STATE OF MAINE.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
Augusta, December 31, 1877. }

To His Excellency SELDEN CONNOR,

Governor and Commander-in-Chief:

SIR:—I have the honor to herewith transmit my report as Adjutant General, Acting Quartermaster and Paymaster General, for the year ending December 31, 1877.

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

J. P. CILLEY,

Adjutant General.

REPORT.

The military force of the State has been increased during the year by the organization, under act of the Legislature approved February 8, 1877, of a company of infantry at Gardiner, known as the Richards Light Infantry, and is now organized as follows: One regiment, composed of ten companies, three unattached companies, and one section of artillery.

The number of enlisted men of infantry are.....	770
The number of enlisted men of light artillery are.....	45
The number of commissioned officers, including the division staff, are.....	58

Total of officers and enlisted men 873

This aggregate differs from last year in showing a gain of thirteen in the total.

The force of High School Cadets has been increased by the organization of one company, known as Company C., Connor Cadets, and now numbers as follows :

Company A, Bath High School	55
“ B, Waterville High School.....	40
“ C, Augusta High School.....	36

Total, including officers..... 131

The commanding officers of these three companies met as a board at the Capitol, April 4, 1877, in accordance with Special Order No. 6, and adopted a uniform similar to that used by the Cadets in the State Agricultural College. It is a neat and appropriate uniform, suitable to wear at school and on public occasions. Its cost is not large, as each company can make advantageous contracts with their local tailors.

Some of the companies, by entertainments and exhibition drills, have procured funds to aid a portion of the members in procuring uniforms.

From all I can learn, I am assured that these cadet organizations have been promotive of many good results, and I have failed to learn of any detriment to the young men or the schools from their organization. In Bath it has increased the attendance of the boys at the high school. It has counteracted the stooping position induced by study and bending over books. It has promoted good order and a right understanding of the necessity and manliness of obedience. It has induced out-door exercise. It has given a knowledge of and a taste for military tactics among the best class of young men in our State that the nation may hereafter, if necessity demands it, draw from for its protection and safety.

I trust the coming year will see more companies of cadets organized among the scholars of our high schools in our cities.

ENCAMPMENT.

The annual encampment took place by order of General Chamberlain, on the Capitol grounds and the adjoining field, at Augusta, August 20th to 25th, inclusive.

To meet a desire on the part of the militia to continue the annual encampment a period of six days instead of four, and at the same time to keep within the limits and purposes of the Legislative appropriation, a circular was sent July 10, 1877, to each company, to ascertain if they would agree to accept four days' pay for an encampment commencing Monday and closing Saturday of the same week. The favorable response received to this circular led to the issue of General Order No. 5, directing the encampment to be held six days, at such time and place as Major General Chamberlain may direct. The only increased expense to the State from the longer encampment was the cost of two days' rations.

The excessive heat during a portion of the time required the suspension of the drill in the middle of the day, but notwithstanding this, the troops never improved more in drill and manœuvre than during this year's encampment. I ascribe this to the attention paid to battalion evolutions.

It was a marked feature of the encampment to notice the study devoted to tactics and discussions on the subject, among the officers. These discussions were virtually officers' schools, and as uniform execution of movements at drills and ceremonies depend upon uniform understanding of the tactics, their value was apparent. Each company before coming to muster should be proficient in all that relates to the school of the company. The time of encampment, necessarily short, is the only opportunity to exercise in the school of the battalion, and should be devoted to a thorough discussion and mastery of its manœuvres, and not wasted in company movements or employed too largely in reviews.

Another marked feature of the encampment was the speedy punishment of disorderly conduct, by dishonorable discharge from the service. The effect of this, I judge, will be apparent in the next encampment. I urge upon the attention of both officers and men the imperative necessity of gentlemanly and soldierly conduct, and the quick exposure and punishment of anything that will mar the efficiency and fair name of the Maine militia, and doing this I urge upon our legislators that encampments and field manœuvres are absolutely necessary to the efficiency of our militia service.

