SUMMARY

This bill authorized the Department of Human Services to have the facility conducting Social Security disability determinations to conduct medical examinations for workers' compensation with the cost paid by the employer. It declared the filing of a claim for payment to be a release to the employer of all medical records, pre-injury or post-injury, pertaining to the condition that gives rise to the claim. It required the employee's treating physician to submit to the employer medical reports within 48 hours of the first visit after the workplace injury and monthly thereafter. It changed the availability of work to the ordinary competitive labor market in the state in determining the degree of an employee's incapacity. It established an employer or commissioner option for an independent medical examination binding on all parties and not subject to further commission action. It deleted the deadline of 10 years after the date of last payment for petitions. It altered the provisions for reduction or suspension of benefits and allowed discontinuances without an employee's signature. It required the commission to notify employees receiving compensation of their return to employment obligations and the penalties for violation of that section. It allowed an employer receiving a return to work report to automatically reduce or discontinue benefits.
