The PRESIDENT: Referring to that section of the calendar where reference is made to Joint Order (H. P. 43), the cloture order, the Chair would note that prior to the imposition of cloture with respect to both private and special and public laws that some senators may have taken from the office of the Revisor of Statutes certain bills and may not have placed those bills in the hopper. The Chair would note that under the Joint Order the Revisor of Statutes is required to file lists of bills still in his office and not yet completed. That would rather automatically exclude and impose unanimous consent on any bills that are still in senator's pockets. If such bills are in your desks or in your pockets and if they do have the endorsement of the Director of Legislative Research on them, it is the Chair's impression that the Director of Legislative Research will not file his list until four o'clock this afternoon. It is also the Chair's impression that if those bills are taken in there the Director of Legislative Research may include them on his list. Such action will preclude the difficulty of adjudicating the question wherein a senator states in honesty and fairness that he had a bill before cloture, did not put it in, and yet the order itself would clearly indicate that the bill would be under the unanimous consent restriction if not put in. Thus if any senator has such a bill, it is suggested that the Senator disclose that fact to the Revisor of Statutes.
