The Committee have rejected the votes of the plantation of Hancock in the County of Aroostick, because the return does not comply with the law regulating elections in unincorporated places, The Statute of 1840 provides that the assessors of such places shall sort, count and declare the votes in open plantation meeting, and in presence of the plantation Clerk, who shall form a list of the persons voted for, with the number of votes for each person against his name, and shall make a true record thereof in presence of the person in open plantation meeting. And four copies of the lists of votes attested by the assessors and the clerk, and sealed in open plantation meeting, are required to be made and returned by the clerk to the proper authorities.

LLMC DIGITAL

The return from the plantation of Hancock does not contain any certificate that the votes were counted and declared in open plantation meeting, nor is the return signed or attested by either the clerk or assessors, so that upon the paper returned to the Secretary's office there is no verification or attestation whatever. Upon a separate envelope in which the paper is enclosed is this endorsement "Return of votes for Senator in Aroostick County, given in Hancock Plantation September 1. 1854." This is signed by the assessors, and attested by the clerk. This certainly cannot be considered a proper authentication of a legal paper. The attestation should be on and a part of the return. It is not sufficient that the signatures are on a seperate paper, and that not annexed, and forming no part of the return. The Committee think that this omission is too great a departure from the language and spirit of the law to be overlooked. The Com. are happy that the rejection of these votes does not affect the result of the election in that district, as it gives them an opportunity, without any impeachment of their motives, to express their disapprobation of the laxity with which this and other plantations returns are made, and from which indeed some towns are not exempt. The law should be observed or repealed; while it remains on the Statute Book it ought not to be disregarded.

There is another particular in which not only this, but all other plantations have entirely disregarded the law and that is in the provision which requires the names of the voters to be returned with the list of votes. This has not been done in any case but as the omission has never heretofore noticed, or been raised, it has ripened into a precedent of so long standing that we did not think it expedient now rigorously to enforce the law and defeat the votes of innocent parties for the neglect and fault of their officers. In regard to a few of the smaller plantations another defect is found in their not making return of their organization, and limits to the Secretary of State as required by the Statute.

Some action had better be taken by the Legislature on these subjects either to repeal the requirements or to enforce them. Such laxity in the observance of these provisions of the law which may not be considered, in themselves, of much importance may lead to violations in matters of more serious import. It has a tendency to lower the tone of public morals, and diminish that respect for the ordinances of the State, which are necessary for the preservation of order and the soundness of Republican Institutions.

William Willis P. Order"

The hour for holding the Convention having arrived, the Senate proceeded to the Hall of Representatives where a Convention was formed—

In Convention.

Mr Penno of Augusta was charged with a message to the Hon. Anson P Morrill, Governor elect informing him that the two branches of the Legislature were assembled in Convention, in the Hall of Representatives, for the purpose of administering to him the oaths required by the Constitution to qualify him to enter upon the discharge of his official trusts.

Hon Penno subsequently informed the Convention that he had delivered the message with which he was entrusted, and that the Governor elect was pleased to say that he would attend the Convention forthwith for the purposes indicated.

Thereupon the Governor elect, attended by the Council of the last year and the Heads of the Departments, preceded by the Sheriff of the County of Kennebec came in, and in the presence of the two Houses, and before the President of the Senate took, and subscribed the oaths required by the constitution to qualify him to discharge his official duties,

The Secretary of State then made the following Proclamation.

The votes of the people for Governor which have been duly returned to the office of Secretary of State, having been examined and counted by the Legislature, it appearing therefrom that no person has received a majority of all the votes given, and the House of Representatives having elected the Hon Isaac Reed and the Hon Anson P Morrill as the constitutional candidates for that office, from which the Senate have elected the Hon Anson P Morrill, who, having in the presence of the two branches of the Legislature taken and subscribed the oaths prescribed by the Constitution to qualify him to discharge his official duties,

I now declare and make known to all persons in the State, who are in the exercise of any public trust, as well as to all good citizens thereof, that Anson P Morrill is Governor, and Commander in Chief of the State of Maine, and that due obedience should be rendered to all his lawful acts.

God save the State of Maine"

The Governor and his attendants then, and the convention dissolved.

In Senate,

On motion of Mr Dunnell,

Ordered. That when the Senate next adjourns it adjourn to meet on Monday at eleven o'clock. A. M.

