than to have them at different periods during the year.

I respectfully recommend an appropriation for an encampment each year.

ARSENAL.

The Arsenal at Bangor is now in good condition, and the property has been faithfully cared for by the Keeper.

For years, there has been a great accumulation of old and unserviceable property, and now the arsenal is filled with a large amount of material that is of no use, but should be disposed of at auction, or in some other way, thus saving extra expense and care.

The necessity is growing yearly for some suitable place of deposit for military property, at Augusta; the large amount necessary to be used by the militia, is now transported to and from the arsenal, causing great inconvenience and expense.

I think it would be economy for the State to have a small building erected upon the State grounds, near the railroad, suitable for storage of camp and garrison equipage, and all other property needed for use of the militia.

LAW.

The law governing the militia, passed by the last Legislature, should be printed, with the rules and regulations adopted, in some practical form for distribution and use of the militia.

Uniforms.

The Legislature last Winter appropriated the sum of eighteen thousand dollars ($18,000) for uniforming the militia. Although the amount was less than the estimates, by utilizing some of the old uniforms, in part, it was found sufficient to new uniform the seventeen companies of infantry, and the battery of light artillery.

The work has been done by Wheelwright, Clark & Co. of Bangor, and B. F. Haley, Esq., of New Market, N. H., who deserve much credit for the workmanlike manner, and the pains taken by them to please. No better uniforms can be found; and as far as I have been able to understand the sentiments of the men, I think they are perfectly satisfied with the material and make.

The number of uniforms supplied the infantry is eight hundred and ninety-six (896), and the artillery, seventy (70); making the total amount furnished, nine hundred and sixty-six (966), at a cost of eighteen dollars and sixty-three cents per uniform.

RESERVE MILITIA.

The reserve militia has long been needed as an organization for the independent companies which have been formed and allowed to bear arms. The following section from the militia law, gives the expense, and explains its relation to the militia:

"Sect. 58. Such companies may be furnished with arms and equipments and other military property necessary for their use, by the State, when on hand, such property to be accounted for the same as by the volunteer militia, but the reserve militia shall be to no other expense to the State, except when ordered out by the Governor and Commander-in-Chief; when so ordered out by the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, such reserve militia shall be governed by all the rules and regulations governing the volunteer militia."

There were organized in the State twenty-two companies, uniformed, armed and equipped at their own expense, and doing duty without any commissions from the State; most of them were organized in the year 1878, and largely made up from veterans of the war of 1861, making them reliable and safe men for the State to encourage; fifteen of those have now re-organized under the new law, and have been mustered into the reserve militia for two years; four new ones have been organized this year, making nineteen companies in all, armed and equipped by the State, located in the following counties: Piscataquis, eight; Somerset, six; Oxford, two; Cumberland, one; York, one; Penobscot, one.

A regiment of eight companies in Piscataquis County, with headquarters at Dover, and a battalion of six companies in Somerset County, with headquarters at Skowhegan, have been organized, with the other five companies left unattached.

ENROLLED MILITIA.

The law provides for the enrollment of all male citizens between the ages of eighteen and forty-five, biennially, in April.

The importance of having this enrollment correct is something that should impress itself upon all, as the number returned is the basis for the amount and value of ordnance, and ordnance stores, issued to the State from the U. S. Government. Blanks, and all the necessary orders and instructions, should be provided for the cities and towns early in the year. The last enrollment was made in 1874, and showed at that time seventy-nine thousand three hundred and eighty-eight men liable to military duty.

OFFICE.

The increased business in the office caused by the reorganization of the militia, created more work than has been done in any one year since the war.

The small sum allowed for clerk hire is not sufficient to procure one qualified to properly perform the duties requisite; and the effect of the reduction made two years ago, shows conclusively that the work left undone will soon require extra help to place the office where it was before the change was made.

At the commencement of the year, when I came into possession of the office, it was found impossible to do the work without the employment of a first-class clerk; consequently a detail from the militia was made of Captain Henry M. Sprague, Co. C., 1st Regiment M. V. M. Although the work has been arduous, and requiring many extra hours, it has been faithfully and ably performed, for which I extend to him my grateful acknowledgements.

I most earnestly recommend that the salary of the clerk for this office be increased. In conclusion, it gives me pleasure to say that Maine can justly boast of a well-organized, armed and equipped militia force. If any branch of our government needs encouragement, if any one, more than another needs support by popular sentiment, it is the military arm. Many are apt to look upon it simply as a social body, banded together for social enjoyment.

That nearly all organizations are formed for duty or pleasure, is true; and were there no pleasure connected with the service of the militia, it is evident the young men who compose it would not take the deep interest they now do.

It needs no words of mine to convince the intelligent people of our State of the importance of a small, well-organized militia.

