The Board of State Assessors have been hindered in their work considerably by delay on the part of town assessors in making the returns required by law to be in this office by September first annually. It would seem to be quite as easy for them to have them in a month earlier, and it would be of great assistance to the Board if the law were changed so as to require them to be in by August first.

There is a great lack of uniformity in the methods adopted in the different towns for classification of property. Not only in the distinctions between real and personal, but in many instances an entire neglect to take into account by many some kinds of property. Carriages in many cases are not returned at all or are combined with horses as teams. There is little or no attempt at classification of lands. It would be of great benefit if they were divided into tillage, pasture, wood and timber lands. It is certainly questionable whether or not a fair valuation of that kind of property can be made without some classification. It is apparent that our assessors must go more into detail in their listing and give more complete returns to this Board to the end that a greater uniformity may be had.

We repeat the suggestion of a year ago that some legislative enactment be made obliging town assessors to meet the Board of State Assessors in a county convention to be called by the State Board and at which the town assessors shall have the town tax books and answer such questions as may be put to them by the State Board, or by their order. In order that the taxes shall be borne equally it is certain that the standards and methods of valuation shall be uniform. With the variations in per cent of cash or market value now in use in the towns no decent approach to equalization can be made. To say nothing of the fractional parts of full value used, many consider a forced sale or auction value the correct one. Judgments differ so widely as to what is a forced sale value that one can hardly tell what it is really. The way to get the best results seems to us to be, to get the opinions of as many as possible of those who are nearest the property and its owners.

We know that assessors are often criticized for bad judgement, but our contact with them impresses us with the conviction that much of it is unjust and that as a whole they are honest, earnest, understanding men. They are held in the confidence of their townsmen to the extent of being chosen at the town business meeting of the year as the prudential officers of the town. Get these men together in a convention of their fellows all on the same plane, for the same purposes and for mutual benefit, all free to express their individual ideas in the premises and it seems to us that you have a body capable and able to do a great deal of good.

Under the present law only 173 out of the 434 cities and towns and 71 plantations of the State have been before us, notwithstanding we have been in every county, after having notified every board of town assessors by written notice through the mail and published such notice in some newspaper or newspapers in the county giving time and place of meeting.

If the assessors of the town of A know little or nothing of the standards or methods of valuation obtaining in the town of B adjoining, how much can they know of those in the town of X lying it may be in a distant part of the county or state. This being granted how can we attain anything near equality. There are more than fifteen hundred assessors in the cities, towns and plantations in this State. Get the consense of opinion of these men who are daily dealing with matters of valuation and taxation and it seems to us that we would have greater uniformity and what is more, there would be less effort on the part of town assessors to see how much of the State tax they could avoid.

Comparing the returns of town assessors with the statements of the United States census bureau, as reported and it appears that not quite one-half of the property in the State is exposed for taxation. How much more can be brought out is the question. Many regard the so-called listing system as the proper method. As a fundamental proposition no one can know better what the property is, its value and where it is, than the one who owns it. How to make him disclose it is quite another matter. It is a hard thing to do, to make a truthful man out of a liar by legislative enactment. One who has the opportunity to observe is often surprised to find the number of men of apparent good standing, men whose word is considered as good as their bond who will use every means in their power to evade a truthful exposure of their property for taxation. They will move from one town to another, place their property in a town other than that of their residence, make arrangements to make their summer residence their residence all the year, in consideration of taxation of a part of their property, while they do business in a neighboring city, live there more months than they do in the town where they are taxed and enjoy all the benefits of a city organization but avoid all they can of the expense of the same.

Corporations organized for the purpose of carrying on great enterprises, claiming to have and having large amounts of money to invest in manufactures will approach some town in which there are special facilities for the prosecution of their enterprise, and almost posing as a mendicant beg that they shall be excused from bearing their share of the expenses of maintaining the government, by which they benefit, as much as any one.

