INTRODUCTION

Summary

The intent of the Freedom of Access Act (“FOAA”) is that the people’s business should be conducted openly and government records should be open to public review. 1 M.R.S. § 402. While FOAA does not expressly identify the documents that must be retained in order for the public to be able to see how government agencies transact business, its purpose cannot be achieved without adequate documentation and retention.

The Office of Program Evaluation and Government Accountability (“OPEGA”) Report on the Healthy Maine Partnerships’ FY 13 Contracts and Funding demonstrates how difficult it is to reconstruct the actions of one agency in the distribution of public funds when even a single document with critical information has been destroyed. Even after OPEGA’S painstaking review of hundreds of documents, many interviews of witnesses and a full day public hearing by the Government Oversight Committee (“GOC”), the conclusions the GOC could reasonably draw were not definitive.

The GOC referred several key questions to our working group for follow up. In broad terms, those questions concern the effectiveness of State agency record retention activities and the need for accountability in their implementation. The legal structure for record retention already exists in the statutes and rules of the State Archives. Some agencies have invested more effort than others in devising and updating their retention schedules and providing training. The recommendations offered here will benefit from review by the GOC, by State agencies and by other interested persons.

Purpose

As part of the actions taken following OPEGA December 2013 report on Healthy Maine Partnerships’ FY13 Contracts and Funding, GOC requested that a working group convene to make recommendations regarding improvements to the State’s records retention and management framework.

The GOC unanimously accepted the December 2013 Report at its September 24, 2014 meeting, following a day-long hearing on March 14, 2014 and discussions at numerous GOC meetings beginning in 2013. That Report concluded that the Maine Center for Disease Control did not maintain sufficient documentation to support key decisions in its FY 13 Healthy Maine Partnerships lead selection process, and that employees had been directed to destroy documents. By letter dated July 24, 2013 (see Appendix), the GOC asked the Freedom of Access Act ombudsman and the Director of the State Archives Records Management to convene a working group to make recommendations on a number of issues identified as weaknesses in the State’s records retention and management framework in the course of this review.

Method

Pursuant to the GOC July 2014 letter to the Attorney General and the Secretary of State, the working group was convened by Brenda Kielty, FOAA ombudsman in the Attorney General’s Office, and Tammy Marks, Director of the State Archives Records Management Division. Eric Stout, Office of Information Technology, provided invaluable support and expertise.

The working group consulted subject area experts for guidance and input on information technology, personnel and human resources, records management training and legal issues. The GOC anticipated that broad stakeholder input might not be possible prior to its public consideration of these recommendations. The working group acknowledges that additional feedback from interested parties would be appropriate, particularly from State agency representatives. The working group informed the Right to Know Advisory Committee in August 2014 about the issues under review. Since the Advisory Committee does not meet during the Legislative session, a copy of the report was sent to individual Advisory Committee members.

The working group reviewed Maine statute, rules, policies and practices applicable to records management. A comparison of federal records management law and regulations, the procedures of the National Archives and Records Administration, and the records management systems of other states was done to evaluate best practices and identify potential weaknesses in our records management framework.

Report Format

The issues targeted by the GOC have been clustered under the headings of: improved guidance and policies; records retention schedules; agency records officers; training and accountability; oversight and compliance; and FOAA request costs. The chart on page four lists the GOC request areas and the pages in the report where discussions of each of those issues can be found. Recommendations are included at the conclusion of each section and a complete listing is found on page 22.

Resources

We acknowledge that many agencies are understaffed and lack the personnel and the training to comply with existing records management requirements. Similarly, implementing some of the recommendations of this report will depend on the availability of staff to carry them out. Nevertheless, access to government records is a vital part of our democracy. Sometimes millions of dollars and important public interests are at stake in the actions of government agencies as reflected in notes, emails or draft documents. Agencies must find a way to review their records and to retain, archive or destroy those records only as appropriate in order to comply fully with law and public policy.

RECORDS RETENTION & MANAGEMENT OVERVIEW

Preservation and access

As noted in the December 2013 OPEGA Report, the absence of adequate documentation about agency decisions left serious questions about the process by which the lead Healthy Maine Partnerships agency was selected. The policy underlying the Freedom of Access Act is that records of government action be open to public inspection, 1 M.R.S. § 401. But the public's access to information about how government exercises its authority depends on the preservation of records. The goal of any recordkeeping system is simple: to preserve documentation of policies, actions and operations of government in the most economical way possible. Quickly evolving technologies, the rapid increase in the volume of electronic records, outdated practices and limited resources all hinder efficient and effective records management.

The Archives and Records Management Law, 5 M.R.S. §§ 91 – 98 and Maine State Archives Rule 29-255 chapter 1 govern the management of state agency records throughout the entire cycle of record creation, use, retention, preservation and disposition.

Prior to the convening of the 102nd Legislature, Governor John H. Reed created the Maine Archives Committee to review the need to assemble and preserve the vast quantity of valuable State records and make the materials accessible for State and public use. It was evident to this Committee in 1964 that many of the State's records were either inaccessible or kept under haphazard and unsafe conditions, resulting in permanent loss and destruction. With the support of both the Governor and the Legislature, "An Act Creating the Office of State Archivist" was enacted in 1965 giving the new State Archivist records management and archival duties. The former Committee on Destruction of Old Records was dissolved and an Archives Advisory Board was formed to advise the Archivist.

The Records Management Service Division of Archives began operations in 1974 and four years later Archives promulgated the chapter 1 rules to guide State agency records management programs.

Who is responsible for the management of State records?

State Archivist

The Archivist, through the Division of Records Management, is responsible for providing guidance to state agencies and assisting in the effective management of state records. By issuing standards, procedures and techniques; establishing record retention schedules; inspecting agency records management programs and recommending improvements, Archives supports and oversees the agencies.

