The report was read and accepted and Hon. Hannibal E. Hamlin of Hancock was declared elected President of the Senate for the term consisting of the political years 1901 and 1902.

Mr. Hamlin was conducted to the chair by Mr. Vickery of Kennebec, and Mr. Peirce of Waldo, and thereupon addressed the Senate as follows:

"Fellow Senators: I should be lacking in ordinary feeling if I failed to appreciate your kindness in electing me President of the Senate and the full honors which the position brings. I certainly do appreciate your kindness as well as the great honor which you have conferred upon me. The honor seems to me more marked as I recall the distinguished gentlemen who have preceded me and whose record I cannot always expect to equal. My own inexperience in this position is known to you all; and were it not for the fact that I believe you are all my friends and that I can rely upon your leniency, I should hardly venture my acceptance. Trusting, however, that you will believe I shall perform my duties to the best of my ability and relying upon your kind co-operation and indulgence, I shall assume, with pleasure, the duties of the office.

We are assembled here to legislate for the whole State, and to enact laws equal and just to individuals and corporations, the rich and the poor alike. Let us also not forget at the same time, that we are the servants of the people, that we hold the interests of the State in trust, and that the people will look to us to see that our duties as trustees are faithfully performed. In the consideration of legislation which apparently will occupy a very large portion of your time at the coming session, I urge you to be guided by principles of sound economy and an earnest desire to equalize the burdens of taxation.

It is difficult to predict how long this session may last. I apprehend it is the wish of you all that we have so speedy an adjournment as may be consistent with the fulfilment of our duties. We must give to matters whatever time may be necessary but let us not waste time. Let us have full and free discussion, but prompt action. In that way our duties may be well performed within a reasonable time.

Relying upon your wishes and upon the good judgment which I know you all possess, I hope we shall have an early adjournment; and that when we do adjourn, we shall have so conducted ourselves, that we shall have kindness and affection for each other, and we shall have the common belief that by our efforts the State has been truly benefited.

Thanking you again, Senators, the Chair now awaits the pleasure of the Senate." (Applause.)

Hill is Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the State of Maine, and that due obedience should be rendered to all his lawful acts and commands as such.

GOD SAVE THE STATE OF MAINE.

The President of the Convention then announced to the Governor that they were ready to listen to any communication which he desired to make.

Thereupon the Governor addressed the Convention as follows:

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

At the dawn of a new century, bright with hope and promise of the future, we have assembled here to consider the condition and requirements of the State, whose sovereign people we represent. Devoutly grateful for the many blessings which we have received through the beneficence of Him who ever watches over us with fatherly care, we implore His guidance and aid in the discharge of the important duties devolving upon us.

The decade just passed has been one of great prosperity for the State. The development of new industries, and the growth of those already established, have given employment to large numbers of people, and greatly increased the population and wealth of those towns which have been the centers of activity. More than five hundred and twenty-eight miles of new steam railroads, and over two hundred and twenty miles of electric railroads have been constructed, giving the communities through which they pass greatly improved transportation facilities, and aiding immeasurably in the development of those portions of the State thus opened up to easy and convenient travel.

Some of our shipyards, which have for a long time been idle or nearly so, have again started into life, and to-day this industry is in the most satisfactory condition for years. With the passage of the Frye shipping bill, so ably advocated by our distinguished junior senator, Maine will assume that position in the construction of vessels of every kind, which the skill of her builders and mechanics and her favorable situation as a maritime State entitle her to hold.

Our State has become the summer home of thousands of the well-to-do people of other sections of the country, and the pleasure-resort of many more, who appreciate the health-giving qualities of our invigorating atmosphere, and delight in the rugged beauties of our seashore and mountain scenery. This is a source of great revenue to the people of the State, in many ways, and is constantly increasing.

Maine's growth, though not rapid, is substantial and permanent in its character, and the State never occupied a stronger position, in every way, than it does today. Labor is remuneratively employed, while capital is active, and, as a rule, receiving satisfactory returns. Every condition is as favorable as we can reasonably expect, and gives promise of continued development and prosperity.

The reports of the State Treasurer will show that the total receipts of the treasury during the two years ending December 31, 1900, were $3,798,923.03. The amount of cash on hand December 31, 1898, was $154,723.73, making the whole amount available for this period $3,953,646.76. The amount disbursed during this time was $3,754,767.75, leaving a balance on hand December 31, 1900, of $198,879.01. This sum, however, is barely sufficient to meet obligations immediately payable, and is no more than should be in the State Treasury, if the demands upon it are to be promptly met.

The State tax paid by the cities, towns and organized plantations for the years 1899 and 1900 amounted to $1,815,901.96. When we take from this the school fund, and the mill tax repaid to the various cities and towns, the net sum retained by the State is found to be $766,742.63. Of this, $450,168.50 was paid by the twenty cities of the State, $224,923.79 was paid by the towns and organized plantations, and $91,650.34 was paid by the wild lands. It will thus be seen that the twenty cities have paid into the treasury $450,168.50 more than they have received from the school fund. 239 towns and plantations, or 47 7-10 per cent. of the whole number, have received from the school fund more than they have paid into the State Treasury; and it is found that the average net rate of State tax of the twenty cities was $1.56 3-5 on each $1,000.00 valuation, while for the towns and organized plantations the average rate was 66 1-2 cents, or divided on the basis of population, there was an average of $4.05 1-2 paid on each poll by the cities, and of 91 3-4 cents on each poll in the towns and organized plantations.

In this connection it is interesting to note the principal sources of State revenue, outside of the State tax paid by cities and towns, and the amount received from each. An examination of the treasury accounts shows that during the past two years the tax on Savings Banks has amounted to $851,566.06, the tax on Railroads was $323,052.32, on Telegraph and Telephone Companies $32,888.48, on Express Companies $10,032.67, on Insurance Companies $131,405.62, on collateral inheritances $54,226.64, on new corporations $71,565.00; other taxes and miscellaneous items $308,284.28; a total revenue of $1,783,021.07 from these sources.

$100,000.00 has been paid on the public debt during the past two years, the amount of the State's bonded indebtedness now being $2,103,000.00, a reduction of $516,300.00 since 1890.

The State has outstanding temporary loans to the amount of $350,000.00, some part of which should be paid during the coming year. There should be a sufficient increase in the State revenues to provide for the gradual payment of the whole amount and to insure an adequate balance in the treasury to enable the State at all times to meet its obligations fully and promptly, without resorting to temporary loans.

Pledged to an economical administration of the State government, to a readjustment of the prevailing system of taxation and the enactment of measures which will lead to a more just and equitable valuation and assessment of all forms of property, the people demand and expect that we will discharge our trust in harmony with the letter and spirit of our respective party platforms. No excuses which can be offered will be deemed a sufficient reason for a failure to do our full duty in the faithful fulfillment of the pledges which have been made. Upon us will properly rest the blame if we are recreant to our trust; ours will be the credit and honor of faithful and devoted service. The people have confidence in you whom they have chosen to represent them here. They expect a fearless, conscientious discharge of every duty devolving upon you, and that you will maintain the high traditions of patriotic service and unselfish effort for the common welfare which have ever characterized the Legislatures of Maine.

The question of taxation is the most important subject demanding your attention. The urgent necessity of securing greater revenues for the State, to enable it to meet legitimate and necessary demands upon the treasury and to provide for the payment of existing temporary loans, makes some action on your part imperative.

Under our present system, the farmer, often handicapped by unfavorable conditions; the merchant, with his capital invested in his stock of goods; the mechanic and laborer, striving to pay for their homes; and the owner of every form of visible property, already bear too great a share of the public burdens. An increase in the rate of the State tax, therefore, cannot be considered; but other forms of property, now escaping taxation altogether, or paying only a part of what they should justly and equitably bear, must be required to contribute their fair proportion of the cost of supporting our government, whose manifold advantages are shared by all, and whose existence not only makes the ownership of property possible, but gives permanence and security to its values.

Realizing your earnest desire to do everything in your power to promote the common welfare, I present this important subject, well knowing that your determination to do your full duty will lead you to give it your early and earnest attention. I am confident that every interest, individual as well as corporate, will be dealt with fairly and justly, and that, as a result of your deliberations, you will formulate some legislation to more nearly equalize the burdens of taxation among our citizens.

It is not probable that you will be able to frame measures that will be wholly above criticism. No system of taxation has ever yet been devised that realized the ideal by bearing with absolute equity upon all classes of property. This fact, however, will not deter you from doing everything in your power to attain so desirable a result.

The people confidently expect that the promise of economy in public expenditures will be fulfilled; and the party which has been entrusted with the management of State affairs will be held strictly responsible for any excessive or unwise appropriations. It is for you to determine what sums are necessary for the reasonable requirements of the various State departments and institutions, and what aid shall be given to such other objects as, in your judgment, should receive legislative assistance and encouragement. Not a dollar more than is required for the efficient administration of the public service should be appropriated.

These various matters, I am persuaded, will receive your most earnest consideration. While there is no call for parsimony, I am confident that you will always exercise your judgment, fearlessly and conscientiously in the expenditure of the people's money, and that you will refuse to grant needless or unwise appropriations as unhesitatingly as you will vote them to objects worthy of promotion and support.

The report of the Superintendent of Public Schools shows a constant and gratifying advancement in our educational interests. The total amount of the State school fund and mill tax for the current year was $520,019; the amount of school money raised by the towns was $818,001; a total of $1,338,020 available for the support of the common schools, as compared with $910,523 for the same purpose in 1880, an increase of $427,497 or nearly forty-seven per cent.

The Normal Schools are doing most excellent work, and the importance of having teachers thoroughly instructed and trained in their duties is being recognized by all. About thirty per cent. of our teachers are Normal School graduates.

There are 722 school children in thirty-three unorganized townships, for whom schools are maintained as provided by the statute, at a cost, during the past year, of $2,382.13. Of this, $1,280.57 was paid from the State appropriation, $969.56 was interest on land reserved, and $132.00 the per-capita tax.

The pupils in these schools range from five to twenty-one years of age, and, in several instances, married men and women have taken advantage of the opportunities thus offered to obtain an education.

It is unnecessary for me to call your attention to the important work being done by such schools. But for their existence many of the children now enjoying their advantages would grow up in ignorance, and a much larger per cent of them would ultimately become a public charge. The furnishing of such instruction is in harmony with the established policy of the State to provide school privileges for all. As a rule, the people are anxious to have the schools established, the children are prompt and regular in their attendance and apply themselves with great industry to their tasks. The good work which is being done by the schools of this class should be extended and made more efficient if the State is to do its duty to that portion of its citizens dependent upon it for educational advantages.

