REPORT.

Hon. Henry B. Cleaves, Governor and Commander-in-Chief:

SIR:—I have the honor to submit my report as Adjutant General for the year ending December 31, 1893 :

ENROLLMENT.

It appears from the biennial enrollment made in April by the assessors of the several cities, towns and plantations of this State, as certified to this office, that the total number of male citizens of this State of the age of eighteen and under forty-five years of age, able to perform military duty, is ninety-eight thousand and nine hundred and seventy-eight (98,978), an increase of two thousand and forty-one over the enrollment of 1891.

COMMISSION TO REVISE THE MILITIA LAWS.

Under a resolve of the Legislature approved January 12, 1893, requesting the Governor "to appoint a commission of not exceeding five to revise the Laws relating to the Militia, to conform to the new regulations and report the same to the present legislature forthwith," Selden Connor, Gen. John Marshall Brown, formerly Brigadier General of the Militia, Gen. Samuel B. Leavitt, formerly Adjutant General, Gen. Winfield S. Choate, Inspector General, and Victor Brett, Colonel of the Second Regiment, were appointed.

The commission made report to the legislature accompanied with the draft of an act entitled "An Act to Revise and Consolidate the Laws Relating to the Militia," embodying the work of the commission. The act was passed as reported with the single exception that section 122 was amended, reducing the tax to be levied and collected as other State taxes are upon all property in this State subject to taxation, for the purpose of raising revenue to defray the current expenses of the National Guard, from one-tenth to one-twelfth of a mill. It was approved March 28, 1893, and constitutes chapter 266 of the Public Laws of 1893.

I respectfully suggest that the pay and expenses of the commission, amounting to $423.21, which in the absence of any provision therefor by the legislature was ordered to be paid from the military fund should be restored to that fund.

THE NATIONAL GUARD.

Under the present law the active militia is designated the National Guard of the State of Maine. As now organized it consists of two regiments of infantry of ten companies each and of an ambulance corps.

The First Regiment, Lucius H. Kendall, Colonel, headquarters at Biddeford, is composed of companies designated and stationed as follows: A, B, E, Portland; C, Auburn; D, Norway; F, Augusta; G, Biddeford; H, Rockland; I, Lewiston; K, Brunswick.

The Second Regiment, George A. Philbrook, Colonel, headquarters at Lewiston, is composed of companies designated and stationed as follows: A, Hampden; B, D, Lewiston; C, Bath; E, Skowhegan; F, Dover; G, Bangor; H, Waterville; I, Eastport; K, Calais.

The Ambulance Corps, W. E. Riker, Captain, is stationed at Lewiston.

At this date the numerical strength of the Staff of the Commander-in-Chief is eleven (11); of the First Regiment, thirty-seven (37) officers and four hundred seventy (470) enlisted men; of the Second Regiment, thirty-nine (39) officers and four hundred ninety-one (491) enlisted men; of the Ambulance Corps, one officer and fifteen (15) enlisted men; making the total numerical strength of the National Guard eighty-eight (88) officers and nine hundred seventy-six (976) enlisted men.

There being no provisions of law for the maintenance of such organizations, the two Gun Companies have been transferred to the infantry arm of the service and attached to the First Regiment, the Gun Company of the First Regiment, as Company I, the Gun Company of the Second Regiment, as Company K, and the battalion of Heavy Artillery has been disbanded and the two companies comprising it transferred to the infantry arm of the service and attached to the Second Regiment as Company I and Company K. E. E. Newcomb, Major, commanding the battalion of Heavy Artillery, upon the disbandment of his battalion was assigned for duty with the Second Regiment and his staff officers were honorably discharged from the service.

Companies I and K of the First Regiment retain the one Gatling gun and the one 12-pounder cannon which each company had in its possession, and are instructed to exercise in the drill pertaining to them.

The Ambulance Corps has been authorized to recruit to the maximum number allowed by law.

Upon the advice and recommendation of officers of the staff and of the National Guard acquainted with the condition and needs of the Guard, the Commander-in-Chief determined it to be for the interests of the service that the annual encampment should be omitted this year. Therefore no opportunity has been afforded for reviewing and inspecting the two regiments of the Guard and of judging of the efficiency of their organization and their proficiency in battalion and regimental drill.

The appearance and conduct of the company teams at the Rifle Competition, and the reports of the officers who have inspected the several companies at their armories, show that they are, with a few exceptions caused mainly by unfavorable local conditions, healthy and efficient organizations, made up of manly and intelligent young men, under good officers, and that officers and men manifest much interest and zeal in the services and welcome in the true spirit of soldierly docility all instruction tending to advance them in a knowledge of their duties.

It was with much regret that the decision to omit the annual encampment was made, because it is the only opportunity provided by law for the field exercise of companies in the "extended order" which constitutes the most important feature of the new drill, and for battalion and regimental drill.

It can be easily understood that the failure to hold an encampment appears to the National Guard as a serious deprivation. Men who are so attached to military exercises as to voluntarily give much time and attention to them, naturally regard with pleasurable anticipation an occasion which represents as far as possible the features of a soldier's life and duties in actual service.

It is to be hoped that no necessity will again arise to compel the omission of a function of so much benefit and interest to the National Guard.

Important as the annual encampment is, it is not the only school of the soldier contemplated by the law. One of its principal purposes is to test the amount and quality of the work which the companies are required and expected to do in their armories and on the ranges, the skill in military exercises they have acquired and the progress which officers and men have made during the year in the theoretical and practical knowledge of the various duties of the soldier.

On reviewing the year I believe it will be seen that much has been done to promote the efficiency and improve the condition of the Guard.

INSPECTIONS.

In the spring and early summer a thorough inspection of all the companies now comprising the two regiments was made by Gen. W. S. Choate, Inspector General, and of the Ambulance Corps by Col. F. C. Thayer, Surgeon General.

In the fall the Colonel of each regiment, the Major commanding the Battalion of Heavy Artillery, and the Surgeon General, supervising officer of the Ambulance Corps, assisted by Lieut. C. G. Morton, U. S. A., inspected and instructed the companies of their respective commands. The character and scope of these inspections and the condition of the several companies fully appear in the accompanying reports of Gen. Choate and Lieut. Morton.

RIFLE PRACTICE.

Col. E. C. Farrington, Inspector General of Rifle Practice, has visited every company of the Guard instructing them in target practice, aiding them to procure suitable ranges and stimulating them to the acquisition of the most important accomplishment of the infantry soldier, the skillful use of the rifle. Through his efforts the city of Portland has provided an easily accessible range for the three companies of the First Regiment stationed in that city, and arrangements have been made for providing Co. F, 2d Regiment, at Dover with a convenient range the coming season. Under his direction the ranges of the other companies have been improved and furnished with needed facilities.

A State Rifle Competition was held at the State Camp Ground August 29th and 30th. A violent storm prevailed on the 29th rendering it impossible to shoot, and the Competition was therefore extended over another day. In spite of the unfavorable conditions caused by the storm the marksmen of the Guard maintained their high reputation for skill.

Every company furnished for the Competition a team of seven men and one substitute selected from officers and enlisted men, and the matches were arranged to ascertain the comparative proficiency of individuals and of teams.

BOARD OF EXAMINATION.

The most earnest and intelligent friends of the National Guard have considered that a provision for the examination of candidates for commissions, to test their character and qualifications, was very desirable and would be a powerful instrumentality in that steadily progressive course they would have it pursue. The requirements of such examination in the new law appears to be exercising the beneficial effect expected of it.

The Board of Examination as originally constituted consisted of Gen. W. S. Choate, Inspector General, Lucius H. Kendall, Colonel of the First Regiment, and Victor Brett, Colonel of the Second Regiment. Upon the expiration of Col. Brett's term of service Lt. Col. W. W. Whitmarsh Aid-de-Camp, was appointed a member of the Board for temporary service. He was relieved upon the qualification of George A. Philbrook, as Colonel of the Second Regiment, and that officer was appointed a member of the board. Every officer appointed or elected within the year, has been examined and certified as worthy by the Board of Examination before being commissioned. Of the twenty-six applicants for a commission but one has been unfavorably reported upon by the board. This small percentage of rejections is not due to carelessness on the part of the board or to any undue simplicity of examination. It denotes rather the high personal character, the general intelligence and knowledge of military subjects of those selected as officers.

This experience demonstrates that the first result of the requirement of examination is to secure the election and appointment of worthy and well qualified men as officers. The examinations have been both written and oral and have been very comprehensive and thorough, considering them as the initiation of the system.

The officers of the board report that many of the candidates passed admirable examinations. This system tends to prove a strong stimulus to officers and men to study and to acquire the accomplishments of a soldier, since the selection of officers must now be made from men who are willing to have their qualifications put to the test. This tendency will enable the Board of Examination to gradually raise the standard of its requirements and thus proportionately enhance the value of a commission and the character of the National Guard as a military organization.

SCHOOL OF INSTRUCTION.

Another of the wise and progressive features of the new law is the requirement that the Commander-in-Chief shall call meetings of the commissioned officers of each regiment at least twice each year for military instruction. The initial meeting was held at the State House on the afternoon and evening of August 30th, and the forenoon of August 31st. The officers of both regiment were assembled and the instruction consisted of a practical lecture at each meeting by Lieut. C. G. Morton, U. S. A., followed by questions and answers and a general discussion of the subject treated of and suggested by the lecturer. Much interest was manifested in his clear and interesting exposition of methods of promoting the efficiency of military organizations, of the customs of the service and of the new drill regulations. The officers generally appeared to welcome the opportunity for increasing their general knowledge of their duties, obtaining information in regard to special points about which they were in doubt, and for an interchange of suggestions tending to the improvement of their commands. This meeting demonstrated that the assembling of officers for instruction will prove of great practical benefit to the National Guard, and that the extension of such facilities to the utmost practicable limit is extremely desirable.

THE NEW MAGAZINE RIFLE.

The board of U. S. Army officers convened for the purpose of selecting a rifle to take the place of the breech-loading Springfield rifle, after a prolonged and thorough examination embracing all the modern small-arms in use by other nations and those presented by inventors, has adopted the Krag-Jorgenson rifle as superior to any known small arm in the world. Although it is the invention of foreigners it is not in use and has never been tested by any foreign nation.

It is a symmetrical arm and weighs 8 3-4 pounds; the barrel is thirty inches long, and the calibre is .30. It is capable of firing forty shots a minute and has a range of about 4,000 yards. The cartridge for use in this rifle is a little over three inches in length; the bullet of lead coated with a harder metal, weighs 220 grains and the charge of smokeless powder is thirty-seven grains. The magazine contains five cartridges and the piece can be used readily as either a magazine or single-loading arm.

The Springfield rifle which it is about to supersede has been a splendid arm in its day and has well proved its excellence by nearly thirty years of service; but these late years have been so fruitful in improvements in firearms as to render it obsolete. The superiority of the formidable arm which replaces it is obvious and unquestionable; it consists in a greatly increased range, rapidity of fire, penetration, and flatness of trajectory, and in the lighter weight of the cartridge it employs, 175 of them weighing only as much as 100 of the cartridges now in use.

It is expected that the Springfield Armory will turn out enough of these rifles in the coming year to arm the regular army, and that its subsequent product will be available for distribution among the National Guards of the several states. There is therefore reason to hope that within two years a part at least of our National Guard will be armed with them. The near prospect of being supplied with such a splendid weapon should have the effect of heightening the interest of the members of the National Guard in the service they engage in through the attractions of military exercises, of which target practice is now so important a part, and should also forcibly suggest to both officers and men the necessity of a standard of discipline and drill corresponding to the excellence of such an arm.

LIEUTENANT CHARLES G. MORTON.

In compliance with the request of the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, the Honorable Secretary of the War ordered Charles G. Morton, Lieutenant 6th Infantry, U. S. A., to report on the 29th of August at Augusta for such duty as might be required of him. Mr. Morton attended the rifle competition, conducted the officers' school of instruction and visited all the companies of the National Guard at their armories, inspecting and instructing the several commands.

I am sure I express the general sentiment in declaring that the Guard feels indebted to this accomplished officer for valuable service rendered in the brief space of his three months' tour of duty, and appreciates the intelligence, tact and courtesy displayed by him in the performance of the various tasks assigned him.

RE-ORGANIZATION.

The law contemplates a military force of two regiments of infantry of twelve companies each, one battery of light artillery, two troops of cavalry, an ambulance corps and a signal corps.