If we cannot get all the property in the State into exposure for taxation, if a part must carry the burden for the whole, if it is good policy to exempt any property from taxation, then let us get a fair and uniform value upon such as can be exposed, and determine fairly what shall be exempted.

We believe it can only be done by broadening our avenues of information, bringing the matter down nearer the people to whom the property belongs, enlarging the number of conscientious men who shall take a part in discussion of tax matters. We shall expect that such conventions if held will bring into consideration incidentally, matters other than those of valuation, such as maintenance of roads, bridges, paupers, schools and other prudential matters of the towns.

Can the amount of money they would cost be better expended than in the holding of such meetings?

We have given in the report several tabulations of valuations of specific kinds of property. We call attention to the table showing the relative value of personal property to real as affixed by the Board, the personal being over twenty-six per cent of the entire property of the State, exclusive of the wild lands. More than one-third of the valuation of real estate in the cities, towns and plantations.

In this connection we would say that the statistics of detailed values are simply a tabulation of the returns of the assessors. We think it substantiates our claim that the assessors are disposed to be fair and that what appears to be a disposition to avoid as much as possible of the State tax and make the other town pay it, comes more from a want of uniformity in standards and judgments than from any desire on the part of assessors to "play smart." There seems to be a quite general feeling that property has a full cash value and another, less, value for taxation.

In 1890 the city, town and plantation assessors returned as the value of property in the State the sum of $255,716,235.00. In 1891 they returned $260,716,167.00. In 1892 they return $265,025,481 00. From these figures it is apparent that the local assessors are increasing the valuations gradually. In every instance that has come to our knowledge of assessors making a new list or careful revaluation there has been a very substantial increase. If there was anything like uniformity in standards or fractions of values used by the assessors the valuations all over the State would be largely increased.

Is this not another argument in favor of bringing these officers together for consultation.

In the taxation of railroads there is a difference in the rate applied between steam and horse railroads. Nothing is said about electric roads specially. We have taxed them the same as steam roads believing the statute to point the most plainly to that course. It would be well to make the matter certain especially as one road is propelled in part by horses and part by electricity.

Not enough can be learned by us as to the ownership of wild lands or of their conditions. Many of the owners have given us very full and frank statements of their lands, but in the whole not any large part.

Many are owned in undivided shares, some are divided but there is no statement from anyone as to what are the parts.

It would be of great benefit if the owners were required by law to return a list once in two years to the Board of State Assessors giving the township number, range, county where located, part owned whether in common or severality and an estimate of its value. There should also be some provision made for ascertaining the amount and value of lands held in unorganized townships for purposes other than timber growing, as well as of other property therein.

When one considers the fact that there are about 483 townships of wild land in this State, containing more than nine million acres, the task of getting at any just valuation is apparent. To get at anything like a just idea of their value, explorations must be made involving months of tramping, camping and thorough search in all directions. We find a great difference in the estimates of value placed upon wild land by those who own or are engaged in operating on them and those who are neither owners or operators. The wild land business is one having many conditions peculiar to itself and unlike those obtaining in any other business. It requires years of experience to be able to judge well of values. That many tracts are undervalued goes without saying. That some are overvalued is as true. We are troubled to get full information from all sources, the most direct coming from the owners. They have been very frank in many instances, naming a price at which they will sell on easy terms and much less than the present valuation. There should at least be some provision made whereby the exact amount of each owner's tax could be determined.

As associates we are impelled by the love and esteem in which we held him, to pay a tribute of respect to the memory of the late Hon. Frank Gilman who was elected a member of this Board. His life was taken under painful circumstances after less than a year's service with us, in the very midst of his usefulness. The uprightness of his judgment, the confidence that was held in him by all who were brought in contact with him and the tenderness of the relations that existed between us made the loss felt by his survivors in the Board very keenly. In his death the State lost a good citizen and a most valuable officer.

We are grateful to all whom we have met in the performance of our official duties and whatever of good to the State may come of our labors is largely due to their co-operation.
