STATE OF MAINE.

OFFICE OF SECRETARY OF STATE, }
AUGUSTA, November 30, 1883. }

To His Excellency, Frederick Robie, Governor, and the Honorable Executive Council:

GENTLEMEN: I have the honor to present herewith the second annual report, compiled under authority of a resolve of the Legislature, approved February 24, 1873.

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

JOSEPH O. SMITH,

Secretary of State.

Resolve in Relation to Industrial Statistics.

CHAPTER 169.

RESOLVED, That under the direction of the secretary of state, there be annually collected, arranged and printed, in condensed form, statistical details, relating to all departments of labor in the state, especially in its relation to manufacturing, mining, commercial and industrial interests, together with the valuation and appropriations for various purposes, of the several towns and cities of the state. It shall be the duty of the person employed in the compilation of said statistics, to secure, by circulars to, and correspondence with assessors and other persons, as complete a compilation as practicable, of the industrial progress of the state; it shall be the duty of assessors of the several towns, to furnish the statistics called for, as completely and promptly as practicable. To meet the expenses of said compilation, the governor is hereby authorized to draw his warrant upon the treasury for an amount not exceeding one thousand dollars, from any moneys not otherwise appropriated.

Approved February 24, 1873.

INTRODUCTORY REMARKS.

Without indulging in lengthy explanation in regard to the many difficulties experienced by the compiler of this volume in gathering the necessary information, the work is submitted as the best result he was able to reach with the materials at hand and collectible. It comes far short of his conception of what it should be and what he intended to make it.

Owing to failure in getting returns in many cases, and of imperfections in many more, the form of the report of the industries of the state has been entirely changed from that originally intended. It is impossible to get an adequate account of the manufactures of the state except by a canvass of every town and industry in detail by an agent sent to each, which would involve a large amount of work and require an appropriation many times larger than that made for this compilation.

The assessors and other municipal officers in this state have not been accustomed to make returns to state authorities and it is not reasonable to expect them to do so more promptly in this matter than in others. There is a law requiring assessors to make returns annually of agricultural products, but, although repeated efforts have been made to get them to make these returns, it remains practically a dead letter on the statute books. The law requiring annual returns of births, deaths and marriages to be made to the secretary of state, is observed by less than one-tenth of the towns of the state. These officers work for their towns for very small pay and are disinclined to do any extra work.

The compiler acknowledges his obligations to many assessors for promptly making returns, to collectors of customs and agents of railroads for valuable information given, as well as to many gentlemen, holding no official position, for so cordially responding to his calls upon them.

It is not claimed that this work is exhaustive, and it is not reasonable to expect statistics to be in the strict sense accurate. The element of speculation or judgment as to quantities and values, where no exact record is kept, enters largely into the make-up of all statistics. Accuracy has been sought for in everything here presented; the degree of success attained is left for others to determine by examination.

COMPILATION OF MANUFACTURING.

The returns of assessed value of manufacturing property and the number of hands employed, as made by assessors of cities and towns, embrace about seven-eighths of the municipalities, but fully nine-tenths of the business, as a large proportion of those from which returns were not received are small towns.

Assessors are inclined to under-valuation on manufacturing property in many towns, and, in some cases, it appears to be merely nominal. This has the effect to reduce considerably the aggregate assessed value in the state. On the other hand, the estimate of hands employed is large, from the fact that the whole number employed is given, and not the average number, and in some cases the same hands may appear in different industries and therefore are enumerated more than once.

AGRICULTURAL TABLES.

It will be observed that there are many omissions in the tables relating to agricultural matters, especially where estimates are asked for. These imperfections reduce the totals of counties and the state and diminish the value of the tables. They must be taken for just what they appear to be and for no more.

FINANCIAL EXHIBIT.

The financial exhibit is the nearest complete and therefore of the greatest value. Through persistent effort, returns were obtained from all but three towns and some twenty plantations. Returns, however, from a very few towns were too meagre to be used and in some cases the terms "no debt" and "no resources" were alone given. In such cases these towns were dropped from the tables. The showing, of increase of taxable polls and taxable valuation, as well as the large reduction of state, county and municipal indebtedness, is highly gratifying.

LEADING INDUSTRIES.

Failing to get adequate returns from the many industries of the state by correspondence, the only method open to the compiler, special efforts were made to get statistical information concerning certain leading industries. The results are given in tables and compilations.

THE LUMBER BUSINESS.

The lumber business of Maine is extensive and of great variety, but, finding it impracticable to give anything like an accurate account of the manufacture and shipping of the product of our forests, the compiler is obliged to content himself with making an exhibit covering the cut on the leading waters of the state.

It will be observed that the cut is smaller than in some former years, and it is thought it will be likely to diminish rather than increase in the future. This fact may be considered favorable, rather than otherwise, as the cutting for many years has been more exhaustive than is desirable. The cut is more economically used than formerly, the variety of manufacture is increasing year by year and the "hard woods" are being used more freely. The lumber products of our state are becoming more numerous and of greater variety, covering a very wide range already, from a $50,000 seaside hotel to spools and toothpicks. Thus, while the gross product in square feet has been reduced, the value has been greatly augmented, and the state has received greater benefit through the introduction of improved machinery and the employment of skilled labor. As one of the products of the forest, attention is called to the manufacture of

WOOD PULP.

The production of wood pulp has made rapid growth in Maine, not only during the past year, but since 1880. The census of that year gives 7 establishments with a total capital of $439,000, employing 220 hands with an annual product valued at $306,490. It is safe to say the business has quadrupled since that time and is still growing rapidly, with frequent invention of new machinery and new methods for reducing the wood fibre to pulp.

OTHER INDUSTRIES.

The disaster that overtook the leather manufacture in eastern Maine, and the present depression and future uncertainty of the mining business, makes impracticable any fair account of these industries.

Statistics were gathered in relation to many other industries, but there were too many omissions for use. Returns were also received in regard to shipments of products by rail and water craft from nearly two-thirds of the shipping points in the state, but this fractional part could not be used to advantage.

At the close of Part First of this volume a statement is made showing the increase of business and the new enterprises started during the year so far as it has been found practicable to gather information relating thereto. The lines of business that have shown the most marked increase are the manufacture of wood pulp, boots and shoes, cotton and small wooden wares and novelties.

The form of publication of this volume is :

NOTE.—It is not possible to believe that there has, in fact, been any such increase of the defective classes as is indicated by the figures given in the tables above. The inference is irresistible that either the enumeration in 1880 is excessive, or else it was incomplete in 1870 and in the years previous.

Female “ “ “.....	14.81

NOTE.—This death-rate is decidedly higher than that given in the census of 1860, viz, 12.5, and of 1870, viz, 12.8 per thousand, but this does not indicate any actual increase in the number of deaths as compared with the living population. It shows, rather, that the efforts made in the census of 1880 to obtain more complete returns of deaths than had been collected in previous enumerations have been to some extent successful.