Section 135 authorizes "the recruiting of such new companies as the appropriation will warrant." The appropriation for the current year will admit of the organization of two companies by deferring their equipment in part until it can be supplied from the U. S. appropriation for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1895.

Accordingly arrangements have been made for organizing forthwith two companies of infantry, one at Portland and one at Houlton. The choice of these companies was determined in the case of the "Sheridan Rifles" by the consideration that it is an efficient and promising company of the former "Reserve Militia" and deserved to be retained; in the case of the Houlton company, by the fact that Houlton is a large town in a county which has no military organization. Strong petitions were presented for the formation of both these companies.

Other petitions for the organization of companies of the National Guard are on file and cannot be granted at present because of the insufficiency of the appropriation. Several of them are from towns which are centres of a sufficient population to maintain a company and are so earnestly urged as to denote that each community represented would take great interest in a company of the National Guard—an important consideration in forming new companies. Two of these petitions should be granted and two companies organized in accordance therewith as soon as the appropriation appears to be sufficient to uniform, arm and equip them, in order to give each regiment the twelve companies it should have.

The Ambulance Corps has been authorized to recruit to the maximum number. The consideration of the organization of the other corps authorized by law is necessarily postponed until the infantry regiments are completed.

The result has amply justified the omission of the Encampment this year. The money the Encampment would have cost was absolutely needed for other purposes. The full amount of the State appropriation and all the material derived from the general government have been expended in making the changes in uniform &c., required by the transfer of the four Artillery and "Gun" companies to infantry, in providing for partly fitting out two new companies, in supplying existing organizations with the arms and articles of uniform and equipment shown by inspections to be required to put them in an efficient condition, and in meeting the current expenses authorized by law. My reports herewith as Quartermaster General and Paymaster General show what disposition has been made of the funds and material received. A large part of the stores received and purchased, notably articles of uniform and blankets, are now on hand and will be issued early in the coming year, immediately after the Inspector General shall have made his reports of inspection. It is estimated that the quantity on hand will suffice to complete the arming, and uniforming of forty-five enlisted men and two musicians to a company, leaving some articles of equipment, knapsacks or blanket bags, haversacks and canteens, to be supplied from future receipts from the general government. Two companies, I and K of the Second Regiment, having on hand a large part of the articles needed for fifty-five enlisted men, have been furnished with other articles on the basis of that number of men.

The minimum number of enlisted men of a company of infantry is fixed by law at fifty-five and it is greatly to be desired that means be provided for completely arming, uniforming and equipping that number.

The new law has already, in the brief period it has been in operation demonstrated the admirable character of some of its provisions relating to the National Guard. I have no suggestion to make as to its amendment except that the military fund be increased to the amount recommended by the Commission on the Revision of the Militia Laws, one-tenth of one mill on the state valuation. The appropriation of a few thousand dollars more than the cost of maintaining a nominal military force will secure to the State an efficient National Guard. Reference has been made to the good results realized and promised by the institution of Schools of Instruction and Boards of Examination. The requirement of the medical examination of recruits prior to their muster-in is also a wise one. In order to maintain the numerical strength of companies and afford the State at all times a suitable force legally subject to call for military duty, it is necessary that whenever a company has any considerable number of recruits a medical officer be ordered to examine them that they may be mustered-in and thus held to service. The cost of these new requirements is more than repaid by the improved condition and efficiency of the National Guard. There should be a sufficient appropriation to admit of an annual encampment of at least six days. Battalion or regimental field days, one in the spring and one in the fall, would accomplish much in drill and in mobilization. The interest of the members of the Guard is such that I believe they would willingly give their services for this duty. The cost of subsistence and transport-tation would be slight in comparison with the resulting benefits. This year has been so exceptional in that the routine contemplated by the law has not been fully established, no encampment has been held and a large part of the appropriation has been expended in uniforms and equipments, that no inference can be drawn from it as to the expenses of carrying out the provisions of the law in ordinary years.

The National Guard will be well uniformed when the clothing on hand shall have been issued to them. The dress coats which were issued in 1886 are, most of them, in good condition. Blouses, trousers and caps will have to be issued from time to time to replace those which have been in wear for a long time. The red blankets which were not of sufficient weight when new and have been worn thin by long use, have been called in and thick, strong and serviceable gray woolen blankets issued.

The two regiments are partly equipped with knapsacks; the First with the "blanket-bag" and the Second with the old fashioned box knapsack. The blanket-bag is unsatisfactory and the box knapsack has been generally discarded by military organizations. The "Merriam pack" invented by H. C. Merriam, Colonel of the 7th U. S. Infantry, formerly a captain in the 20th Maine Volunteers, appears to be the best knapsack now in use. It has recently been adopted by the state of New York after carefully testing it in comparison with others. The cost of supplying the National Guard with the Merriam pack would be $7,000. The Guard is only partly supplied with haversacks and canteens. The Merriam pack has a compartment for rations, thus rendering a haversack an unnecessary article of equipment.

The companies are not supplied with mess kits. Table furniture is kept at the State Camp Ground. The quantity on hand is insufficient and many articles will probably have to be condemned and replaced.

BUSINESS OF THE OFFICE.

The clerical work of the office has given constant occupation to the clerk and required the services of an assistant from time to time. Four hundred and twenty-six certificates of service have been furnished in the year. The care and labor required in examining rolls and reports for the purpose of making these certificates are such that a great part of the clerk's time is consumed in the work. In addition to this duty, to keeping the records and attending to the routine correspondence, the clerk renders much service in the quartermaster's department of the office, verifying invoices of property and filling requisitions for arms, ammunition, uniforms and other articles. I am under great obligations to Gen. B. F. Harris, Superintendent of Public Buildings, for the assistance which he has permitted his employes to give in storing, opening and packing the large quantity of quartermaster's stores which have been received and issued.

WAR RECORDS.

The supply of printed reports of this office for the years of the War of the Rebellion was long since exhausted. Occasionally sets of them from 1861 to 1866 can be found at second-hand bookstores at prices varying from $10 to $20 a set. Those reports are very full and accurate considering the imperfect data from which they were prepared and the pressure of work upon the office at the time they were made. The researches made through all the years that have passed since they were issued have disclosed many clerical mistakes and errors in fact, in many cases doing great injustice to worthy soldiers. Maine owes it to her soldiers to cause a trustworthy and easily accessible record of their services to be published. Such a work prepared with the requisite care, verified by the records of the War Department, and issued in a suitable form, would necessarily cost a sum of money considerable in itself, but inconsiderable in comparison with the value to the State, to its soldiers and their descendants, of a faithful inscription of its roll of honor. The time is fully ripe for undertaking the work and I respectfully suggest that the legislature be requested to take the matter into consideration. The original rolls of the war regiments should not be used as they now have to be to some extent, but should be carefully preserved. The rolls of several regiments have been copied by my predecessors in this office and a provision should be made for extra clerical assistance to copy and carefully compare the rolls of all. This work should be done for the sake of providing working copies of the rolls for the use of the office and as a necessary preliminary to the preparation of the record of Maine soldiers recommended above.

IN ACCOUNT WITH THE UNITED STATES.

The State is entitled to be furnished annually by the United States military supplies to the value of its quota of $400,000, appropriated for the militia by the following act:

An act to amend section sixteen hundred and sixty-one of the Revised Statutes, making an annual appropriation to provide arms and equipments for the militia.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That section sixteen hundred and sixty-one of the Revised Statutes be, and the same is hereby, amended and re-enacted so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 1. That the sum of four hundred thousand dollars is hereby annually appropriated, to be paid out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the purpose of providing arms, ordnance stores, quartermaster's stores, and camp equipage for issue to the militia.

"SEC. 2. That said appropriation shall be apportioned among the several States and Territories under the direction of the Secretary of War, according to the number of Senators and Representatives to which each State respectively is entitled in the Congress of the United States, and to the Territories and District of Columbia, such proportion and under such regulations as the President may prescribe: Provided, however, That no State shall be entitled to the benefits of the appropriation apportioned to it unless the number of its regularly enlisted, organized, and uniformed active militia shall be at least one hundred men for each Senator and Representative to which such State is entitled in the Congress of the United States. And the amount of said appropriation which is thus determined not to be available shall be covered back into the Treasury.

"SEC. 3. That the purchase or manufacture of arms, ordnance stores, quartermaster's stores, and camp equipage for the militia under the provisions of this act shall be made under the direction of the Secretary of War, as such arms, ordnance and quartermaster's stores and camp equipage are now manufactured or otherwise provided for the use of the Regular Army, and they shall be receipted for and shall remain the property of the United States, and be annually accounted for by the governors of the States and Territories, for which purpose the Secretary of War shall prescribe and supply the necessary blanks and make such regulations as he may deem necessary to protect the interests of the United States.

"SEC. 4. That all arms, equipments, ordnance stores, or tents which may become unserviceable or unsuitable shall be examined by a board of officers of the militia, and its report shall be forwarded by the governor of the State or Territory direct to the Secretary of War, who shall direct what disposition, by sale or otherwise, shall be made of them; and, if sold, the proceeds of such sale shall be covered into the Treasury of the United States."

Received by the President, February 1, 1887.

[NOTE BY THE DEPARTMENT OF STATE.—The foregoing act having been presented to the President of the United States for his approval and not having been returned by him to the house of Congress, in which it originated, within the time prescribed by the Constitution of the United States, has become a law without his approval.]

The quota of the State at present is $5,229.72. This amount will be reduced as new states are admitted.

Balance, January 1, 1893, of allotment under the foregoing act, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1893	$ 412 44

APPENDIX M.

Report of Commissary General.

Adjutant General, State of Maine:

SIR:—I have the honor to report that the only duty I have been required to perform, was under General Orders No. 8. In accordance therewith, I made a contract with E. N. Trask of Augusta, to furnish subsistence for two hundred officers and men for two days for four hundred dollars.

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

THOS. P. SHAW,

Colonel and Commissary General.

December 15, 1893.

Adjutant General, State of Maine:

SIR:—I have the honor to report that in accordance with Special Orders No. 26, I attended the rifle competition at Augusta and served as commissary general in the absence of Col. Thos. P. Shaw, Commissary General. The storm of August 29th caused the extension of the period of the competition and I arranged with Mr. Trask to furnish meals for the time beyond the contract.

Accounts were approved by me as follows:—

E. N. Trask, as per contract with Commissary General,	$400.00
“ 160 meals,	64.00
“ fruit,	2.50
“ oil, soap, matches and candles,	5.35

APPENDIX N.

Report of Inspector General.

Brigadier General Selden Connor, Adjutant General, Maine :

SIR :—I have the honor to submit my report as Inspector General for the year 1893.

In compliance with law and in accordance with General Order No. 2 A. G. O. dated April 10, 1893, I inspected all organizations of the National Guard except the Ambulance Corps, the inspection of that organization was made by Col. F. C. Thayer, Surgeon General under Special Order No. 16.

ORGANIZATION.

The organization of the National Guard into two regiments, converting the artillery into infantry, is in my judgment the very best arrangement that can be made of our present force. With two twelve company regiments, the companies educated in the use of machine guns, we have a force, distributed over the State, located at points where most likely to be needed and capable of maintaining the civil power of the State upon any occasion likely to arise in time of peace. To complete this organization and make it compact the brigade formation should be restored, and, at such time as the appropriation shall warrant, a signal corps and troop of cavalry should be added. It has been urged that with our force we should have less officers, and the suggestion is made that we make too many officers for the number of enlisted men; the fallacy of such suggestion, to my mind, is this, we maintain the National Guard with two purposes in view, first to provide a moderate force to sustain the executive on extraordinary occasions, second to keep a force which may be expanded to a much larger effective force in time of war. To accomplish the latter it is of the first importance that we have a complete organization with officers capable of filling all the positions. Will not every military man say that with good officers, commissioned and non-commissioned, an effective and well disciplined company can be made in a short time, even where a large proportion of the enlisted men may have had no experience; but change the conditions and with officers unacquainted with their work, even with experienced enlisted men, how much greater the task to bring the force to a proper standard.

West Point furnishes officers only; schools for officers are maintained by the great nations of the world, and, so far as practicable and consistent with the first object named, the organization of the National Guard should be in the same line. Examinations should be broadened and made to cover a wider range of subjects and be more rigid, bright, intelligent young men should be induced to enlist, schools for officers should be held and practical instruction given as frequently as possible.