The special appropriations made for the academies and seminaries lapse with the present year; and if these appropriations are to be continued, I am inclined to the opinion that they should be made permanent, under certain definite restrictions. Under existing circumstances, a school having a zealous and skillful advocate in the Legislature may be able to secure a liberal appropriation in excess of its actual requirements; while another, equally worthy, but less fortunate, must be content with a comparatively small amount. The grade of the school maintained and the number of pupils receiving instruction should always be considered, and I doubt the wisdom of assisting in maintaining an academy in a section of the State where high schools of a high grade are provided. It is an injustice to the State to allow any of these academies to use the amount appropriated in increasing their endowment, instead of providing more and better instruction to the pupils who attend them; and under no circumstances should the sum appropriated for such institutions be taken from the fund provided for the common schools.

It is exceedingly gratifying that so strong an interest is being manifested in the public schools. The children, teachers and parents are assisting in improving and enlarging school-grounds, beautifying schoolrooms, and providing books of art and standard literature.

The work accomplished along these lines has been very extensive and gratifying. It has greatly stimulated general interest in the schools, promoted harmony in management, and resulted in much better work being done by all concerned.

The teachers' institutes and summer schools have not only improved the general character of the instruction in our State, but, to an extent that was not anticipated, have stimulated teachers to attend our higher institutions of learning, and thus enabled them to acquire the scholarly attainments necessary to the highest success in their calling.

The State University is in a prosperous condition, having about 360 students, of whom more than six-sevenths are residents of this State. Its most popular courses are those in engineering, and the best equipped those in agriculture; but the scope of its work is of the very broadest character, and also includes a classical course, a similar course without Greek, a scientific course without Latin and Greek, a course in preparation for medicine, and courses in chemistry and pharmacy. The School of Law, located in Bangor, has been well received, and is gaining the approval of those well qualified to judge of its work.

Nearly two-thirds of the income of the University is derived from the General Government, the remainder being provided by the State. It having been the policy of the State to reduce students' expenses as much as possible, the receipts from this source are comparatively small. The trustees have used the funds available to secure teachers, apparatus and facilities for instruction, rather than to construct large and expensive buildings, and have been governed by the restrictions of the United States appropriations which forbid the use of any part of these funds for the erection or repair of buildings.

During the past two years the trustees have constructed a drill-hall and a gymnasium, now nearly finished, which will be paid for by private subscriptions, and it is understood that the Legislature will not be asked for any assistance in its completion. An astronomical observatory has also been built, and a large telescope set up. The equipment in electrical engineering and in the natural sciences has been largely increased, and the buildings of the agricultural department have received extensive repairs and additions.

The trustees in their report will urge the erection of a building for the department of mechanical and electrical engineering, to contain recitation-rooms, drawing-rooms, iron-working and carpenter shops, a foundry and forge shops. They state that the building now in use was erected when the University had a comparatively small number of students; that it is a cheap wooden structure inadequate for the purpose, and in bad repair; and that no appropriation for the erection of a building has been made for ten years, although since that time the number of teachers and students has increased threefold. The equipment of the University is thoroughly creditable, and it unquestionably affords an exceptional opportunity for young men and women to secure an education at a very moderate cost. You will, I am sure, give its interests careful attention, and take such action as the needs of the institution and the financial condition of the State seem to warrant.

Agriculture will always be our most important industry. It gives employment and support to more than half our population; and whatever serves to advance its interests and bring greater prosperity to our farming communities is a benefit to the whole State. The growth of our cities and manufacturing centers, and the increased volume of summer travel coming into Maine every year have created better home markets for our farm products; but the great resources of the State are not yet fully appreciated. The constant development of our magnificent water-power, much of which has never been utilized, and the more general adoption of improved methods of agriculture, must result in still greater prosperity in the years to come.

The influence of the Grange has been a potent factor in the advancement of our agricultural interests, and has added greatly to the pleasure and profit of farm life.

The Board of Agriculture is doing a work of inestimable value and importance. The large number of farmers' institutes which have been held during the past year, have everywhere been well

- attended, and great interest has been manifested in this work by the farmers of the State, who have given it their cordial support. I am persuaded that these meetings and the general work of the board have done much to stimulate and encourage the ambitious and progressive farmer by bringing to every community a knowledge of the best and most productive methods of modern agriculture.

Maine is just beginning to make a reputation for her dairy products. There are 49 creameries and 14 cheese-factories in the State, utilizing the product of 30,000 cows; and this represents only a small part of the whole dairy interest.

It is felt by many of our most successful and progressive dairymen, who appreciate the great importance of this industry and the benefits which would accrue to the State by its development, that the work of the Board of Agriculture should be still further broadened and extended by the creation of a dairy bureau, which shall have an executive officer whose duty it shall be to attend closely to educational dairy work, and to the enforcement of the law against the sale of imitation dairy products.

You will be asked for an appropriation for this purpose, and I am confident that a request made in the behalf of so important an interest will receive your generous consideration.

Intemperance is such a fruitful source of misery, pauperism and crime, and its multitude of victims is so great a burden upon the sober and industrious citizen, that it is the duty of a government to control and restrict the liquor traffic in every legitimate way. By a provision of its constitution and by statute laws, which with overwhelming majorities its citizens have repeatedly sustained at the polls, the State of Maine stands opposed to the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors. The deliberate adoption of this policy by a people naturally careful and conservative in their judgments was the inevitable result of a moral evolution which recognized the demoralizing and far-reaching evils of intemperance, and sought to eradicate them from the community; and embodied the conviction that a traffic which took men from the ranks of productive industry, robbed them of their sober faculties, destroyed their self-respect and made them a burden and menace to those who had the right to look to them for support and protection—a traffic which filled the poor-houses, prisons and asylums with human wrecks, and imposed its greatest misery upon the innocent and helpless—was hostile to the public interests and wholly contrary to the spirit and purpose of a Christian civilization.

Fifty years ago, the so-called "Maine Law," prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors, was placed upon our statute books, where it still remains. While it has not accomplished all that its advocates and supporters hoped for, it has been a powerful force in the development and promotion of a healthy temperance sentiment among the people of our State. How marked and gratifying this advance has been will clearly be shown by a comparison with the conditions existing seventy-five years ago. Then, liquor was largely manufactured in our State, while its sale was as common and looked upon in much the same light as the traffic in dry-goods and groceries. Abstinence was the exception rather than the rule. The drink habit, in varying degrees, was so general as to excite little if any comment, and intemperance was more or less prevalent in every community.

The temptations to drink were everywhere visible, and too often found victims in the best youth of our State. To-day, in a large majority of our country towns, there exists practical prohibition, and the law against the liquor traffic is as well enforced as against other forms of crime. Even in our cities and larger villages, where the liquor interests are most active and aggressive, and where the law is most persistently violated, it has not failed to exert a restraining and salutary influence; and has been a power in stimulating and promoting that intelligent and vigorous public opinion which is the support of all effective law, and without which any legislative enactment must fall far short of its purpose.

In a community where the official power is delegated from the people, public servants rarely rise superior to public opinion in their sense of duty. It is, therefore, essential that officers charged with the enforcement of law and the protection of society should be constantly sustained, in the faithful discharge of their obligations, by an active and healthy public sentiment.

There has long been a feeling, on the part of many of our most intelligent and progressive citizens, that the present fee system should be revised or modified; and that those public officials now receiving compensation for their services wholly or partly in fees should be paid a definite and fixed salary, that the people may know exactly what their servants receive.

This may not be practicable in every instance; but there certainly is no good reason why any officer should receive more than a reasonable remuneration for his services, or more than he would be paid if employed in a private business involving the same degree of responsibility, and requiring similar capacity.

It is undoubtedly true that many public officials who are paid by fees do not receive an excessive or unreasonable compensation, but even here the public interest would probably be best served by the payment of a salary commensurate with the service rendered.

I commend this matter to your careful consideration, knowing that whatever action you may take will be dictated by a desire to serve the best interests of the whole people.

The question of improved highways is one of great interest and importance to the whole State, and especially to the people of the country towns.

Good roads shorten the distance to market, increase the value of contiguous property, and are potent factors in the development of every community. Although there has been a vast improvement in our transportation facilities during the past twenty years, through the building of new railroad mileage, there has been little improvement in our highways, along which there will always be a large amount of traffic; and it would seem that the time has come when we should adopt some definite and effective plan for the improvement of our main thoroughfares.

I do not regard with favor a State highway commission, or any similar plan which would take from the towns any part of the control which they exercise over their roads, and cost an undue proportion of the sum which would be likely to be devoted to road improvement; but it has seemed to me that some plan of State aid might be devised which would be effective and practical in its operation, and would gradually result in greatly improved highways throughout the State.

The cost of really good roads is beyond the means of most towns; improved highways must come first, and in my judgment they can only come through State and perhaps county aid. Such a distribution of the cost would make the municipal burden small when compared with the immense benefits which would be derived from it.

On the 27th day of October, 1900, the total assets of the 51 Savings Banks of this State amounted to $71,076,211.67. The resources of the 17 Trust Companies were $13,295,402.92. Add to this the resources of the 33 Loan and Building Associations, amounting to $2,862,178.53, and we have a total of $87,233,793.12, an exhibit in every way creditable to the progress and enterprise of our State.

There were 180,914 depositors in the Savings Banks whose balance was less than two thousand dollars, the total amount of this class of deposits being $53,558,629.84; while the number of depositors having a balance of two thousand dollars or over, was 5,413, and the total amount of these deposits was $13,681,809.23. These figures clearly show that the money held by our Savings Banks belongs largely to people of moderate circumstances.

The whole number of depositors in Savings Banks and Trust Companies, and shareholders in Loan and Building Associations was 213,980, a gain of 11,428 during the past year. If we take from this total the 6,019 demand depositors in the Trust Companies, it will be seen that nearly one-third of the entire population of the State are directly interested in our various savings institutions. The aggregate amount of their capital, if apportioned among the people of the State would give about $125 to each person, or nearly $600 to each family.

In 1860 the deposits in our savings banks were only $1,466,457.56, in 1880 they had increased to $23,277,675.32, while at the present time they amount to $67,240,439.07. This is a gain in the last twenty years of $43,962,763.75, or nearly 200 per cent. and in forty years of $65,773,981.51, or about 5,000 per cent.

This remarkable showing is the strongest possible proof of the prosperity of the State, and forcibly demonstrates the industry, thrift and economy of the people of Maine. The Savings Banks, which, as a rule, have been characterized by a conservative, conscientious and able business management, have had the confidence of the public, and have encouraged the saving of a large portion of the money now entrusted to their care and which might otherwise have been expended needlessly.

The tax on Savings Banks deposits has been a source of large revenue to the State, the amount paid during the past year being $448,827.93, an increase of $128,434.21 over the sum paid in 1890.

The report of the Bank Examiner will give you a detailed account of the condition of each institution.

There is still a balance due the State from the General Government, on claims for reimbursement of expenses incurred in equipping troops for the war with Spain, amounting to $62,300.48. The original amount of these claims was $87,434.80, on which has been received $25,134.32.

Of the regular military appropriation for the year 1898, $27,-227.07 was applied to war expenses, and is included in the claims against the United States, having been expended under orders from the War Department.

A supplementary claim for reimbursement of the State for property destroyed by order of the Secretary of War, that had been condemned by a Board of Survey convened by his orders, which amounts to $5,310.65, has been filed with the War Department.