On motion of Mr Riggles,

Ordered. That a message be be sent to the Governor informing him that the Senate is in Session, ready to receive any communication he may be pleased to make.

The message was conveyed by the Secretary, who subsequently informed the Senate that the Governor was pleased to say, that he would communicate a written message through the Secretary of State,

The Secretary of State came in and laid upon the table the following message from the Governor.

Governor's Message.

Gentlemen of the Senate and of the House of Representatives:

In entering upon the important duties assigned us by the people of this Commonwealth may we humbly ask wisdom of Him, who is the source of all light and knowledge, that we may be enabled to discharge those duties in a way best to promote the happiness and prosperity of our constituents, and that when we shall have closed the labors of the session, we may in returning to our homes, carry with us an abiding assurance that we have been faithful to the performance of all delegated trusts, and labored assiduously for the public good.

Representing, as we do, a people habitually and necessarily industrious and economical, they have a right to expect a close application to the business that may come before us, and that no unnecessary delay will prolong the present session.

There is a deep conviction in the public mind that we have too much legislation, and that much money and time are thrown away enacting laws of doubtful utility, which are amended or repealed by the next succeeding Legislature, thereby incumbering our statute books with a mass of unnecessary, if not useless legislation, and making it very difficult for any but an experienced lawyer to understand what the law is, in cases where it should be so plain and simple that the humblest citizen need not err in relation to its provisions. All will acknowledge the correctness of this sentiment; it is with legislators to correct the evil. Another cause of protracted sessions and expense is undoubtedly found in the too ardent attachment which members have cherished for political parties; often showing a greater willingness to extend to an unreasonable length the proper time for organization and legislation, than to yield the slightest advantage to a political opponent. Such in an extraordinary degree is the history of the Legislature of last year, and in a most decided manner have the people pronounced judgment against such a waste of time and abuse of trust.

The present is a time auspicious for improvement and reform. The people, disregarding old political organizations, have seen fit to elect, of the members of the present Legislature, a greater number who think alike on the great questions which must deeply interest our State and nation, than has usually constituted a legislative majority, and it is reasonable to anticipate such harmonious action, and devotedness to the legitimate business for which we are assembled, as will insure a prudent and economical session, and an early recess.

In giving you information of the condition of the State, as enjoined by the constitution, I regret to be unable to present some of her great interests in so prosperous a light as it would be desirable to do.

The early spring of the past season opened with unusual promise to the husbandman; but a premature and almost unprecedented drouth blasted the prospect of an abundant harvest, and caused the products of the farm generally to be light. The same cause has operated injuriously upon the lumbering interests of the State, preventing an immense amount of lumber from going to market, where a ready sale and high prices awaited it. The shipping interest, in which our people are so largely engaged, has received a severe check by the sudden fall and depression of tonnage and freights. These casualties have operated severely upon persons engaged in those important pursuits, and necessarily involved a scarcity of money which has been felt in all branches of industry throughout the State; still I am happy to believe that the resources of the business community are such that these difficulties, which have been unexpectedly encountered, will cause only a temporary embarrassment, and will wholly disappear with the opening of the present season. Notwithstanding these serious misfortunes to which I have alluded, our State is enjoying a goodly mea-

LLMC DIGITAL

-sure of prosperity.

The facilities afforded by our railways are being felt, giving life and energy to business, opening new avenues of trade, bringing interior portions of the State into proximity with the coast, giving value to property and location which had been valueless for want of a proper channel through which to reach a market. Maine has about four hundred miles of Railway in successful operation, with a constantly increasing business, which must at an early day, make them good paying roads. Every interest of the State is favorably affected by these great improvements, and we cannot easily over-estimate the benefit and substantial wealth they are destined to afford the community.

For want of opportunity to examine the reports from the Treasury and other departments, I must refer you to those reports, which will be laid before you, for the information you will desire.