Archives provides guidance, support and oversight

State agencies

State agencies are responsible for establishing and maintaining a records management program that complies with Archives regulations and guidance. A fully functional program encompasses the complete cycle of records creation, maintenance and use, and disposition.

Agencies establish and maintain a records management program

5 M.R.S. § 95(7)

The head of each state agency or local government agency shall establish and maintain an active, continuing program for the economical and efficient management of any records in compliance with the standards, procedures and regulations issued by the State Archivist.

State employees

State employees are responsible for creating records in the normal course of agency business, managing records efficiently so that information can be retrieved and disposing of records in accordance with retention schedules.

Employees perform record keeping activities in accordance with the agency program

IMPROVED GUIDANCE & MODEL POLICIES

Drafts and records retention

As noted in the December 2013 Report (at page 28), OPEGA had difficulty reconstructing the events that occurred during the process of selecting a lead Healthy Maine Partnership because there was limited documentation kept during the important scoring and selection phase. Testimony from agency participants about practices differed and was sometimes inconsistent. The question of whether drafts or “working documents” have to be retained is complicated by the variety of documents that can be called “drafts” and an absence of clear policies on their value and relative retention requirements.

Documents that could be considered “drafts”

A broad reading of the term “drafts” would include even preliminary or informal writings such as handwritten versions that are subsequently transcribed, notes taken on other documents, “to-do” lists and other personal work aids. Also included are incomplete rough drafts containing no significant information that is not also contained in the final version of the document. Records that alter important policy decisions of an agency, documents that are used in consultations outside of the agency or documents that are reviewed and edited by the agency’s legal staff are also drafts.

The Archives records management manual defines drafts as “support documents, working files for reports, special studies, memorandums, and correspondence that may support major program policy development. These support documents may be needed to fully understand the alternatives and options considered for high-level program initiatives, and the basis for deciding on a course of action. Some drafts contain unique information in substantive annotations or comments added during circulation for comment and approval. Agencies should maintain such drafts, with the file copy of the final document.”

Retention of drafts

How long a draft has to be retained depends on the administrative, legal, fiscal and historical value of the record. Drafts with short term value may not need to be retained at all.

Retention depends on administrative, legal, fiscal and historical value

The general retention schedules established by Archives that apply across State government do not contain any guidance on drafts. If an agency does not have specific language about drafts in its agency schedules, Archives refers them to the following National Archives and Records Administration guidance:

National Archives and Records Administration
Management Guide Series 1995

Drafts and working files.

Although records of Federal agencies usually contain high-level policies and decisions, policy formulation and execution may be poorly documented. Support documents such as drafts and working files for reports, special studies, memorandums, and correspondence that support major program policy development may not be incorporated into office files. These support documents may be needed to fully understand the alternatives and options considered for high-level program initiatives, and the basis for deciding on a course of action. Some drafts contain unique information in substantive annotations or comments added during circulation for comment or approval. Agencies should maintain such drafts, with the file copy of the final document, if any, when the drafts relate to formulation and execution of high-level policies, decisions, actions, or responsibilities.

In addition to drafts, working files and background materials may be needed to adequately document agency activities. Agencies should evaluate the documentation practices of senior officials and staff, engineers, scientists, and other professionals and specialists, particularly those who manage unique agency programs and major contracts, and provide guidance for ensuring adequate documentation. Special attention should be given to notebooks, notes, calculations, and other background materials that may contain information needed to supplement formal records. Drafts and working papers or files that propose and evaluate options or alternatives and their implications in the development of high-level policies and decisions or that document findings or support recommendations should be preserved.

Background materials or drafts that are records according to agency recordkeeping guidelines should be maintained in agency recordkeeping systems. Senior officials or their staff members should not keep such Federal records as person papers. Drafts and working papers or files that relate to routine program or administrative operations or that contain only corrections or editorial or stylistic changes may be disposed of as non-record materials.

The only written reference to drafts in Archives training materials states:

What about draft documents that undergo several revisions?

Draft documents or working papers that:

- Are circulated via e-mail
 - Propose or evaluate high-level policies or decisions
- AND
- Provide unique information that contributes to the understanding of major decisions of the agency
- THESE SHOULD BE PRESERVED PERMANENTLY

Other drafts circulated for comment, which demonstrate significant revisions in the view of the author, should be scheduled, as is the final product.

Uncirculated drafts may be destroyed at will by the author.

Model Policies

Archives indicate that as of October 2015, they will issue new informational directives and bulletins every quarter to provide policy guidance to agencies. Focus areas identified by Archives include agency responsibilities for establishing a records management program and records management training standards.

The Policy of Preservation of State Government Records issued by the Secretary of State in October 2013 requires that employees review records management information and complete an acknowledgment form. Archives will continue to promote this policy with annual reminders.

Recommendations

- Archives convene a stakeholder group, including representatives of State agencies and other interested groups, to review and update general retention schedules as they apply to draft documents, and develop guidance on agency retention requirements for draft or working documents, with a report back to the GOC
- Archives issue policy directives and bulletins on quarterly basis

RECORDS RETENTION SCHEDULES

Records retention schedules

Archives and agencies must develop schedules

The primary tool for managing a record from creation to disposition is the records retention schedule. A schedule describes the records of an agency, establishes the length of time the records must be maintained and serves as the legal authorization for the disposition of records covered by the schedule.

The statutory powers and duties of the State Archivist include establishing schedules to retain and dispose of records.