With a brigade organization, including two twelve company regiments, with officers well versed in military matters, it would be easy to expand into a division with two or three brigades of three regiments each and have each brigade, regiment, battalion and company officered by men of experience and ability. I believe this to be in brief the true theory for an organization of the National Guard.

ATTENDANCE.

The attendance at the inspections this year, taken in comparison with former years and in view of the fact that at the time it was made it was known that there was to be no muster during the year, was very creditable and shows that a strong interest is taken by officers and men.

The attendance for the year 1893 at the inspections was sixty-five per cent. of the entire force.

The attendance so far as I have been able to ascertain from the Adjutant General's reports for years prior to this and since 1880, so far as reported, has been an average of about sixty per cent.

The attendance in the eight infantry companies composing the first regiment was sixty-nine per cent, in the second regiment sixty per cent. This may be accounted for, in part, by the fact that in several of the companies of the second regiment, some of the members live long distances from the armory, in many cases from five to seven miles, and at the season when the inspection was made, May and June, it was sometimes difficult for them to attend. This may be further illustrated by the fact that in the three companies located in the city of Portland, while the total number of officers and enlisted men is smaller than it was in several years since the re-organization of 1880, yet the attendance at the inspection of 1893 was larger than in any year prior thereto. While the attendance has been fair it is not what it should be. The performance of duty is an individual responsibility and each man should understand that his absence injures the standing of his company and in most of the cases reduces the percentage by two per cent. Men who persist in absenting themselves from drill should be discharged; the example of one such man is bad, and he is a positive detriment to the organization. I was pleased to note in the companies inspected a very general desire on the part of commanding officers to rid their companies of all such material; this should be encouraged, and in cases where necessary, it should be demanded. Commissioned officers should interest themselves in this, and see to it, that the percentage is as large among enlisted men as among commissioned officers.

The Constitution of the United States declares "a well regulated militia necessary to the security of a free state" and it should be maintained in such a way as to be efficient at all times.

MILITARY KNOWLEDGE.

In the inspections commissioned and non-commissioned officers were required to drill the companies, and while I do not deem it of the first importance in a report issued so long after the inspection is made to call attention to matters of drill, I did find, in most cases, the officers earnest and painstaking and evidently desirous of perfecting themselves in their several positions. There is a lack of uniformity in methods of handling the company and manner of giving commands. There is a proper tone and time in commands. Men seem instinctively to execute a command as it is given—if the command drags the execution will drag. "The tone of command is animated, distinct and of a loudness proportionate to the number of men under instruction" and "To secure uniformity, officers and non-commissioned officers are practiced in giving commands." (Drill Regulations.)

The school of officers can do much in correcting errors of this sort and in giving instruction in the entire course of drill. These schools are of the first importance and they should be made schools where officers may, by interchange of ideas, and practical work learn something that will be of benefit to them. Let there be no "shoot-in the air" but come down to practical work—the first thing that should be required of an officer who asks for a commission is that he should know the drill regulations and be able to instruct the men under him, if he has not this knowledge when commissioned he should be required to acquire it.

The Drill Regulations have not been in use so long but that now and then Upton's Tactics will come out in orders, and manner of executing movements. It is extremely difficult for some well up in the old to get entirely rid of them.

MILITARY COURTESY.

Military courtesy seems to imply, to some, something far removed from the ordinary methods or manners of life, such is not the fact and there should be no mystery about it. It is simply this, that a man's position in the National Guard is determined by his rank, and that being determined and the officers being gentlemen, military courtesy will take care of itself.

Fortunately the combination of "officer and gentleman" is not rare, it should always be insisted upon in those having commissions in the National Guard.

If the occasion arises when the National Guard shall be called into active service they will stand second to none in effective work; it is a body of young men who are an honor to our State, they should be encouraged, and should receive the praise which they so well deserve for conscientious and faithful service.

Every true friend of the National Guard, while he does not fail to appreciate and praise its good work, should not hesitate to call attention to errors that they may be corrected.

Intelligent criticism from any source is helpful; unintelligent criticism from whatever source is worse than useless.

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

WINFIELD S. CHOATE,

Inspector General.

APPENDIX O.

General Report of the National Guard of Maine.

The Adjutant General of Maine,

SIR:—Having finished an inspection of all the organizations in the State, and rendered a separate report of each, I have the honor to submit the following general remarks.

The military forces of the State are to be congratulated that the old name of “militia” has been relegated to the past, and the new one of “National Guard” substituted.

The peace force authorized by the new law, some 2,100 aggregate, will be sufficient for many years to come. The organization authorized for the above, namely: General Staff, Brigadier General and staff, two regiments of infantry with three battalions in each, one battery of light artillery, two troops of cavalry, one ambulance corps and one signal corps, are commendable and in harmony with modern ideas.

I would strongly recommend that the two regiments of infantry be increased from nine to twelve companies as soon as possible. A twelve company infantry regiment has been adopted by all foreign military powers whose example we should follow, and that the United States has not followed suit in the regular force is a matter of regret to all officers interested in their profession. If the regiments of the Guard are so increased, the anomalous organizations now styled “gun companies” should be made into infantry, unless it is desired to raise a battery. A battery of artillery is an expensive institution, and I do not advocate one for Maine. If one is organized, I would recommend that it be equipped with the two Gatlings now in possession of the State, and two Hotchkiss two and one-half pounder rapid fire guns. These guns are all very effective in case of riot and can be handled without the use of horses. They are thoroughly modern. The bronze muzzle loaders now in possession of the State are obsolete, and would be dangerous to fire with any kind of projectile. Two of them should be kept at the camp ground for saluting purposes, and the others, together with limbers, caissons, forge and battery wagon, sold. If no battery is raised, the two Gatlings should be left in possession of the companies now holding them, each company to have a permanent gun detachment recruited from its members. I would advocate the formation of a signal corps, in some large city having but few other troops, say Bangor. The personnel of this corps should be carefully selected, and should contain a few telegraphers. Many states already have such a corps, and having had considerable signal work to do, I can say from experience that it has more interest for the men connected with it than any other military duty. An excellent equipment for a signal corps can be purchased for about $150. In regard to cavalry, I would advocate that none be raised at present, on account of the expense. My views on the subject of a Brigadier General and staff you already have.

The strength of the guard on paper is about 900 men. The average attendance at inspection was about 55 per cent. Whether or not this is a fair average for attendance at drill I am unable to say positively, but believe it to be a liberal one. Granting that such is the case, the state of things in this regard is one that should be improved. Men should be made to understand that attendance at drill and at other times when called out is an important military duty. This should be impressed upon them before enlistment. Every absentee should be required to produce in person or send by mail an excuse for absence. In case he fails to do this, he should be considered as wilfully absent. If a man is absent with no excuse or an unsatisfactory one, once during the calendar year he should be warned, and the second time reduced if a non-commissioned officer, or discharged if a private. Each man's excuse or want of one should be placed on the morning report, together with the captain's action in the matter. The colonel should be then charged with carrying out the above recommendation. I am aware that the above may seem a very radical measure, which could not be carried out. I believe it can be, and that circumstances render it necessary. It is better to have a small company who are regular in attendance, than a large one, existing only on paper. I would also publish in orders annually, the names of the ten men in each company, who have the best record of attendance, with each man's percentage. I find no provision in the new military code, prohibiting enlistments within a certain time from the annual encampment, although I have been given to understand that there is a law or order to that effect. If there is such a law or order, a minute inspection should be made during the encampment, to ascertain whether or not it has been violated. Violation should subject the responsible officer to court martial.

The system of selecting officers is commendable. Examination after election cannot fail to weed out the incompetent. This examination should cover a man's moral character and standing in his home community as well as his military acquirements, and such is the provision of the law. The scope of the technical examination should be gradually enlarged, as has been done in the regular service. I have found during my inspection several officers who were wholly unfit, either technically or morally, or both, for their positions. These I have designated to you by name. They tend to bring their companies into disrepute with the public, as well as to keep good men from joining. The life and soul of a company is in its commissioned officers. Colonels of regiments and other commanders should be prompt to ask for a board of inquiry in case any of their subordinates are deemed unfit for the service. Where such action incurs the enmity of one man, it would meet with approval by many. Where there is no criminality attached, a private request for the officer's resignation should be made.

My report on the ambulance corps you have in detail. From what I have seen of its personnel and work, the State has been well repaid for the excellent equipment furnished this organization. The improvements recommended are of a minor nature.

I would strongly recommend that the next encampment be by regiment. The only extra cost would be the slight one of keeping the ambulance corps at the grounds two weeks instead of one. This would be more than offset by the lack of necessity for building new mess houses and buying tentage. Each colonel would also be able to give his whole time and attention to his own regiment, without other care or interference. Regimental camps are not an experiment; they have long been held by the state of New York. The State is to be congratulated on having an excellent camp ground for its troops. I would advocate the erection of a strong wooden guard house, not so much for the comfort of the guard as to render efficient aid in discipline. A man confined in a guard tent can easily escape, and thus bring such confinement into ridicule. The programme for the encampment should be carefully thought out in advance, so that no time may be wasted after the troops are actually on the field.

Only a few companies in the State have any plan for assembling the members in case of a sudden call for troops. A uniform plan can hardly be adopted in a State like Maine. Where the members are much scattered, as in a small town, it would seem best to divide the company into squads, according to locality of residence, and hold the ranking member of each squad responsible for notification. In cities, the corporal of each squad, as it stands in ranks, should notify his own men. In the latter case, the captain should notify the lieutenants, they the sergeants, and so on. Each man charged with such work should keep a list, always subject to inspection, of the home and business addresses of the men he is to notify. The inspection would reveal whether these lists were complete and up to date. In cities, also, there should be a call on the fire alarm for assembling the guard. The above are but suggestions. Complete details of a system should be arranged by colonels and published in orders.

In regard to the armament of the guard, I would suggest that the number of feed drums for each of the gatlings be increased from four to twelve. The drums on hand should be put in thorough order, and no more blank cartridges fired until the Gatling Gun company have been communicated with in regard thereto. It is probable that the Springfield rifle will be used for the Infantry for some years to come. Only a very few of those now in use need replacing, but in hardly a company was every piece found instantly serviceable, the disability arising from the lack of small but essential parts, mostly firing pins. Captains should be prompt in making requisition for such parts, for a disabled rifle would ordinarily be the same as no rifle at all. I cannot too strongly condemn the practice in vogue in some companies of using a few of the best weapons for target practice, and never firing the others. This arises in some cases from official sanction by the captain, and in others from the fact that rifles are kept in arm racks, accessible to everybody, instead of in individual lockers, under the key of the owner. Rifles should be checked off against the men by number, and inspection should be frequently made to see that none have been changed. The arming of officers with the new regulation revolver would entail too much expense, and I cannot recommend it. Perhaps this may come in at a future time.

In the matter of Infantry equipment, I would recommend that knapsacks, haversacks and canteens be called in. They are now, in many cases, becoming lost. Whenever needed, they could be shipped to the point of concentration, as fast as the troops could be assembled there. I have never been an advocate of a knapsack of any kind. From my experience in the field, and from conversation with soldiers of the late war, it is plain that the blanket roll is preferable. Tin cups of uniform pattern, meat cans as used by the regulars, metal knives, forks and spoons should be added to the equipment, and also kept in store. When the meat can is opened, one-half is used as a plate, and the other half as a frying pan when necessary. When the two parts are closed together, they keep the cooked meat carried on the march from being soiled, and also from soiling the haversack. The device has long been used in the army.

Uniform clothing I will consider in detail. Overcoats are generally in good order. Many dress hats have the brass top broken, so that the spike cannot be inserted. If the full dress is to be continued, the hats that are disabled should be collected and sent away for repair. Dress coats are generally good. Blouses and trousers are generally in bad order, through long service. Many forage caps are too small for men's wear, and should be replaced by larger ones. Few companies seem to have the ornaments on the forage cap, and this could be corrected at trifling cost. I would recommend that all uniforms conform strictly to United States pattern, except that marks on cap, shoulder strap and knot, collar, etc., should indicate the State from which the troops come. I am not in favor of a full dress uniform, except for officers on social occasions, but as the opinion of the Guard seems to be about equally divided on the subject, I will make no recommendations. I notice men turning out with full dress uniforms and the field kit. This never takes place in the regular service. There are four kinds of dress, full dress, fatigue, heavy marching order and light marching order. These should never be mixed. Under arms, unless on actual campaign white gloves should be worn. For enlisted men, gloves should be of thick cotton; for officers, of lisle thread. Black leather shoes should always be worn on military duty, and at inspection they should be polished. I notice that many officers are not particular to have their clothing strictly according to regulation. They should correct this as soon as possible. A legging adds to the military appearance of troops, but there seems to be considerable objection to leggings among members of the Guard, on account of the time required to put them on and take them off. They also wrinkle the trousers. On mature thought, I do not advocate them unless the full dress is abolished.