As the resources of our State are being developed, calling forth and employing mechanical skill in the various departments of trade, it is highly important that a deeper interest should be felt for the advancement of agriculture. Maine, with a soil sufficiently rich and fertile, under a proper husbandry to produce the necessary or staple articles of consumption, for her population, in any abundance, should not pay such large sums of money to other States for corn, flour, pork, and other products, as she is paying from year to year. There should be no necessity for this outlay. We should produce our own supplies of these important articles of food, besides many others for which we go abroad. The lumberman, whose extensive operations are rapidly hurrying our vast forest timber into market, draw there supplies very largely from other States. The men who fill our shipyards to an extent that makes Maine the first State in the Union in point of ship building, are not supplied with the products of your own soil; their tables are not furnished by our farmers. So with all branches of manufactures, and extensive Railway improvements carried on in this State; the operators and laborers, to a very great extent, are fed on foreign products.

This very large amount of money thus sent out of the State, should be distributed among our farming community— until this is done the agricultural interests of the State will flourish but poorly. Unless that interest become prosperous, although our State be rich in recources, and manufactures and commerce increase, the masses of the people will be poor and dependent.

The cities and towns may grow in wealth, but the rural districts will lack those elements of affluence and independence, which should ever distinguish the yeomanry of a Republic. All branches of industry and classes of citizens are directly interested in the prosperity of agricultural pursuits, and whatever can properly be done, permanently to benefit that interest, I shall be happy to unite with you in doing.

For the purpose of awakening a deeper interest in farming, of connecting science with practical economy, introducing the most approved breeds of cattle and other domestic animals, procuring the choicest kinds of grains, and valuable and rare seeds, testing their qualities and adaptation to our soil and climate, and bringing them to the notice and within the reach of every farmer in the State;— for these and other valuable purposes, it is believed that an Experimental Farm, under the care and patronage of the State, would be of essential service. The outlay would be but trifling compared with the amount of good, that might reasonably be anticipated by the movement, and the problewould cheerfully sustain such an establishment, if economically and properly conducted.

The subject of agricultual chemistry is attracting much attention, and there appears to be a very strong desire with our most intelligent agriculturists, to have the elements of agriculture taught in our common schools, and as a science, constitute a permanent feature in the Educational system of the State. This subject has been urged upon the Legislature by the Board of Agriculture for the last two years, but has not received that attention which I think its importance demands. Believing it unnecessary for me to elaborate a subject, the utility of which must be so apparent to all who give it reflection, I earnestly invite you to give it that consideration, which that great interest of our State demands.

The main pillars of our free institutions rest upon the intelligence of the people. The only true ground of hope that this Republic will survive the lapse of ages, and be perpetuated from generation to generation, following not in the downward course of those republics which have disappeared from the governments of the earth, is that knowledge in this country is more universally diffused among the people, and that they know their political rights, and knowing, will insist on having those rights as intelligent freemen. Of what avail will it be, ere another century shall have elapsed, that we boast of a constitution surpassing in its provisions and principals, any other law written by man, if the people are not imbued with the spirit of liberty, and enjoy such means of education as shall qualify them to assert their political rights at the polls and in the halls of legislation.

No subject can be urged upon your attention, more important to the vital interests of your constituents and country than that of education. Educate the people and they become really, what without education they are but nominally, sove-reign. I am aware that there is a sentiment pervading the community to some extent, that the State has already been very liberal in donations to the different institutions of learning, and that it is time to narrow or suspend further appropriations. True, the State has been measurably liberal in aiding our colleges and seminaries, and it is equally true that for no purposes could the money thus expended, have been appropriated with results more honorable and beneficial to the State.

LLMC DIGITAL

Our common schools have also, from time to time, received the munificence of the State, and an enlightened policy dictates that they be assiduously fostered, as the indispensable nurseries of education. Their improvement cannot be too earnestly urged upon your attention.

The purchase of land of Massachusetts made by this State, has added almost a million of acres to our domain, for which a large debt has been created, for the payment of which, in due time, provision must be made. However that purchase may be considered, as a commercial transaction, involving the question of immediate loss or gain, it was certainly very desirable to divest Massachusetts of the title to those lands, even if it be found advisable to sell them again, at fair prices can be had, and the wants of the Trea-sury may demand.

By extinguishing her title, we dissolved connec-tion with a co-tenant who had interests not felt to be in common with ours, and therefore would bear none of the burdens of building roads and bridges in the territory owned in common, and by the act of Seperation, Maine could tax no land owned by Massachusetts, for any purposes whatever. It was an object then of considerable importance to have the fee pass from that State, that those lands might ultimately be held liable to taxation, for the usual purposes for which other lands are assessed in this State.