5 M.R.S. § 95(7)(C)

Establish schedules, in consultation with the heads of state agencies and local government agencies, under which each agency shall retain records of continuing value, and dispose, as provided by this chapter, of records no longer possessing sufficient administrative, legal or fiscal value to warrant their further keeping for business purposes.

As part of its records management program, an agency must provide for the formulation of records schedules. Maine State Archives Rule 29-255 ch.1 § 5(A)(3) and § 12(A) require the development of schedules for all records in the custody of each State agency.

Each State agency must formulate schedules for all records in its custody

29-255 C.M.R. ch.1 § 5(A)(3)

The head of each executive agency shall establish and maintain an efficient and continuous records management program which shall focus upon the complete cycle of records creation, records maintenance and use, and records disposition. The program established by the head of each agency shall provide for:

3. Provision shall be made to insure that records of continuing value are preserved, but that records no longer of current use to an agency are promptly disposed of or retired. Effective techniques for accomplishing these ends are the development of records disposition schedules; the transfer of records to records centers and to the archives, the microfilming of appropriate records; and the disposal of valueless records.

29-255 C.M.R. ch.1 § 12(A)(2)(a)

2. The following steps shall be taken in the development of records disposition schedules:
 - a. Each State agency shall formulate a records disposition schedule for all records in its custody.

Three types of record retention schedules

General schedules cover the kinds of records that are common to most or all executive branch state agencies. Records schedules organize records into “record series” or groups of records that relate to a particular function, result from the same activity, have a particular physical form, or because of some other relationship arising out of their creation, receipt or use. The general schedules include records such as financial orders, employee personnel records and Freedom of Access Act requests. The general schedules are found at www.maine.gov/sos/arc/records/state/gensched2.html.

State agency schedules are retention schedules that are unique to each agency. The state agency schedules are found at www.maine.gov/sos/arc/records/state/stsched.html.

Disposition schedule is a term that refers generically to any schedule that identifies records and establishes a time frame for disposition. The terms schedules, retention schedules and disposition schedules are sometimes used interchangeably but all such schedules include a listing of record series with corresponding retention periods.

Creation and approval of schedules

The process

The development of a retention schedule begins with an understanding of an agency’s mission, its functions, the kinds of records it typically generates and any legal recordkeeping requirements. Agency personnel having subject matter expertise compile a records inventory by reviewing the types of records and information systems in the organization. A fundamental principle of records management is that records no longer having value should be destroyed. Groups of related records identified in the inventory are evaluated based on the administrative, fiscal, legal and historical value of the records. The appraisal of records’ value determines the retention period and disposition of the records. An agency’s proposed records retention schedule goes to the next level for review, discussion and revisions. The review of draft schedules involves records management personnel from Archives. Retention schedules are then forwarded to the approving body for review, discussion, revision or approval. The implementation of approved schedules within the agency requires issuance and distribution of the schedule and staff training on the schedule.

Approving schedules: State Archivist and Archives Advisory Board

The process for approving general and agency schedules depends on whether the power to grant approval rests with Archives, the Archives Advisory Board or both. There is disagreement about the roles of the Archivist and the Archives Advisory Board in approving schedules. Because of this disagreement, some agency schedules have not been approved for over two years while other agency schedules have been approved by the Archivist but not by the Board.

The Archives Advisory Board was created in 1965, at the same time as the office of the State Archivist. It was originally composed of representatives of the Attorney General, the Commissioner of Finance and Administration, the State Librarian, the State Historian and the Registrar of Vital Statistics as well as six other persons especially interested in Maine history.

The composition of the Archives Advisory Board changed four years later to replace the State government members with three more citizen members. The Archives Advisory Board, whose members are appointed by the Governor, currently has four vacancies, and the terms of the remaining five members have expired though they continue to serve.

Historically the Archives Advisory Board has advised the Archivist on the disposition of records, on retention schedules and on administrative matters of concern. Although there is some dispute about whether the Archives Advisory Board’s review of State agency schedules should be limited to the authorization to destroy records, the interchangeable use of the terms “disposition schedule” and “retention schedule” suggest that the Board has broad authority. Past practice and a plain reading of the Maine State Archives Rule indicate that the Archivist and the Archives Advisory Board should work together to approve general and agency schedules.

General records schedules are issued by the Archivist and the Archives Advisory Board pursuant to Maine State Archives Rule 29-255 ch.1 § 12(B).

29-255 C.M.R. ch.1 §12(B)

B. Approved general records schedules

General records schedules shall be issued by the State Archivist and Archives Advisory Board to govern the disposition of certain types of records common to all agencies.

Agencies submit proposed schedules to Archives and after review by Archives staff their requests go to the Archivist and the Archives Advisory Board for approval.

29-255 C.M.R. ch.1 § 12(C)

C. Agency disposal authority

1. Requests for authorization to dispose of records shall be initiated by State agencies by submitting records disposal lists or schedules to the Maine State Archives.
2. After review by the Maine State Archives staff, the request is submitted to the State Archivist and Archives Advisory Board as required by law. If the request is approved by the State Archivist and Archives Advisory Board, the State Archivist shall notify the agency thereof. This notice constitutes the disposal authorization.

Archives suggests improving the schedule approval process through changes to the Archives Advisory Board, including appointing members with expertise in the administrative, fiscal, legal and historical value of records; creating separate review subcommittees for local records and historical archive issues; and ensuring timely renewals or changes to appointments.

Existing schedules must be updated annually

Since 1970 Archives has tracked the number of agency schedule updates by State agency. Sixty four percent of the total changes to agency schedules occurred between 1980 and 1999. Only eleven percent of the changes date from 2010 to 2015, suggesting that the schedules are not regularly updated and do not reflect current records practices.