The ammunition on hand seems ample in quantity and excellent in quality. Carbine cartridges should be expended first, if practicable. The tentage on hand seems to be exceedingly well cared for, as well as all other property stored at the State grounds. There being only about thirty-five flies for the 185 tents, new flies to make up the shortage should be purchased whenever the funds will admit of it. I have long been an advocate of the conical wall tent as the best one for troops, and would recommend that all new purchases be confined to this variety. It is as cheap, considering the number of men it will shelter, as any other, has excellent ventilation, will stand the highest winds, and is built purposely to contain a stove, by which it is suitable for use at all seasons of the year. The stove and its pipe are especially made for the tent, and are very inexpensive.

The camp ground seems to be well prepared for messing the troops. For possible use at any other point, it might be well to purchase a few of the Buzzacott field ovens, with equipment. This oven is part of the field equipment of the army, and has been thoroughly well tried under all possible conditions of the service. In general, however, troops serving on riot, or other duty within the State, would be fed by arrangement with private parties.

The system of property accountability seems excellent, and is very nearly like that used in the army. My inspection reveals the fact that many captains cannot produce all the property actually on their papers. They should take an inventory just before each property return is rendered, or oftener, and should drop everything not actually on hand. Certificate of loss should set forth all facts, in the fullest possible manner, and all property lost through the slightest degree of carelessness on the part of the officer responsible, should have its value taken out of any money due him. Extensive loss should lead to a board of inquiry, or court martial. No officer should be granted an honorable discharge until he has duly accounted for everything on his books. In each organization a property book should be kept, in which should be entered the names of the men, with a list of the property issued to each. The care of public property is a sacred trust, and any officer or man found negligent in this regard should be summarily dealt with. I find that the army ration has not been adopted in the State, and think it wise that it should not be. The system by which each company while in camp prepares its own food is to be commended. The purchase of food, as well as of other supplies in open market, is excellent. In the long run it results in better articles, at a less cost, than does the contract system.

In regard to drills, I find that company movements and the manual of arms are practically all that is attempted. The above are but the means to an end; the alphabet of military work. Non-commissioned officers should be allowed to drill squads, in both close and extended order, both to give them confidence in themselves and to give the men a more thorough groundwork for advanced instruction. I found that the men in many companies did not know the simple movement of dressing, showing that they had been advanced too fast. Non-commissioned officers were timid, and in some cases performed movements and motions of the manual in a worse manner than the average private. This is not altogether their fault; they should have been allowed to handle men themselves. Every non-commissioned officer in the guard should be able to drill a squad in extended order before the next encampment, so that the extended order drill of sections, platoons, companies and battalions may be taken up at once. Companies should drill out of doors, whenever the weather will permit. Many towns and cities have parks or other places, lighted by electric lights. From actual experience, I know that drill in such places is not only possible, but much easier than in an armory. It is also more interesting. A board should be appointed to cut out of the infantry drill book all movements that are not necessary. A dozen movements in the school of the company, and a corresponding number in the schools of the battalion and regiment, are all that would ever be used in war. Then companies and higher organizations would find more time for the practice of things of more value, such as advance and rear guard duty, flanking work, extended order, reconnaissance, pitching tents, throwing up hasty entrenchments, and the like. For the latter purpose, the entrenching tool now used by the regulars should be added to the equipment. It would increase the interest of the men in their work, as well as keep the guard before the public in a favorable light, if an occasional Saturday afternoon were devoted to field exercises, by companies or battalions. Such work could be done in many cases without expense.

I find the personnel of the guard, on the whole, all that could be desired. It is surprising to find how interested the men are in their work, and how eager they are to learn. I was also surprised to find men walking or driving, often five or six miles, to attend drills. With such men it is possible to do anything, and one cannot help believing, that the military spirit in this State, which reflected so much glory upon it during the Civil War, is still alive, although we are in the midst of profound peace.

Theoretical instruction is the basis of all good military work. There seems to be but little theoretical instruction in the guard, the provisions of Section 83 of the new code being neglected. The results of this neglect are painfully apparent, both among commissioned and non-commissioned officers. The issue of several hundred copies of the drill regulations, is a step in the right direction. Morning reports of meetings for instruction should be rendered the same as for drill. Guard duty is of the utmost importance. The new guard manual costs but little, and its contents should be taught in the armory recitations, so that work may be more intelligently performed at the encampment. With a thoroughly grounded set of officers and non-commissioned officers, the privates will learn their duties rapidly.

The equipment of each company with a rifle range adds much to the interest of the men. In some cases these ranges are excellent, in many they are poor. A good range should give facilities for shooting up to include at least 600 yards, both at known distances and skirmishing. Every man should be required to shoot as well as to drill. The practice of having some men not shoot at all and others use the ammunition is wrong. Therefore I would say that every man should be required to fire fifty rounds per year, at known distance and skirmishing. After that, practice should be voluntary. Blunt's Manual is the authority on rifle shooting in the guard, by order of the commander-in-chief. I quote from par. 176.

“The use in regular practice of additional appliances * * * * * * * which practically would in the field never be applied to the rifle or used in aiming, * * * * will not be used in regular practice.” I observed at the recent contest in Augusta that while a few men were aiming their comrades would shelter them with their overcoats from the high winds.
 The use of the overcoat in the above instance was in violation of the above direction. Again I will quote. “In the regular practice the firing must be held in the open, and not from any sheds or shelters.” This is also from par. 176. Therefore scores made by the company at Bangor, while firing from the shed alluded to in my report, should be thrown out. Men should not be coddled, either by having them shoot from sheds that are heated by stoves and sheltered from the wind, or by having them fire cartridges that are not loaded with the full allowance of powder. Such a thing as a company inspector of rifle practice is an anomaly. Sooner have a company inspector of drill. The captain is responsible for the instruction of his company, not only in drill, but also in that important thing, the use of the weapon. I would recommend that in future the shelter for the marker be constructed above ground, consisting of a crib work of logs, filled with earth. A pit is hard to drain, and must be damp and very hot in summer. The new military code is excellent. The set of regulations now in preparation will be of great help to the guard.

Some cities and towns in the State have been very liberal in the matter of armories, and many have not. The provisions of the law in this case should be enforced, whenever proper action cannot be secured otherwise. I believe members of companies could do much in this matter, without having recourse to the State authorities. Men must be kept interested or they will not join or stay in the guard. An attractive armory is a great means of building up a company. Colonels should give this matter much attention. An armory should be well heated and lighted, and should be kept scrupulously clean. The drill hall should be as large as possible.
 A room for enlisted men should be provided, in which are located the lockers. A locker should be made for each man allowed the company. It should have a glass door, and should be provided with a brass padlock, the man having a key and the captain a duplicate, all of which should be numbered to correspond with the locker. The room should also have chairs and a table. Above all things an officers' room should be provided, which no enlisted man should enter without first obtaining permission, and then only on business. The lack of discipline, consequent upon no room for the officers, was painfully apparent in some companies. The officers' room should contain lockers, table, chairs, and the company desk. The books of the company should be habitually kept in this desk, and should be always ready for inspection. Wherever possible, the armory should have a supply of drinking water and a water closet. Property not issued and the reserve ammunition should be kept in the officers' room, or in a separate store room provided for the purpose.

All useless or obsolete property now at the State grounds should be sold.

But few company books were found in perfect order. Whenever new books are made they should conform to those used by the regular service, as this would be a great advantage in war. I find two order books kept, a special order book and one for general orders. In the army but one is used, containing all orders and circulars not received in printed form. Those printed are filed, and bound up at the end of the year, each series by itself.

Inspections of the companies should be made as often as the State funds will permit. Majors should inspect their battalions frequently, and this could often be done at slight expense. At present the Major seems a kind of supernumerary officer, useful only at drill. I think the spirit of the three battalion organization is to make the Major a real commander, at all times, and as supreme in his province as the Colonel or Captain in theirs. For this reason, I would recommend that papers to or from the Captains in each battalion pass through the Major's hands. No inspection should be undertaken without a carefully prepared programme being made out in advance. A detailed report should also be made.

Companies should be encouraged to give one or more balls or other entertainments in the winter. Dances given on drill nights, after the work is over, should be discouraged.

Companies should lose no opportunity to have favorable notices of their doings inserted in the newspapers. The press is a mighty power, which is usually exerted for good. Its use will tend to keep the Guard before the eyes of the public in a favorable light, and thus win the favor of voters and legislators.

With the concurrence of the Professor of military science at the State College, Orono, I recommend that when money will admit of it, the battalion of Cadets there located be incorporated into the Guard as a separate command. A similar thing has recently been done in one of our Western states. It would bring the Cadets into closer relations with the Guard, and might result in securing some of them as officers and non-commissioned officers after graduation.

In looking over this report, I find many recommendations, more in fact, than I had intended to make when it was begun. The only thing I can say in excuse is that the interest and eagerness for improvement which I have seen all over the State have prompted me to say what is in my mind. If in this report or during my inspecting tour, I have criticised unfairly, I am heartily sorry, for such was farthest from my intention.

I thank you, the officers who travelled with me during my tours of inspection, and those whom I met at the different places visited, for many acts of courtesy, which will be long remembered.

CHARLES G. MORTON,

1st Lieut. 6th U. S. Infantry.

APPENDIX P.

Report of the Inspector General of Rifle Practice for the Year Ending October 31, 1893.

To the Adjutant General of the State of Maine :

SIR : I have the honor to report a gradual improvement in efficiency and an increasing strength in the use of the rifle by the National Guard of the State, and a recognition by the officers and men of the importance of a thorough knowledge of the use of the weapon with which they are armed.

The whole number of men in the first regiment as shown upon the returns made to me at the close of the practice-season is 392. The number of sharpshooters, 7 ; the first-class marksmen, 23 ; the second-class marksmen, 100 ; the third-class marksmen, 61 ; practiced, not qualified, 82 ; not having practiced, 119 ; total, 392. Number of inefficient soldiers, 201 ; per cent of efficiency, 48.73. Whole number of men in the second regiment, 335. The number of sharpshooters, 18 ; the first-class marksmen, 27 ; the second-class marksmen, 101 ; the third-class marksmen, 43 ; practiced, not qualified, 87 ; not having practiced, 59 ; total, 335. Number of efficient soldiers, 189 ; per cent of efficiency, 56.41.

Taking into account Company I of Eastport and Company K of Calais, now attached to the second regiment the regiment would stand as follows :

· First-class marksmen in Company I, 4 ; second-class marksmen, 15 ; third-class marksmen, 5 ; practiced and not qualified, 7 ; not having practiced, 1.9 ; total, 50. Per cent of efficiency, 48. Sharpshooters in Company K, Calais, 2 ; first-class marksmen, 11 ; second-class marksmen, 15 ; third-class marksmen, 18 ; practiced, but not qualified, 7 ; having no practice, 1 ; total, 54. Per cent of efficiency, 85.18. Attached to the second regiment the condition would be as follows :

Whole number of men, 439 ; number of sharpshooters, 20 ; number of first-class marksmen, 42 ; number of second-class marksmen, 131 ; number of third-class marksmen, 66 ; practiced, not qualified, 101 ; not having practiced, 79 ; total, 439. Number of efficient soldiers, 255 ; per cent of efficiency, 58.62. This is at least 30 per cent gain over 1892, in numbers and additional strength.

The first regiment is strengthened by the attaching of Company I of Lewiston and K of Brunswick, only in so much as their efficiency is worth, by the valuable knowledge these two companies have of the use of the Gatling gun which they have been armed with prior to their being attached to the regiment. Company K however did some practice after the company was attached to the first regiment, qualifying three men in the second and four men in the third class. Special attention will be given another season both these companies in rifle-practice.

I respectfully call your attention to a detailed statement of the work done this season by the different companies and their condition at the close of the year.

Appended will be found a "consolidated table," showing the strength of each organization ; the practice and scores made ; the grades of marksmanship acquired and the results of the competitions held under the supervision of the State.

COMPANY RIFLE-PRACTICE.