The Legislature of 1899 provided for the payment of bills for medical attendance, medical supplies and nursing of sick soldiers, who served in the State's quota and were treated outside of authorized hospitals during the period preceding their muster out, and whose expenses were not provided for by Act of Congress. There has been no Congressional action on these claims as yet, and many of them are held in the Surgeon-General's Office, pending such action. It seems only just that some provision should be made for their payment.

No annual encampment was held in the year 1899, the regular military appropriation for that year being used in reuniforming and reequipping the State troops. This was fully accomplished and the militia of this State is now in excellent condition, and well equipped for State service.

All of the organizations that make up our National Guard should be maintained on a practical footing. They should be armed, equipped and organized in accordance with the requirements of the volunteer army, that the State may be ready, when called upon, to place an efficient force of well-disciplined men in the field.

Since the last session of the Legislature, one division of Naval Reserves has been organized. It fully maintains the credit of the National Guard, and on its first cruise taken on the U. S. S. "Prairie" last September, the reports of the officer in command of that ship indicate that it made a record seldom, if ever, equalled by a Naval Reserve organization during its first year.

The experiment of regimental camps was tried at the last annual encampment with very gratifying results. The health, absence of intemperance, and conduct of the men in camp were most satisfactory. The organizations now authorized seem ample for the service, and to fully meet the requirements of the State. Maine does not require a large force, but her troops should be of the best. While we earnestly pray that their services will not again be necessary, we should always be prepared for any possible emergency that may arise.

The obligation which we owe to those brave and patriotic men, who, by their courage and valor, preserved the Union and perpetuated the greatest and grandest government that the world has ever known, can never be fully discharged. The small pensions paid by the State to those veterans of the Civil War requiring aid and assistance, or to their widows and orphans, is a fitting recognition of their devotion and sacrifice, and relieves many homes from suffering and want. You will cheerfully appropriate such sums as may be necessary for this purpose, that no one of them shall suffer from privation.

There are at the present time seventy children in the Bath Military and Naval Orphan Asylum, the largest number for many years. Twenty-four have been admitted during the past year. This is a well-managed institution, and merits the support which it has received from the State.

The constant increase in the number of sportsmen who come to Maine each year, to spend their vacations in hunting and fishing, conclusively demonstrates the wisdom of protecting and preserving the fish and game of our State, and is a sufficient warrant for the large sums of money which have been expended for this purpose.

The past season has been the most successful one in the history of our fish and game interests. Including the amount paid transportation companies, it is estimated that during the year 1900 at least five millions of dollars was expended by more than fifty thousand visitors to our forests and inland lakes.

The report of the Commissioners of Inland Fisheries and Game which will shortly be presented to you, contains much interesting and valuable information and deserves your careful consideration.

The sea and shore fisheries directly and indirectly give employment to about twenty thousand people, and have an invested capital of nearly $3,000,000.00. The total value of the various products when ready for market is about $6,000,000.00 annually. The great importance of this industry has not been fully appreciated. Any measures calculated to promote its interests should have special attention.

For many years there has been a gradual increase in the number of patients in the Maine Insane Hospital. Its legitimate capacity is 583 patients; but on Nov. 30th, 1900, it had 771, or 188 more than the number for which it has proper accommodations. This is an increase of 38 in the past two years. It will thus be seen that the management of this institution has long been obliged to care for many more patients than it was originally designed for.

The hospital has been in existence for sixty years, and the oldest departments are much out of repair. They should be thoroughly reconstructed and put in good condition, to enable the institution to show the best results and maintain a proper standard of efficiency.

As the hospital is soon to be relieved of its overcrowded condition by the removal of some of its patients to Bangor, this would seem to be a favorable opportunity for making such repairs and improvements as you may deem necessary.

The trustees earnestly recommend some action, and will ask for an appropriation for this purpose.

As a result of the marked advance in every kind of building material, the appropriation for the completion of the Eastern Maine Insane Hospital, made by the Legislature of 1899, proved insufficient for this purpose. Inasmuch as the discontinuance of the work would largely increase the cost of its completion, and probably postpone until another year the relief of the present overcrowded condition of the Hospital at Augusta, it was determined by Governor Powers that the building should be finished without interruption, in order that the institution might be available for use within a reasonable period.

This action, which was in the interest of true economy and must ultimately result in a large saving to the State, will, I know, commend itself to your good judgment, and meet with your unqualified approval. I am sure you will willingly make the required appropriation to cover this expenditure, as well as for the furnishings necessary to put the institution in readiness for occupancy.

I am convinced that the several appropriations made for the building of this institution have been wisely and judiciously expended. The work has been thoroughly done, the buildings are substantial and permanent in character, and for years to come the cost of repairs will be comparatively small. The institution could not be duplicated to-day for less than 20 per cent. above its present cost. In this connection I desire to commend the faithful, conscientious service of the Honorable Sydney M. Bird, Chairman of the Council Committee on Public Buildings, whose efficient business management and careful oversight of all the details of the work have largely contributed to so successful a result.

It appears from the report of the Prison Inspectors that there were 172 convicts in the State Prison, November 30th, 1900, a decrease of 37 during the preceding year; 58 were committed to the Prison during the year, and 91 discharged by expiration of sentence; three died, and one was pardoned by the Governor and Council. There are 40 life convicts in the Prison, of whom four are women.

The large percentage of short-term prisoners whose labor is not a source of profit, and the restrictions of the law which limits the number employed in one class of work, greatly curtail the profits of the manufacturing department. The total gain from goods manufactured last year was $5,937.74. It cost an average of nine cents per convict per day for the food consumed, which made the total cost of raw material $6,044.40, or $106.66 more than the profits of the manufacturing department. In addition to this, the cost of fuel, clothing, transporting convicts, stipends given discharged convicts, interest, and other expenses, amounted to $10,092.19. You will be asked for an appropriation sufficient to pay all outstanding liabilities, and provide for the necessary running expenses of the prison for the next two years.

The State cannot conduct a manufacturing business here with any degree of success, unless it provides a sufficient working capital to enable it to buy the necessary materials at the very lowest price, and to take advantage of every cash discount.

This is a matter which should have your careful investigation, and I recommend such an appropriation as is necessary to enable the managers of this institution to place its affairs upon a sound business basis.

You will be asked to provide for the establishment and support of a Reformatory Prison for Women. It has been suggested that a building, originally constructed by the United States Government for a Naval Hospital on an island near Rockland, and which has never been utilized for that purpose, may possibly be available in this connection. A bill is now pending in Congress which provides that this structure shall be given to the State for this use.

There is a strong sentiment in favor of such an institution, among the friends of philanthropic and reformatory work in our State, who feel that existing conditions are neither in harmony with the spirit of a progressive civilization nor calculated to produce the best results.

It is needless for me to dwell upon the great benefits which would come from such a Reformatory. All must recognize the importance of doing everything possible for the moral uplifting of such women as would here be cared for; and the State may well foster a movement which, while recognizing the need of every just and proper restraint, at the same time aims to make them self-respecting and self-supporting members of society.

I submit this matter to your earnest consideration.

Upon a recent visit to the Reform School, I was convinced that the construction of more cottages similar to those already existing is necessary to enable this institution to attain the highest degree of efficiency. This would make possible a better classification of the unfortunate boys who are detained there, and would greatly promote their moral and physical welfare. To-day there are about sixty boys living in two cottages whose conditions and surroundings are all that could be desired. The remainder, about ninety in number, are in the main building, which affords greatly inferior accommodations, as very little money has been expended upon it for many years.

I doubt the wisdom of using this building as a dormitory for so many boys as occupy it to-day, if, indeed, it should be used as a dormitory at all. The cottage plan has been demonstrated to be by far the best for the welfare and improvement of those who are sent to this institution. Many of these boys are merely the victims of poverty and parental neglect, and are friendless rather than criminal, oftentimes being sent to the school on account of truancy, or some minor offense scarcely more serious in its character.

It is the duty of the State to do everything possible to improve the condition of these unfortunate children, to encourage them in right doing, and to lead them into ways that will develop them into honest, self-reliant and useful citizens. Irrespective of the sentiment of humanity, the careful training of these boys is in the interest of true economy and a sound public policy.

At comparatively small cost the main building could be put in good repair, and it is well adapted for schoolrooms, workrooms, and the general purposes of the institution. I recommend such an appropriation for this work as in your judgment may seem wisest and best.

The report of the Trustees of the Maine Industrial School for Girls shows that there are 165 girls now under the care of this institution. Of these, 61 are in the school, 14 are out at board, 44 are working for their board and 46 are receiving wages. It will thus be seen that more than half of the number are self-sustaining. The girls are taught habits of personal cleanliness and neatness, the laws of health, how to do housework in all its branches, how to knit and sew and make garments, and the common English branches, such as are taught in the public schools.

On the 5th of February last, Flagg-Dummer Hall, which was destroyed by fire in the winter of 1899, was again ready for occupancy, greatly relieving the crowded condition of the other buildings. On May 24th, Erskine Hall was burned, together with the small building to the north, known as the office, the fire spreading so rapidly that little of the furnishings of the building or the personal effects of the inmates could be saved. Insurance to the amount of $11,675.00 has been paid, $6,687.50 going to the treasury of the school, and $4,987.50 into the State treasury. This latter sum can become available for rebuilding only through an appropriation by the Legislature.

The burning of this building made 32 girls homeless. They were immediately provided for by being taken into other buildings, and within three weeks 25 of them were placed in private homes. Board was secured for fifteen of them under twelve years of age at a price so moderate as to increase but slightly the expense of their care to the State.

The policy of placing in private families younger girls, who have committed no offense but are unfortunate in having no suitable homes of their own, has been followed to advantage in other States, and may be worthy of imitation in our own.

You will be asked for an appropriation to aid in rebuilding Erskine Hall, the amount received for insurance being insufficient for this purpose. You will also be asked to provide for other improvements which seem necessary to put the institution in a creditable condition.

The school is doing an important work, and its various needs will, I am sure, receive your careful attention.

The reports of the State Assessors, the Railroad Commissioner, the Insurance Commissioner, the Commissioner of Industrial and Labor Statistics, the Secretary of the State Board of Health, and of other State departments, as well as of the trustees of the various State institutions, will give you in detail an account of their work and requirements. It will be your duty to examine, carefully and thoroughly, into the condition of every institution and department, and to determine what amounts are reasonably necessary for their proper maintenance and support. I trust you will not hesitate to refuse any appropriation that seems unwise or unnecessary, and that expenditures will be reduced wherever this is consistent with an efficient service. Our institutions and various governmental departments are, I believe, well managed, and the State is most fortunate in having faithful and competent men in her public service. But it is none the less your duty to thoroughly inform yourself in all these matters, that you may act upon them understandingly, and not rely upon the judgment and opinion of others. It is also due to those who have earnestly and zealously devoted their best efforts to the service of the State, that you should give them the advantage of your counsel and judgment, that all may work together for the common interest and the common good.

