REPORT.

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Maine:

The laws of our State prescribe that this department shall submit to your distinguished consideration a biennial report, to the end that you may be fully informed of the true condition, wants, and needs of the library, and may thus be enabled through wise legislation and suitable appropriations to provide for its maintenance and further development. In the performance of this legal duty, it is pleasing to note the fact that in no former period of its existence, has the permanent growth of the library been so great and valuable as during the past two years.

Since the last report it has received by purchase, donations, and exchange, four thousand five hundred fifty bound volumes, many of which are of rare literary, historical, and scientific merit,—as a careful inspection of the catalogue lists contained in this report will show.

EXPENDITURES.

The expenditures for books during the past two years have been greater than in former years, but care has been taken to keep within the amount of the appropriations and to expend money only for the most pressing needs of the library. A summary of the amounts paid out each year will be found near the close of this report.

From the constant and persistent demands made upon the library for the use of books not found on its shelves, it has become plainly evident that there must be a considerable outlay of money in the near future, in order to enlarge the scope of the library sufficiently to meet the reasonable wants of the people, and for the purpose of completing its collections of leading works along the main lines of human knowledge. It also becomes equally evident that law, science, history, literature, art, religion, and sociology are entitled to full and equal representation in any permanent collection of books designed to represent the State library,—while it is manifestly unwise to give to fiction and works of a temporary character, the amount of attention that has hitherto been accorded to them in this department.

In the distribution of books and documents for the benefit and instruction of the people of the State, better methods are now in use than in former times, and this improvement is not confined to Maine alone but prevails quite generally throughout the country. It is now possible to obtain from the United States a public document or report within a few months of the date of its issue. The yearly catalogue of these documents now issued according to the laws of Congress, for the use of the people, is a great advance in the right direction, and will render these publications ten fold more valuable and useful than under the old method, by bringing to light the valuable facts hitherto so carefully and successfully concealed from the public in their pages.

It is to be hoped that the generous encouragement the legislature has given in the past to all publications relating to the history, natural resources, and beautiful scenery of Maine may continue to be offered to all persons engaged in similar work.

Since the last report of the library, several notable publications of great value have been issued by citizens of Maine. Among the most important of these may be mentioned that monument of labor and accurate research, "The Bibliography of Maine," by Hon. Joseph Williamson of Belfast,—The Debates of the Constitutional Convention of Maine, 1819-1820, with Historical Sketches by Capt. Charles E. Nash of Augusta,—The Probate Records of Lincoln county,—and Photographic Views of the Scenery of Maine.

Nearly every state in the Union has completed or now has in progress a geological and topographical survey of its domains, with a view to discover and make known to the capitalists of the country its undeveloped mineral wealth and the inviting fields for the investment of money and the development of new industries, and to afford accurate information to students, tourists, and those seeking pleasant and healthful homes.

The numerous inquiries received by this department relative to the geology, mineralogy, water power, climate, and forests of Maine, cannot fail to impress one with the importance attached to accurate information upon these subjects; but unfortunately such information in reference to our own State is not to be obtained in any convenient form, if indeed it exists in any form.

LAW REPORTS.

It has been the purpose of this department to procure, as rapidly as means would permit, the original reports of the decisions of the leading courts of every English speaking people on the globe. In entering upon this line of policy it became important to secure the reports of the courts of Great Britain in preference to those of the Colonial courts. For this reason a large portion of the special appropriation for the library has been expended in the purchase of the law reports of England. It is estimated that the sum of $2,000 will be required to purchase the remaining volumes of these reports.

The library now has about one-half of the law reports of the Canadian provinces, but these are comparatively useless without the remaining volumes. The Irish and Scotch reports will be needed in the near future to supplement and make complete the reports of England.

Negotiations have been going on during the past year to obtain exchange with Canada and Australia in this class of books. As a consequence of these efforts, the library is now receiving the reports of the supreme court of the Dominion of Canada in exchange for our own supreme court reports, but there are still several provincial courts whose reports can be obtained in no other way than by purchase. The laws and decisions of the Australian provinces of Great Britain are coming to be regarded as of the first importance and value from the fact that the most noted and radical reforms in government and law during the last decade have originated in that country. Nearly every state library has already purchased these laws and reports or has placed orders for them.

