COMMITTEE REPORT

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED
H-187

SUMMARY

The bill establishes a presumption that a public way is not abandoned by a town or county if the town or county has accepted the way and has appropriated money for and maintained the way for at least 3 years. It also requires mediation before the dispute can be resolved in court.

Committee Amendment "A" (H-187) changes the bill by deleting the presumption of nonabandonment and the requirement that parties to a dispute over town ways and public easements go through mediation before litigation. It also provides that, if the municipal officers determine that a way is a town way or public easement, that determination is binding on all persons, including all the parties to the dispute until a court makes the final determination, or until a court orders otherwise, such as issuing a temporary restraining order, while the litigation is pending. Finally, it provides that, if the municipal officers determine that the way is a town way or a public easement, the municipality or abutters on the way, with the written permission of the municipal officers, may remove any obstructions on the way. Municipalities often do not have the resources to remove obstructions. The abutters who want to use the way may remove the obstructions themselves.