I wish to assure you of my earnest desire to cooperate with you in every measure that tends to promote the interests of the State and the welfare and prosperity of its people. The noble example of those high-minded and patriotic men, whose devoted and unselfish public service in the past makes so many of the proudest pages in our history, should inspire us to discharge with honor and credit the difficult and important duties devolving upon us. If we exercise that good judgment, careful foresight and judicious economy so essential to the success of private enterprise, our success is assured; and though all may not endorse the result of our efforts, we should be satisfied with the work accomplished if our own judgment and conscience approve.

Confident that you will sustain the proud record of the past, and that your efforts will result in great permanent benefit to the State, permit me to remind you of the importance and necessity of beginning upon the work before you as soon as possible, thus avoiding the danger of hasty and ill-considered legislation in the busy closing weeks of the session.

I trust that you will find your duties pleasant and agreeable, and that when the work of the session has been accomplished you may have the proud satisfaction which comes from a duty conscientiously performed, and a trust faithfully discharged.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,

AUGUSTA, January 8, 1901.

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives:

It is my sorrowful duty to announce to you the decease of the Honorable James Ware Bradbury of Augusta, a former Senator of the United States from Maine, long a conspicuous figure among our distinguished public men, who, by his eminent public service and honorable, unselfish character, endeared himself to the people of Maine.

For nearly a century he lived, honored and beloved, ever taking the keenest interest in the advancement and prosperity of the State and nation, and devoting all the forces of his great intellect to the public welfare.

Through all his career in public life and as a private citizen, he has honored his city and his State. His death will be sincerely mourned by all our people.

I trust the Legislature will take some appropriate action, as a tribute of respect to his memory.

JOHN F. HILL.

The communication was read, and Mr. PLUMMER of Penobscot, addressed the Senate as follows :

"Mr. President: This message from the Governor, is well-timed and in every respect appropriate. It is fitting that we should pause in the midst of the work of the session upon which we have entered, to note the departure from the mortal sight of men, of one who was, perhaps, the most honored, respected, beloved, and venerated of any of the old-time public men who were left among us.

It was my fortune to meet Senator Bradbury at the time of the Commencement exercises of the college which he loved, every year since my graduation, and during the several years of my service in the Legislature, I have had opportunity frequently to take him by the hand and to listen to his keen, wise, and instructive comments on the questions of the hour, and to his most interesting and charming reminiscences of the stirring and historic events in which he took part, and of those giants of our national public life who were his colleagues and associates when in his prime he served the State of Maine in the highest parliamentary body in the world. Hence, the absence of his familiar and venerable figure in the streets of this capital city, which was his home, and in these halls which he was wont frequently to visit, will be to me a personal loss, as I have no doubt it will be to all whose duties in the past have brought them hither.

Mr. Bradbury in the geniality and cordiality of his intercourse with his fellowmen, no matter whether of high or low estate, in his bright, clean, and charming personality, in his old-time suavity, grace and warmth of manner, in his appreciation of the true, the beautiful and the good, in the purity and elevation of his thought and in his fidelity to his convictions, was one of the most remarkable men I have ever known. And, when you have added to this the veneration which is due to an active, useful and philanthropic life, prolonged so far beyond the allotted three score years and ten, as to have almost rounded out the full century, it may well be said that in him the State of Maine has lost its grandest old man.

Mr. President, as a token of respect and regard for the dead statesman, I move that this Senate, the House concurring, adjourn."

The motion to reconsider was within the rules, allowing such motion to be made one day, or within twenty-four hours, after the original motion was passed. I find on looking at the House calendar this morning, that the bill had been engrossed and reached the House yesterday on its passage to be enacted, and there it was tabled, on the motion of the gentleman from Portland, Mr. Chase, so that as the record now stands, not only is the bill tabled in the House on its passage to be enacted, but it is also tabled in this body on its passage to be engrossed. Inasmuch as it was not in the possession of the Senate, and had been engrossed when my motion was made, I move that my motion that the bill be laid on the table be reconsidered in order that our journal may be correct.

The motion prevailed.

Mr. VIRGIN of Cumberland said :

“Mr. President: It is my painful duty to announce to the Senate, the death of Hon. Joseph Y. Hodsdon, one of the Senators from Cumberland county, since the last meeting of the Senate.

“It was only a week ago last Friday morning that he occupied his accustomed seat in this chamber—that seat now draped with emblems of mourning. At that time, he appeared to all of us the picture of health, but his immediate and intimate friends knew that such was not the fact. He had recently suffered two severe attacks of the same illness of which he finally died. His friends, his physicians, advised him seriously that he ought not to come to the Legislature, that his condition demanded that he undergo an operation in order that his health might be preserved for years to come. He deemed it his duty, however, to obey the summons of his constituents and come here to undertake the work which they had elected him to do.

“He has been a valuable member of the Senate, especially of the Committee on Taxation of which he was chairman on the part of the Senate. Since he has been here, he has endeared himself to all of the members of the Senate, and in particular to the members of that committee, one of whom expressed to me an epitome of his character, when he said that Senator Hodsdon was continually casting oil on the troubled waters of the committee.

“We all know his kindly disposition, his love for his fellow members, his desire at all times to do others a favor if it lay in his power. He was with us. He is now gone, and lives only in memory; and it seems fitting at this time that I introduce this order:”

Ordered. That a committee of five on the part of the Senate, of which number the President pro tempore shall be one, with such members as may be joined on the part of the House, be appointed to attend the funeral of the late Senator Joseph Y. Hodsdon at Yarmouth, Wednesday, February 27, at 2 o'clock P. M., and that the Secretary of State transmit a copy of this order to the family of the deceased,

Which was read and passed, and the President pro tempore appointed the following committee on the part of the Senate:

Messrs. Virgin of Cumberland,
Murchie of Washington,
Noble of Franklin,
Fernald of Androscoggin,
Vickery of Kennebec.

Sent down for concurrence.

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

(Signed)

BYRON BOYD,

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, STATE OF MISSOURI,
JEFFERSON CITY, March 5, 1901.

To His Excellency, the Governor of Maine, Augusta, Maine:

MY DEAR SIR:—Confirming my telegram of yesterday, I desire to add a single statement.

The states of Maine and Missouri were admitted into the Union the same year. During my service in Congress it was my pleasure to form close and intimate friendships with the distinguished representatives of your Commonwealth, both in the House and in the Senate. I never had a closer and a truer friend than the late Hon. Nelson Dingley. During sixteen years of Congressional service we were intimately associated on the great Committee on Appropriations, and other committees of the House. Missouri entertains for the State of Maine sentiments of the highest consideration, and I sincerely hope that your State will make ample provision to be represented at the approaching World's Fair to be held at St. Louis.

With feelings of the highest regards, I have the honor to remain,

Your obedient servant,

11.45 O'CLOCK A. M.

Mr. ALDEN from the Committee on Agriculture submitted the following report:

STATE OF MAINE.

The Committee on Agriculture to which was referred the following order—"Ordered, the House concurring, that the Committee on Agriculture be and hereby, is authorized to make a complete investigation into the management of the office of the board of agriculture, as conducted by the secretary; examine all accounts pertaining to the office; summon witnesses to appear and present evidence, employ such counsel as may be necessary, also a stenographer; ascertain the amount of all outstanding bills of whatever kind or nature, and present to this legislature a complete and itemized account of the result of said investigation," have attended to the work so ordered, and make the following report:

We have made as complete an investigation under this order into the management of the office of the board of agriculture as conducted by the secretary as the time and circumstances would permit. Although the time to be devoted to this investigation was not limited by the legislature, your committee did not feel that long delays for the purpose of inquiry should be taken, unless such delays were warranted by the belief that new and important testimony could be found for or against this department; and although the secretary of the board of agriculture has very courteously furnished all facts and data of his department and of his official work when called for, still the committee has felt that outside of his public examination (where Mr. McKeen in the presence of his counsel and acting under his advice answered questions), the rights accorded to every person not to be obliged to give testimony against himself, should not be infringed upon by private and personal inquiry from Secretary McKeen and that they should depend entirely upon the State's books, papers and records pertaining to this office, and the testimony of witnesses other than Mr. McKeen. To make a complete and exhaustive inquiry into the workings of this department by such a course of procedure would have taken much time and as we believe would not have produced material changes in the result.

Acting under the legislative order, we procured the services of George W. Heselton of Gardiner, as attorney to procure the evidence for this investigation and conduct the examination of witnesses at the hearing. We also employed J. S. Estes, the official reporter of the House, as a stenographer to take the testimony, and employed John O. Rice of Portland, an expert accountant, to examine the books and accounts of this department. We caused various witnesses to be summoned to give evidence at the hearing, whose evidence we thought would aid us in our investigation.

During the afternoons of February 26th and 27th, we listened to all the witnesses who were called to testify for or against Secretary McKeen, and examined such documentary evidence as was then presented, and herewith append a detailed report of same.

By the admitted testimony of B. Walker McKeen, secretary of the board of agriculture, we find that

1st. From January, 1892, to the first day of October, 1897, no sufficient books of account were kept by Mr. McKeen as secretary, that would in themselves or by reference, give a history in detail for what purposes the State's appropriation to this department were disbursed.

2nd. From January, 1892, to the first day of February, 1896, Secretary McKeen deposited in his own name in the Traders' National Bank of Portland the monies received from the State through the several appropriations for this department and mingled them with his private funds and drew these monies from this bank on personal checks.

3rd. Since the first day of February, 1896, Secretary McKeen has deposited in the Augusta Safe Deposit and Trust Company of Augusta, Maine, on the account of "B. Walker McKeen, secretary," his private funds with the funds received from the State through the various appropriations for this department and drawn the same out of this Trust Company on checks signed by himself as secretary for both public and private purposes.

4th. At no time since he became secretary of the board of agriculture has Mr. McKeen kept any books of account or personal account whereby he could know or distinguish what balances, if any, in the banks belonged to him personally and what belonged to the State.

5th. Secretary McKeen has received a salary of $1,500 and an appropriation of $300 for the expenses of his department. For institute work he has been allowed to take from the institute appropriation the expenses incurred in this specific work which were allowed in addition to the $300 allowed for department expenses. The stamps and express charges for this department were furnished by the State.

6th. Secretary McKeen has not regularly filed personal vouchers of creditors of his department when money has been paid but has filed in a large number of instances, as vouchers, receipts signed by the name of the payee, "per B. Walker McKeen, Secretary," and on such vouchers drawn on the appropriation for this department and in some instances anticipated the payments of the warrants by advances on appropriations.

7th. Secretary McKeen has deferred for months the payments to some of the creditors of his department for debts and premiums although the money has been advanced to him by the State.

8th. On January 29, 1896, he received $7,100 for the stipend due to the various agricultural societies of the State and deposited the same in the Augusta Trust Company. No society was paid before May of that year its stipend, and some did not receive their stipend for many months.

