Re: Transportation Costs to State Hospital

We have your memo of September 16, 1953, and attached memo from Dr. Harold A. Pooler, Superintendent of the Bangor State Hospital, in which he cites a case where a town charged a patient $180 for the cost of committing the patient and transporting him from the town of his residence to the Bangor State Hospital.

The question is asked if the municipalities should charge for the transportation of patients to and from the hospital.

We quote from Section 139 of Chapter 23, R. S. 1944:

“A town chargeable for expenses of examination and commitment and paying for the examination of the insane and his commitment to the hospital may recover the amount paid, from the insane.”

It does not seem unreasonable to us that the cost of transportation should be a proper charge recoverable from the patient.

Re: Re-employment Rights – Municipalities

In answer to your memo of September 21, 1953, in which you ask if a former Chief of Police of the Town of Lincoln would have re-employment rights under Chapter 59, Section 23, of the Revised Statutes, we must advise that this office may not give an opinion relative to such a matter. It is, of course, our duty to interpret the statute in question with respect to State employees, but we may not give such opinions when employees of municipalities are concerned.

The presence of the statute would indicate a possibility of re-employment rights in such an instance, and we would suggest that you advise Mr. Brinson to contact one of the attorneys who have accepted assignments by the VA to render assistance to veterans in their particular localities.
