The bill also requires parents to provide information to the department when their child has been ordered into the custody of the Department of Human Services in a child protection proceeding, Title 22, chapter 1051, in a divorce proceeding, Title 19, chapter 13, or a juvenile proceeding, Title 15, chapter 507, so that the department can determine whether the child is eligible for federal, state or other 3rd-party benefits and also requires the parent to provide any necessary authorization for the department to apply for any benefits for which the child may be eligible.