9th. On May 7, 1896, Secretary McKeen drew the State stipend for the State Pomological Society of $1,000 and deposited the same in the Augusta Trust Company, and made payments to the societies as follows: $100, May 15, 1896; $400, August 13, 1896, and $500, September 3, 1896. These payments were made after repeated duns by the officers of the society and after Mr. McKeen had given insufficient reasons to them for the non-payment.

10th. In one instance, that of H. M. Plaisted & Son, money was drawn on warrants by Secretary McKeen twice to cover the same account. This error, while apparently an oversight and due to the imperfect bookkeeping in the office of Secretary McKeen, has never been rectified.

11th. In one instance, that of L. W. Dyer, $15 more was charged up as paid to Mr. Dyer than was actually received by him. The evidence bearing upon this incident is such that there may be an honest difference of opinion as to the merits or demerits of the transaction, and your committee cannot form a united opinion and respectfully refer the legislature to the testimony upon the same.

12th. The testimony generally sustained Secretary McKeen as to his efficiency in doing institute work and as to his zealous efforts in behalf of the agricultural interests of the State. The exception, as given by Mr. R. W. Ellis of Embden, can be weighed by the legislature in the light of Mr. McKeen's explanation and your committee would refer to the same without comment.

13th. The evidence discloses that the board of agriculture has been of little value in the management of this department. The members have not discovered the lack of business methods in the financial management of the department or have not corrected this mis-management if it was known to them. They have had little if anything, to do with the institute work of the department outside of the counties from which they were elected.

14th. The outstanding bills of the department your committee cannot furnish excepting so far as Secretary McKeen has given them, and this list of outstanding bills furnished by Secretary McKeen is imperfect, as is apparent from his admission, that there may be other unpaid bills of which he has no recollection and no date, and the committee would be hampered in any efforts to procure a perfect list of unpaid bills on account of the practice of Mr. McKeen in giving receipts in the name of the payee signed by himself, which payments could not be verified excepting by great delay.

This investigation compels your committee to say that in their belief the agricultural department of the State, as at present established, is not for the best interests of agriculture in the State, and they believe it should be supplanted by an agricultural department whose executive officer shall be elected by the legislature with a fixed salary, a fixed allowance for expenses, and a fixed appropriation for its work; and to this end unanimously recommend the accompanying bill "An Act to create a State department of agriculture," and that the same should pass.

MEMORIAL EXERCISES.

Mr. VIRGIN of Cumberland said :

Mr. President: This is the hour set apart for the memorial exercises upon our late associate, Senator Hodsdon.

In the hurry and rush of these closing days of the Legislature, we lay aside our public duties, while we pay our tribute of respect to the memory of our late associate, Joseph Y. Hodsdon.

So recently was Senator Hodsdon stricken down, that it seems but as yesterday we were eagerly listening for news from his bedside, and today, as if the doors of this chamber might open, and he, entering, take his accustomed seat among us.

Knowing him for many years, and counting him as one of my close friends, his death comes to me as a personal loss.

I do not intend to pronounce an extended eulogy upon him, but only give utterance to the thoughts that are uppermost, as I realize that he is no more, and hereafter lives only in memory.

Born in Portland, he was educated in its public schools, and after leaving school engaged in business. For more than thirty years, last past, he has been a shoe manufacturer, from 1869 to 1880 in Portland, and since the latter year in Yarmouth, whither he then moved his business, and took up his residence. A few years ago, his factory was burned, and organizing the Hodsdon Shoe Company, a corporation of which he, and his brother and his son were the directors, a new and commodious factory was erected, and equipped with modern machinery, and the business enlarged and made even more successful than before. For many years, Senator Hodsdon spent a portion of each week in Boston attending to the affairs of his Boston office, and meeting there his customers from the West and South, and in fact from all parts of the country.

With his long and thorough training in mercantile and manufacturing affairs, he was eminently a business man ; and endowed with a clear insight into successful business methods, of strictest integrity, honest and upright in all his dealings, of keen discernment, quick to take advantage of market conditions, and of large executive ability, he had the satisfaction of knowing that success attended his life's work.

He took a large interest in the affairs of his town, and his advice was sought, freely given and profitably followed by the townspeople in matters of moment to them all.

He loved his adopted town, was proud of its history, believed in its future, and tried in all ways to advance its interests. He was fond of its people, always speaking of them in terms of the highest respect, and in turn was respected by his townsmen, who looked upon him as a friend, and now feel that his death is a loss to them and to the community.

His county has twice honored him by an election to this body, and he was serving his second consecutive term when overtaken by death.

To his business sagacity, clear insight and grasp of affairs, and to his executive ability, as well as his genial disposition, was owing his appointment as chairman of the Committee on Taxation, one of the most important committees of this Legislature. How well he performed his duties, how patiently he listened to the many and diversified ideas of all classes of our citizens, how he soothed the differences in the committee, so long as he was able to attend and preside over its deliberations, is already known and needs no further mention by me.

I have no doubt, Mr. President, that the laborious duties entailed upon him by his position on that committee, with its long and busy sessions, frequently extending far into the night, the nervous strain, and the drain upon his strength, already weakened by two recent attacks of sickness similar to the one of which he died, served to hasten his death. As I have already stated on this floor, he was urged by his physician not to undertake his senatorial duties, but to devote himself to regaining his health; but believing he owed some consideration to his constituents, he entered upon the performance of the duties to which they had elected him.

Notwithstanding he was a busy man, he devoted some time to rest and recreation, and was never so happy as when surrounded by his family in his own home. As a husband and father he was all a man could be, he loved and cherished his wife, and did all in his power to make her happy. He was fond of his son, and believed that he had imparted to him the same principles that had governed his own life, and felt satisfied that when his own course was finished, his business would be continued, and his name and all he held dear would be preserved inviolable.

Such a man is an honor to his State, and is invaluable to the community in which he lives.

By his presence in this body, his even temperament, his kindly disposition, his cordial greeting, his evident desire to listen patiently, and deal justly by every one, he endeared himself to us all.

By his untimely death the State has been deprived of the services of a valuable member of the Legislature, and the members of this Senate have lost a worthy associate.

Mr. STAPLES of Knox :

Mr. President and fellow senators: We pause amid the turmoil of life to pay our respects and regard to our late associate. It is well that we should do so. It was not my good fortune to personally know our departed brother until I met him in this chamber ; but I at once recognized his grand character, his loving disposition, his strong integrity, his manliness and all of those qualities which endeared him to every member of this body. But he has departed from us. It reminds us that life at most is but a day sprung from night, in darkness lost, and that, with him it was like a shadow thrown softly and sweetly from a passing cloud, when death fell upon him.

I rejoice that I am not one of those that believe that it is all of death to die. I rejoice that I am one of those that believe that our departed brother lives to-day. Who is there who can say but what his spirit is hovering around us now? Who is there that will say our departed brother knows less now than he did before he passed out? I am one of those that believe that we are placed here upon this earth to prepare for a greater and grander existence ; and that injunction from the great book that "As ye live, so shall ye die, as ye die so shall ye live again," will place him to-day in that summer-land surrounded by his friends. Yea! Almost I feel the influence that comes from the other world. His influence will be felt upon mankind although he has departed from the body. What a grand and noble thought it is for us here to believe that this is only a kindergarten, where we are to discipline the man—grow grander and nobler—not only for our life work here, but for the work over there. That gives us something to live for. It leads us to believe that good predominates over evil in the breasts of the majority of the human family. I am not one of those that believe in total depravity, but I believe that good is in the breast of every man, and he exercises those features according to the opportunities and the surroundings which he has. I am one of those that believe that we have a duty that we owe one another. If we carry out that principle of brotherly love and of goodness toward one another, just as our departed brother did, how much better we should feel; and if we do not get our reward here for any kind act that we may do, then I believe that we will get it by and by.

Oh no! my friends, there is no such thing as death. Our brother has only passed over the river; and to-day, I have not any doubt, is living in perpetual sunshine, gone to meet his friends that have gone before. When he bade his friends good-night here, upon this shore, I have not any doubt that he bade them good-morning on the other. Nature, and everything teaches us the immortality of the soul. We might go into the realms of mythology; and, as I have read many times of the new king of the Argus, who condemned the young king to death: Just before he was executed, she that loved him so fondly implored of him, should they meet again? He answered: I have asked that dreadful question of the hills that look eternal, of the river that placid flows forever, of the stars amid whose fields of azure my restless spirit trod in glory, and found no answer—all was dumb—but as I look upon your loving face, I answer, yes, we shall meet again. Whatever may be our course here, we can have no doubt that He who causes the buried acorn to spring forth in the springtime, will take care of the soul of man which is the living and thinking part, when this casket shall refuse longer to perform its duties. Yes! our brother is gone; but, by and by when our course shall have run, we shall meet him on the other shore.

Mr. FERNALD of Androscoggin:

Mr. President, Fellow Senators: It is fitting and appropriate that we cease from our labors and for a few brief moments pay a tribute of love and respect for our late friend and co-worker, Senator Joseph Y. Hodsdon of Cumberland.

Perhaps the most pleasing feature of a life in this body are the associations which are afforded to its members. The gentlemen who come here are chosen from every section of our great State. We are brought into close touch, and our community of labor gives opportunity for affinity to exercise its influence.

Our selection of associates, and our friendships are made without reference to party affiliations. Friendships are formed here which will be a source of comfort and satisfaction to the end of our lives. I value these relations and friendships very greatly. Now and then, Mr. President, there comes here a man who seems to win the hearts of all; to whom all look with affectionate regard and hold in common respect and affection. Senator Hodsdon was one of this class. He was kindly, frank, generous, and manly, obliging to all, ever ready to lend a hand, or to give assistance when it was within his power to do so; having a large regard for loyalty to his convictions to which he adhered strenuously.

It was my privilege to serve with him on the Committee of Taxation, of which he was chairman, and whose duties this season have been so arduous and so vexing, and as a member of that committee it seemed to be his whole aim to weigh all matters candidly, carefully, and decide them with extreme fairness; and after the toil of long, weary sessions, often verging into midnight or later, we walked down the street to our abodes, always arm in arm (for he was a man who loved to get near his friends), and in this way I learned the value of his counsel, and the warm and generous impulse of his noble, loving nature.

As a member of this body, he was capable of the fullest discharge of his duties. Quiet and unassuming, he performed every duty committed to his care in an efficient, honest, courteous manner. Such a man is a great loss to the State and community, but it is in the home circle that he will be the most missed. I wish it was in my power to say one word that would lend comfort to the sorrow-stricken wife and family, but I know how vain it is to gild a grief with words or try to assuage a pain with an expression of sympathy.

Here in this world where life and death are equal monarchs, all must be brave enough to meet what all have met. From the wondrous tree of Life, buds and blossoms fall alike with ripened fruit, and in the common bed of earth patriarchs and babes sleep side by side. We do not know which is the greater blessing, life or death. We cannot say that death is not good. We do not know whether the grave is the end of this life or the door to another; or whether the night here is not somewhere else a dawn. Neither can we tell which is the more fortunate, the child dying in its mother's arms before its lips have learned to form a sentence, or he who journeys all the length of life's uneven road, and painfully lies down to quiet dreams, embarking across the boundless and unknown sea to that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler e'er returns. It may be, and let us hope, that death gives all there is of worth of life, but even at its worst it is only perfect rest. There is, I believe, for them this consolation, the dead do not suffer. We are all children of the same mother and the same fate awaits us all.

