SUMMARY

Current law excludes educational policies as matters that can be negotiated under the municipal public employees labor relations laws. This bill repealed the educational policy exclusion so that these issues can be negotiated under the municipal public employees labor relations laws.

Committee Amendment "A" (S-537) replaced the original bill and retained the educational policy exclusion. The current law's list of subjects that may not be considered educational policy (wages, hours, working conditions, and grievance arbitration) was expanded to include such things as rest and meal breaks, vacations, and internal transfers.

SUMMARY

This bill required both the public employer and the bargaining agent to comply with all contract provisions resulting from a collective bargaining agreement for the duration of the agreement unless the Maine Labor Relations Board first determined that the negotiation of such provisions was materially affected by a violation of the bargaining laws. The bill also attempted to prevent any court from declaring a provision of the collective bargaining agreement invalid unless the MLRB first determined that the provision was a result of a prohibited act.

SUMMARY

This bill amended the law to: define public teacher and public employer bargaining as public proceedings; ensure that records produced in the bargaining process are open to the public; and eliminate the possibility of these proceedings being conducted in executive sessions. The bill further amended the law to require both public employers of teachers and teacher bargaining agents to open to the public all phases of the bargaining process in which both parties are present, including negotiations, mediations, fact-findings and interest arbitration. The bill specified that the public did not have a right to actively participated in any of the proceedings.
