STATEMENT OF FACT

On or about November 10, 1973, the Bureau of Aeronautics was conducting a construction project in the area immediately in front of the Augusta Airport Terminal Building. The project involved the island and roadway between the building and a public street leading to Western Avenue.

Genevieve St. Amand had arrived at the airport on the evening in question a short while before the incident occurred and was walking away from the building toward a parked car when she stumbled over the excavated area and fell to the ground thereby suffering extensive personal injuries. No protective barriers, adequate lighting or other safeguards were present to warn passersby of the presence of dangers.

Romeo St. Amand, husband of Genevieve St. Amand seeks to join this action as party Plaintiff to recover medical expense and loss of consortium.