Company A, first regiment, Portland, remains in about the same condition as it did at the close of the last season. Not quite forty-two per cent of the company are efficient soldiers ; seventeen men not doing any practice this season. While there can be no good excuse for this neglect it can be urged that not until very late in the season was any range provided for this or any of the companies located in Portland. I have no doubt but what if they had had a range early in the season very few of the command would have been returned as having had "no practice." For the time they had, after the completion of the range the company did a good deal of excellent work. I have confidence that another season's work will show a decided improvement in the efficiency of this company.

Company B, Portland, made decided gains over last year. Captain I. H. Baker made a most determined effort to put this company in good condition. His assistance in securing a desirable range is appreciated, though while the city readily agreed to furnish one there was considerable time required to select a proper place and complete it. This was done by Captain Baker and late in the season he got his men actively engaged in out-of-door practice. The company's strength was increased from less than twelve per cent to about forty-five per cent of efficient soldiers. The record would have been even better than this had not a few of such as show no practice (18), given the slightest heed to their duty in learning the use of the rifle. As with Company A, there seems to be no good reason why the State may not expect a good and continued improvement another year.

Company C, Auburn, has had much to distract its attention from the duties incumbent upon a military company. The labor troubles in the shoe manufactories of that city in which many of the members of the company worked, disorganized to some extent the command. Captain Bisbee, an excellent rifleman and one who had taken a great interest in this direction was absent from the city a long time and who resigned during the season could not give his special attention to the work, and the company shows a decided loss from last year.

Of the nineteen men who failed to go upon the range more than half live out of town and the remainder add nothing to the strength of the company. I should advise a careful examination into the membership of this command.

Company D of Norway. This is the banner company of the regiment. Only one company in the State has as many qualified marksmen, that of Company K of Calais, and this is the only company that has qualified every man in the company. I infer it was the strongest command. Too much credit cannot be given Sergeant M. P. Stiles, the company inspector of rifle-practice for the advancement to first place in the regiment. Captain Smith and the members of the company have showed a praiseworthy appreciation of Sergeant Stiles' efforts by aiding him in securing such grand results.

Company E of Portland, has shown an increased interest in rifle-practice and has been able to qualify eleven against six men of last season. Eighteen men failed to qualify, and it is a lamentable fact that forty-two men of the fifty-three on its rolls know absolutely nothing or very little about using the weapon with which the State supplies them. Captain Hogan is a good shot and tried hard to get the men to give attention to this important duty. We may hope for slight gains annually, but I advise heroic measures taken with some of the members as will be seen under the subject of "recommendations."

Company F of Augusta. This company has done well considering all circumstances. It is composed of a much better class of men than at the close of last season and through the efforts of Lieutenant Blackington and the persistent and intelligent work of Sergeant D. W. Lovejoy, company inspector, they have improved and strengthened the company in rifle-practice, qualifying all but twelve men on their rolls, showing seventy-one per cent of effective soldiers. There seems to be good reason to believe that at the close of another season every man will be a good rifleman.

Company G of Biddeford. While this company has taken a commendable pride in maintaining a good company team, the work in the company has been sadly neglected. They have some of the best riflemen in the State and therefore do not lack for good instructors. Out of fifty-two men on the rolls twenty-nine cannot be classed as effective soldiers; twenty-one having done no range practice.

Company H of Rockland. This company returns sixty-three men upon its rolls, all but eleven having done more or less practice on the range. Thirty failed to qualify but many of the scores shows that with a very little more practice they have got into the third class or better. The energy shown by the officers gives us reason to hope that a very liberal advancement will be made another year. The foundation has been laid for an efficient company. They have a good range and will be able to get at work much earlier than this season.

SECOND REGIMENT.

Company A of Hampden. This company had upon their rolls at date of return (November 1st), but twenty-eight men. Eight of these did no practice. The most of the remainder (twenty men), are good rifle-men and some of them expert marksmen. Very little attention however is given to this part of the soldier's duty, it being an easy matter on the part of those who have qualified to keep up their record from year to year. The efficient men number only about forty per cent of a company of average membership. Their "standing" as shown in consolidated table is therefore higher than should be given them in comparison with other and larger commands.

Company B of Lewiston. This company made commendable gains this year having twenty-eight efficient soldiers against twenty of last season. Every man except five, did work on the range and under the intelligent supervision of Lieutenant W. A. Paul, company inspector, made good progress. One draw back to all the Lewiston companies was the lack of a range until quite late in the season. It is expected to see this command make a further increase in marksmen another year.

Company C of Bath. This company did not hold its own, and while they did about the same amount of practice, the strength of the marksmen does not seem to improve. The returns show that twenty-five men who practiced upon the range, failed to qualify. The same difficulty was experienced in 1892. It is safe to assume that either the men do not have the proper instruction before going and upon the range, or that they do not possess the qualities needed for ordinary marksmen. The officers seem desirous of securing good results, and special attention will be given this company another year.

Company D, Lewiston. Decided improvement was made in the marksmanship of this company. They have twenty-six men in the different grades of marksmanship against twelve in 1892. Twelve failed to get upon the range for practice, against twenty-five last season. This commendable advancement and strengthening of the company is largely due to the well directed and persistent efforts of Captain Crockett and Sergeant Field, the company inspector. Under the head of "recommendations," will be found remarks pertinent to the lack of efficiency on the part of some of the members.

Company E of Skowhegan. The number of efficient men as shown upon the returns of practice for 1893 indicates a falling off in the strength of the company. This exhibit does not show the full strength of the company, inasmuch as each soldier is classified where the practice of the season of 1893 determines. Several sharpshooters of record appear in the lower classes this year, they not having kept up their practice. The company therefore is stronger than the returns actually show, although it is not in as good condition as heretofore. Knowing the material of which the company is composed and the ability of Captain Belmore to get the best of results in rifle-practice you can feel assured that the company another year will take its place among the first in the regiment.

Company F of Dover. This company shows slight gains over last year. It is however below an average in the regiment. There is every reason why this company should be among the very best. Captain Pollard is a good marksman and if he had looked sharply after the nineteen men that practiced and failed to qualify the strength of his command would have been a source of pride to the company, regiment and State. As it is it takes sixth place in the regiment and has but nineteen effective marksmen.

Company G of Bangor. The work done in this company has been of a high order in marksmanship. The company have forty-one men on the rolls, twelve being sharpshooters; twelve first-class marksmen and sixteen second-class marksmen. It would be difficult to find another record of so great strength in any volunteer military company or in the United States Army. One man only failed to qualify, he being out of the State and with a record of marksman. Of the number of sharpshooters, eight are "distinguished marksmen."

Company H of Waterville. The practice was quite general, nine men only having failed to do any work on the range. The sixteen who failed to qualify made fair scores and with a little more work most of them would have been among the qualified marksmen. The range was not secured until late in the season, and the work done by Captain Shurtleff after that time secured good results. Remarks in "recommendations" regarding men who take no interest in rifle-practice is specially applicable to some of this company.

Company I of Lewiston, now attached to the first regiment. This was one of the Gatling Gun companies and are efficient in their handling of that wonderful weapon. There was no time to attend to the practice with Springfield rifles after the date of their being made a part of the regiment and no record can be submitted. Every effort will be made another season to make this company efficient in rifle-practice.

Company K of Brunswick. What has been said regarding Company I in respect to the Gatling Gun practice can be as creditably said of this company. After they were attached to the first regiment Captain Peterson applied for and received some ammunition and commenced practice with the Springfield rifle. Three men were qualified in the second-class and four in the third-class, a good beginning to suppelment the work of another year.

Company I of Eastport. This company now attached to the second regiment was once the banner company of the State. The changes in its organization, officers and men has distracted to some extent the work in rifle-shooting and its record to-day is below what it used to be, though about an average with the other organizations. It is composed of a fine class of soldiers and can safely be relied upon to take its place among the best in the regiment. Twenty-four of the fifty men of the company are marksmen.

Company K of Calais. This company now attached to the second regiment has shown a commendable degree of interest in rifle-practice and has more qualified men in the various classes than any other company in the regiment to which it is now attached. The returns show fifty-four men upon its rolls, forty-six having qualified the past season. They are a fine body of soldiers, and Captain Lee deserves great credit for placing the company in the first rank as marksmen and in so short a time.

Ambulance Corps. This organization, though not expected to be riflemen, upon the earnest request of Captain Riker have been supplied with some ammunition, and of the fifteen men in the corps when the season closed, one was a sharpshooter (Captain Riker), one first-class marksman, four second-class and two third-class marksmen.

RANGES.

Acting under instructions contained in General Order No. 5, steps were immediately taken to secure ranges for all the companies in the National Guard. The companies A, B & E of the first regiment had for a long time been without range facilities, and it sadly hindered successful practice in those companies. Although the city government readily responded to the request of the companies to furnish necessary means for constructing one, it was with considerable difficulty that a convenient place was found which could be secured for that purpose. Captain I. H. Baker of Company B, whose services in this direction was valuable, finally found a desirable place and by contract with the city constructed a good range which was deemed safe and is very convenient for these commands.

Company C of Auburn use one fairly convenient which had previously been constructed. This will be examined early in the year with a view of having it better equipped.

Company D of Norway through the efforts of the company and aid of the town have a well arranged and convenient one the value of which is shown by the increased strength in marksmanship of that company.

Company F of Augusta have a range formerly used which is sufficient for their use.

Company G of Biddeford, I am informed, have a new and convenient range.

Company H of Rockland through the efforts of Captain Ulmer and Lieutenant Gray succeeded in having the city establish a range on the line of the electric railroad and though some three miles out of the city proper, has proved to be a good location.

SECOND REGIMENT.

Company A of Hampden have used a field for practice, with temporary arrangements for target practice when desiring to use it. I tried without much effect to assist the company in having a permanent range, and shall early in the season see that one is provided.

Company B and D of Lewiston were without a suitable place for range work but assisted by Lieutenant-Colonel Hoyt and Lieutenant Paul of Company B, had one established, while not as convenient as could be desired does very well. The city of Lewiston promptly gave all needed assistance.

Company C of Bath used one established by the city before 1893. It is not convenient and is some drawback to successful work and efforts will be made to have it changed to a more desirable place if such can be found.

Company E of Skowhegan has a very good range which was improved and completed this year. It is quite convenient and answers a good purpose.

Company F of Dover have no good conveniences for range work. I urged the construction of a range last year, but was assured it was not really needed this season as they could get along as they had previously done. I find, however, that one is much needed and steps will be taken early in the season to have one made.

Company G of Bangor have a very good range convenient and easy of access.

Company I of Eastport now attached to the second regiment have quite a convenient place but not as well equipped as it should be. This latter difficulty will be remedied another year.

Company K of Calais has one of the best in the State. Captain Lee and other officers deserved credit for their successful efforts in this direction.

Company I of Lewiston now attached to the first regiment will use the one constructed for Companies B and D.

Company K of Brunswick have selected a place but not having seen it, cannot tell just what the further needs will be for a range suitable for that company. Attention will be given to the matter before the practice season of another year.

Whatever I have done has been with a view of securing a convenient and safe place for practice and at as small expense to the cities and towns as possible.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

While the National Guard of Maine have fully as large percentage of efficient soldiers, based upon qualification in rifle-practice as any state in the Union and more than any state except the state of Massachusetts, the strength of our Guard in this direction is not what it ought to be. While about 40 per cent of the Guard (not taking into consideration Companies I and K of the first regiment which are weak except in Gatling Gun practice), have but little or no knowledge of the use of the weapon with which they are armed, we believe have good reason to urge a more decided and progressive policy in enforcing rifle-practice by every member of the Guard. A soldier can be of but little value to the State unless he has a fair knowledge of the practical use of the rifle. This knowledge must come first and foremost in his qualification as a soldier.

The number of efficient soldiers taking the qualifications of 1893 as a basis is a fraction less than 69 per cent of the whole force first mentioned. Taking into account some marksmen of "record" the per cent might be increased three or four per cent. Almost every company has men who pay not the slightest attention to the appeals or instructions of their officers and absolutely refuse to learn marksmanship. Some companies have as the returns show, a large number of this class who either refuse or are so situated that no knowledge can be acquired, who stand in the way of the enlistment of better men, and prove a weakness to the company which the State cannot afford to allow to exist. I would recommend a careful examination of the list of names of those failing to do any practice, and decide whether or not it is for the best interest of the National Guard to discharge such as cannot be expected to attend to this part of a soldier's duty, and to make rifle-practice compulsory. The returns will show without hardly an exception, that those who have fired fifty rounds of ammunition have qualified as marksmen.

