SIMPSON MILLS P	OTP-AM	H-340

LD 389 gives the District Court the authority to enter an order in a child protection case under the Child and Family Services and Child Protection Act that establishes parental rights and responsibilities in the same manner as permitted in the Maine Revised Statutes, Title 19-A. The bill also ensures that the Department of Health and Human Services will participate as a full party in any subsequent proceeding to modify or terminate that order.

Joint Standing Committee on Judiciary

Committee Amendment "A" (H-340)

This amendment clarifies that a parental rights and responsibilities order may be entered by the court in a child protective case upon the request of a parent. This amendment replaces the paragraph in the bill that provides party status to the Department of Health and Human Services with regard to a parental rights and responsibilities order issued in the context of a child protective proceeding. Instead, this amendment makes clear that the department is not a party to any proceeding to modify or terminate the parental rights and responsibilities order unless the court orders otherwise. The department still has the ability to request judicial review under the existing child protective laws. This amendment gives the court discretion to determine in child protective cases in which the court enters a parental rights and responsibilities order whether further reviews of the child protection order are necessary and whether further permanency planning hearings should be held. This amendment gives the court discretion to determine in the same situations whether the appointments of the guardian ad litem and attorneys for the parents should be terminated.

The department still has the ability to request judicial review under the existing child protective laws. The court has discretion to determine whether further reviews of the child protection order are necessary and whether further permanency planning hearings should be held.