STATUTES AND LAWS.

The scarcity of the early session laws of our own State has reached that point where it is well nigh impossible to secure complete sets of the Acts and Resolves, for the use of the library and State and county officers. It is recommended that the Acts and Resolves of 1820, 1822, and 1823 be reprinted by the State in such quantity as will relieve this pressing need, and enable the completion of many sets of these books now lacking only the laws for those years.

The Revised Statutes, digests, and acts and resolves of every state in the Union are found in an incomplete condition upon the shelves of our library. While much has been done to perfect and add to these collections, there still remain many gaps in this class of books which it will require much time, labor, and money to completely fill.

There is a wide difference of opinion in reference to the expenditure of money for the purchase of law text books for the library, but it is susceptible of proof that works of this class are in greater demand than any other books in the library. With a full line of text books once on the shelves, the yearly cost of securing the new publications in this line would be comparatively light.

There are frequent and earnest demands for special reports, relating to railroad and corporation law; whether or not these reports shall be purchased is a question to be considered by the legislature.

While the wants and needs of the library are numerous and would seem to call for a large appropriation of money for the next two years, it is the purpose of this department "to make haste slowly," to present for immediate consideration only the most important and pressing wants, and to gradually bring the library to that condition of completeness and efficiency that will place it in the front rank with the best state libraries of the country.

DONATIONS.

Donations to the library have been less numerous than heretofore, but there has been a marked improvement in their character. The historical and documentary papers of several states have been placed upon the shelves, and also geological surveys and maps of great value. The increase of the library from this source will gradually diminish as the list of exchanges increase. The establishment of free public libraries will serve to divert many donations from the State library to these local collections.

FREE PUBLIC LIBRARIES.

Since January 1, 1895, twelve free public libraries have been established in Maine, and thus twenty-five thousand volumes of carefully selected books have been offered free to the reading public. While the greater number of these libraries have simply changed from corporate associations, charging a yearly fee for the use of their books, to free libraries, the effect upon the patronage of the public has exceeded the expectations of the most ardent advocate of these popular institutions of learning.

To inquiries concerning the effect of this change upon the circulation of the library, the invariable answer has been that the use of the books and the number of patrons are from three to five times greater than under the fee system.

There are in Maine fifty-two free libraries having a total of one hundred forty-five thousand volumes, while in the associate libraries, numbering fifty-four, are found a total of one hundred eighty thousand volumes, and it will not be unwarranted by the facts, to hazard the assertion, that three times as many persons are accommodated and served with good reading by the free libraries as receive instruction in the fee taking libraries. Here is a distinct saving of money and time and a corresponding increase in the intellectual interest of each community where a free library exists.

Another great object and end attained by the establishment of a free library is, that through its influence the reading of the community can, in a great measure, be directed to a higher class of literature, and habits of study inculcated or revived in the minds of those who have long since left schools. Even the novel-reading habits of a community may be, in some degree eradicated or changed by the cultivation of taste for a higher class of literature, and a healthier class of fiction may be substituted for the five and ten cent novels of the circulating library and news stand.

The work of establishing the free library is in the hearts and hands of the people. The State through its legislature can give substantial aid and encouragement to this institution, which is destined to rank next to the common school in the educational systems of the civilized world.

HISTORY OF ASSOCIATE LIBRARIES IN MAINE.

When Maine severed her connection with Massachusetts and was admitted to the Union as a sovereign State, there were, within her borders, two colleges and twenty-four academies. The number of students annually under instruction in these higher schools, was not far from nine hundred. These institutions were supported in part by endowment from the State, and in part by tuition and gifts from patrons and friends. They received money, and also donations of books, maps, charts, paintings, and apparatus, for the use and instruction of their students. Through these sources, each of these schools gradually accumulated a library of considerable value and importance.

The lyceum and debating clubs, which then formed an important educational element in these academies, made great use of the libraries attached thereto; and hence it became important that these collections of books should be under the control and care of some responsible body, and that the selection of books for future use should not be left to the fanciful taste of the students themselves. In the larger towns and villages, similar collections of books had been made by debating clubs, and scientific and educational societies. At that time the State militia was also an important organization, liable to call into its ranks every able bodied man in the State. Its officers included a large number of the most intelligent and active citizens of Maine, who often felt the need of books of instruction in the science and art of war. The lawyers were then so poor and so widely scattered in each county, that whenever court was in session they gathered at the shire town and remained in attendance during the entire term. To them, a library of law books within reach of the bar and court seemed a necessity. For these reasons the establishment of library associations in Maine received early attention.