To those who are so blind that the cost of maintaining this branch of our Government seems a waste of public money, I will only refer them to the scenes that were enacted in Pennsylvania and New York, a few years ago, when the civil arm of the law became powerless against lawless mobs, and the true militia men came forward and gave their lives to protect the lives and property of their fellow citizens.

I have to thank your Excellency for the uniform courtesy extended to me, and for the attention you have given at all times to matters of military interest that I have laid before you; and to express my acknowledgements to all officers having business with me officially, for the earnest and able co-operation rendered.

QUARTERMASTER GENERAL'S REPORT.

I entered upon my duties as Quartermaster General January 19, 1880, and found the account of the receipts and disbursements for ordnance and ordnance stores was very imperfect.

The amount of property on hand at the arsenal in Bangor, as shown by an inventory taken February 4, 1880, by Col. Daniel White, made by the order of your Excellency, and the amount on hand in the Adjutant General's office, did not compare with the Adjutant General's report of 1879. Not being able to harmonize the two, I have been obliged to take Col. White's report as a basis.

Expenditures for 1880.

Inspection for 1879, deficiency	$ 478	00
Freight and transportation	920	24
Flags for Second Regiment	225	00

Miscellaneous expenses	1,230	61
Inspection for 1880	780	50
Rifle practice	334	30

PAYMASTER GENERAL'S REPORT.

No money has been received or paid out by me, as Acting Paymaster General, for the present year.

GEORGE L. BEAL,
Acting Paymaster General.

INSPECTOR GENERAL'S REPORT.

HALLOWELL, Decmber 1, 1880.

General George L. Beal,

Adjutant General of Maine:

General: In accordance with Special Order No. 125, dated Adjutant General's Office, Augusta, August 10, 1880, to inspect the clothing furnished the companies composing the Maine Volunteer Militia, with a view of ascertaining if said clothing was made according to the terms of the contract, I have to report, that at the assembling of the troops composing the First Regiment of Maine Volunteer Militia at Portland, for the above purpose, I was unable to be present, and the duty of inspection being assigned to Colonel Jno. T. Richards in my absence, I respectfully refer you to his report for information concerning the uniforms of the companies composing said regiment.

No stated time or particular place being designated for the assembling of the troops of the Second Regiment, as a regiment, the inspection was held at the armories of the several companies.

In most cases, the companies presented quite full ranks, thus enabling me to give more time, and make a more thorough inspection than I could have made had the regiment been ordered into camp for only one day.

Companies "A" of Hampden, "B" of Oldtown, "E" of Skowhegan and "G" of Bangor, I found furnished with new coats and pants; also a portion of the caps were new, the remainder being of the old pattern, changed over to conform to the pattern adopted by the State, when the new uniform was ordered.

Companies "C" of Dexter, "D" of Rockland and "F" of Dover, were supplied with new pants; the coats and caps of these companies being those worn by the members of the old organizations, altered over to conform to the new pattern furnished the other companies of the command.

The material from which the uniforms were made, so far as I was able to judge, was of the quality called for in the contracts with Messrs. Wheelwright, Clark and Co., of Bangor, and B. F. Haley, of Newmarket, N. H.

The make-up of the new clothing was performed in a work-manlike manner, and in most cases the uniforms were well fitted to the men. The trimmings were all new, and in accordance with the requirements of the contracts. The work of altering the old clothing was well executed, and gives the companies furnished with these suits a uniform in appearance nearly equal to the companies furnished with entire new clothing.

I was informed that in some of the companies, after the uniforms were ordered, some changes were made in the membership, which necessitated the exchanging of some of the suits among the members, in order to give them good-fitting garments, and in most cases was successful, so that there are but few men in the entire command, who have not a well-fitting uniform.

While there may be some slight imperfections in the clothing furnished, I feel it my duty to state that the contractors have complied with the terms of their contracts with the State, copies of which were furnished me, and the militia of Maine are now provided with a desirable and serviceable uniform.

In connection with the inspection of the clothing ordered by Special Order No. 125, I have to state, that at the request of Colonel White, commanding the Second Regiment, I inspected the Field and Staff officers of the command, also the Non-commissioned Staff, who assembled for the above purpose at the armory of "G" company, at Bangor; also the armories, guns and equipments, books &c., of the different companies of the command, and submit the following report:

"A" Company of Hampden.

This company still occupies the town hall as an armory, which gives the company ample room for drill purposes. Closets are provided for the safe keeping of the guns and equipments, but no arrangements are made for keeping the uniforms at the armory. The guns and equipments were well cared for; the books of the company properly kept, and everything connected with the command indicated an interest and determination on the part of the officers and men to retain the good reputation attached to the old organization.

"B" Company of Oldtown.