Regular review and updating of retention schedules will provide meaningful guidance to agency staff. As business practices evolve, new and amended schedules will document the changing use and value of records. Maine State Archives Rule 29-255 ch.1 § 12(A)(2)(e) provides that retention schedules should be reviewed and updated at least once a year.

Schedules must be reviewed and updated annually

29-255 C.M.R. ch.1 § 12(A)(2)(e)

- e. Schedules shall be reviewed at least once annually to effect changes necessary to maintain their current status.

Recommendations

- GOC should consider, with input from interested persons, changes to the Archives Advisory Board, including appointing members with expertise in the administrative, fiscal, legal and historical value of records; creating separate review subcommittees for local records and historical archive issues; and ensuring timely renewals or changes to appointments.
- GOC should consider, with input from interested persons, clarifying the schedule approval process so that the roles of the Archives and the Archives Advisory Board are clearer; this may require legislative action
- Agencies and Archives should increase the number of schedule reviews done each year

RECORDS OFFICERS

Agency records officers

What staff resources are needed for an agency records management program?

In order to implement recordkeeping policies and procedures, to provide training, and to ensure oversight and compliance, each agency needs to designate employees who are qualified in records management.

Each agency head must appoint a records officer and assistant records officers

A records officer coordinates the records management of an agency and is an important link between the agency and Archives. Assistant records officers support the overall program by performing records management responsibilities for each unit within the agency.

Appointment of records officers

Pursuant to Maine State Archives Rule 29-255 ch. 1 § 6, each agency head must appoint a records officer at the managerial level and assistant records officers for each organizational unit.

Archives must be informed of records officer appointments

Agencies are required to notify Archives immediately of any changes in records officer designations and the transfer of any associated duties to another agency employee.

29-255 C.M.R. ch. 1 § 6

6. RECORDS OFFICER

The head of each agency shall appoint a Records Officer at the managerial level who shall be responsible under his direct supervision for the economical and efficient management of the records of the agency in compliance with the standards, procedures and rules issued by the State Archivist. The person chosen as Records Officer shall have a thorough knowledge of the organization and specialized functions of the agency and of the general records requirements of the State.

The head of each agency shall appoint an Assistant Records Officer for each organizational unit of the agency who shall be immediately responsible for the exercise of such records management functions as are authorized to be performed within the unit for which he is assigned responsibility and which shall operate within the framework of the overall agency program. The names of the Records Officer and Assistant Records Officers shall be reported to the Maine State Archives immediately following their appointment. All official correspondence between the agency and the Maine State Archives concerning the disposal of agency records shall be signed by the head of the agency or by the Records Officer.

Archives identifies four problems in this area that weaken agency records management programs: agency failure to appoint records officers and assistants; lapses or changes in appointments not reported to Archives; confusion about the role of records officers and assistants; and the need for more records officer assignments to address the various functions, policies, procedures and records within each agency.

Records officer responsibilities are added on to an employee's existing duties, making time for records management challenging. In addition, about half of the records officer and assistant positions across state government are now vacant. The dedication of time and resources to appointed records officers or to new positions for full-time professional records managers would improve agency-wide records management functions.

Recommendations

- As part of the annual review of schedules, each agency should submit to Archives the names of their records officers and assistants.
- Archives should identify records officers and assistants gaps or recommended additions and notify each agency
- Archives should insist that they will not accept records from or release to an agency without an assigned records officer

TRAINING & ACCOUNTABILITY

Records management training

Agency-specific training for employees at all levels is a critical component of an effective records management program. Whether training is in person or web-based, it should be recurring, consistent and customized specifically for the agency's records management program.

Despite all the responsibilities of agency heads, records officers and line employees to create, retain and dispose of records, there are no minimum standards for required training of State employees in Maine statute, rule or Archives policy.

Training has been provided by a single Archives staff member to small groups of employees or records officers, usually only in response to an agency request. Archives has posted information about records management online and improved their website. Archives, the Office of Information Technology, the Office of the Attorney General and the Department of Health and Human Services have collaborated to develop an on-line training tool which combines records retention, electronic records and freedom of access and which could be a model for other agencies. The FOIA ombudsman's ongoing training incorporates material on the importance of records management, including updating schedules and training. Still, these measures are inadequate.

A lack of clear and consistent training standards is a significant weakness in the State's records management framework. Who must be trained? What content should be included in training for new hires, continuing employees, supervisors and records officers? How frequently should training occur? What documentation of training completion should be on file? Archives have indicated that training standards will be issued in October 2015. With those standards in hand, agencies should ensure that all personnel can meet records training requirements.

Archives should issue minimum standards for training and provide training resources

Agencies should ensure training for all personnel

State employee resources for records retention questions

Employees should have a number of ways to get answers to records management questions. In addition to providing information online, the Archives have enhanced its website with a new "You have questions? We have answers!" text box, highlighting staff contact information to assist in getting answers.

The Office of Information Technology has developed a page on the State intranet site available to all State employees, with information relating to records retention, electronic records management and the Freedom of Access Act.

The agency records officer and assistant records officers are key staff members for agency-specific questions. They should understand their role as a resource and their contact information should be available to all agency employees.

Performance and individual accountability

The State performance management system is premised upon clear, well-defined job responsibilities; notice and training so that employees fully understand their responsibilities; and an annual performance evaluation to foster individual accountability.

Although record keeping is a vital function for most employees, the lack of a consistent understanding of records management responsibilities is a weakness in the State's records management practices. Agency records management programs should include clear standards and expectations communicated through the agency policy and procedures. Agency-customized training should be available to all employees to implement the policy and provide the minimum skills and knowledge needed to meet the policy objectives. With these measures in place, a plan could be developed for regular review of individual employee practice and records management expectations.