AMMUNITION.

While the State furnishes more ammunition than most other states, it is desirable to allow the guard all the ammunition that can be afforded. Most companies would willingly reload ammunition for practice, if the bullets, primers and powder was furnished. It would be wise I think to furnish fifteen hundred rounds of fixed ammunition to each company and the equal of fifteen hundred rounds additional, in ammunition for reloading to such as would prefer that to fifty rounds of fixed ammunition to each man. This would give some 5,000 rounds for use of each company.

REVOLVER PRACTICE.

It is very important that every officer should understand the use of the revolver. He ought to be skillful in its use. The request embodied in General Order No. 5, relating to revolver practice, while so far as I could learn met with the approval of the officers, but few purchased them for practice. I was assured that they would do so before another season, and therefore rules governing the practice and qualification had better be prescribed, and competitions arranged to take place at the next encampment.

ARMORY PRACTICE.

Armory practice and armory ranges are desirable, but would entail no small expense upon the companies and I question of the propriety of undertaking it this winter. The practice of holding and aiming, though not as fascinating as firing is quite as beneficial and is a most important factor in the success of any company as marksmen. This practice the officers ought to enforce on the part of those who have not become marksmen; the marksmen know the value of such practice and will not need much urging if he desires to keep to the front as a marksman. To such companies as desire to do work on a range in the armory and have one or provide one, it would be well to furnish them the round balls and instructions as to loading, etc.

CONDITIONS OF PRACTICE.

Captain Blunt's Small Arms Regulations, Paragraph 176, says that "in the regular practice the firing must also be held 'in the open' and not from sheds or shelters."

Some companies have sheds at the 200 yard firing point, and have been in the habit of standing under cover when firing from this point. This has not been interfered with, from the fact that better progress can be made by adhering to this rule which I believe is not for the best interest of rifle-practice. It is a mistaken idea that because the men are to become soldiers, conditions of practice of the recruit while learning to shoot the rifle should be as near those of active service as can be arranged. The volunteer is to be taught to use effectively the weapon with which he is armed. To do this it is important he is first instructed in the armory how to aim and hold the rifle, and when taken upon the range, every opportunity should be given him to prove that his instruction and knowledge have been wisely directed. Every instructor realizes the importance of having the recruit know just where the rifle points at the moment of discharge. This can be done only under favorable conditions free from the force of the wind. I have always urged the taking of the soldier upon the range in mild weather, that his confidence may be secured in his holding.

In proof of this, let me call your attention to the success of the practice by Company G of the second regiment at Bangor. This company shoot from a shed at the 200 yard firing point. They have qualified every man in classes higher than the "Third Class," and their second class scores (eighteen out of a possible twenty-five), have a wide margin in most instances over the limit. This company have twelve sharp shooters, and twelve first-class marksmen. Not only this, but they have eleven "distinguished marksmen," a distinction secured by successful competition upon the State range with the best marksmen of the State. I therefore recommend that the rule be so changed that qualifying scores in the "third and second classes may be made from a shed or cover, but that first-class and sharpshooters' scores must be made 'in the open.'"

The regular rifle ammunition has seventy grains of powder and a 500 grain bullet. This is heavy ammunition for a beginner in shooting. We have heretofore issued the carbine cartridge for use by companies for such as have but little or no practice, which I have no doubt is a wise course to take. There is nothing more troublesome in teaching rifle-shooting than to avoid the danger of having the soldier becoming "gun shy" or getting in the habit of "flinching." Large charges of powder (heavy ammunition) leads up to this trouble, and hence I advise the former method of furnishing ammunition to be continued.

STATE COMPETITIONS.

The State competitions were held at the Encampment grounds in Augusta on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, the 29, 30, 31 of August and the first day of September. The weather was so stormy the first and second days that little could be done and hence the continuance of the matches till Friday. The storm was followed by a heavy wind increasing to almost a gale at times rendering the shooting very difficult and reducing the scores materially. As shown by the records made, the scores are far below what the competitors are able to make under average conditions. The men stood up finely and "fought out" the matches in good humor, though as a natural consequence somewhat disappointed in being unable to do themselves justice. While I would liked to have had the conditions more favorable, it was a satisfaction to see the determined manner with which every man so successfully acquitted himself.

Lieutenant Morton, U. S. Inspector, was upon the range most of the time during the competitions and gave me valuable aid in conducting some of the matches. His presence was appreciated by the competitors and gave them encouragement. Lieutenant Colonel F. L. Hoyt, inspector of rifle-practice in the second regiment afforded me able assistance.

The presence of the Commander-in-Chief and Adjutant General Selden Connor was regarded by the soldiers and myself evidence of an interest in the work both encouraging and beneficial.

Colonel L. H. Kendall, who had charge of the encampment, added much to its success by constantly looking after the comfort of those attending the matches.

I hope the time will come when every company will have good sheds made warm and convenient by the use of stoves where winter practice can be secured. This would be a great advantage to the National Guard, and add much to the strength as marksmen.

STATE TERM.

An incentive to superior marksmanship is the maintenance of a State team. This has been done with varied success since 1880, the principal drawback being the fact that the team has not been allowed to enter competition since the first year of its formation with any State or Interstate teams. I earnestly desire for the good of the service that the formation of the team for 1894 be made at an early date, with the purpose of entering the State and Interstate matches of 1894 which usually occur in September. Unless some privileges of this nature can be allowed the team, the forming of a State team will be of little advantage to the Guard.

CONCLUSION.

My thanks are due the Commander-in-Chief, Hon. Henry B. Cleaves, whose interest in the welfare of the National Guard of the State has been a constant help, and to General Selden Connor, Adjutant General for his untiring and well directed efforts to add permanent strength to the Guard, for their advice and assistance in the discharge of my duties. With Colonel L. H. Kendall and Colonel George A. Philbrook of the First and Second Regiment and all other officers and men in the National Guard my relations have been of the most pleasant character and to whom I am under many obligations for whatever success has been secured during the past season.

E. C. FARRINGTON,

Colonel and Inspector General of Rifle Practice.

Conditions Governing Qualification in the N. G. S. M.

QUALIFICATIONS.

THIRD CLASS MARKSMAN.—Two scores of 15 out of a possible 25, at 200 yards.

SECOND CLASS MARKSMAN.—Two scores of 18 out of a possible 25, at 200 yards.

FIRST CLASS MARKSMAN.—Two scores of 21 out of a possible 25, at 200 yards. Two scores of 21 out of a possible 25, at 500 yards, or two scores of 22 out of a possible 25 at 250 yards.

SHARPSHOOTERS' CLASS.—Two scores of 22 out of a possible 25, at 200 yards. Two scores of 24 out of a possible 25, at 500 yards, or two scores of 25 out of a possible 25, at 250 yards. Two scores of 23 out of a possible 25, at 600 or 300 yards.

Position at 200 yards, standing; at longer distances, any position.

Companies which have either the 500 or 600 yard range, or both, must qualify at those ranges.

Shooting at 300 yards and under must be on third class, and at 500 and 600 yards on second class targets.

DISTINGUISHED MARKSMAN CLASS.—Sharpshooters of record under 1891 or subsequent conditions who have represented the State at Creedmore, and those who have won or may hereafter win a position on the State Team, or who have won in 1891, or may hereafter win an individual Trophy in a State match, and those making the twelve highest scores in the State Sharpshooters' Match.

APPENDIX Q.

Removal of Charges of Desertion.

CORRECTIONS AND ALTERATIONS IN PREVIOUS REPORTS.

Names of soldiers of the Maine Regiments of the late War, the charge of desertion against whom has been removed, as reported to this office by the War Department :

S. H. Allen, Colonel First Regiment Cavalry. The charge of absence without leave of November 2, 1862, standing against his record is erroneous; he was on detached service as military governor at Frederick, Maryland, from September 13, 1862, to January 5, 1863, when he was discharged on tender of resignation.

Joseph Ayatt, Company E, First Regiment Cavalry. The charge of desertion of September 26, 1863, has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, September 26, 1863, has been issued to him.

George W. Hooper, Company A, First Regiment Heavy Artillery. The charge of desertion against his record is erroneous, and a notation to that effect has been made upon the official records. It has also been determined that the soldier was at his home sick and unable to travel, from September 6, 1864, to September 11, 1865.

Daniel Hustus, Company F, First Regiment Heavy Artillery. The charge of desertion of August 12, 1865, has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, August 12, 1865, has been issued to him.

Henry Lord, Company F, First Regiment Heavy Artillery. All charges of desertion have been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, February 5, 1865, has been issued to him.

William B. Cox, Company M, First Regiment Heavy Artillery. The charge of desertion of October 13, 1864, has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, October 13, 1864, has been issued to him.

Aaron Simpson, Fifth Battery Maine Light Artillery. The charge of desertion has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, March 1, 1864, has been issued to him.

Peter Frazier, Company F, First Maine Veteran Volunteers. The charges of desertion of July, 1863 and June, 1865, have been removed from his record. He is discharged to date, June 6, 1865.

Charles H. Preston, Company H, Third Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion of February 16, 1862, has been removed from his record. He is discharged to date, February 16, 1862.

Augustus H. Cookson, Company G, Fourth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, May 10, 1862, has been issued to him.

Charles H. Pearson, Corporal Company F, Fifth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion has been removed from his record, and he has been discharged to date, February 17, 1862, by reason of transfer to Western Gun Boat Service.

Warren W. Perrigo, Company E, Sixth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charges of desertion have been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, August 10, 1862, has been issued to him.

Malcolm Johnson, Company F, Sixth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, August 30, 1862, has been issued to him.

David Logan, Company K, Sixth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, April 28, 1864, has been issued to him.

Horace Clark, Company F, Seventh Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, December 31, 1862, has been issued to him.

Cyrus Spaulding, Company F, Seventh Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, May 21, 1862, has been issued to him.

George Lessor, Companies A and I, Seventh Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion of June 1, 1863, has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, June 1, 1863, has been issued to him.

Albert Marsh, Company D, Eighth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion of August 4, 1865, has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, August 4, 1865, has been issued to him.

John P. Stevens, Company A, Eleventh Regiment Maine Infantry. The charge of desertion of November 9, 1865, has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, November 9, 1865, has been issued to him.

Edward Barnes, Company G, Eleventh Regiment Maine Infantry. The charge of desertion of December 18, 1865, has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, December 18, 1865, has been issued to him.

James Shields, Company A, Twelfth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion of March 30, 1866, has been removed from his record. He was discharged to date, March 30, 1866.

James Sullivan, Company C, Fifteenth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion of April 3, 1866, has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, April 3, 1866, has been issued to him.

Joseph Cyr, Company G, Fifteenth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion has been removed from his record. He is discharged to date, September 17, 1864.

Gustavus V. Wilson, Company K, Fifteenth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion has been removed from his record. He is discharged to date, June 1, 1865.

Alonzo S. Weed, Company E, Sixteenth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion against his record is erroneous, and a notation to that effect has been made upon the official records. He was captured by the enemy on or about October 13, 1863, and died of bronchitis and chronic diarrhœa in military prison hospital at Richmond, Va., December 24, 1863.

George Clark, Company I, Sixteenth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, June 17, 1864, has been issued to him.

Jonathan R. Ryerson, Company C, Seventeenth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, August 19, 1863, has been issued to him.

John E. Allen, Company I, Seventeenth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, July 24, 1864, has been issued to him.

Barton H. Ross, Company B, Twenty-ninth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion of April 13, 1866, has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, April 13, 1866, has been issued to him.

William H. You g, Company H, Twenty-ninth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, Nov. 28, 1864, has been issued to him.

Lewis L. Hall, Company I, Twenty-ninth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion of March 19, 1866, has been removed from his record. He is discharged to date, March 19, 1866.

Edgar L. Flint, Company E, Thirtieth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion of June 3, 1865, has been removed from his record. He is discharged to date, June 3, 1865.

James A. Rounds, Company E, Thirtieth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion of June 3, 1865, has been removed from his record. He is discharged to date, June 3, 1865.

Charles E. Munson, Company F, Thirtieth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion of July 16, 1865, has been removed from his record. He is discharged to date, July 16, 1865.

James A. Haley, Company I, Thirtieth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion of July 1, 1865, has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, July 1, 1865, has been issued to him.

Edward Shields, Company I, Thirtieth Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion of July 6, 1865, has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, July 6, 1865, has been issued to him.