The armory of this company is nicely arranged, having a good drill hall, with ante-rooms for the safe keeping of the company property, also with arrangements for having the uniforms kept at the armory. The guns and equipments were well taken care of, books properly kept, and everything connected with the armory presented the appearance of neatness and care on the part of those who have the company in charge.

"C" Company of Dexter.

This company is provided with a good hall of sufficient capacity for company and squad drills, connected with which are suitable rooms for keeping the arms, equipments and clothing of the company. The arms and equipments were in good condition. The books of the company were not at the armory, but I was informed that they were properly kept.

"D" Company of Rockland.

The armory of this company is new, having been fitted up expressly for the company by the city, and is nicely arranged for the protection of the company property, as well as the comfort of the members of the command. The hall for drill purposes is of ample capacity. The arms and equipments were all in good condition, books properly kept, and the general appearance of the command was of a character creditable to the officers and men of which it is composed.

"E" Company of Skowhegan.

The armory of this company is small, and hardly sufficient for the keeping in an orderly manner of the company property. For drill purposes, the company has the use of a hall connected with the armory when not otherwise used. The arms and equipments are in good condition. The books of the company I did not see, but was informed that they were properly kept.

"F" Company of Dover.

This company's armory is small, and like that of "E" Company, is hardly sufficient for the requirements of the company. I was informed that the company had access to a hall for drill purposes, which was not accessible at the time of the inspection, as it was occupied by other parties. The arms and equipments are well taken care of and are in good condition. The books of the company I did not see, but was informed that they were properly kept.

"G" Company of Bangor.

This company has a fine hall, with rooms connected with it for the safe keeping of all the company property. The company is fortunate in having entire control of the hall. The arms and equipments were all in good condition and well cared for. The books were neatly and properly kept. Everything connected with the company indicated that the present organization was not to be behind other companies of the regiment, in its efforts to forward the interest of the command, and maintain the reputation of a well-drilled and diciplined company.

From the foregoing report it will be observed that the several companies of the regiment are well provided with desirable uniforms, guns and equipments, and in most cases with armories suitable for the safe repository of the company property, and with hall accommodations of sufficient capacity for most of the company evolutions.

The companies are made up of good material, care having been taken in reorganizing the old commands, and the formation of new companies, to have such men as would take an interest in the several organizations composing the regiment.

While some of the companies are officered and made up of men who have had little experience in military, I feel confident that with the efficient field and staff officers, together with some of the line officers, who have been connected with the military for some time, and the interest manifest among the officers and men of the entire command, that the troops of the Second Regiment will soon perfect themselves in drill and discipline, and earn for themselves a creditable reputation as a military organization.

We have now two well organized regiments and one unattached company of Infantry, and one Battery of Light Artillery, and an effort should be made by the friends of the military, to encourage the interest manifested by those directly connected with it.

Could there be an annual encampment of the active militia of the State, of at least six days, it would tend largely to increase the interest already manifested, beside imparting to the troops that instruction in regimental drill, which it is impossible to acquire in the company drill. In view of this fact, it is to be hoped that the State will continue its encouragement, and that an appropriation sufficient for the above purpose will be made annually.

I have the honor to remain Your obedient servant,

C. W. TILDEN,

Inspector General.

GARDINER, Dec. 31, 1880.

To General George L. Beal,

Adjutant General of Maine:

In obedience to Special Order, No. 161, Adjutant General's Office, dated Sept. 8, 1880, I proceeded to Portland to inspect the First Regiment, M. V. M., Colonel J. Marshall Brown, commanding.

The regiment was stationed for the day on Long Island, Portland harbor.

Owing to shortness of time a general inspection was alone possible. The new rifles, which have lately been furnished the command, are in good condition; the uniforms, part of which are new, also appeared well cared for, and are neat in appearance. The upper button on the outside row should be removed or covered, as it scars the stock of the rifle badly.

This regiment is largely composed of good material, but owing to the reorganization of the militia, it has quite a large proportion of raw recruits, who appeared for the first time in regimental formation at this inspection; in spite of this, through the exertion of their officers, they made a very creditable appearance, and the few manœuvres the regiment executed were fairly done. More attention should be given to the military bearing of the men, and a more careful adjustment of their accourrements, and I would recommend that the attention of company officers be called to these details.

The officers and men of our militia are entitled to great credit for the proficiency already attained, and for their patience in still keeping together, and maintaining themselves under the most discouraging conditions.

The State has constantly disregarded them and what little pittance they have received has been doled out most unwillingly. A great State like this cannot afford this policy. Our militia is the only school our State can depend upon in case of war to furnish our troops with officers, and should be most carefully and constantly fostered. To attain proficiency, frequent inspections are necessary, and at least one annual encampment is indispensable—without these the maintenance of the militia is a farce.

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

JOHN T. RICHARDS, LIEUT. COL.,

Acting Inspector General.

DOVER, December 31, 1880.