State agencies should be encouraged to develop records management programs and policies and partner with Archives to deliver appropriate training to all personnel. With appropriate training, consistency in practice and accountability will improve.

Recommendations

- Archives issue minimum standards for records management training
- Archives develop an online training tool
- Bureau of Human Resources include records management as a required topic in the new employee orientation presentation
- Agencies partner with Archives to deliver appropriate records management training customized for individual agencies
- All continuing personnel complete the agency records management training annually
- Archives notify agencies of enhanced website resources for answering questions
- Agencies direct employee questions to records officers and Archives
- Once clear and updated retention schedules are established and adequate training is implemented, the agencies could consider a plan for an employee records management performance expectation

OVERSIGHT & COMPLIANCE

Agency internal controls

Agencies must monitor records management program

Agencies are required to establish adequate controls to monitor and assess the implementation of records management policies and procedures. Maine State Archives Rule 29-255 ch. 1 § 5(A)(1) and § 12(F)(1) require effective internal controls over records creation, records maintenance, records use and records disposition. Agencies must establish safeguards against the unlawful removal of records and protect government records against loss or misuse.

Agency records management programs must provide effective controls over the creation, maintenance and use, and disposition of records

29-255 C.M.R. ch. 1 § 5(A)(1)

The head of each executive agency shall establish and maintain an efficient and continuous records management program which shall focus upon the complete cycle of records creation, records maintenance and use, and records disposition. The program established by the head of each agency shall provide for:

- A. Effective internal controls over records creation, records maintenance and use and records disposition, with respect to the conduct of current business.
 - 1. Adequate controls over the creation of agency records shall be instituted to insure that important policies and decisions are sufficiently recorded; that routine operational paperwork is kept to a minimum; and that the accumulation of unnecessary files is prevented. Effective techniques to be applied in this area include the application of systems for the control of correspondence, forms, directives and issuances, and reports; the minimizing of duplicate files, and the disposal without filing of transitory material that has no value for record purposes.

29-255 C.M.R. ch. 1 § 12(F)(1)

F. Unlawful removal or destruction of records

- 1. The head of each agency shall establish safeguards against the unlawful removal or loss of records, including making it known to officials and employees of the agency that records in the custody of the agency are not to be alienated or destroyed except in accordance with law; and the penalties provided by law for the unlawful removal or destruction of records.

Reviews and inspections

Evaluation of agency records management program

Agencies are required to conduct reviews and evaluations of how their records management policies and procedures are implemented. Archives must conduct periodic inspections of agency records management programs to evaluate effectiveness and make recommendations for improvements. Maine State Archives Rule 29-155 ch.1 § 5(C) and § 8 provide these specific oversight and compliance measures to identify issues in records management programs.

29-255 C.M.R. ch.1 § 5(C)

The head of each executive agency shall establish and maintain an efficient and continuous records management program which shall focus upon the complete cycle of records creation, records maintenance and use, and records disposition. The program established by the head of each agency shall provide for:

- C. Review and evaluation of agency records management program policies, operations and procedures.

Agency review of records management program policies, operations and procedures

Archives inspection of agency programs for compliance and effectiveness

29-255 C.M.R. ch.1 § 8

8. AGENCY PROGRAM EVALUATION

Agency programs will be inspected periodically by the Maine State Archives to:

- A. Determine agency compliance with the Archives and Records Management Law.
- B. Determine agency observance of Maine State Archives rules.
- C. Evaluate and report on the effectiveness of agency records programs.

29-255 C.M.R. ch.1 § 3(C)

- C. "Inspection" means the review of agency records, records management practices, and records management programs for the purpose of evaluating records management effectiveness and recommending means for the Improvement of records management.

When and how often should an agency records management program be reviewed?

The routine review of an agency records management program could coincide with the annual update of retention schedules. Archives inspection could be done on a rotating basis and include recommendations for improving records management practices, policies and procedures.

Agency performance goals and measures

Continued records management program improvements

Archives shall recommend improvements in statewide records management practices and agencies must provide for the continued analysis and improvements of their records management programs. 5 M.R.S. § 95(7)(B) and Maine State Archives Rule 29-255 ch. 1 § 5(A)(2) require that Archives and agencies seek continual improvement in records management programs.

Archives recommend improvements in records management practices

Agency programs provide for continued analysis and improvement

5 M.R.S. § 95(7)(B)

The State Archivist shall, with due regard for the functions of the agencies concerned:

- B. Recommend improvements in records management practices, including the use of space, equipment and supplies employed in creating, maintaining, storing and servicing state and local government records;

29-255 C.M.R. ch. 1 § 5(A)(2)

- 2. To insure that records are maintained economically and efficiently and in such a manner that their maximum usefulness is attained, provision shall be made for the continued analysis and improvement of such matters as mail handling and routing, record classification and indexing systems, the use of filing equipment and supplies, and the reproduction and transportation of records.

Performance goals are specific, measurable, meaningful improvements

Performance measures are metrics that track progress toward goals

How can agency improvements be tracked?

Essential to an agency records management program is the establishment of performance goals and methods to measure progress. Agency goals should build on existing records practices and identify next steps toward a more effective system.

Recommendations

- Agencies implement internal controls that provide reasonable assurance that their programs comply with all state records management laws and regulations
- Annual agency review of records management program

- Periodic Archives inspection of agency records management program scheduled on rotating basis and include recommendations for improvements
- Agencies establish specific performance goals and measures for their records management program based on outcome of reviews and inspections

FREEDOM OF ACCESS ACT REQUEST COSTS

The Freedom of Access Act allows agencies to assess and collect FOAA fees from requesters. Agencies recover some of the costs of responding to a FOAA request through a capped hourly fee for staff time, reasonable costs for copies and reimbursement of actual costs for conversion or postage. The question presented by GOC is whether this scheme is adequate to establish a consistent government-wide framework and whether the fees are reasonable and not an unnecessary barrier to access.