The presence of the battalion of Coburn Cadets from the State Agricultural College, under the command of Major Francis L. Hills, and the cadets from the High Schools of Waterville and Augusta, added much to the interest of the encampment. Their steadiness at dress parade and in line was noticed by all, and right well deserved the praise it received.

The troops were reviewed Thursday afternoon by General Chamberlain, and Friday afternoon by Governor Connor, and showed in their marching and bearing the good results of their instruction and drill in camp.

The report of Brig. Gen. Tilden, Inspector General, is referred to as showing more fully the duties performed, and the condition and discipline of the troops.

TARGET PRACTICE.

To encourage and promote accuracy of firing, rendered especially necessary by the length of range of the Springfield rifle musket, and the temptation a breech loading gun presents for wasting ammunition, General Order No. 2 was issued March 30, 1877, and Sections III and IV of General Order No. 3, issued April 9, 1877, gave further instruction on the subject.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S REPORT.

The State generously offered to issue 1,000 rounds to each company of the volunteer militia, but I regret to say that only six companies, less than one-half of those organized, made requisition for the 1,000 rounds. All of these six companies, with the exception of Company A, 1st Regiment, (Portland Light Infantry) made the returns to this office, called for by Section 11 of General Order No. 2, which have been tabulated as follows :

The difficulty of procuring suitable ranges and preparing them, prevented many of the companies from target practice. The necessity of securing a range where no danger can result from stray shots, and where ample protection is secured for the marker, has been strongly urged on the attention of the officers of the several companies. Section 95 of chapter 307 of the laws of 1865, declares that "Mayors and aldermen and selectmen shall provide suitable places for the parade, target practice and drill of the militia belonging to their respective cities and towns." Only a few of the towns and cities of the State have complied with the provisions of this law.

Wingate's revised manual of Rifle Practice was adopted for the instruction of the militia of this State, and a copy was supplied to each company by this office. Uniformity and the best method of practice was thus secured. It is hoped that the militia by attention to that part of the manual which relates to the sighting, aim and candle practice, in the drill room during the evening drills of winter, will prepare themselves so as to reap the full advantage of the out-door practice of summer, and prevent the waste of ammunition that a want of knowledge in the elementary principles of firing always occasions.

LAW.

The law governing the Militia with the exception of a few amendments, was enacted in 1865 ; and for some reason not now necessary to explain, was left out of the recent edition of the revised statutes. The printed copies of the Act have all been distributed. It should be re-enacted and made applicable to the present condition of the militia. Much of the law is now a dead letter. It should conform, as far as practicable, with the United States' rules.

Massachusetts and New Hampshire have, by a commission of skilled officers, secured a simple and practicable code, and I would renew the recommendation of last year, that a commission be appointed by the Governor to digest and submit a similar system to the Legislature for their action.

CLERKS.

The clerical force of the office has been increased by one clerk, whose time has been largely employed in copying historical memoranda, collected under authority of the Resolve approved February 23, 1876, but who has also assisted in the general work of the office, so that the business of the office has not suffered the inconvenience and delays occasioned by the reduction of the force last year.

HISTORICAL MEMORANDA OF THE WAR OF 1861.

The resolve approved February 23, 1876, was specially designed to encourage the writing of regimental histories of Maine soldiers who served in the war of the rebellion, and authorizes this office "to collect diaries or obtain copies of them, letters, personal accounts and incidents of the battle field, camp and hospital, or any other interesting and valuable material for army history, and to arrange and index all such matter and data under the name of the regiment to which it may appertain."

This office has received and duly recorded and indexed by every name mentioned, by dates and incidents, diaries and letters, from the following named soldiers: Sergt. Major William M. Hathorn, making 160 record pages concerning the 4th Maine Infantry, and 30 pages for the 19th Maine Infantry; Ansel Small, 44 pages for the 3d Maine Battery; Col. J. W. Welch, 105 pages for the 19th Maine Infantry, and J. P. Cilley 37 pages for the 1st Maine Cavalry.