General George L. Beal,

Adjutant General of Maine:

GENERAL: I have the honor to report the condition of my command at this date.

The regiment was fully organized on the fourth day of September, A. D. 1880, as the First Regiment Reserve Militia of Maine, it formerly having been a volunteer organization, known as the Piscataquis Veteran Battalion.

Arrangements had been made for a muster under the old organization, to commence on September 7, 1880. Immediately upon the organization, an order was issued to go into camp at South Sebec, on Tuesday, September 7th. Every company, except Co. B, of Corinna, promptly responded. Company B had not formerly belonged to the regiment, and therefore could not have made arrangements in so short a time, as each company provided its own rations and transportation.

The Douty Guards, of Dover, Captain Stowe, by the kind permission of Colonel White, commanding 2d Regiment Volunteers, took place in line as company B, and was of great service in camp.

The general expenses of the muster were provided for by the field officers. The discipline of the troops during the three days was something remarkable, and to my mind can only be explained by the general good character of the men, and the ability of the line officers. Nearly all the line officers have seen service at the front, and know how to obey, as well as be obeyed. Men need not throw away their manhood when they become soldiers; and it is to be hoped that the soldiers of our militia regiments will not forget this.

The chief objection to the appropriation of money for our militia, is on account of the prejudice engendered by the bad conduct of a few soldiers, who injure the reputation of all. I shall endeavor to see to it that such elements are eliminated from my command.

During the three days of muster, the usual routine of camp duty was observed. On the third day, Colonel White, of Bangor, reviewed the battalion, and was pleased to pay it a high compliment for its appearance. Since the muster not much attention has been devoted to it, as everything has to be done at the expense of the officers and men, the reserve militia getting nothing from the state.

As soon as the snow leaves the ground, it is contemplated having regular company drills; and if the state could provide for an inspection of the companies, it would add very much to the discipline of the troops. I also suggest the propriety of ordering every officer of the regiment, from the Colonel commanding down, before a board, to test their ability to fill the position.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JOSEPH B. PEAKS, Colonel Commanding 1st Regt. M. R. M.

REPORT OF INSPECTOR OF RIFLE PRACTICE.

FRYEBURG, December 20, 1880.

To General George L. Beal, Adjutant General:

I herewith submit the following report of the Rifle Practice of the Maine Volunteer Militia, during the past year. I am surprised at the progress made in this branch of instruction, and now look forward with confidence, to the best of results, another year.

When I took charge of this department, I was not aware of the inefficiency of the militia in this respect. Owing to its re-organization, no effort could be made for systematic drill practice until June, when circular No. 1 was issued. During the month of June, I visited all the companies comprising the two regiments, except two. The Commander of one, Captain N. C. Stowe of the Douty Guards, Dover, was present when I met the Jameson Guards, Bangor. The other company was the Frontier Guards, Eastport. Quite a number of the men, who had acquired some skill in rifle pratice heretofore, had withdrawn, and those, who had taken their places had none, or very little knowledge of it.

An examination of the different companies, disclosed the fact that sixty per cent. of the entire militia had never fired a rifle, and but very few were average shots. The outlook was discouraging. There was no range in the State. The companies did not receive their forty-five calibre, Springfield rifles, until the very last of June; but the earnest desire of the officers and men to become skilled in this most important part of a soldier's duty, encouraged me to do all that seemed practicable for so short a time. Towns whose duty it was to furnish a place for target practice, where companies were located, were solicited to make suitable provisions for this purpose. Most of the towns immediately complied, so that some kind of range for practice was soon supplied. Aiming (the foundation of successful practice) was made a part of their armory drill, so that by the time the targets were in readiness, ammunition was furnished, and practice commenced in earnest.

Companies A and B, First Regiment, Portland, Capt. C. W. Davis and Capt. C. A. Weston, commanding, meet in the same building. The armory is sufficiently commodious, and well adapted for their use. Their ante, or business rooms, are nicely arranged and kept in good order. They took hold of the practice in good earnest, and those who have adhered to the rules laid down have made commendable progress. While it may seem that these companies are favorably located for rifle practice, such is not the case. Their range is two and one-half miles from the city, in East Deering, and it requires no small loss of time, and considerable expense, to go to and from it; therefore only those most anxious to excel keep up It is to be hoped that in early their out-door practice. spring a more convenient place can be found for a range that will accommodate the three companies in the city of Portland.

Co. E, First Regiment, Capt. J. J. Lynch (Montgomery Guards.) They have a fine armory and business rooms; none better or more cleanly kept in the State. There were but few men present when I visited them. They seem to love the usual military drill and parade more than the substantial knowledge of the arms they carry. I found them very deficient in rifle practice. Little or no attention, except on the part of a very small per cent. of the company, has been given to it during the year. They were the only company not represented by a team at the State match. I know of no reason why they may not become one of the best in the State. Capt.