Freeman P. Bridges, Company D, Thirty-first Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, January 1, 1865, has been issued to him.

Timothy Kennedy, Company D, Thirty-first Regiment Maine Volunteers. The charge of desertion has been removed from his record, and a discharge certificate as of the date he left the service, December 31, 1864, has been issued to him.

THE ADJUTANT GENERAL,

State of Maine, Augusta, Maine.

SIR: By direction of the Secretary of War I have the honor to inform you that from evidence submitted to the Department it has this day been determined that the true name of Frank Clark, who was mustered out with the Twentieth Maine Infantry as sergeant major is Frank C. Staples, and that a notation to that effect has been placed on the official record. (Signed), Very respectfully,

F. C. AINSWORTH,

Colonel U. S. Army, Chief, Record and Pension Office.

Subject: Amendment of records to show true name of soldier.

RECORD AND PENSION OFFICE,
War Department, Washington City,

February 18, 1893.

THE ADJUTANT GENERAL,

State of Maine, Augusta, Maine.

SIR: I am directed by the Secretary of War to inform you that it has been determined from evidence before this department that the true name of James M. Thompson, private, Company D, (transferred from Co. F), 12th Regiment Maine Infantry, is James Martin, and a discharge certificate as of that name has been furnished to the soldier under the provisions of the act of Congress approved April 14, 1890.

Under the provisions of an act of Congress approved July 27, 1892, for the relief of this soldier, the charges of desertion against him were removed by this Department and his record was amended to show him honorably discharged to date, April 10, 1866.

(Signed),

Very respectfully,

F. C. AINSWORTH,

Colonel, U. S. Army, Chief, Record and Pension Office.

Subject: Desertion.

RECORD AND PENSION OFFICE,
War Department, Washington City,

February 28, 1893.

THE ADJUTANT GENERAL,
State of Maine, Augusta, Maine.

SIR: Referring to a communication dated the 21st instant, received from the Adjutant General, State of Vermont, on the 23d instant, I am directed by the Secretary of War to inform you that Henry Chase (who served in Company A, 19th Maine Infantry, under the name John Jones) not having been mustered in as of Company M, 1st Vermont Cavalry, is not recognized as a member of, and therefore is not a deserter from, that organization.

It appears that John Jones, private, Company D, 19th Maine Infantry, was assigned to, and served with, Company M, 1st Vermont Cavalry, from, on or about April 5, to, on or about May 31st, 1865, under the name Henry Chase, upon the erroneous assumption that he was a deserter from that organization.

It has been determined by this Department that John Jones was discharged as a private, Company D, 19th Maine Infantry, May 31, 1865, by reason of the muster out of that company, and a notation to that effect has been made on the records of this office.

(Signed),

Very respectfully,

F. C. AINSWORTH,
Colonel, U. S. Army, Chief, Record and Pension Office.

STATE OF MAINE.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,

Augusta, April 10, 1893.

General Orders No. 2.

I. The inspection required by Section 81, of the Militia Law of 1893, will be made by the Inspector General, or other officer detailed therefor, upon such dates in the months of April, May and June as the Inspector General may designate.

II. Commanding officers of organizations to be inspected will be notified at least seven days before the date fixed therefor, and will acknowledge the receipt of such notification at once.

III. The several organizations will parade in full dress uniform armed and equipped; knapsacks will be worn.

IV. All military property for which the commanding officer is responsible, must be in the armory at the date fixed for inspection, and a list thereof made for the use of the inspector. A separate list will be made of all property considered unfit for use, and, if condemned by the inspector, it will be forwarded to the Quartermaster General accompanied with an invoice thereof. A list of the rifles will be made giving the manufacturer's number of each.

V. Commanding officers will prepare duplicate rolls of their companies for the use of the inspector.

VI. Commanding officers will not excuse any member from this inspection except in case of sickness.

VII. Commanding officers will immediately upon the receipt of this order notify the Inspector General of the dates of their semi-monthly drills, and the inspections will as far as practicable be held upon those days.

VIII. The Inspector General is authorized to invite a field or staff officer of the command to be present at any inspection at which he may deem such attendance desirable.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief,

SELDEN CONNOR, Adjutant General.

STATE OF MAINE.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,

Augusta, May 13, 1893.

General Orders No. 4.

Permission is hereby granted all organizations of the National Guards to take part with the Grand Army of the Republic in the observance of Memorial day, May 30th, and they are earnestly requested to tender their services for such duty.

All camps of Sons of Veterans are authorized to parade in public with fire arms on that day.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief,

SELDEN CONNOR, Adjutant General.

STATE OF MAINE.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,

Augusta, May 15, 1893.

General Orders No. 5.

The following rules and regulations for rifle practice in the National Guard are hereby established:

AMMUNITION.

Fifty rounds of ammunition will be furnished each soldier, and primers and bullets to each company, when satisfactory evidence is furnished the Inspector General of Rifle Practice, that such an amount will be properly and judiciously used. Five hundred rounds of ammunition will be supplied to each regimental headquarters. The State team, when formed, will be furnished with ammunition for practice.

The fifty rounds of ammunition furnished each soldier must be expended by him and the return of such practice made in accordance with the provisions of this order.

ARMORY PRACTICE.

It will be the duty of commanding officers to see that the men in their command, are carefully instructed in aiming drill, before they are allowed to participate in firing upon the range. They will see that each man becomes familiar with all that pertains to deliberate aiming, and trigger pulling, and that especial attention be given to those not accustomed to shooting. Too much attention cannot be given, nor time spent in armory practice, for there lies the foundation of success in rifle shooting.

RECORDS.

All score cards shall be signed as herein provided, and immediately forwarded to the Inspector General of Rifle Practice. Every shot fired must be recorded, but the man who has begun a score may discontinue it, and commence another. The record of uncompleted scores must be returned. All score cards must be signed by an Inspector of Rifle Practice, or a commissioned officer. If neither is on the range at the time of practice, the score, signed by a non-commissioned officer, and certified by a commissioned officer, will be accepted. The scores will be recorded upon official score cards, supplied by the Quartermaster General upon application. Duplicate score cards should be kept in numerical order, one retained, and one forwarded to the Inspector General of Rifle Practice. Blunt's Manual will be authority, controlling practice and competitions not otherwise specified by general order. Each company must keep a correct record of all practice, and at the close of the practice season, make return of the two best scores made at the distances prescribed for qualifications to the Inspector General of Rifle Practice. This return must be made on or before November 15, upon blanks furnished for such purpose. Scores made since April 1, 1893, will be allowed.

The commanding officer, or Inspector of Rifle Practice, should not allow more than 50 or 60 grains of powder used in reloading, until the men have become thoroughly familiar with the use of the rifle, and have overcome the fear of the "recoil." One of the main reasons of providing bullets and primers is to educate the men by the use of light cartridges to that point, when, without "finching," they can use the heavy ammunition now furnished by the Government.

QUALIFICATIONS.

The following qualifications are hereby established:

Third Class Marksman.—Two scores of 15 out of a possible 25, at 200 yards.

Second Class Marksman.—Two scores of 18 out of a possible 25, at 200 yards.

First Class Marksman.—Two scores of 21 out of a possible 25, at 200 yards. Two scores of 21 out of a possible 25, at 500 yards, or two scores of 22 out of a possible 25, at 250 yards.

Sharpshooters' Class.—Two scores of 22 out of a possible 25, at 200 yards. Two scores of 24 out of a possible 25, at 500 yards, or two scores of 25 out of a possible 25, at 250 yards. Two scores of 23 out of a possible 25, at 600 or 300 yards.

Position at 200 yards, standing; at longer distances, any position.

Companies which have either the 500 or 600 yard range, or both, must qualify at those ranges.

Shooting at 300 yards and under must be on third class, and at 500 and 600 yards on second class targets.

Distinguished Marksman Class.—Sharpshooters of record under 1891 or subsequent conditions who have represented the State at Creedmore, and those who have won or may hereafter win a position on the State team, or who have won in 1891, or may hereafter win an individual trophy in a State match, and those making the 12 highest scores in the State Sharpshooters' Match.

BADGES.

Distinguished Marksmen.—To a Distinguished Marksman, a pair of silver stars will be issued, to be worn on either side of, and near the end of the coat collar; either dress or fatigue.

SHARPSHOOTERS.

To a Sharpshooter, a silver badge will be issued, the badge consisting of a silver pin and cross, to be worn on the left breast; the soldier having once qualified as a Sharpshooter may continue to wear his badge; and upon three years' qualification (not necessarily consecutive) a silver bar will be issued, which will specify the years of qualification, and will be attached to the badge, between the pin and cross. Each additional three years of qualification will entitle him to an additional bar. This badge to be worn on dress coat only.

To each Sharpshooter will also be issued a pair of silver maltese crosses, to be worn one on either side and near the end of the coat collar. These will be worn on fatigue coat only.

Sharpshooters will be allowed to wear on the left breast of their fatigue coat only, a red, white and blue ribbon, one inch in length, for each year of requalification, not to exceed six in all. The ribbon will be folded so as to expose one half inch in width, and sewed to the coat.

FIRST CLASS MARKSMEN.

To each First Class Marksman a silver pin will be issued, to be worn upon the left breast of dress coat only, but unless the soldier requalifies the next succeeding year, the pin will be removed at the close of the season, and turned in the same as provided for other State property.

A Marksman who requalifies will be permitted to wear, underneath his Marksman's pin, a red ribbon, exposing not more than one inch to view.

There will also be issued to each Marksman, a square button, to be worn in the same manner as prescribed for Sharpshooters, on fatigue coat only. Marksmen who requalify will be permitted to wear the red ribbon under the same conditions as prescribed for Sharpshooters.

SECOND CLASS MARKSMEN.

To a Second Class Marksman, a pair of silver buttons will be issued, to be worn, one on either side and near the end of the coat collar; but unless the soldier requalifies the next succeeding year, the buttons will be removed at the close of the season, and turned in the same as provided for other State property. These may be worn on dress or fatigue coats.

THIRD CLASS MARKSMEN.

To Third Class Marksmen, a pair of bronze buttons will be issued and worn under the same conditions as those relating to Second Class Marksmen.

Trophies or badges won in competition may be worn on dress coats, but none other than those specified in this order will be worn on the fatigue coat.

First, Second and Third Class Marksmen are allowed to wear one pair only, of the square, silver or bronze buttons, as provided.

These different insignia will be furnished by the State, and will remain the property of the State. Provided however, that Sharpshooters of record may retain badges and insignia earned, until discharged from the service. Any soldier having earned by qualification, badges, buttons, or other insignia, and having served three years or more, not necessarily successive, in the Volunteer Militia or National Guard, upon being honorably discharged, may retain as his property such badges, buttons or insignia.

When badges have been lost or have become unfit to wear, new ones will be furnished by the State on payment of the cost, and upon a certificate of the commanding officer that he, on investigation, is satisfied that they have been lost or are unfit to be worn. If unfit to be worn, they must be turned in to the Inspector General of Rifle Practice.

INSPECTION.

The Company Inspector will inspect the rifles as often as once in each month and make immediate return of unserviceable rifles upon blanks furnished for that purpose, and at the last annual inspection, a return showing the condition of each rifle.

PRACTICE SEASON.

Practices for record shall commence April 1, and close November 1.

Col. E. C. Farrington, Inspector General of Rifle Practice, is hereby charged with the details and a strict observance of this order, and will be held responsible for its proper execution. He is authorized to visit the several companies for the purpose of instruction in rifle practice, when desirable, and at such times as he may arrange with Company Commanders.

So much of previous orders relating to rifle practice, as conflict with this order are hereby revoked.

The Inspector General of Rifle Practice will prescribe rules for the organization and practice of a State team of twelve men and two substitutes, to represent the National Guards of the State of Maine.

Competitors making the twelve highest scores in Sharpshooters' competition will be mentioned in General Orders.

STATE COMPETITION.

There will be a State competition at Augusta, in August, at which the following competitions will take place:

First: A distinguished Marksman's match at 200, 500 and 600 yards; also skirmish firings.

Second: A Sharpshooters' (not Distinguished Marksman) match, at 200 and 500 yards; also skirmish firings.

Third: A Marksman's match at 200 and 500 yards.

Fourth: A company team match at 200 yards.

The competitors in the several matches aside from that of the Distinguished Marksman's competition, will embrace those who have places on company teams. The date of and conditions of the matches will be announced no later than July 1.