Although consistency could be improved through comparing similar agency activities and applying a standard fee, such as a unit standard for searching email accounts, the statute does not provide for uniform fee schedules. Other changes to the fee provisions to address fees as a barrier to access could also require amendments to FOAA.

The Right to Know Advisory Committee has looked at the issue of fees multiple times and because of their broad stakeholder representation and expertise, are well positioned to make recommendations that balance the cost of FOAA requests and the public's need for access to information.

Recommendations

- Refer the issue of Freedom of Access Act request costs to the Right to Know Advisory Committee for review and proposals

Improved Guidance & Model Policies

- Archives convene stakeholder group, including representatives of State agencies and other interested groups, to review and update general retention schedules as they apply to draft documents, and develop guidance on agency retention requirements for draft or working documents, with a report back to GOC
- Archives issue policy directives and bulletins on quarterly basis

Records Retention Schedules

- GOC should consider, with input from interested persons, changes to the Archives Advisory Board, including appointing members with expertise in the administrative, fiscal, legal and historical value of records; creating separate review subcommittees for local records and historical archive issues; and ensuring timely renewals or changes to appointments.
- GOC should consider, with input from interested persons, clarifying the schedule approval process so that the roles of the Archives and the Archives Advisory Board are clearer; this may require legislative action
- Agencies and Archives should increase the number of schedule reviews done each year

Agency Records Officers

- As part of the annual review of schedules, each agency should submit to Archives the names of their records officers and assistants
- Archives should identify records officers and assistants gaps or recommended additions and notify each agency
- Archives should insist that they will not accept records from or release records to an agency without an assigned records officer

Training & Accountability

- Archives issue minimum standards for records management training
- Archives develop an online training tool
- Bureau of Human Resources include records management as a required topic in the new employee orientation presentation
- Agencies partner with Archives to deliver appropriate records management training customized for individual agencies
- All continuing personnel complete the agency records management training annually
- Archives notify agencies of enhanced website resources for answering questions
- Agencies direct employee questions to records officers and Archives
- Once clear and updated retention schedules are established and adequate training is implemented, the agencies could consider a plan for an employee records management performance expectation

Oversight & Compliance

- Agencies implement internal controls that provide reasonable assurance that their programs comply with all state records management laws and regulations
- Annual agency review of records management program
- Periodic Archives inspection of agency records management program scheduled on rotating basis and include recommendations for improvements
- Agencies establish specific performance goals and measures for their records management program based on outcome of reviews and inspections

Freedom of Access Act Request Costs

- Refer the issue of Freedom of Access Act request costs to the Right to Know Advisory Committee for review and proposals

MAINE STATE LEGISLATURE
GOVERNMENT OVERSIGHT COMMITTEE

July 31, 2014

Honorable Janet Mills
Attorney General
6 State House Station
Augusta, Maine 04333-0006

Honorable Matthew Dunlap
Secretary of State
148 State House Station
Augusta, Maine 04333-0148

Dear Attorney General Mills and Secretary of State Dunlap:

In the months since the Office of Program Evaluation and Government Accountability released its December 2013 report on Healthy Maine Partnerships' FY13 Contracts and Funding, our committee has been considering potential actions on associated issues with records retention policies and practices at the Maine Center for Disease Control and Prevention, as well as Statewide. Chief Deputy Attorney General Linda Pistner, FOAA Ombudsman Brenda Kieilty, Senior Attorney General Phyllis Gardiner and State Archivist David Cheever have provided information and perspective that have helped us to understand where weaknesses exist in the State's records retention and management framework and helped brainstorm possible ideas for improvements. We greatly appreciate their interest and assistance in these matters.

As a result of these discussions, the Government Oversight Committee would like to accept the offer extended by your offices for the FOAA Ombudsman and Director of the State Archives Records Management to convene a working group to develop and/or make specific recommendations to the GOC regarding improvements to the State's Records Retention framework. Specifically, the GOC requests that:

- A. A working group be convened by the FOAA Ombudsman and the Director of Maine State Archives Records Management and include, at a minimum, representatives of the Attorney General's Office, the Office of Information Technology, the Bureau of Human Resources and the Department of Audit.

TELEPHONE 207-287-1901 FAX: 207-287-1906

- B. The working group make specific recommendations concerning the following:
- a. improved guidance for agencies on record retention, including specifically the issue of draft documents and the appropriate criteria for determining the extent to which drafts should be retained;
 - b. model policies on record retention;
 - c. training requirements, including additional requirements for supervisors, and a system of accountability to assure that all state employees receive appropriate training on record retention policies, schedules and procedures; and
 - d. establishing, or promoting/enhancing existing, avenues for employees to get consistent and accurate answers to records retention questions.
- C. The working group also make suggestions on how best to implement the following ideas with the goal of ensuring expectations regarding records retention are clear and well understood by all employees and that all employees are accountable for complying with those expectations:
1. All executive branch agencies shall review and update their record retention policies, procedures and schedules consistent with the improved guidance and model policies; train incoming and existing employees and supervisors on those updated record retention policies and procedures (in addition to, or in conjunction with FOAA training); and require staff to review and acknowledge receipt of the State of Maine Policy on Preservation of State Government Records on an annual basis.
 2. Consistent with collective bargaining agreements, civil service law and rule and other applicable law, compliance with record retention policies, procedures and schedules should be included as part of each employee's performance expectations. Employees who fail to fulfil their obligations under applicable record retention policies, procedures and schedules will be subject to disciplinary action, up to and including discharge.
 3. The FOAA Ombudsman's ongoing training of state agency personnel continue to address the importance of record retention, as well as the obligation of each agency to update their record retention schedules, policies and procedures, and to assure that all agency staff receive training on those policies and procedures.
- D. The working group make recommendations on guidelines that should be used by agencies in determining costs for responding to a FOAA such that costs are reasonable, consistent across State government and do not present an unnecessary barrier to FOAA requests.
- E. In developing its recommendations and suggestions, that the working group seek input from the Right to Know Advisory Committee, other State agencies and/or stakeholders as appropriate.
- F. The working group report back to the GOC by February 1, 2015, on the results of its work and include recommendations for any additional steps, including those that may require legislative action.