At its adjourned session, the first legislature that assembled under our constitution, provided, by law, for the formation and incorporation of three different kinds of library associations. Under chapter 141, Laws of 1821, seven or more citizens were authorized to form a library association in any town. Seven or more persons in the military service could in like manner form a military library association in the State at large; and in each county where there were five practising lawyers, a county law library or bar association could be formed and become incorporated. These associate corporations were authorized to receive and hold real and personal property, exclusive of books, to the value of five thousand dollars, to issue shares of stock to their members, and to assess the same for outlays and expenses of the associations. They could sue and be sued and adopt rules and by-laws not repugnant to the general laws and to the Constitution.

In 1830, scientific and literary associations were permitted to become corporate institutions. Corporate privileges were also extended in 1847 to Odd Fellows societies and Sons of Temperance; and from time to time other religious, benevolent, scientific, social, and educational societies have been admitted to the corporate existence and power.

The power of these corporations to hold property is a fair indication of their growth and prosperity. At first this sum was limited to five thousand dollars, but, in 1867, the amount was increased to twenty-five thousand dollars, and again in 1881 the amount was still further increased to one hundred thousand dollars.

There are no reports in the public documents of this State in reference to the number and value of the libraries organized under the law of 1821. It is susceptible of proof, however, that a large proportion of the free public libraries now in existence were evolved from associate libraries organized in the first half of the present century. The law libraries, now in a flourishing condition in every county in the State, were organized in the early days of the Commonwealth, and several of the associate libraries still exist in a useful and flourishing condition under the force and sanction of that early law.

TOWN LIBRARIES.

"In 1854, a law was enacted authorizing any town to raise and appropriate a sum not exceeding one dollar per ratable poll for the founding of a public library therein, and a yearly sum not exceeding twenty-five cents per poll, for the subsequent maintenance of the same. This law remained unchanged for more than thirty years and, with a single exception, there is no evidence that any municipality acted under its provisions. The ancient town of Castine established a public library in 1855, and at that time received the books and property belonging to a social library founded by Rev. Wm. Mason and others in 1801 and subsequently incorporated under the laws of 1821.

"In 1864, the legislature authorized towns to receive gifts and bequests dedicated to the establishment and maintenance of public libraries within their respective limits; and under the provisions of this law, many valuable libraries were established within the State, through the intelligent generosity of her citizens.

"In 1887, towns were empowered to receive and hold lands, buildings, maps, charts, and works of art, by donation or bequest, for the establishment and use of public libraries. At the same time a law was enacted giving to each county law library ten per cent of the fines derived from the enforcement of the 'Maine Law.' Subsequently this provision was enlarged to twenty per cent of such fines, but limiting the amount so received by any county law library to $500 per year.

"It was not until 1893 that any practical encouragement was given for the establishment of free public libraries. The legislature of that year enacted a law designed to encourage the founding and maintenance of free libraries in each city and town within the limits of Maine. By provisions of this last law, every free public library is entitled to receive from the State a yearly sum equal to ten per cent of the amount appropriated by the municipality where it is established. By another section, any municipality is authorized to appropriate a sum yearly not exceeding $1,000, to secure from any corporation or association owning or controlling a library within its limits, the free use of such library for the inhabitants thereof; and such towns may receive from the State ten per cent of the amount so raised.

"Another section of this law provides for a donation of books not to exceed $100 in value to every library established in a town of not more than 1,500 inhabitants. All the department reports, laws, and decisions of the courts, published by the State, and distributed to the towns, are placed by law in these free libraries for the free use and reference of the people. Such is, substantially, the library law in Maine to-day."

DEVELOPMENT OF THE FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Twenty years ago an earnest and enthusiastic band of librarians met in Philadelphia. These men were called together at the earnest solicitation of Hon. Melville Dewey, then assistant librarian at Amherst College Library, and now the librarian of the State Library of New York. Their meetings were held in the rooms of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, and the American Library Association was there organized. The object of this association was to promote the welfare of libraries by stimulating public interest in founding and improving them, by securing needed state aid and national legislation, and to advance the common interests of all persons and associations engaged in library or allied work. The movement then inaugurated by this association has produced wonderful and far reaching results.