LLMC DIGITAL

I have no doubt it is for the interest of the State to continue to sell her timber lands, as fair prices can be obtained for them, especially those lying on the upper waters the St. Johns, Allegash, and Penobscot rivers. These lands are not so situated as to make it desirable that they be kept for settling purposes. They are exposed to trespass, and must be protected at considerable expense, and the Treasury will need the proceeds to pay the indebtness created by the purchase of Massachusetts. I would not however recommend the sale of any lands belonging to the State, for the present, or until money shall have become very much easier with the community generally. The lands of the State in the valley of the Aroostook, and on the St John, included mostly in the six eastern ranges of townships, are generally good settling lands—many of them superior—but still much timber may be found on nearly all these townships; and if the State desires to keep the greater portion of this territory in order to promote the settlement of the country, it would be well, and I think it important, for the interests of the State, to authorize permits to be granted to cut timber annually, in a prudent manner, on those tracts, until they are occupied by actual settlers. If permits be not granted, the timber will be cut by trespass; and under a judicious system of permittings, much may be realized to the Treasury, and the lands not be so far stripped but that an abundance of suitable timber will remain for all purposes of building by settlers.

The law for the suppression of drinking houses and tippling shops has been very fully discussed by the people of this State, and become a question of prominence and deep interest in our elections.—The result proves conclusively that the people are by a very large majority in favor of sustaining that law—a happy verdict for the cause of humanity throughout the land. Had Maine declared against the law, her decision would have been felt most disastrously by other communities, where strong efforts are being made to obtain similar legislation. That any law which human wisdom can devise, will at once rid the public of an evil so vast and deep-rooted as intemperance, should not be expected, but that the traffic which produces it can be circumscribed and controlled by penal enactments, as surely and as legitimately as other crimes, there can be no reasonable doubt. And it is equally clear that the people are determined to pursue the effort faithfully and give the law a fair trial - They see and feel the terrible ravages the traffic in intoxicating drinks has made on society and its best interests. They feel deeply the loss of many valued citizens, who are constantly being hurried to the inebriates grave. They fully realize that the sale and use of alcholic liquors as a beverage, are in direct conflict with the health, morals, industry, peace and happiness of society, and that this fact is so apparent, that those individuals who insist on selling in violation of law should be made to feel its consequences. It is too late to plead that making men inebriates, or giving them the facilities to become such is no crime; none but the more depraved or reckless will support a doctrine so pernicious and absurd; and it is believed that few are now engaged in this trade, except those persons who are alike indifferent to public sentiment, the demands of humanity, and their own best interests. Persuasive efforts having been exhausted on this class of men, the law should be enforced in protection of society, and in mercy to the offender. This important statue has not had a fair trial. Extensive officers have been culpably negligent in seeing it enforced. Too often has the officer, whose duty it was to honor and execute it as the law of the Commonwealth, been found more willing to exculpate the offender than to bring him to justice, Such official dereliction of duty emboldened violators of the law to repeated offences, which they would not have committed, withe the full assurance that the law was to be faithfully administered. This evor must be corected, the law must be faithfully enforced, The people demand that groghshops be closed, wether found in spacious saloons and popular hotels, where the temtation is presented in the most alluring form, or in the filthy cellar, or den, where poor, degraded humanity is made loathsome to the last degree, No man sell ardent spirits in violation of this law through the promptings of patriotism or humanity; he has no higher motive than a reckless or sordid love of gain; he should be held strictly accountable for the mischief his traffic produces, Let this be done, and none will continue in the business except such as are madly bent on suicide. I would suggest the importance of so amending the law so as to impose imprisonment for the first offence, The penalty for the first conviction is trifling, and the schemes devised to avoid detection are so numerous that many sellers, undoubtedly, realize large amounts from the business before a conviction is had. Let the prison be opened for their reception and reformation, as it is for offenders of less magnitude, even the unhappy victims of their traffic, and be assured its wholesome, chastening influences will be felt more restrainingly, than merely taking by fine from the pockets of the delinquents, a trifling part of the money the business had given them. The willingness of themselves in other states to supply those in the same business and the facilities afforded by steamboats and other common carriers to bring liquors into this state for unlawful purposes, call for such improvement in the law as shall meet this prolific source of evil, and cut off a great artery which is pouring the poisonous liquid into this state. Other amendments may be desirable to give efficiency to the law and meet the modes of evasion which the ingenuity and cupidity of determined violators have invented.