In addition to the above, the following printed matter has been received: The address of Col. J. W. Spaulding, at the reunion of the 19th Maine Infantry at Bath, Aug. 25, 1874. An interesting account in the form of a story, of Capt. A. M. Benson's, of the 1st Maine Cavalry, capture, experience of prison life and escape. A letter from S. H. Bryant, Co. C, 1st Maine Cavalry, dated Warranton Junction, May 5, 1862, and the poem of Elizabeth Akers Allen, "Florence Percy" called forth by seeing Gen. Comor, as he lay suffering from his wound received in the battle of the Wilderness.

Some of the accounts of battle scenes and army life, particularly in letters written at the time and on the field, contain as it were a perfect photograph of what the writer saw; narrow it may be, as no one could see the whole, but clear and distinct, as far as the writer's vision extended. These vivid and distinct views, when placed in harmonious connection by the hand of an able writer, will form the most perfect and fascinating picture of the whole that can be painted. In every branch of literature that may touch, even incidentally, the terrible struggle for national life, these original and vivid pictures of pain, struggle, victory, passion and power, will come in play. In song and story they will bud and blossom; in biography, genealogies, town and local histories, and in the written record of the nation, they will bear fruit.

It is the duty that the soldiers of Maine owe to their several regiments and organizations, to their generation and to the demand of coming years, that the record of what they saw, suffered and personally knew, should be complete and accurate.

The more vivid pictures of the army life are frequently contained in letters to one's own family, containing sometimes personal matters that the writer would not care to have recorded. In such cases this office only copies such parts as pertain to the service and the occasion, and which the writer would be willing to have placed on record.

To meet the object of the above resolve, which must commend itself to every soldier of this State, they are requested to forward to this office by express at the expense of the State, or as they prefer, all such diaries, letters or material that may aid regimental histories, or preserve the facts and incidents of the rebellion.

STATE PENSIONS.

The amount appropriated for State pensions the present year was.....	$25,000 00
The amount expended during the year for pensions	23,658 00
Balance.....	$1,342 00

From this balance was paid the necessary expenses of medical examinations, copies from the U. S. Pension Agents of the pensions allowed by the United States during the year, and records of the war of 1812.

The number of applications received since the first of January last is as follows, viz:

From invalid soldiers and seamen.....	305
widows.....	290
fathers	16

From mothers.....	149
sisters.....	4
guardians of orphan children.....	17
guardians of adult persons.....	13
	<hr/>
Total received.....	794

The number allowed is as follows :

To invalids.....	255
widows.....	257
fathers.....	13
mothers.....	135
sisters.....	4
guardians of orphan children.....	10
	<hr/>
Total allowed.....	687
Not allowed.....	107

Of those to whom pensions have been allowed during the year the following number have died :

Invalids.....	9
Widows.....	2
Mothers.....	3
Total.....	15

Certificates have been issued during the year for the reimbursement of cities and towns for advances to pensioners as follows :

In the year 1875.....	$120 00
" 1876.....	18,434 00
" 1877.....	4,020 00

The unusual number of new applications received this year gives evidence that the depression of business still continues, and the constant recurring statement that "no opportunity for work can be found" shows that in any competition for work the stronger and able bodied will have the preference, while the disabled and injured applicants are rejected.

I recommend the same appropriation as last year.

This office is frequently blamed for not granting pensions, where the selectmen recommend in the strongest manner the need of a pension, but neglect to present evidence that the disability under which the soldier labors or had died was caused by his military service.

There is a prevalent feeling in the State, founded, it may be, on a sense of natural justice, which would prevent the widow, child or dependent mother of a soldier, or any soldier, from becoming an object of public or private charity; but the law, with a firmer justice and perhaps a truer charity, requires the soldier's disabilities or death should have been incident to the service and incurred in the line of duty.

The numerous applicants who have received no pension from the United States, or whose claims have long been pending before the Pension Office at Washington, present very delicate and perplexing questions. As a rule my decisions incline to the side of charity, but with an honest endeavor to exclude all unnecessary or doubtful cases from the beneficence of the State.

Too great care cannot be exercised by the municipal authorities of the different towns and cities in personally investigating the circumstances of each applicant, and fully and clearly stating all the facts of each claim.