From that centennial year until the present time, the public library movement has continued to advance with ever increasing strides. At the present time, nearly every state in the Union gives some aid or encouragement to the founding and maintenance of free public libraries in the towns and cities within its limits. In 1890, the legislature of Massachusetts created a commission of five persons appointed by the governor, to encourage the establishment and maintenance of public libraries within that commonwealth. Suitable appropriations were made for the purpose of assisting the towns in this work, by gifts of books not exceeding in value in any one instance the sum of $100. So well has this commission performed its duty and so earnest and ready were the people of that state to co-operate with the commission in this great work, that out of the 353 towns in the commonwealth there now remain less than twenty municipalities that are destitute of a public library.

In 1895, the legislature of New Hampshire enacted a law requiring of each town in that state to raise and appropriate annually a sum computed at the rate of thirty dollars for every dollar of the public taxes apportioned to that town, for the sole purpose of establishing and maintaining a free public library in such town. It is quite needless to say that New Hampshire stands in the forefront of the library movement. The beautiful library buildings that adorn her cities and villages cannot be duplicated in any state in the Union of equal wealth and population. Her state library building erected and finished at a cost of $225,000 is a monument to the intelligent liberality and progressive spirit of her people.

The free library movement in our own State is in a less advanced stage of development than in either of the above named states. During the past two years, twelve free public libraries have been established, while in many other towns, preliminary steps have been taken, by the formation of library associations composed of cultured men and women.

While the cities and larger towns of the State have done much in this movement towards universal education, the country towns have not as yet responded with much enthusiasm to the progressive demand of the times. The great need of free libraries in the small country towns has not yet been fully realized and appreciated. The constant demand for a fuller knowledge of the facts involved in the discussion of the great questions that are suddenly sprung upon the people, questions requiring prompt decision, renders a well selected library of history, science, and reference books almost indispensable to every community. It has been well said, that were it not for the library the education of the masses would in most cases, cease, when the doors of the school swing in after them for the last time; the library keeps those doors open, and is in the truest sense of the word, the university of the people. The library should be as much a part of the educational system of every community as the public school. It is coming more and more to be so regarded in the enlightened and progressive portions of the country, and is accorded the same respect and warm support. The literary clubs, granges, and church associations in our country towns can do much to advance the interests of their own organizations and the intelligence and happiness of the community in which they are located, by aiding the free library movement.

SELECTION OF BOOKS FOR FREE PUBLIC LIBRARIES.

PROF. GEORGE T. LITTLE.

The aim of a free public library is to make people wiser, happier, and better. The circulation of books is the means by which this end is to be accomplished. It is, therefore, obvious that a careful selection of these books is essential to the success of the library. The difficulty of the task is equal to its importance. No one person is likely to have both that breadth of sympathy and that knowledge of books sufficient to cater to the needs of every class in the community. It becomes necessary in practice either to put the charge of this important work in the hands of a truly representative committee, or to give heed to the calls made upon the librarian for certain books and to complaints at the absence of information on certain subjects. In any case it will be impossible to satisfy every individual, but it is important that no considerable portion of the community should ever fail to find in their library wholesome, entertaining, and instructive books, adapted to their own tastes and attainments.

The nearness of other libraries, the amount of money available, the use of the library by school children, the manufacturing interests, and leading occupations of the community, the traditions and social customs of the town, are all factors that must affect the selection of books for any particular library to such a degree that definite advice as to the proportion of books to be purchased in the various departments of knowledge can not be given. This paper will merely mention three difficulties which every one who conscientiously endeavors to select books wisely will encounter, and to hint at ways to overcome them.