I would direct your attention to the subject of extending the elective franchise to certain offices that are now filled by executive appointment or Legislative election. If a reform of this kind be desirable it will be necessary to submit the question to the people for an amendment of the Constitution. From various portions of the State much dissatisfaction is expressed with our present Judiciary System. Under its operations it is contended that justice is not, and cannot be promptly and economically administered. If these serious charges be well founded, a change is undoubtedly demanded.

The subject is one of very great importance, and the present system having been so recently established, wisdom dictates that no new system be substituted without mature deliberation. A people professing a democratic form of government cannot too highly regard the sacredness and importance of the right of suffrage. There can be no doubt that in the later history of the country this right has been often alieestimated and debased to mercenary and immoral purposes. The abuse of this inestimable privilege of freemen by many of our population but recently emigrated from the Old World, has given occasion for a strong movement, calling for the amendment or radical change of our naturalization laws. While the genius of our institutions and the policy of our fathers lead us to give the hand of welcome to persons from other countries, who come to secure freedom and homes in our midst, we are bound to be vigilant against all evils that may assail our political system through the influence of such emigration. It will hardly be questioned that men but recently arrived on our shores, and wholly unacquainted with the principles and operation of our government, degraded more or less by the vices of monarchial institutions are unprepared to wield the potent agency of the ballot. The founders of our government wisely instituted laws by which a residence of citizenship, and to certain important offices no citizen of foreign birth can be eligible. That the letter and spirit of the law confering citizenship has been often and grossly violated, is a matter of the fullest publicity. Whether new Legislative provisions are necessary to preserve the sacredness of the elective franchise, and guard the purity of our institutions may be worthy of your investigation.

As one of the sovereign States constituting this great confederacy, we have a deep interest in every important act of the Federal government. We can but look to its policy, foreign and domestic, with the deepest solicitude. Millions are being added to our population almost annually, and State after State, in rapid succession, is coming into the Union.

Annexation having extended our borders until States are springing into existence on the shores of the Pacific; the islands of that Ocean are asking that annexation may bring them under the protection of our government and to the enjoyment of our institutions. Progress is stamped on every feature of our country; and where the extended boundaries of the Republic shall be finally fixed, Infinite Wisdom can alone determine. With this increase of population, enlargement of territory and addition of States, must come a corresponding responsibility on those who administer the government, thereby increasing the responsibility of the millions whose free suffrages must determine on whom shall rest the powers and weight of Official power. And while we are called upon as men true to our country and the Union, to sustain the honest efforts of those entrusted with that power, to promote the best interests of the entire confederacy, we are under the strongest obligations to oppose any and all action of public men which has the remotest tendency to undermine the free institutions of this Republic. By giving such construction to the Constitution as shall permit the Institution of Slavery, with its withering and increasing evils, to spread over our territories, and to extend such controlling influence over this government as shall finally install it over freedom throughout the Union. However desirous a large portion of the people of the North have been to forbear to discuss or agitate the question of Slavery, lest such agitation might imperil the permanency of the Union which they have ever shown a most devoted attachment, it is evident that the time has arrived when that question must be met and discussed in our national and State councils and in primary meetings of the people with the same freedom with which other grave questions are wont to be considered. This question is one of too much importance to the whole country, to the North as well as the South, to supress discussion only when it is moved by the friends of slavery in order to extend its jurisdiction, or obtain for the institution some new advantage over freedom. That the North has been too willingly hushed into silence on this great question by the menaces of the South, cannot be denied, and the unanimity into which the two great political parties acquiesced in the extraordinary compromise of 1850 shows anything but a disposition on the part of the free States to continue the agitation of which the South so loudly complained. Notwithstanding that most exceptionable and as is believed unconstitutional law for the rendition of fugitive slaves, forced upon the North, compelling freemen to aid at their perils, in seizing and returning to captivity persons who are guilty of no crime known to the Constitution of the United States — and struggling only for the rights of "life, Liberty and the Pursuit of happiness" the free states were still disposed to resist a renewal of that agitation which as was contended threatened a dismemberment of the Union — while this feeling pervaded the North, the Bill for organizing the territories of Nebraska and Kansas was brought before Congress connected with a scheme to extend slavery over that vast region of country North of 36° 30 which had been solemnly dedicated to Freedom by the compact

42. of 1820. This aggressive movement carried through Congress aided by a few northern politicians who have been foremost in denouncing agitation and the loudest advocates of compromises, has again forced upon the country the consideration of the question of negro-slavery.