Lynch seems desirous that such should be their standing, and hopes another season to make a more commendable record.

- Co. D, First Regiment, Norway, Capt. John F. Fitz. Good material is found in this company for riflemen. Like most companies situated in the smaller towns, they are somewhat scattered, and therefore it will require more labor on the part of the commander to develop a good average. They have made, however, good progress. Their armory does well for the purposes of drill and storage of arms.
- Co. C, First Regiment, Auburn, Capt. Frank P. Merrill. This company had more average good marksmen than any company in the State, at the commencement of the season. Careful attention to the best methods of drill practice in the armory, has added greatly to their efficiency. A high average is now what they should most seek for. Their armory is centrally located and very well arranged. Their range is conveniently located, within half a mile of their armory.
- Co. F, First Regiment, Capital Guards, Augusta, Capt. John E. Fossett. This company had about the usual number of those accustomed to the use of the rifle. They have a good armory and convenient range. No energy is lacking on the part of a considerable portion of this company in all the duties calculated to make the best of marksmen. But, like many other companies, too many are indifferent to this part of their duty, and that will keep down the average. The city has done much to encourage them, and nothing short of a high average should satisfy them.
- Co. G, First Regiment, Capt. Cyrus P. Berry, Biddeford. This company having maintained quite a reputation for skillful marksmen for some time, took hold of the work with a determination to hold a high rank in the State militia. They have done well, and present a good figure of merit. Their range is quite conveniently situated. Their armory is well adapted for the purposes required.

- Co. H, First Regiment, Capt. C. M. Drake, Gardiner. This company did not commence its practice early enough to make a good exhibit. Later, under the the efficient management of Capt. Drake, they have taken hold with a determination to do justice to themselves and the State. I have no doubt of their success another season.
- Co. A, Second Regiment, Crosby Guards, Hampden, Capt. Wilmer F. Harding. This company has some very promising marksmen. They have a good, convenient armory. Like all companies whose members are some distance from one another, they will have to make especial effort to keep up a good average. Lieut. Col. Flagg has shown a commendable zeal in his efforts to aid the company in this practice. Not complying with rules of practice has lowered their figure of merit.
- Co. B, Second Regiment, Hersey Light Infantry, Oldtown, Capt. C. E. Miles. The condition of this company was most discouraging. The members widely separated, the armory in a damp basement of the Town Hall, a place wholly unfit for the storage of arms. Their guns were rusty, and equipments mildewed. I encouraged them as best I could. Steps were immediately taken to get a better armory. A range was fitted up, and a determined effort made to do their best. Now they have a good armory, and to-day may be classed among the best in the state. Much credit is due Captain Miles, for the progress made. It shows how much can be accomplished by determined endeavor.
- Co. C, Second Regiment, Dexter Light Infantry, Capt. D. W. McCrillis. This company has shown an unusual amount of energy in rifle practice. Hard work and untiring effort has given them an enviable position in their regiment, and among the militia in the State. They have a good armory and storeroom for their arms, and a convenient range.
- Co. D, Second Regiment, Tillson Light Infantry, Rockland, Capt. H. C. Chapman. This was a new company, and did not receive their arms until July 1st. They commenced their practice by a careful armory drill in aiming, and by diligent labor have nearly equalled any company in the number of men qualified as marksmen. They stand first in the figure of merit. They have a good armory and range.

- Co. E, Second Regiment, Skowhegan Light Infantry, Capt. Asa S. Emery. There were serious difficulties in the way for making liberal progress in this command, in the short time that could be used this year. The practice season was at a time when the men were busily engaged at their labors, many at work on farms. Much progress could hardly be expected. They have, however, done well, and will I doubt not, show a decided improvement another year.
- Co. F, Second Regiment, Douty Guards, Dover, Capt. N. C. Stowe. It was quite late before this company commenced their practice. They have made excellent progress, and require only a longer time to rank with the best in the regiment.
- Co. G, Second Regiment, Jameson Guards, Bangor, Capt. Wm. E. Lord. I found this company very inefficient in rifle practice. A large number of new men had taken the place of old members, therefore but few knew the art of shooting a rifle. They seemed awake to the importance of that part of their duty. The city authorities seemed disposed to do all that was required to aid them. For some reason the interest was allowed to falter. No returns of practice have been made, and I have no means of knowing if anything of much account has been done. Early attention should be given to remedy the fault.
- Co. H, Second Regiment, Waterville, Capt. Alfred E. Adams, has been recently formed, and have had no opportunity to make a record. I am informed that they have the natural qualifications for a first-class company, and are taking lively interest in rifle practice.