To select the books that will make the library efficient from the educational standpoint is more difficult than at first appears. On the one side is the temptation to buy standard works that, by their exhaustive treatment or by the fame of their authors, have become well known, but which the common people will not read or cannot understand; on the other, to select those popular books of science and illustrated histories that seem able to win readers for themselves. It is surely a mistake to have nothing on a subject like evolution except Darwin's Origin of Species or Haeckel's Evolution of Man, and yet equally wrong to let a science like botany be represented merely by Mrs. Dana's, How to Know the Wild Flowers. To avoid this, have a certain ideal of what your library should be, and constantly aim at that. Strive by new purchases not merely to take what is brought to your attention, but what is needed to make good existing deficiencies. For this purpose, do not fail to consult the catalogue of the carefully selected A. L. A. library of 5,000 volumes, which can be procured without expense from the United States Bureau of Education, and to study the annotated "List of books for girls and women" published by the library bureau. The ideal for your library may call for many more or for many less books on certain subjects than these and similar helps suggest. The point is to be sure that an ideal exists and that it influences purchases. Otherwise the buying will be haphazard, and the purchases of ten consecutive years, instead of furnishing a fairly symmetrical reference library, will represent only the personal tastes of two or three influential members of the selecting committee.

There still remains the troublesome question of which among several new books on some subject of general interest is the one for your library to buy. Poverty compels you to choose. Their number and their high character (according to their advertisements) make the choice difficult. Aid here must be sought from reviews in periodicals like The Nation, The Dial, The Bookman. Let the librarian endeavor to have from personal examination, or from the reading of several criticisms, some knowledge of the character and scope of each book added to his collection. The annual lists issued by Bowdoin College Library of one hundred notable books of the year with references to reviews of them in the leading literary papers, may be of help in this direction.

To make the community better, the library can offer standard religious books which may be read effectively, but will not be read widely; and it can furnish novels that depict with power modes of life and principles of action which are distinctly above those of the people who will read them with avidity and clamor for more. In a word, the story that seizes the imagination will often do more to elevate the character than an eloquent sermon. Unfortunately, there are equally powerful novels that have an opposite effect. Every one agrees that a public library must not lower the moral tone of a community. Every one agrees that the circulation of some books will lower the moral tone. But no one agrees as to just what books will do this. The difficulty is increased by the obvious fact that what is food for one person may be poison to another. A book, moreover, whose aim is to elevate and improve, may have such marked blemishes in places against good taste, not to say decency, as to make it problematical whether these will not more than neutralize the good to come from the book itself. But the most dangerous and at the same time the most difficult to guard against, are novels written by authors of high literary standing and issued by houses of good repute, which nevertheless have either scattered through them or woven into their texture what must in plain English be called filth. There are certain descriptions of vice and sin which are given in such detail with such realism that one cannot read and comprehend them without being more or less polluted. The "select lists of fiction" issued monthly the past year by the Massachusetts Library Club, and, it is to be hoped, to be continued in the future, can be relied on as rejecting everything that would offend or injure public taste or morals.

The greatest difficulty, however, is to decide wisely and fairly how far any particular free public library is to go in furnishing entertaining, as distinct from instructive or educational, reading. In a word how much can it spend on popular novels and juveniles? Few who are not directly connected with free libraries realize the amount of money that can be spent in meeting the demand for such books. Every village has at least a score of boys who will, if provision is made for them, devour the stories of Oliver Optic and Horatio Alger at the rate of two a week. When the "Trilby" rage was upon us, even the smallest library could have used half a dozen copies, if it sincerely attempted to meet the demands of its readers. Since Miss Evans published "St. Elmo," there have appeared some of the best novels of Dickens, Thackeray, and George Eliot, and yet I venture to say that it would cost any public library three times as much to meet the demand for books of the former as of the latter type. In a word, popular and sensational novels are of the nature of sweetmeats. If a free library furnishes candy, the demand will be large. If it does not furnish any, it will fail to catch the class of readers it can most benefit. In such a dilemma rules are out of the question. Advice is quite likely to lead astray. Only rare commonsense and the closest watch of individual readers can attain that golden mean in the choice of books whereby the young and the thoughtless are not only led to form the reading habit, but to have this develop into a love and appreciation of the best in our literature.

LIBRARY LAWS OF MAINE.

CHAPTER 193—RESOLVES OF 1880.

Resolve concerning the Transportation of Certain Books from the State Library.

State Librarian to send books to town clerks.

