- 3. Fees for services. Nothing in this section prevents a propane dealer from charging a reasonable fee to a consumer to remove a tank that the propane dealer owns or from charging a reasonable fee to a consumer to pump out propane remaining in a tank owned by the consumer or the propane dealer upon the termination of an agreement.'

Amend the bill by relettering or renumbering any nonconsecutive Part letter or section number to read consecutively.

SUMMARY

This amendment replaces the bill. It provides that, upon the termination of an agreement between a propane dealer and a consumer, when the consumer has paid for the propane in the tank and when the consumer owns the propane tank, the propane dealer must allow the consumer to use the remaining propane. At the request of the consumer, the propane dealer must pump out the remaining propane from the consumer's tank and must compensate the consumer at a rate equal to the market price of the propane on the date that the agreement is terminated or the price that the consumer paid for the propane, whichever is less.

The amendment also provides that, upon the termination of an agreement between a propane dealer and a consumer, when the consumer has paid for the propane in the tank and when the propane dealer owns the propane tank, the propane dealer must provide the consumer with the option of either using the remaining propane within 90 days of termination of the agreement or receiving compensation from the dealer for the propane remaining in the tank at a rate equal to the market price of the propane on the date that the agreement is terminated or the price that the consumer paid for the propane, whichever is less. If there is propane remaining in the tank after more than 90 days have passed following the date of termination of the agreement, the propane dealer, upon reasonable advance notice to the consumer, may pump out the propane remaining in the tank and remove the tank. The propane dealer must compensate the consumer for the remaining propane at a rate equal to the market price of the propane on the date that the agreement is terminated or at the price that the consumer paid for the propane, whichever is less.

The amendment includes language making clear that a propane dealer is not prevented from charging a reasonable fee to a consumer to remove a tank that the propane dealer owns or from charging a reasonable fee to a consumer to pump out propane remaining in a tank owned by the consumer or the propane dealer upon the termination of an agreement.