I was honored by the President of this Senate in the selection to be one of the company who should attend the funeral of the distinguished Senator and lay him away in his native home. Late on a cold, gray, murky afternoon we performed the last sad rites. No stately shaft will lift aloft its haughty head, bearing inscription of his achievements, but his name is inshrined in the hearts of his people, and those hearts will be the lamps wherein the flame of love shall burn while life endures.

We laid him away in the soil of his beloved town; he peacefully sleeps on that stern and rock-bound coast where loving hands have laid him, and the sad and solemn sea will sing unceasing requiems for his soul.

There was, there is, no kindlier, gentler, manlier man.

Mr. NOBLE of Franklin:

Mr. President: Standing as we do today in the shadow of a great sorrow which wraps us about with an irresistible gloom, it is eminently fitting that we pause in the usual routine of legislative business and devote a few moments to the memory of him who was, but who is not,—of him who but a few days ago was participating in our deliberations, clothed in all the strength and vigor of manhood.

Senator Hodsdon is dead! Hard as it is to realize the fact, harsh and repulsive as the word may sound when spoken, the fact is with us, the word must be spoken. Dead! Dead! Would that this word might be eliminated from our language, for “There is no Death! What seems so is transition;

This life of mortal breath
Is but a suburb of the life elysian,
Whose portal we call Death.”

The grim messenger has dared approach, our meditations have been disturbed, one whom we loved and honored has been summoned to join the great and silent throng "in realms of life and light immortal."

It would be presumption on my part to attempt a eulogy upon his life and character. This would more properly devolve upon those who are more familiar with the history of his life and business career. I can but add to and emphasize the warmth of that affection which has found expression in the sincere tributes of those who have already spoken. For a few weeks only it was my privilege to be with him,—to know him intimately and well. But wherever associated, whether in the important business of this chamber, or about the social fireside of our temporary home, I recognized in him the best and noblest characteristics of a lofty manhood. Thoughtful first and always for the comfort of others, selfishness had no abode in his grand and magnanimous nature. Frank and loyal to his friends, courteous and kindly to all, even his opponents could never become his enemies. In the social circle and about the fireside his genial nature was at its best, inspiring a fellowship, the remembrance of which will abide with his associates as long as time itself. True as steel, his word was his bond, and integrity his watchword. Well may the young man emulate his example, for energy and enthusiasm characterized his whole business career. Thoroughly trained in the school of an active business experience, he was practical and sound in all matters touching the interests of his constituents whom he served faithfully and well.

Keen and heartfelt as is our sorrow, far more keenly will his loss be felt in the community in which he lived. Years may come and go and not another will be found to take his place in the hearts of that people, who recognized in him a wise counsellor and a loyal friend. I can well say as did Colonel Ingersoll over his brother's bier: "Were every one to whom he did some loving service to bring a blossom to his grave, he would sleep today beneath a wilderness of flowers."

He was especially devoted to his family and seemed happiest himself when contributing to their happiness. But strong as were the ties that bound heart to heart, the cords were burst asunder, and today the grief-stricken widow longs

" * * for the touch of a vanished hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still."

Our friend was a great lover of nature. He loved the flowers, the birds and the babbling brooks. His face would light up with joy when relating incidents of his vacation days upon the seashore or amidst the wild magnificence of the mountains, lakes and forests. At such times he would seem to live over again the happy days gone by,—days that brought him into sweet communion with Nature in her lavish moods.

He is gone, the great, generous, sympathetic heart has forever ceased to pulsate.

“His life was gentle; the elements
So mixed in him, that Nature might stand up
And say to all the world, ‘This was a man.’”

Full of honors, and with physical and mental vigor unabated, his earthly pilgrimage has suddenly ended. We look about us and see but the dull cloud of sorrow, and hear but the wintry wind sighing a requiem for our departed friend.

“But into each life some rain must fall,
Some days must be dark and dreary.”

Beyond the dark cloud of sorrow and affliction our faith reveals the bright star of promise; and above the sad requiems of earth we catch the glorious hallelujahs of heaven.

“Peace to the good man’s memory;
Let it grow greener with years,
And blossom through the flight of ages.”

Mr. PLUMMER of Penobscot:

Mr. President: I cannot well forbear saying a few words on this occasion, not with the expectation of adding anything of value to what has been so well said by the Senators who have preceded me, concerning the life and character of Joseph Y. Hodsdon, but for the purpose of expressing my high appreciation of his worth and my personal sorrow at his sudden decease.

My acquaintance with Senator Hodsdon began with the opening of the Legislative session of 1899, when we found ourselves sitting side by side in this chamber, and our relations and associations were limited to that session and so much of this as had elapsed when he was taken away. Hence I knew him not at all in his business and domestic relations, but only as a successful and public-spirited man of affairs who had been selected and commissioned by his fellow citizens to represent their interests in this Legislative arena; and, Mr. President, in bearing witness to his absolute fidelity to every public trust in him reposed, I feel I am paying him no small nor mean tribute.

Early in our service as fellow members of the body, a feeling of warm and cordial friendship sprung up between us, which I am glad to be able to say continued unbroken and unabated up to that fateful Friday when he went out of this chamber forever.

Mr. President, I do not refer to Senator Hodsdon's friendship with me as exceptional. Doubtless all his associates here shared it in equal and perhaps some of them in greater degree.

It was natural for his friendly spirit to reach out to all with whom his duties brought him into contact, and he was always at any cost to himself, loyal to his friends.

Senators: A genial, warm-hearted, whole-souled man has been taken from our ranks and added to the innumerable company of those who have gone before.

While his kindly presence will be missed from our midst, and during the remainder of this session there will remain in this chamber one vacant chair, we will not mourn him as one who has lost his life, but rather salute him as one who has found it, in its truest and best estate.

Believing the natural event called death does not break the continuity of human life, we will think of him as a living soul endowed with personal consciousness, memory and affection, enjoying the supremely satisfactory activities, and embracing the incomparably grand and boundless opportunities for growth in knowledge, beauty, goodness and power, which the higher and freer world of spirit affords.

The Committee on Financial Affairs to which was recommended the "Resolve in favor of the Maine Eye and Ear Infirmary," and before whom, by order of the Legislature, a hearing was had for the purpose of investigating certain charges made on the floor of the House against the institution, would report that they have attended to their duty and find that, while the charges of maltreatment have not been proven strictly as alleged, it is apparent, from the admissions of the officers of the institution and the undisputed evidence of witnesses, that the charges were substantially true and evidence a laxity of management that should be corrected.

No satisfactory proof was offered to show that charity patients were knowingly diverted from the infirmary to the office of the executive surgeon, but there was abundant evidence that such patients often found their way there and honestly believed the treatment they were receiving was to be free, and some regulation should be adopted that would render these mistakes impossible.

The management of the free clinic appears to have been left largely to young and inexperienced physicians who cannot be supposed to possess that special training and ability which should be at the disposal of such an institution, nor does the practice of allowing unprofessional men to prescribe for patients meet the approval of the committee.

Neither the evidence of the treasurer nor the reports of the institution give satisfactory information as to its financial standing; but, from all evidence obtainable, it does not appear that

State aid is necessary, and it is the opinion of the majority of the committee that the resolve ought not to pass.

CLOSING EXERCISES.

Mr. NOBLE of Franklin, presented the following resolution :

Resolved, That the thanks of this Senate be extended to the Hon. Hannibal E. Hamlin for the able, courteous and dignified manner in which he has presided over the deliberations of the Senate.

Mr. NOBLE of Franklin said :

Mr. President: The last assignment upon our calendar has been disposed of. The end of our long and busy session is at hand. E'er we depart, we pause for a moment. We linger for a little. With reluctance, we grasp each other's hands, we look fondly into each other's eyes, and say our farewells.

What a short time it seems since we met in this beautiful chamber and began our deliberations. To-day, as we look backward over that brief period, and review the many pleasures—the many busy activities of this session, so happy is the remembrance that we almost wish our present official ermine would cling to us forever. So cordial, so friendly have been our associations, would that they might endure.

Mr. Secretary: I am aware that resolutions are too often a mere empty form, a mere aggregation of idle, meaningless words and phrases; but I feel, to-day, that this resolve, even if it were to be couched in the richest and warmest expressions known to our language, would even then fail to express our high appreciation for the splendid qualities of him in whose honor they are offered. Ever kind, courteous, consistent and considerate, he has won the highest regards and sincere affection of every member of this body. His position has been an important one, but a step removed from that of our chief executive; and in the performance of the duties of that position, important as it is, he has exhibited all the tactful talent, grace, wisdom, dignity and ability characteristic of that illustrious sire whose honored name he bears. For the support of the officers, I wish to extend my sincere gratitude, my kindest regards. They have each and all been kind, courteous, thoughtful, obliging, prompt in anticipating our every desire, prompt in the performance of their every duty.

Mr. Secretary, I move you that this resolve have a passage; and that when the vote is taken, it be taken by rising. (Applause).

Mr. STAPLES of Knox said:

Mr. Secretary and fellow senators: It gives me great pleasure to second the resolution offered by the senator from Franklin. When I came into this body, I was a stranger to the most of the members who compose this Senate. I occupy the unique position of being the only minority member of the party to which I belong, in this body; and having been here with 30 Republican members of the Senate—that I am in as good health as I am to-day is a fact that I feel very grateful for. (Applause).

It only goes to show that when one lone Democrat in a Republican Senate of Maine, can for 12 long weeks stand the pressure, and be in as good health physically as I am to-day—it shows the kindness that they have shown the minority member.

Words are inadequate to me to express in fitting language my appreciation of the courtesies that I have received from the presiding officer of this honorable body. Being a new member, and new to legislative experience, he has been ever kind and obliging, and has endeared himself to every member of this body; and while, as the senator from Kennebec says, I have not been able to kill any birds, I thank high Heaven that I have not wounded any, so that, when we part, there shall be no misapprehensions and no misgivings that will torment us as we look back upon the past.

It is to me a source of great pleasure that, during the heated debates we have had, while I have been alone many times in the discussion of the questions and in the voting, yet I have always found that courtesy extended to me the same as to the majority; and, in behalf of the Democratic party to which I belong, I thank the majority party of this Senate for the courtesy with which they have treated us; and I expect, in the near future, the only way we can repay it will be when the reverse takes place, and there is only one Republican in the Senate and 30 Democrats. Then we will pay them back the courtesy they have given us. (Applause).