(b) (5) - DPP

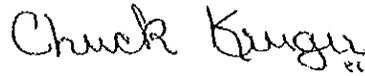

We understand that your offices have very limited staff resources to support this effort and, consequently, there may not be time or resources to involve or seek feedback from a broad stakeholder group, even if the working group feels that would be appropriate. If it seems that the working group's recommendations should be vetted with stakeholders more than you have opportunity to do before February 1st, the GOC can do so through its public consideration of those recommendations.

Please confirm with OPEGA Director Beth Ashcroft that your offices intend to honor this request. Director Ashcroft can also answer any questions you may have.

Sincerely,

Senator Christopher Johnson
Senate Chair

Representative Chuck Kruger
House Chair

2. Examination of public records. To have the right of reasonable access to and examination of all state and local government records in Maine;

3. Rules. To adopt such rules as are necessary to effectuate the purposes of this chapter. No restrictions or limitations may be imposed on the use of records that are defined by law as state and local government records or as records open to public inspection, unless necessary to protect and preserve them from deterioration, mutilation, loss or destruction. Restrictions or limitations imposed by law on the examination and use of records transferred to the archives under subsection 7, paragraph C and subsection 8 remain in effect until the records have been in existence for 50 years, unless removed or relaxed by the State Archivist with the concurrence in writing of the head of the agency from which the records were transferred or the successor in function, if any. The State Archivist shall adopt rules governing the transfer of records from the custody of one agency to that of another subject to any applicable provision of law;

7. Records management program. To establish and administer in the executive branch of State Government an active, continuing program for the economical and efficient management of state and local government records, and for the proper disposition of local government records. Upon request, the State Archivist shall assist and advise in the establishment of records management programs in the legislative and judicial branches of State Government and shall, as required by them, provide program services similar to those available to the executive branch. The State Archivist shall, with due regard for the functions of the agencies concerned:

- A. Provide standards, procedures and techniques for effective management of state and local government records in the conduct of business;
- B. Recommend improvements in records management practices, including the use of space, equipment and supplies employed in creating, maintaining, storing and servicing state and local government records;

10. Transfer of state and official records. To receive all state records transferred to the Maine State Archives under subsection 8 and to negotiate for the transfer of official records from the custody of any public official not governed by subsection 7. Whenever such a transfer is made, the State Archivist shall transmit to the office from which the records are transferred a memorandum in which such records are described in terms sufficient to identify them, which must be preserved in the transferring office. 10-C. Legislative records. To receive legislative records. The Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House of Representatives shall obtain the noncurrent records of the Legislature and of each legislative committee at the close of each Legislature and transfer them to the Maine State Archives for preservation, subject to the orders of the Senate or the House of Representatives, respectively, and subject to schedules established in consultation with the Executive Director of the Legislative Council;

11. Archives available for public use. To make archival material under the archivist's supervision available for public use at reasonable times. The archivist shall carefully protect and preserve the materials from deterioration, mutilation, loss or destruction. State records maintained by the archivist that contain information related to the identity of an archives patron relative to the patron's use of materials at the archives are confidential. Those state records and the information contained in them may only be released with the express written consent of the patron involved or as a result of a court order;

12. Copies. To furnish copies of archival material upon the request of any person, on payment in advance of such fees as may be required. Copies of state records transferred pursuant to law from the office of their origin to the custody of the State Archivist, when certified by the State Archivist, under the seal of that office, have the same legal force and effect as if certified by their original custodian. A facsimile of the signature of the State Archivist imprinted by or at the direction of the State Archivist upon any certificate issued by the State Archivist has the same validity as the written signature of the State Archivist;

13. Photoreproduction and restoration. To provide centralized photoreproduction and records preservation services for government agencies to the extent the State Archivist determines advisable in the administration of the state program and facilities. Such services must be furnished to such agencies at cost.

Fees collected under this subsection must be deposited in the General Fund; and

14. Records explanation available. To prepare a detailed explanation of what constitutes a "record" pursuant to section 92-A, subsection 5 and "records belonging to the State or to a local government or any agency of the State" pursuant to section 95-A, subsection 1. The State Archivist shall include in the explanation practical examples of such records in plain language. Upon request, the State Archivist shall provide the explanation to interested parties at no cost to the requestor and shall post the explanation on a publicly accessible website.

June 2, 2006; 2009, c. 509, §§ 2 to 4.

§ 95-A. Protection and recovery of public records

1. Ownership and possession; notice and demand of return. A record created by or belonging to the State, to a local or county government in the State or to any agency of the State remains the property of the State until ownership and possession are formally relinquished in accordance with statute and rules. Whenever the State Archivist has reasonable grounds to believe that records belonging to the State or to a local government or any agency of the State or to which the State or its agencies have a lawful right of possession are in the possession of a person or entity not authorized by the State Archivist, other lawful custodian or by law to possess those records, the State Archivist may issue a written notice and demand to that person or entity for the immediate return of the records. The notice and demand must be sent by certified or registered mail, return receipt requested. The notice and demand must identify the records claimed to belong to the State or local government with reasonable specificity. Upon receipt of the notice and demand, the person or entity in the possession of records claimed to belong to the State or local government may not destroy, alter, transfer, convey or otherwise alienate those records unless authorized in writing by the State Archivist or by an order issued by a court of competent jurisdiction. The notice and demand must specifically state that any transfer, conveyance or other alienation of the records after receipt of the notice and demand constitutes a Class E crime in violation of section 97.