To attempt now to smother the sentiment of the North or to put down free speaking and independent action, would not only be an unavailing effort, but any attempt to turn the public minds away from the fullest contemplation of the subject and the most searching investigations into it, in its largest national aspect, its relations to the whole country, socially, morally, and politically, would be an affront to the intelligence of the people.

The universal sentiment of the nation in its early history was hostile to the existence of slavery, regarding it as incompatible with justice and dangerous to the spirit of freedom. The policy of the country was to inhibit slavery directly and absolutely in the territories by express and declared object being to prevent the extension of that institution. This common abhorence of slavery distinctly shows itself in the early legislation of the country, and the distinguished men of the nation of all parties looked forward to the time when the system itself should become extinct. This national sentiment pervading the slave, as it did the free state, has come to be reversed by the South, and in its place has sprung up an attachment and devotion to slavery which is made paramount to the provisions of the federal constitution; and a dismemberment of the Union even is treated as a matter to be endured rather than its perpetuity should present a barrier to the spread of that local institution, for which its friends claim the right under the Constitution, beyond the power of Con-to plant it in any and all the territories of the government. This new and startling doctrine is sought to be established as the judgment of the people of this country. It cannot be doubted that Congress in its recent action on the bill referred to for the organization of Nebraska and Kansas, favored such extraordinary assumption. And what renders this aggressive movement the more alarming is the evident complicity of the Chief Magistrate of the country, in open disregard and direct violation of a voluntary assurance - given to the people who had elevated him to that high position, that no movement of that character should shock the repose of the country, if in his power to avert it, during his official term."

From this alarming action of Congress and subserviency of men high in office power, we turn with unusual satisfaction to the action of the people of the several States where popular elections have recently taken place, and witness the strong condemnation by the honest and intelligent masses, of the bold attempts to change the original policy of the government, and give nationality to an institution wholly local in its character, and existing only by the power of municipal law. I would recommend no action, nor would I participate in any movement, that should have the semblance of encroachment on the constitutional rights of the South. But we are unworthy of being freemen, if we do not resist the unconstitutional advances of slavery. And as we love the Union, as we wish to perpetuate the blessings of civil liberty, as we desire the prosperity of the whole country, we are urged to meet this crisis with a manly firmness, that shall say, in the most friendly yet decided manner, we ask nothing but what is right, and shall submit to nothing wrong. The Constitution of the United States is literally an absolute law of unparalled liberty, to the full extent of federal jurisdiction. It authorizes no crime, it permits no Oppression but outside of State limits ademn by guarantees the security of freedom to all human beings under its exclusive authority. Had this principle always been maintained, our country would have escaped the threatening evils which its surrender has brought upon us. The compromise policy having been repudiated by the slave states, every consideration of honor, humanity and patriotism, demands an immediate return to the Constitution

Let men who think and feel alike on this paramount political question, be no longer alienated by obsolete issues and antagonistic organizations, but unite under the same banner, and insist that the policy of the government shall be in the future, what it was in the beginning, when administered by Washington and those illustrious men who were with him in the field and in the Cabinet.

Mr Willis of Cumberland then arose and said,

Mr President.

I have a resolution to offer which I think will receive the unanimous concurrence of the Senate. The Session, Sir, is drawing to its closing hour, and we may honestly speak of it as as remarkable for the dispatch of business, and the harmony of its action. In some things we have not all concurred, there has been an occasional struggle between moderate conservatism and a progress somewhat hasty, in which there have been alienations of success. The blending of the two gives security and ~~strength~~ strength. I trust that our constituents will have no reason to say that the commonwealth has sustained injury in the result. This is undoubtedly an age of progress and while many linger in the recollections of the past, more dwell in visions of the future. It becomes.

LLMC DIGITAL

the wise and prudent so to temper these conflicting elements that the dead past shall not crush but counsel, the growing life of an advanced civilization.