Frontier Guards, Eastport, Capt. J. N. Coffin. Owing to the distance and lateness of the season, I did not visit this company, but conferred with them by letter. They have taken much interest in the practice and maintained a good degree of efficiency. They have a good class of men, I am credibly informed, and are interested in their whole duty.

In ascertaining the figure of merit, I have multiplied the number of marksmen by 100; those in the first-class by 60; second-class by 30; third-class by 10, and added the amounts together, dividing the total amount by 40. The usual method is to divide by the number present at the last inspection in each company. This could not well be done this season.

As will be seen by the statement of expenses in this department, the State has done but very little toward aiding the militia in this branch of instruction. I am aware that the funds at the command of the military department would not permit it, this year.

The soldiers have spent a good deal of valuable time, the past season, and expended considerable money for ammunition that they might maintain a fair degree of excellence.

The State has now two well organized regiments, composed of the working men of the State. It is too much to expect, that they can continue to draw so largely on their own resources, to meet the wants which the State is duly bound to provide.

Let the State give their militia the proper encouragement, and I do but echo the opinion of those better qualified to judge than myself, that in another year they will have a militia, second to no State in the Union.

By advice with the Commanders of each regiment, Col. John Marshall Brown, of the first, and Col. D. White, of the second, a regimental team has been formed in both regiments. The places in these teams will be made the subject of competition hereafter.

RANGES.

General Order No. 18 made it my duty to locate and complete one State range, having facilities for practice up to 600 yards. After conferring with Hon. P. O. Vickery, Mayor of Augusta, it was thought best to unite with the city of Augusta, which advanced two hundred dollars to provide for the practice of the Capital Guards, and locate the range at the capital of the State. Arrangements were made with Mr. Charles Milliken to lease the State a right to use a portion of the trotting park, which, in connection with the grounds owned by the State, furnished the required distance.

The iron target, owned by Gen. C. P. Mattocks, which had been used by the Maine Rifle Club, at Riverside Farm, East Baldwin, was purchased of him at a low price. Butts were erected at 200 and 600 yards, with covered pits and traps, in a thoroughly substantial and improved manner. Two iron targets were placed on each pit, and the trap provided with plate glass, so the marker can see the bullets strike the target. This aids in safe, rapid and correct marking.

The lease has not been made in writing, and unless satisfactory arrangements can be made before another season, a new location will be sought for. I have not provided the range with some needful improvements for this reason.

The Capital Rifle Club, composed of some of the leading and professional men at Augusta, has erected a building, at 200 yards firing point, for winter use, so that those who would like to indulge in winter shooting can do so.

The ranges now used by the different companies have mostly been erected as cheaply as possible for this year, and will need repairs and improvements. I think the building of expensive ranges a mistake. They should be convenient and safe, and need not cost the towns but a small amount of money.

ARMORY INSTRUCTION.

Shooting on the range only shows the result of proper drill in the armory. The foundation of good shooting is learned

Hence the method of instruction and careful practice should have the closest attention of each commander. progress thus far made has been accomplished by making position and aiming an important feature of armory drill. Individual volley and company firing can be successfully taught in the armory. Several of the companies have erected targets in their armories, and use a "five-grain" cartridge and This is one of the best methods possible, and round ball. each company should be furnished with an allowance of this ammunition for practice, and a record kept of all scores made under the proper rules. The company that gives the best armory instruction will make the best record on the range. I doubt the propriety of allowing companies to erect targets in armories, except by permission, and under such supervision and conditions as will make it safe for practice.

AMMUNITION.

The ammunition used the past year was made by the U. S. Cartridge Company, Lowell, Mass., and has given excellent satisfaction. The solid head shell can be reloaded a great many times. The amount used has been thirty rounds to a man. This is a small allowance, and ought to be increased at least to double that amount. The "five-grain" cartridges are made by the above company, and do very accurate shooting at 75 and 100 feet. With a set of reloading tools, costing $2.00, companies can reload these shells at a small expense.

Each company now has a few men who are excellent shots, and will be able to keep a good team in the field. The great aim another year should be to bring up the companies' average. Every member of the company should be accustomed to use his rifle, know how to take care of it, and do average shooting.

Any member that will not do this, should not be borne on the rolls. Each company should be examined at an early day, and such as are unfit, by reason of physical difficulties, or unwillingness to receive instruction, should be discharged and others put in their places. A reliable marksman will make a reliable soldier, when brought face to face with danger. Determined will power, has more to do with making a good score, than any other qualification. The instruction another year should be varied, and such as will bring the whole militia up to a good average. And although those who had a fair knowledge, and many who knew but very little about rifle practice, have made remarkable progress, still, the unpleasant fact is shown in the returns, that not less than thirty-seven per cent. of the men, have not practiced during the year. While we have reasons to be proud of what has been done, we cannot shut our eyes to the necessity of adopting such a policy, as will compel every man in the militia to know how to use the rifle, at least with ordinary skill.