2. Petition; hearing. Following the issuance of a notice and demand in accordance with subsection 1, the State Archivist, with the assistance of the Attorney General, may petition the Superior Court of Kennebec County or the Superior Court in the county in which records are located for the return of state records that are in the possession of a person or entity not authorized by the State Archivist, other lawful custodian or by law to possess those records. After hearing, the court shall order the records to be delivered to the State Archivist, or other custodian designated by the State Archivist, upon a finding that the materials in question are records and that the records are in the possession of a person or entity not authorized by the State Archivist, other lawful custodian or provision of law to possess the records. The court may issue all orders necessary to protect the records from destruction, alteration, transfer, conveyance or alienation by the person or entity in possession of the materials and may also order the person or entity in possession of the materials to surrender the records into the custody of the State Archivist pending the court's decision on the petition.

3. Presumption. In any proceeding pursuant to subsection 2, there is a rebuttable presumption that records that were once in the custody of the State or a local government were not lawfully alienated from that custody.

4. Deleted. Laws 1997, c. 636, § 7.

5. Sale or transfer of record prohibited. A person may not sell or transfer a record unless specifically authorized by law. A person who violates this subsection commits a Class D crime. 1989, c. 283; 1995, c. 148, § 9; 1997, c. 636, § 7; 2003, c. 365, § 1; 2009, c. 509, § 5.

§ 95-B. Local government records

The following provisions apply to local government records.

1. Omissions or errors corrected. When omissions or errors exist in local government records, those records must be corrected under oath by the person who was responsible for those local government records, whether or not that person remains in office.

A.¹ If an original town meeting warrant is lost or destroyed, the return may be made or amended on a copy of it.

2. Safe or vault for preservation. Each local government shall provide a fireproof safe or vault for the preservation of all records that must be retained permanently but are not required for business purposes. The official having responsibility for those records shall deposit them in the safe or vault where those records must be kept except when required for use. Beginning in 2002, each local government shall respond to a survey distributed biennially by the State Archivist requesting:

A. A description of the fireproof safe or vault required by this section;

B. A statement of the adequacy of the safe or vault for the preservation of records that must be retained permanently; and

C. A plan, if any, for the establishment or enhancement of a safe or vault to comply with the requirements of this section.

The State Archivist shall report the results of the survey, with recommendations, to the joint standing committees of the Legislature having jurisdiction over education and cultural affairs and over state and local government matters.

2-A. Retention of archival records currently in digital form. Beginning in 2002, each local government shall respond to a survey distributed biennially by the State Archivist requesting:

A. A description of the provisions currently in place for the preservation of records that must be retained permanently and are currently maintained in digital form;

B. A statement of the adequacy of those provisions for the preservation of records that must be retained permanently; and

C. A plan, if any, for the establishment or enhancement of those provisions to ensure the permanent retention of and access to these records.

The State Archivist shall report the results of the survey, with recommendations, to the joint standing committees of the Legislature having jurisdiction over education and cultural affairs and over state and local government matters.

3. Attestation. The records of a local government official may be attested by volume. Each document is sufficiently attested when the volume in which it is recorded bears the attestation with the written signature of the official.

4. Delivery to successor in office. Local government officials shall deliver the records of their office to their successors in office upon the expiration of the officials' terms.

5. Records available for public use. Each local government official shall make records available for public use under that official's supervision at reasonable times unless the use of the records is otherwise restricted by law.

6. Protection of records. Local government officials shall carefully protect and preserve the records of their office from deterioration, mutilation, loss or destruction.

7. Disposition of records. Records may not be destroyed or otherwise disposed of by any local government official, except as provided by the Archives Advisory Board. Records that have been determined by the board to possess sufficient archival value must be preserved by the municipality or deposited with the State Archivist.

8. Regulations of Archives Advisory Board. Each local government official shall comply with the standards, procedures and regulations issued by the Archives Advisory Board.

1995, c. 148, § 10; 1997, c. 636, § 8; 2001, c. 704, §§ 1, 2.

§ 96. Archives Advisory Board

The Archives Advisory Board, established by section 12004-I, subsection 8, shall serve to advise the State Archivist in administration of this chapter and to perform such other duties as may be prescribed by law. The board shall consist of 9 persons especially interested in the history of the State appointed by the Governor as advisors for overlapping terms of 6 years. The 3 new advisors shall be first appointed one for one year, one for 3 years and one for 5 years. Their successors shall be appointed for terms of 6 years. Each advisor shall serve for the term of appointment and thereafter until a successor is appointed and qualified. In case of the termination of an advisor's service during that advisor's term, the Governor shall appoint a successor for the unexpired term. Advisors shall be compensated as provided in chapter 379.¹

§ 97. Violation

Violation of any provision of this chapter or any rules and regulations issued under section 95, subsection 3, except those violations for which specific penalties are provided, is a Class E crime.
1973, c. 625, § 16, eff. July 5, 1973; 1977, c. 696, § 33, eff. March 31, 1978.

§ 98. Maine Historical Records Advisory Board

The Maine Historical Records Advisory Board, established by section 12004-I, subsection 18-D and referred to in this section as the "board," is within the office of the State Archivist and serves to encourage the preservation of and access to historical records within the State.
