Chapter 171.

Resolve in relation to Bliss' new decimal system of weights, measures and currency.

WHEREAS, Moses B. Bliss of Pittston, in this state, is the author of a uniform decimal system of weights, measures and currency, which is simple, concise and convenient, based upon a natural and familiar standard, and superior to the French "metric system" in the opinion of the most eminent scientific men of the country, a brief exposition of which system is hereunto annexed; therefore

Senators and representatives
in congress,
instructed to take measures
for repeal of the "metric system."

Resolved, That our senators and representatives in congress be and they hereby are requested to take such measures as seem to them best calculated to secure the repeal of all laws relating to said "metric system," passed at the first session of the thirtieth congress, in order that citizens of our country may have an opportunity to urge the claims of schemes which seem to them better calculated to meet the wants of the people.

Resolved, That a printed copy of these resolutions be forwarded to each of our senators and representatives in congress, to the chairman of the congressional committee on weights, measures and coins, and to the governor of each state of the Union.

Approved March 1, 1867.