Most of our members were fresh in the duties of legislation. we brought from our various industrial pursuits habits of business which have been learned with equal readiness to the service of the State. We were free from political partizanship, and acknowledged no leaders but ~~the Right~~ and consequently we have had no party machinery to restrict our movements, or narrow our courses of action

On our assembling together, most of us met for the first time; we were strangers to each other; and on our final adjournment, we shall, in all human probability, never meet again. But in this brief space friendships have been formed which will always endure. Each Senator has made his mark, and his character in a measure stands revealed. The impressions here made will never be effaced while memory shall retain its hold upon the events which move over it.

"What has been writ in this record has been writ," the record is made up, our acts are engrossed for eternity. Our intercourse has been genial, our action has been characterized by no narrow jealousy, nor bitter feeling; and I do not doubt that we shall bear each other testimony, that there has prevailed from the beginning an sincere conscientious desire and endeavor to promote the public good as well as to cultivate a friendly intercourse with each other.

In this hour of seperation, I feel quite sure that we entertain and will carry away with us none but kind feelings and most friendly wishes. For myself, I can and do freely tender to each one of my Senatorial companions and brethren and believe that they will respond to the sentiment that most sweet with which Shakespere so beau tifully expresses.

"May you live longer
Than I have time to tell your years Ever beloved and living, may your lives be
And when Red Time shall bring you to your end Goodness and you fill up one monument"

I now turn to you, Mr President, to speak of you what I am confident is the unanimous sentiment of this body — that much of our dispatch of business and harmony of action, may be attributed to the good presiding qualities of the chair; He has proved himself no less skilled in the art of legislation, than as an apt appren tice of that cunning artificer, who of old, in the workshop of the gods, forged their immortal armor.

It is therefore with great pleasure, I lay upon your table, Mr Secretary, the following resolution which I desire you to submit to the Senate.

Resolved, That the thanks of the Senate be presented to the Hon. Franklin Muzzy, for the prompt, the courteous and impartial manner in which he has presided over the deliberations of this body. And that our best wishes accompany him into whatever sphere of duty, and usefulness he may hereafter be guided".

The resolution was unanimously adopted, by Senators rising.

Mr Muzzy responded as follows.
Senators; The resolve you have just passed and the remarks of the Hon Senator from Lamoille have awaken a lively apprehension of the fact that the closing moments of the session are upon us

LLMC DIGITAL

For your expression of kindness and approbation I beg you to accept my most grateful acknowledgments.

If I have succeeded in presiding over your deliberations to your acceptance, I am sincerely thankful. I do not, however, forget that I am greatly indebted for this success to the uniform courtesy, kindness and gentlemanly bearing constantly extended to me, and observed between themselves by Senators at this board.

Senators, we are about to part never again to meet as associates in this chamber, and the consciousness of this brings over us all, I doubt not, a cloud of sadness. A few weeks since we met here most of us strangers; we seperate this morning as intimate acquaintances and friends.

For the first time in the annals of our State the seats at this board have been occupied by members of the same political party, imbued with common political principles and sympathies.

In the absence of the Eagle eye of political antagonism to warn of approaching danger, and guided only by devotion to the highest interest of the people of our State in the discharge of the important duties of the session, the Senators of this board have labored with unfaltering assiduity and patriotic fidelity. I am sure, with how much of wisdom is cheerfully committed to the verdict of the future.

Senators, our official labors are closed. May we all as we leave this chamber and return with gladness to the sacred retirement of private life, bear with us hearts of thanksgiving to Him, by whose power alone, during the arduous labors of the session, we are indebted for life, and health, and whatever of wisdom has attended our deliberations.

* Mr Garcelon offered the following,

Resolved. That the thanks of the Senate be tendered to Louis O. Cowan Esq. Secretary and to Joseph W. Knowlton Esq. Assistant Secretary for the able and acceptable manner in which they have performed the duties of their respective offices.

And the resolve was unanimously adopted.

On motion of Mr Quinby,

Ordered, That the thanks of the Senate be tendered to Edwin Freeman Messinger and to James Shaw assistant Messinger for the faithful and gentlemanly manner in which they have performed their official duties. and the same was unanimously adopted.

The Senate then took recess.