At the close of the season, the standing of each company will be determined by multiplying the number of its Sharpshooters by 5; of First Class Marksmen by 4; of Second Class Marksmen by 3; of Third Class Marksmen by 2; by adding to the total of the products thus obtained, one for every man who has fired fifty rounds in the practice season, but failed to qualify, and five for every member of the company who has won a place on the State team, or has shot on a winning team in a State match, and dividing the aggregate by the number of enlisted men on the roll of the company, October 31.

REVOLVER PRACTICE.

Pending the consideration of prescribing the arms, etc., with which commissioned officers shall provide themselves, it is earnestly recommended that every officer shall provide himself with a revolver (38 caliber, Colts, of the new pattern prescribed for the army of the U. S.) and practice its use. Revolvers will be sold at cost price by the Quartermaster General to such officers as may desire to procure them through him.

Ammunition will be furnished, rules for practice prescribed, and matches arranged whenever a considerable number of officers have armed themselves and desire to practice and compete.

RANGES.

Col. E. C. Farrington, Inspector General of Rifle Practice, will forthwith ascertain whether every company of the National Guard is provided with a suitable rifle range. If any company is unprovided, he will, upon the failure of the town wherein the company is located to provide a suitable range after reasonable notice, proceed to provide and maintain one at the expense of the State in accordance with the provisions of section 79, chapter 266, laws of 1893.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

SELDEN CONNOR, Adjutant General.

STATE OF MAINE.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Augusta, May 18, 1893.

General Orders No. 6.

The Manual of Guard Duty approved January 7, 1893, for the government of the Armies of the United States, is hereby prescribed for the government of the National Guard of the State of Maine.

All orders inconsistent herewith are hereby revoked. A sufficient number of copies of the Manual will be issued to commanding officers to provide every commissioned and non-commissioned officer with a copy. Commanding officers are directed to take prompt measures for the instruction of their respective commands in the regulations and duties contained therein.

The Militia Laws, Upton's Tactics and Kennon's Manual of Guard Duty heretofore issued, may be dropped from the returns of property by the officers accountable for them, who are authorized to retain them while in office and directed to transmit them to their successors.

By order of Commander-in-Chief,

SELDEN CONNOR, Adjutant General.

STATE OF MAINE.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Augusta, June 29, 1893.

General Orders No. 7.

Permission is hereby granted all organizations of the National Guard of the State of Maine to parade in uniform and under arms July 4th.

All organizations participating in the parade in Lewiston and Auburn will be under the command of F. L. Hoyt, Lieutenant Colonel commanding Second Regiment.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

SELDEN CONNOR, Adjutant General.

STATE OF MAINE.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Augusta, July 20, 1893.

General Orders No. 8.

I. The State Rifle Competition announced in General Orders No. 5, will take place August 29th and 30th, at the State Camp Ground.

II. Transportation and subsistence in camp will be furnished to a team of seven men and one substitute from each company of infantry, and from Company A of Eastport, and Company B of Calais, and to members of the State Team.

III. Fatigue uniform will be worn and blankets must be brought.

IV. Teams should be in camp Monday evening, the 28th.

V. Company Commanders will report to this office as early as possible the names of members of their teams.

VI. Colonel L. H. Kendall, 1st Reg't, is hereby ordered to the command of the camp and will report in person at noon of August 28th. He will make all necessary arrangements for receiving the teams on their arrival and marching them to camp, and such detail for guard duty from Co. F, 1st Regiment, as he may consider sufficient to maintain order and protect property.

VII. Col. Thomas P. Shaw, Commissary General, will provide cooked rations for two days, including supper the 28th, and dinner the 30th.

VIII. The competitions will be under the supervision of Col. E. C. Farrington, General Inspector of Rifle Practice, and will be as follows:

COMPANY TEAM MATCH.

Open to all companies of infantry, N. G. S. M., and Companies A and B, of Eastport and Calais; one team from each company.

CONDITIONS:—Seven men: seven rounds; distance 200 yards; two sighting shots; position, standing; ammunition as furnished by the State, best score to win.

PRIZES:—Five valuable pictures, battle scenes, for armories, will be awarded to the five teams making the best scores.

MARKSMEN'S MATCH.

Open to all members of company teams having a record of first-class marksman made during the season of 1893.

DISTANCES:—200 and 500 yards; position, 200 yards, standing; 500 yards, any; rounds, seven; two sighting shots at 500 yards. Other conditions same as in company team match. Best aggregate score to win.

PRIZES:—First—A Marksman's Gold Medal. Second—A Marksman's Silver Medal.

SHARPSHOOTER'S MATCH.

Open to all members of company teams, not distinguished marksmen, or members of the State team, with a record of sharpshooter.

DISTANCES:—200, 500 and 600 yards; two sighting shots at 500 and 600 yards; rounds, seven; other conditions same as in Marksmen's Match. Best score to win.

PRIZES:—First—1000 rounds of rifle cartridges. Second—500 rounds of rifle cartridges. Third—Set of Ideal loading tools.

The ammunition will be furnished by the State. Each team will be allowed one substitute. The company inspector of rifle-practice making the best score in company team matches will be awarded a Company Inspector's badge.

The regimental Inspector making the best score at 200, 500 and 600 yards, will be awarded a Regimental Inspector's badge.

The company team match will be the first event, and will commence promptly at 7.30 Tuesday, and close at 12 o'clock, or as soon as the teams present at that hour can complete their firing.

All other events will be concluded so that competitors can return Wednesday.

Company commanders will furnish the inspector general of rifle practice with the names of those constituting company teams on cards furnished for that purpose, on or before Monday the 28th day of August.

STATE TEAM.

The fifteen competitors making the best aggregate scores in the Sharpshooters and Distinguished marksmen's matches will constitute the Maine State Rifle-Team of twelve men and substitutes for 1893.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief,

SELDEN CONNOR, Adjutant General.

General Orders No. 9.

I. ENLISTMENTS. The following form of enlistment is hereby prescribed:

I, the undersigned, hereby enlist to serve in the National Guard of the State of Maine, for the term of three years, unless sooner discharged by proper authority, and agree to accept such pay, rations and clothing as are or may be established by law for the National Guard of the State of Maine. I also agree to submit myself, when required, to examination by a surgeon, and to inspection by a mustering officer, and to take and subscribe the oath prescribed by law.

It will be written or pasted in the Enlistment books now in use to form a new heading. Printed slips containing it are herewith furnished.

A supply of "Enlistment and Muster-in" blanks, to take the place of the "Volunteer Enlistment" forms, will be sent to company commanders. On receipt of them all "Volunteer Enlistment" blanks on hand will be destroyed.

Company commanders will promptly report every enlistment to regimental or battalion headquarters. Whenever the number of recruits is sufficient to warrant the expense the regimental or battalion commander will order the surgeon or an assistant surgeon of his command to make the examination required before recruits can be mustered-in; or he may make arrangements for examination by a medical officer of another command.

II. REQUISITIONS. Commanding officers of companies having at least forty-five enlisted men enrolled, will make requisition at once for the articles needed to uniform, arm and equip that number,—to replace articles accounted for as lost or destroyed and those condemned by the Inspector General and turned in to the Quartermaster General.

III. RESERVE AMMUNITION. One thousand rounds of cartridges will be issued to each company as the quantity of reserve ammunition to be kept constantly on hand in readiness for any call to duty requiring the issue of ammunition. Officers will be held strictly responsible for the safe-keeping of this reserve and that no part of it be expended except in service under precept or orders.

IV. DISCHARGES. Before the Board of Inquiry, convened under S. O. No. 65, series of 1892, inquiry was made as to the conduct of W. F. Sederquest, Second Lieutenant of Co. A, 1st Regiment, N. G. S. M., and the Board recommends as the conclusion of its investigation that Lieutenant Sederquest be discharged from the service. The proceedings and finding of the Board are approved. In consideration, however, of the services of Lieutenant Sederquest, he has been permitted to tender his resignation, which is hereby accepted, and he is honorably discharged from the service.

The following enlisted men, upon the recommendation of their respective company commanders approved by the regimental commanders, are hereby discharged:

General Orders No. 10.

I. The following order is published for the information of the National Guard:

HEADQUARTERS OF THE ARMY,

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Washington, August 3, 1893.

Special Orders {
No. 176. }

[Extract.]

* * * * *

21. By direction of the acting Secretary of War, First Lieutenant Charles G. Morton, Sixth Infantry, will report in person to the Governor of Maine, at Augusta, Maine, by August 29, 1893, for such duty pertaining to the National Guard of that State as may be required of him during the remainder of August, and in September and October, 1893, and on completion of the duty will return to his proper station. The travel enjoined is necessary for the public service.

By command of Major-General Schofield.

R. WILLIAMS, Adjutant General.

II. Lieutenant Morton has been assigned to duty by the foregoing order in compliance with the request of the Commander-in-Chief for his services as inspector and instructor, and he will be obeyed and respected accordingly.

III. Lieutenant Morton will assist Col. E. C. Farrington, Inspector General of Rifle Practice, at the Rifle Competition August 29th and 30th.

IV. In compliance with the requirement of section 84 of the military law, a meeting of the commissioned officers of the First and Second Regiments of Infantry and of the First Battalion of Heavy Artillery, of the National Guard, is hereby called at Augusta on the thirtieth day of August, 1893, to continue until noon of the thirty-first. Officers will appear in undress uniform, without side arms, and will report at the office of the Adjutant General at three o'clock on the afternoon of the thirtieth. Transportation and quarters will be furnished by the Quartermaster General.

V. The course of instruction will consist of lectures by Lieutenant Morton in the afternoon and evening of the thirtieth and morning of the thirty-first. At the conclusion of each lecture there will be opportunity for questions and discussion and any supplementary instruction commanding officers may desire to give.

VI. Each company of the National Guard will parade in September or October, at a date to be fixed and announced, for inspection and instruction by the commanding officer of the command to which the company belongs, or a field officer designated by him, assisted by Lieutenant Morton.

VII. The commanding officers of companies are hereby authorized to permit members of their companies who desire to compete for the gold badge to be presented by the Commander-in-Chief to the successful member of the National Guard at the rifle competition of the Camp Benson Association, August 22, 1893, to use the arms and wear the fatigue uniforms of the State in their custody.

By order of Commander-in-Chief,

SELDEN CONNOR, Adjutant General.

STATE OF MAINE.

STATE OF MAINE.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,

Augusta, Nov. 6, 1893.

General Orders No. 13.

I. The First Battalion of Heavy Artillery is hereby disbanded, and the companies composing it are transferred to the infantry arm of the service and assigned to the Second Regiment of the National Guard; Company "A," Eastport, with the designation of Company "I" and Company "B," Calais, with the designation of Company "K." The commanding officers of those companies will report by letter to George A. Philbrook, Colonel, Second Regiment, N. G. S. M., Lewiston.

II. Major E. E. Newcomb is assigned to the Second Regiment for such duty as may be required of him, and will report by letter to Col. Philbrook.

Lincoln H. Newcomb, First Lieutenant and Adjutant, and Horace V. Jonah, First Lieutenant and Assistant Surgeon, are honorably discharged from the service.

III. The "Gun Companies" are transferred to the Infantry arm of the service. The Gun Co. of the First Regiment is designated Company "I." The Gun Co. of the Second Regiment is transferred to the First Regiment and designated Co. "K"; the commanding officer will report by letter to L. H. Kendall, Colonel, First Regiment, Biddeford.

IV. Companies "I" and "K," First Regiment, will retain, until further orders, the Gatling Guns and 12 pdr. Field Guns in their possession, and will devote as much attention to the drill pertaining to those arms as is compatible with attaining proficiency in the infantry drill. The commanding officers of those companies are urged to recruit their commands as speedily as is consistent with the enlistment of good men. Uniforms, arms and equipments sufficient for forty-five enlisted men and two musicians will be issued to each company when required.

V. Company Commanders will be held to strict compliance with the requirement of law that all State property "shall be used for military purposes only, and when not so in use shall be kept in the armories." It is their duty not only to care and account for the property for which they have received, but for whatever State property may in any way come into their possession, and to use diligent efforts to recover articles which have been issued to their respective companies and been scattered about and lost to the use of the State through the remissness of their predecessors. They should apply to superior authority for any instructions or aid they may require in the discharge of this duty. The interests of the Guard cannot be promoted more effectively, nor can officers give stronger proof of their zeal in the service, than by attention to this important duty.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief,

SELDEN CONNOR, Adjutant General.

STATE OF MAINE.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,

Augusta, December 14, 1893.