RESERVE MILITIA.

The Reserve Militia occupies an important place in the militia force of the State, and while their relation to the State is not the same as the Active Militia, still it seems highly proper that the system of rifle practice should be extended to them, and some allowances of ammunition furnished them for practice.

EXPENSES.

During the season of instruction I have worked thirty-nine days and nights, and have traveled more than two thousand miles. Riding, locating ranges, conferring with officers of companies and town authorities by day, and spending the evenings instructing the companies in their armories. The whole expense to the State, including the clerical work of tabulating returns of practice, writing over two hundred communications, has been but three hundred and thirty-four dollars and thirty cents.

There should be expended another season for completing State range and continuing proper instruction to the militia, not less than one thousand dollars. With careful economy this outlay will bring the militia to a fair degree of efficiency.

In conclusion, I wish to say that my suggestions and instructions have received the most careful attention from officers and men. To this, and the assistance of Gen. George L. Beal, and Col. H. M. Sprague, is due very much the success that has been achieved in this department. The militia of this State is indebted to His Excellency, Governor Daniel F. Davis, and Gen. George L. Beal, for making this new departure which, it is hoped, will give character, efficiency and stability to the militia of Maine.

Col. E. C. FARRINGTON,

Inspector of Rifle Practice.

The attention of all officers and enlisted men of the Maine-Volunteer Militia is called to the Militia Law approved March 16, 1880, which will be carried out in part as follows:

I. The organization of infantry companies will be as follows: one captain, one first lieutenant, one second lieutenant, one first sergeant, four sergeants, four corporals, two musicians, one wagoner, and not less than forty nor more than sixty privates.

II. The artillery will be organized and known as the First Maine Battery of Light Artillery, and will consist of one captain, two first lieutenants, two second lieutenants, one first sergeant, one quartermaster sergeant, six sergeants, twelve corporals, two trumpeters, and seventy-eight privates, divided into three platoons, located at Lewiston, Portland and Bangor.

III. The organization known as the Androscoggin Light Artillery is hereby disbanded, and Capt. Thos. B. Menneally is authorized to recruit and organize the first platoon of the 1st Maine Battery of Light Artillery, and will take charge of all property now in the custody of the Androscoggin Light Artillery.

IV. Commanding officers of the old organizations will be supplied with new enlistment books and rolls, and upon receipt of the same will immediately proceed to enroll their companies in conformity to the new militia law.

enlisting, will be honorably discharged.

VI. No minors will be enlisted without the written consent of their parent or guardian.

VII. It is very desirable that especial efforts be made to secure men of character and standing in their several communities, so that our military force, though small, can be made a body of soldiers which will adorn as well as defend the State; that the companies may be considered schools for officers, each capable of being expanded into a regiment, should necessity require, and nothing will be tolerated tending to impair their efficiency. Enlistments must be based on the character of the applicants. As soon as possible after enlistment, the companies will be carefully inspected, and only such men mustered into the service of the State as are found to comply with the above requirements.

No enlisted man shall absent himself from the State for more than fifteen days without obtaining a furlough. When troops are on duty under law or orders, the highest commander present with them will regulate the issue of furloughs and passes as he may deem for the good of the service.

III. The following books, to be furnished by the State, will be kept at the several headquarters, and by the company commanders, and will at all times be open to the inspection of the proper officers:

Order and Record Book.—In the order and record book will be written all orders, general or special, and all circulars originating at the headquarters or from a company commander, each to be signed in the book by the officer issuing it. A first sergeant cannot sign orders for the company commander. In the margin, against each order, should be noted the date when it was communicated to the command. Records of business transacted by commands under their charter organizations, must not be entered in this book.

In it should be entered the information contained in the enlistment papers, immediately after the muster-in of recruits. All discharges and deaths should be entered immediately after they occur, and will also be noted in the column of remarks opposite the original entry. A red line should be drawn through the name and description of each man, who ceases to be a member of the organization, and a re-enlistment will be entered anew, with a reference to the page containing his previous record.

Roll Book.—The first sergeant's roll book is for his use at roll-calls, and for keeping a record of details; in it will be entered the names of the company; first the commissioned officers, second the sergeants, third the corporals, each in order of seniority; then the musicians and wagoner, followed by the privates, in alphabetical order. The roll should be re-entered as frequently as may be required by changes in the company. At the top of the columns is entered the date of the meeting, drill or other duty. At roll-call the first sergeant enters against each name in the proper column, P, if the soldier answers to his name, A, if not so answering.

collecting and retaining all public property now in the hands of said organization, until further orders.

By order of the commander-in-chief.

GEORGE L. BEAL, Adjutant General.

Adjutant General's Office, Augusta, May 24th, 1880.

General Orders No. 18.