Resolved, That the State librarian be and is hereby instructed to forward annually, by express or mail, to the clerks of the various towns and plantations in this State, all books that said towns and plantations are entitled to under the law; and that said librarian be further instructed to notify, by mail, such towns and plantations what books are forwarded, and to what office said books are sent; and a receipt from the express office forwarding the same shall be a sufficient voucher for said librarian; provided that nothing in this resolve shall authorize the State librarian to forward, or procure the printing of, any book or document of a past year which may not be conveniently spared from the library or which may be out of print.

Approved March 16, 1880.

CHAPTER 242—PUBLIC LAWS, 1893.

An Act to amend chapter fifty-five of the Revised Statutes, relating to Free Public Libraries.

Section 1. Section nine of chapter fifty-five of the Revised Statutes is amended by striking out all of said section and inserting the following:

‘Sect. 9. Any town may establish a free public library therein, for the use of its inhabitants, and provide suitable rooms therefor, under such regulation for its government as the inhabitants from time to time prescribe; and may appropriate, for the foundation and commencement of such library, a sum not exceeding two dollars, and for its maintenance and increase annually, a sum not exceeding one dollar, for each of its ratable polls in the year next preceding.’

SECTION 2, CHAPTER 242—PUBLIC LAWS, 1893, AS AMENDED BY CHAPTERS 45 AND 110, PUBLIC LAWS, 1895.

‘Sect. 2. The municipal officers in any town or city where a free public library is established, shall annually, on the first day of May, certify to the governor and council the amount of money appropriated and expended by said town or city during the preceding year, for the purchase of books and documents for the use and benefit of such free public library, and for the payment of the running expenses thereof; and the governor, with the advice and consent of the council, shall draw a warrant on the State treasurer for the purchase of books for the use of such library, for a sum equal to ten per cent. of the amount expended by said town, as certified by its municipal officers.’

AMENDED BY CHAPTER 111, PUBLIC LAWS, 1895.

‘Sect. 3. Any town or city in which there is a library owned or controlled by a corporation or association, may appropriate a sum not exceeding five hundred dollars, and in cities or towns having more than ten thousand inhabitants, a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars yearly, to procure from such library the free use of its books for all the inhabitants of the town or city, under such restrictions and regulations as shall insure the safety and good usage of the books, and such library may then be considered a free public library, and said town or city shall be entitled to the benefits of the preceding section, provided, that any books and documents purchased with said State stipend, and all books and documents donated by the State, shall be and remain the property of said municipality.’

SECTION 4, CHAPTER 242, PUBLIC LAWS, 1893—AS
AMENDED BY CHAPTER 53, PUBLIC LAWS, 1895.

‘Sect. 4. In every town and city where a free public library exists, the State librarian shall transmit to such library all laws, Maine reports, and other documents which the town or city is by law entitled to receive from the State, and the same shall be constantly kept in such library for the use and benefit of all the citizens; and the municipal officers of said town or city shall transfer to said library all the laws, Maine reports and other documents, heretofore received from the State, and now in custody of any of the officers of said town or city; and the officers of said library, on or before the first day of April of each year, shall send to the State librarian a report containing a list of all books and documents purchased with the State stipend for the preceding year, and of all books and documents received from the State in said library. The aid from the State, hereby provided, shall be withheld from any town or city until the report herein required to be made on or before the first day of April of each year, shall have been received by the State librarian. And the same shall also be withheld unless said report shall show that the laws, Maine reports and other documents furnished to said town or city by the State are kept in said library as required by this act.'

SECTION 5, CHAPTER 242, PUBLIC LAWS OF 1893.

Sect. 5. The State librarian is hereby authorized and directed to donate from the Maine State library to any town of less than fifteen hundred inhabitants, and having no free public library owned and controlled by the town, books purchased for that purpose not exceeding fifty per cent in value the books and documents purchased by said town for the purpose of founding a free public library therein; said donation in no case to exceed one hundred dollars.

Sect. 6. No town shall be entitled to the benefits of this provision, until its legal voters, at a regularly called town meeting, have raised and appropriated not less than one hundred dollars for the purchase of books, and have provided for the care, custody and distribution of its own books, and those to be donated by the State.

Sect. 7. The librarian or trustees of any free public library may ask the governor and council for advice in regard to the selection of books, and may receive instruction at the State library in cataloguing, and any other matters pertaining to the maintenance or administration of the library.

(Approved March 21, A. D. 1893.)