Now, fellow senators, there is always a degree of sadness at a time like this. In my experience of the business of life, where there has been such a variety of business transacted, where there have been heated debates and diversity of opinion, I am glad that I can carry away with me the feeling that we have all tried to conduct ourselves as gentlemen, and that we have accorded to each and every one that grand principle which is one of the beatitudes of this grand government of ours, that every man has a right to express his own mind freely, openly and at all times. If ever I felt to rejoice that I live in glorious New England—that I live under that grand magna charta, the Declaration of Independence, that accords to everybody equal rights in the great race of life, I rejoice that in an assembly like this—an honorable body like this, composed of the members that have assembled here, that we have been presided over by a gentleman who has not been unmindful of the rights of each member. At no time, from the beginning to the present time, have the rights of any man upon this floor been narrowed, but the fullest and freest rights guaranteed to him. It is an honorable position. Our presiding officer has filled it with dignity and with grandeur; and as I am about to part with these members, I shall carry with me to my home the kindest of recollections; and if we never meet here again, let me impress upon the minds of every member that I believe to-day we shall meet again, by and by, if we do not again meet in this chamber or upon this side of the Summer Land. The social qualities inculcated here develop the minds of men; and through those social qualities, by the discipline we have received here, we shall be fitted, I have not any doubt, by and by to enjoy that fruition which is for all mankind.

Now, fellow senators, if I have erred, I am ready to be forgiven, as I know I am ready to forgive any senator for anything that may have been said during this session. I trust you will all have a happy return to your homes and your families; and, Mr. Secretary, I second the resolution offered by the senator from Franklin. (Applause).

Mr. FERNALD of Androscoggin said:

Mr. President, Gentlemen of the Senate:

Every joy must have its sorrow,
Every pleasure brings its pain;
To-day is bright with sunshine,
To-morrow weeps its rain.
To-day a smile is playing
On the lip and in the eye;
To-morrow tears are falling,
And the fount of mirth is dry.
The calm succeeds the tempest
As the light the darksome hours,
On the rough and thorny brambles
Bloom the sweetly perfumed flowers.
Life springs from Death's cold ashes
And in Death Life's lamp grows dim;
In Eden perfect bliss is found
And from Eden cometh sin.
And thus in contrast ever,
Light and shadow strangely blend;
To fit and discipline us
For Life's highest, noblest end.

Memory and Hope like sceptered monarchs enthroned upon the realm of Reason teach us to yearn, to appreciate and to love. Memory, like old age standing on the deck of a ship, looks back into the past, as our lives are drifting on an unknown and boundless sea. Memory garners flowers from the garden of Experience, where grow thorns and thistles as well as roses and lilies of the valley. Memory is real, logical, secure.

Hope, like youth on the prow of the ship, leaning far out over the deep unknown, pointing ever onward and upward to heights and pleasures attained only by the few but yearned for by every human heart.

Memory and Hope, both of the same royal family, and each entirely void, empty and incapable of stimulating joy without the assistance of the other.

Gentlemen of the Senate, we have for three months like school boys, mingled together. I can pay no higher tribute to your honor, your manliness, your generosity and charity than to say I have learned to respect, to revere and to love you all. And there is no sublimer affection than the regard one strong man may have for another.

And to my fellow senator from Knox, who came here alone the representative of his political party, for you I have the kindest regard. The position you have taken on all matters pertaining to the public welfare, has been broad, consistent and manly. You can return to your constituents feeling that you have the highest respect of your fellow senators, and that above party prejudice, there is in the human heart a nobler virtue, which is regard and admiration for our fellow man.

And to you, Mr. President, for the courtesy so often and so kindly extended, I can only thank you.

And to the officers of this Senate (and if I should name one, I should name them all) who have performed their duties so graciously and so well, I desire to thank you.

And to all as we bid adieu to these scenes, most of us for the last time, let us hope that the acquaintances made may be often renewed. That as we older grow we may look back to this session as one of the mile stones in our history and that our associations have taught us to have a higher, nobler, grander conception of humanity and our duties to our fellowmen.

Mr. WHITE of Androscoggin said:

Mr. Secretary and Fellow Senators: I am frank to say that if I could consult my own feelings at the present moment, I should remain silent, not that I do not desire to raise my voice to second this resolution in honor of the distinguished gentleman who has presided over this Senate so ably and impartially, during the three months we have been together; but I find myself at this time embarrassed and troubled by conflicting emotions. I realize that I am about taking leave of this Hall and of the House, and of the legislature, probably never to return to them again—never to have any part whatever in proceedings of this kind,—unless, perhaps, I might be admitted to the third House, which I have, however, no objection to take part in.

Feeling as I do, with these feelings of sorrow at parting from senators with whom I have been associated for these three months, and with some of whom I was associated two years ago, I say I would gladly be silent at this time, and listen to others; but I cannot allow this action to pass without rendering my tribute, feeble though it may be, to the distinguished gentleman who presided over our deliberations this winter. I want to say this, that from the moment the first tap of his gavel called this Senate to order, down to the present time, he has fulfilled the duties of that position completely, and with impartiality, and that under all difficulties, conditions and circumstances, and thus won our respect and confidence at the very outset. He has retained it. He will go away from here having, I believe, the love and esteem of every member of this Senate; and with these few brief, imperfect remarks, I desire to second the resolution. (Applause).

The resolution was unanimously adopted by a rising vote, and the Secretary announced its passage to the President, who responded as follows:

Fellow Senators: It is with mingled feelings of gratitude and pleasure that I rise to thank you, and to assure you that I appreciate fully all of the sentiments so kindly expressed, both in resolutions which have been passed, and in the remarks that have been made. Indeed, I can hardly feel myself worthy of them. When I first entered, and with some timidity, upon my duties as your presiding officer, I relied upon your leniency, your indulgence and your co-operation. It was a confidence not misplaced; for I have received from you all of these in the highest degree. It has been your conduct and not mine that has facilitated the business of this body and kept perfect harmony among its members.

At this time it seems to me especially fitting that I tender my most sincere thanks to our secretary, Mr. Dunbar, for his invaluable assistance to this body, and especially to myself. Ever on duty, painstaking, fully equipped in his knowledge of parliamentary law, and in the duties of his office, he has ever been anxious to assist me as if it were more than a pleasure to him to do so.

Mr. Lovejoy, our messenger, has also administered to our wants with his long accustomed fidelity and care; and I hope it may be many years before any Senate will have occasion to miss his kind words and his good work.

To the other subordinates of the Senate, who have performed their duties so well, I also extend my thanks.

My friends, the present session has not been without its sadness. The strong hand of Death has invaded our ranks and laid its hold upon one of our members. Our loved Senator Hodsdon was taken from us. In the beautiful language of our beloved living ex-chief justice upon the death of another dear friend of mine: "God touched him, and he slept." It was my pleasure to have served with Senator Hodsdon in the last Maine Senate. Our acquaintance ripened into a very warm friendship; and with you I grieve that we have lost a good friend and an able and noble senator. The tributes paid to him upon the floor of this Senate were none too high, and no monuments of bronze or of marble are necessary to ever keep bright our happy recollections of him.

We are, my friends, at the close of a very busy session. Hind-sight is better than foresight; and in future years we shall be better able to criticise our work. Perfection in legislation we cannot now expect to attain; but yet I wish to congratulate you all upon your work well done, for I think it will well compare with that of any legislature.

You have provided additional revenue for the State, and I trust have judged wisely and with proper economy, considering our increasing needs from the times of many years ago.

We shall all be glad to go to our homes, and yet there is sort of a feeling of sorrow at the parting. Let that feeling of sorrow be placed one side, and let its place be filled with the feeling that we shall continually be meeting each other in the daily walks of life, and renewing the acquaintances and the friendships here formed. For my own part, the pleasure will be mine to meet each one of you often.

And now, my friends, as the time for adjournment grows nearer, I desire to extend to you my thanks for your kindness and courtesy to me; and wish you a safe and happy return to your homes, the highest degree of prosperity and every blessing which God can bestow; may the ties and the friendships here formed, be so strong that they can never be rent asunder. (Great applause).

Mr. BUCK of Hancock, presented the following resolution:

Resolved, That the thanks of the Senate be extended to Walter B. Clarke, assistant secretary ; Charles H. Lovejoy, messenger ; James F. Ashford, assistant messenger ; S. A. Holden, postmaster, and all other officers of the Senate, for the faithful and courteous performance of their duties during the present session of the legislature.

Resolved, That the thanks of the Senate be extended to the official reporter of the body, for the remarkably accurate and complete reports he has made of its proceedings.

Mr. PEIRCE of Waldo, presented the following resolution :

Resolved, That the thanks of the Senate be extended to the representatives of the press, who have been in attendance upon our sessions, for the correct reports they have made of our doings, and the justness and fairness of their comments thereon.

The several resolutions were read and unanimously adopted.

Mr. VIRGIN of Cumberland said :

Mr. President: The last legislative day of the seventieth legislature is drawing to a close as the sun approaches the western horizon ; and before another day's dawn the last bill will have been enacted, and the last resolve of this legislature will have been finally passed ; and we are reminded that, having performed fully our duties, we are about to part, and possibly not to meet in this hall again.

When the legislature convened, and it devolved upon this body to select its presiding officer, there was no uncertainty in the minds of any of the Senate as to who would be the choice for that position. We believed that you, Mr. President, whom we chose to lead us as presiding officer would fill the office in the impartial manner that has characterized all your acts. We remembered your illustrious sire, who graced not only the halls of this legislature, but the national halls of legislation and filled so ably the vice-presidential chair, and we now believe his mantle has fallen upon your shoulders. We have been satisfied, and more than satisfied with the way in which you have conducted the affairs of the office. From the time your gavel first called us to order until it shall dismiss us finally, there has not been one thing in the current of events in this body that has aroused any unkindly feeling, but as a whole, and in every way our deliberations have been harmonious.

We realized, sometimes, that we had only one member of the Democratic party here, and we wondered what would happen if we had had more; but I will say for the sole senator of that party, that he has conducted his cause ably and he has voted intelligently from his own standpoint.

As we are about to part, the members of the Senate desire to tender to you, Mr. President, some token of the high respect and esteem in which they hold you; and through me, they desire to present to you this beautiful gavel. When you gaze upon it, may it recall not only the features of the members of the Senate over whom you have presided, but also the kindly feelings of esteem and respect in which you have been held. (Applause).

Mr. VIRGIN sent to the desk of the President a gavel of ivory and silver, in an appropriate case, and inscribed as follows:

"Presented to
Hon. Hannibal E. Hamlin, President, by
Members of the Maine Senate,
70th Legislature."

The President responded as follows:

Fellow Senators: I again thank you for your kindness to me, and especially for this beautiful gift with which I have been presented. I thank you also, for the kindly spirit in which I know it has been given; and I assure you, one and all, that these gifts will ever be a constant reminder of the pleasant and loving associations that have been thrown about my life during the present session of this Senate. (Great applause).

On motion by Mr. VIRGIN of Cumberland,

Ordered, That the gavel which has been wielded so wisely and impartially by President Hamlin, be presented to him as a further mark of our admiration and esteem.

Which was read and passed unanimously by a rising vote.