The following rules and regulations in relation to the rifle practice of the volunteer militia, are hereby established by the commander-in-chief:

I. All arms and equipments issued to the troops, when not in use will be kept in the armories under the charge of suitable persons, and the same must always be kept in condition for immediate use. The barrel of the rifle will constantly be kept clean and free from rust; great care should be taken in rubbing to prevent bruising or bending the barrel; it never should be rubbed lengthwise. After firing it will be necessary to wipe out the bore until it is perfectly dry, and then wipe with an oiled rag. After oiling, the rifle should be allowed to stand a short time and then carefully wiped. The slight film of oil left is a better protection than if a quantity is used. In these operations a rod of wood, with a loop in one end is to be used instead of the rammer, which is never used for this purpose when it can be avoided. bore of the barrel will at all times, except when in exercise, be secured against the weather by means of a tompion.

II. The general inspector of rifle practice shall have charge of the rifle practice of the volunteer militia, and shall, under the direction of the commander-in-chief, prescribe the manner in which it shall be performed. He shall report annually, on or before the first day of December, to the commander-in-chief, the improvement in marksmanship made by the troops, together with all other matters appertaining to his duties.

III. It shall be the duty of the general inspector of rifle practice to attend such annual competition as may be held for State prizes, and see that the same are conducted with fairness, and according to the prescribed rules and regulations. Suitable blanks and forms will be prepared by him for keeping the scores and making reports, and issued to the different company commanders.

IV. The commanders of companies are hereby appointed inspectors of rifle practice, and shall have the supervision of the same in their several organizations, and they shall see that the armories, ranges and grounds used for rifle practice, and property issued by the State for such practice, within the limits of their respective commands, are properly used and cared for. They shall perform such duties as may from time to time be prescribed by the general inspector of rifle practice, and they shall attend all competitions for any prizes that may be offered by the State to the command to which they are attached, and see that the same are conducted with fairness and according to the prescribed rules and regulations.

V. Each company commander is charged with the theoretical instruction of the members of his company. He sees that the proper provision is made in the armory of his company to enable the prescribed system of instruction to be carried out, and that the targets and appurtenances used therein, as well as the rifles of the company, are kept in good order, and at once report to the inspector general all deficiencies or irregularities. He is charged with the supervision of the practice at the range of the members of his company, sees that the necessary targets and marks are in readiness at the time prescribed for the practice, that the scores are properly kept and returned, and that special care is taken to secure safety. He personally supervises all competition for the "Marksman's Badge," prepares all returns upon the subject required to be made by his company, together with all reports or other information required by the general inspector of rifle practice. He acts as umpire in his company in case of disputed hits.

VI. An annual report of the rifle practice of each company is made on or before the 15th of November of each year, giving the name and scores of the marksman, the number contained in the various classes at the close of the practice, (those who have not shot being returned as being in the fourth class,) and its "figure of merit." The maximum "figure of merit" is 100. It is computed by multiplying the number remaining in the various classes as follows: Marksmen, by 100; first class shots, by 60; second class shots, by 30; third class shots, by 10. The totals thus obtained are added together, and the result divided by the aggregate number (present and absent) of the company at the last inspection and muster. The result carried out to two places in decimals will be the "figure of merit."

VII. The figure of merit of all companies is annually published by the Adjutant General, and constitutes the measure of efficiency by all organizations in rifle practice. The names of all marksmen, with their scores, are published at the same time.

VIII. It is intended to have a State Prize Rifle Competition during the month of September next. It is desired, also, that the State of Maine may be represented at the International Match to be held at Creedmoor, Sept. 16, 1880.

IX. All "marksmen" shall receive a badge and clasp, the latter being inscribed with the word "Marksman", and the year in which they qualified; but they can only retain it by annually maintaining their efficiency. All "marksman's" badges are turned in with the annual reports of rifle practice. The "marksmen" who have qualified during the year receive them back, with the addition of an extra clasp for every additional annual qualification. Those who have failed to qualify in any year may retain their clasps, but must return the badge. In case they again qualify, they may affix these clasps to their badge. Men who have won this badge three years may retain it, in case they leave the service, but no one can wear a "marksman's badge" who has not qualified during the preceding year.

X. There shall be at least one State range for 200 and 600 yards, to be erected under the supervision of the general inspector of rifle practice.

XI. It shall be the duty of the general inspector of rifle practice to inspect the armories of the companies, and see that the necessary arrangements are made for aiming and practice drill, and the proper instruction given and carried out, to both officers and men.

By order of the commander-in-chief.

Applications made in any other mode will not be entertained, and will be construed as a breach of military discipline. Any officer who, on his own responsibility, transmits documents otherwise than through the regular channels, must fully explain the causes which induce him to do so, and at the same time forward copies of the same for the information of the authority through which they should have passed in regular course.