At 5.30 o'clock P. M., on motion by Mr. WEEKS of Somerset, the Senate took a recess until 9 o'clock P. M.

RULES.

1. The president shall take the chair at the time to which the senate stands adjourned; but in case of his absence at such time, the secretary shall preside until a president pro tempore be chosen.

2. At the first session of each day, on the appearance of a quorum, the journal of the preceding day shall be read; and the president shall ascertain whether a quorum is present before such reading.

3. When the president speaks he shall address the senate; when a senator speaks he shall stand in his place and address the president.

4. The president, when he speaks to any member of the senate, and the members, when referring to each other in debate, shall use in their addresses the title of senator, and by way of distinction name the county in which he resides.

5. The president shall have the right to name a senator to perform the duties of the chair during his absence; but the substitution shall not extend beyond an adjournment.

6. The president shall rise to put a question, and shall declare all votes, but if any senator doubt the vote, all those voting in the affirmative, when called upon by the president, shall rise and stand until they are counted, and also those in the negative, in like manner, to make the vote certain.

7. The president shall consider a motion to adjourn as always first in order, and it shall be decided without debate.

8. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received but to adjourn, to reconsider, to lay on the table, to postpone to a day certain, to commit, to amend, or to postpone indefinitely; which several motions shall have precedence in the order in which they stand arranged.

9. A motion shall be reduced to writing, if desired by the president or any senator, and shall then be deemed to be in possession of the senate, to be disposed of by the senate; but the mover may withdraw it at any time before the decision, or any amendment be made to it.

10. No senator shall address the senate until recognized by the president, nor more than once to the exclusion of any other senator, without leave of the senate, if objection is made, unless he be the mover of the matter under debate, and not then more than three times without leave.

11. No motion or proposition on a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted under color of amendment; nor shall an amendment proposing to ingraft a general provision of law upon a private bill be in order; nor any amendment beyond the second degree.

12. An amendment proposed may be amended before it is adopted, but not afterwards, unless the vote adopting it be first reconsidered, and no senator shall be competent to move any reconsideration unless he voted with the majority and upon the same or a succeeding day; and a motion to reconsider any vote shall not be laid upon the table unless a time shall be specially assigned for its consideration.

13. A motion to reconsider shall take precedence of all other questions except a motion to adjourn, but if made while another question is pending, it shall not be put until the other question is disposed of, but simply entered.

14. Questions of order shall be decided by the president without debate; but if an appeal is taken, the same may be debated like other questions, and the decision thereon shall be entered upon the journal.

15. A question containing two or more propositions capable of division shall be divided whenever desired by any member.

16. In filling up blanks, the largest sum and longest time shall be put first.

17. Every paper shall be once read at the table before any senator shall be obliged to vote on it, but when the reading of a paper is called for, that has been before read to the senate, if any senator object, the question shall be determined by the senate.

18. All bills and resolves in the second reading shall be committed to the committee on bills in the second reading, to be by them examined, corrected, and so reported to the senate.

19. Upon a second reading of a bill or resolve, after the same shall be read through, and before the question is put on its passage, it shall be read and considered by paragraphs, at the request of any member of the senate; and no bill or resolve shall have a second reading unless a time (not less than one hour after the first reading) be assigned therefor.

20. No bill or resolve shall pass to be engrossed without being twice read; and all bills and resolves, immediately after the same shall have been engrossed, shall be committed to the committee on engrossed bills, whose duties shall be to examine the same, and to see that the same have been truly engrossed; and before any bill shall pass to be enacted, or any resolve be finally passed, it shall be reported by the committee for the examination of engrossed bills to be truly and strictly engrossed, and the title thereof be read by the president.

21. No resolve of any kind, or order making any grant of money, lands, or other public property shall be passed without being read on two several days; the time for the second reading shall be assigned by the senate.

22. After the reading of the journal, the following shall be the order of business:

1st. House papers not acted upon; and if accompanied by a bill or resolve, the first reading of such bill or resolve.

7th. Bills and resolves reported by the committee on bills in the second reading.

8th. Bills on their passage to be enacted, and resolves on their final passage.

9th. Orders of the day.

It shall be the duty of the secretary to number bills and resolves in the order in which they shall be reported by said committee, and enter them upon the calendar in such order. They shall be taken up for their second reading and passage to be engrossed, or other disposition, in the order in which they stand upon the calendar. When a bill or resolve, after it is put on the calendar, is laid on the table, and no time assigned for its further consideration, it shall go to the foot of the calendar as it then stands. Papers from the House, concerning which there has been a disagreeing vote of the two houses, shall be disposed of before commencing with the calendar. This rule shall not apply to or interfere with motions to reconsider, or special assignments or other privileged questions.

23. When the yeas and nays are taken, the names of the senators shall be called alphabetically.

24. After a question is put to vote, no senator shall speak on it. Every senator who may be present shall vote unless excused by the senate, or excluded by interest.

25. The unfinished business, in which the senate was engaged at the time of the last adjournment, shall have precedence in the orders of the day.

26. No engrossed bill or resolve shall be sent to the house without notice thereof being given to the senate by the president.

27. Every member who shall present a petition shall place his name thereon and a brief statement of its subject.

28. All confidential communications made by the governor to the senate, shall be by the members thereof kept inviolably sacred until the senate shall by their resolution take off the injunction of secrecy.

29. No rule shall be dispensed with, except by the consent of two-thirds of the members present.

30. Any member of the senate may exchange seats on consulting the president and obtaining his permission.

31. No member shall absent himself from the senate without leave, unless there be a quorum left present.

35. All messages from the senate to the house, and to the governor, or governor and council, shall be carried by the secretary, unless the senate shall direct some other mode of transmission, and all papers shall be transmitted to the governor and council and the house by the secretary or his assistant.

36. The senate may at any time, upon motion, by a vote of a majority of the members present, resolve itself into a committee of the whole for the purpose of considering any subject named in the motion; and a chairman shall be appointed by the president. If a message is announced while the senate is in such committee, the president shall resume the chair for the purpose of receiving it; immediately after which the committee shall proceed, until dissolved in the usual manner.

37. The rules of parliamentary practice comprised in Reed's Rules, and Cushing's Law and Practice of Legislative Assemblies, shall govern the senate in all cases to which they are applicable, and in which they are not inconsistent with the standing rules of the senate, or of the joint rules of the two houses.

A motion to strike out being lost, shall neither preclude amendments, nor a motion to strike out and insert.

33. In filling blanks and assigning times for the consideration of business, the largest sum and longest time shall be put first.

34. When a proposition consists of several paragraphs or sections, amendment of one of them shall not preclude amendment of a prior paragraph or section.

35. No motion or proposition on a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted under color of amendment.

36. After a motion or order is stated or read by the speaker, and seconded, it shall be regarded as in the possession of the house, and shall be disposed of by vote of the house. But any motion or order may be withdrawn by the mover at any time before a decision or amendment, except a motion to reconsider, which shall not be withdrawn except by consent of the house.

37. Every motion shall be reduced to writing, if required by the speaker or by any member.

38. No member shall be permitted to lay a motion in writing on the table, until he shall have read the same in his place.

39. When a vote having been declared by the speaker, is doubted, the members for and against the question, when called on by the speaker, shall rise and stand till they are counted, and the vote made certain without further debate. But a call for the yeas and nays shall be in order at any time before such a vote is made certain and declared.

40. When a motion has once been made and carried in the affirmative or negative, it shall not be in order for any member who voted in the minority to move a reconsideration thereof; but any member who voted with the majority, or in the negative on a tie vote, may move to reconsider on the same or succeeding day. A motion to reconsider shall not be postponed or laid on the table without a certain time assigned for its further consideration. When a motion for reconsideration has been decided, the vote shall not be reconsidered. A motion to reconsider shall not be in order more than once on the same question.

41. When a member shall move, or give notice of his intention to move, a reconsideration of any vote, the papers to which the motion relates shall remain in possession of the clerk until the question of reconsideration shall have been decided, or the right to move such a question is lost.

42. In all elections by ballot, of the house, a time shall be assigned for such election, at least one day previous thereto.

43. When the reading of a paper is called for which has been before read to the house, and the same is objected to by any member, the question of reading shall be determined by a vote of the house.

44. Every question of order which shall be decided on appeal shall be entered on the journal of the house with the decision thereon.

45. A proposition to require the opinion of the judges of the supreme court, as provided by the constitution, shall not be acted upon until the next day after such proposition is made.

46. All petitions, memorials and other papers, addressed to the house, shall be presented by the speaker, or by a member in his place, and shall be endorsed with the name of the person presenting it, and the subject matter of the same. They shall be read by the speaker, clerk, or such other person as the speaker may request, and shall be taken up in the order they were first presented, unless the house shall otherwise direct.

47. All bills in their third reading, and resolves in their second reading shall be committed to the standing committee on bills in the third reading, to be by them examined and corrected.

48. All resolves appropriating money or land, shall have their second reading on Wednesday of the week following that of their first reading.

49. All engrossed bills and resolves shall be committed to the standing committee on engrossed bills to be strictly examined; and if found by them to be truly and strictly engrossed, they shall so report to the house, and the question shall be taken without any further reading, unless on motion of any member, a majority of the house shall be in favor of reading the same as engrossed.

50. Every bill or resolve, providing for the grant of money, land, or other public property, which may be laid on the table by leave, and any report of a committee upon any bill or resolve providing for such grant, shall be accompanied by a written statement of facts in each case; and no such bill or resolve shall be considered before such statement is made, or pass without being read on two several days.

51. No new bill or resolve of a public nature shall be received, except it be reported by a committee, unless the house otherwise order; and all bills and resolves not reported by a committee, shall be laid upon the table for one day, before further action thereon.

52. No act or resolve shall be passed affecting the rights of individuals or corporations, without previous notice to such individuals or corporations.

53. No bill shall pass to be engrossed until it shall have had three several readings; the time for the second and third readings shall be assigned by the house; but if no objection is made, the second reading may be by the title, and at the time of the first. Every resolve which shall require the approval of the governor, shall have two several readings; and the second reading shall be subject to the provisions of the third reading of bills.

54. No engrossed bill or resolve shall be sent to the senate, without notice thereof being given to the house by the speaker.

55. When a bill or resolve shall be returned by the governor with his objections, the question shall be stated by the chair, Shall this bill become a law notwithstanding the objections of the governor? and the same in substance in case of a resolve; which question may be postponed to a day within the session, not exceeding one week, or may be committed. But no other question shall apply to bills and resolves originating in either branch.

56. The rules of parliamentary practice comprised in Reed's Rules shall govern the house in all cases to which they are applicable, and in which they are not inconsistent with the standing rules and orders of the house, and the joint rules of the senate and house of representatives.

57. No rule or order of the house shall be dispensed with, unless two-thirds of the members present shall consent thereto.

58. No rule or order of the house shall be altered or repealed, nor shall any new standing rule or order be adopted, unless one day's previous notice thereof be given in each case; and such notice shall be entered on the journal.