The following schedule shows the amount which has been allowed in each city, town and plantation, on applications made within the year :

J. P. CILLEY, Adjutant General.

MAJOR GENERAL'S REPORT.

HEADQUARTERS 1ST DIVISION }
Militia of Maine, }
December 23, 1877. }

GENERAL J. P. CILLEY, Adjutant General:

SIR:—In compliance with the request with which you have honored me, to present, in addition to the returns required by law, such other statements as appear to me proper, I submit a brief notice of the encampment held this year at Augusta, on the third week in August.

The encampment continued six days, the several commands volunteering to give two days of service without pay, beyond the four days prescribed by law. The week was spent chiefly in the practice of movements of larger masses than are ordinarily brought together, and in the endeavor to acquire familiarity with the methods and duties of camp. The occasion was perhaps as successful as any we have had.

The First Regiment was ably handled by Colonel Mattocks, who used his well-known energy and strictness to improve the occasion to the best degree.

The 2d Battalion, formed for the time being of the unattached companies, the Montgomery Guards, the Biddeford Light Infantry and the Richards Light Infantry, was in charge of Captain O'Donoghue, who showed himself an accomplished field officer.

The 3d Battalion, composed of the Cadets invited to participate in the encampment, the Coburn Cadets from the Agricultural College, High School Cadets of Waterville and the Connor Cadets of Augusta, added to the interest of the occasion, and won a good share of the praise bestowed on the various commands for good conduct and military bearing. They were under the charge of Major Hills, late of the United States army, whose earnest co-operation in all that had to be done or suffered for the welfare of the encampment I have special occasion to mention.

The Battery of Light Artillery had an unusual experience in being able to come out mounted, and considering the difficulty of managing strange horses, unused even to working together anywhere, Lieut. Mennealy succeeded in executing his field manœuvres with good success. His battery showed that it was well cared for.

There are possibly some advantages in holding the encampments in various parts of the State; but in my opinion these are outweighed by the advantage, for the strict purposes of the encampment as well as in a pecuniary point of view, of some central place being made the property of the State, where our military equipage might be stored, and a suitable field afforded for all purposes of camp and field exercises.

I may be permitted to refer to the especial reasons I have for feeling a deep interest in the effective and honorable character of the small force which constitutes the active militia of Maine. The ends held in view when this force was first organized have been in a good measure attained. Still much more might be done, and ought to be. The addition of several unattached companies makes our present organization unnatural, and the proper forms of proceeding and proper conduct of drill and discipline are greatly embarrassed on account of this. Even the spirit of old comradeship and good will but partly overcomes the evil.

As I have heretofore on several occasions given my views of what was desirable, and in fact essential, for the best interests of our military, and the best expenditure of the funds appropriated for that service, I have only so far as this is concerned to beg permission to refer to the suggestions of my previous reports. It is unnecessary to cumber your files with repetitions, and it appears to me only necessary to renew my earnest recommendation that a Board be appointed, composed of persons who have a good knowledge of law, and also a practical acquaintance with military affairs, to revise our entire militia law, with a view to simplification, practicability and conformity to the systems now in force in neighboring States, and as far as possible to the regulations of the United States army.

I had hoped in the course of these years to be able to see the military property of the State gathered up or properly accounted for, and especially to bring the volunteer militia of this State into a more effective condition. It has not been in my power to complete this work, and possibly it has not been expected of me. Nearly all that has been accomplished in the latter direction I owe to the gentlemen of my staff, who are competent and experienced officers. They have rendered their services practically without pay, as it is well known that the expenses of such positions very much exceed any pay or allowance attached to them.

I have the honor to be,

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

JOSHUA L. CHAMBERLAIN,

Major General.

INSPECTOR GENERAL'S REPORT.

CASTINE, Sept. 20, 1877.

GENERAL J. P. CILLEY,

Adjutant General of Maine:

SIR:—In accordance with General Orders No. 6, Adjutant General's Office, August 10th, 1877, I have the honor to report, that I attended the encampment of the First Division of Militia of Maine, holden at Augusta, commencing the 20th and terminating the 25th of August.

During the forenoon of the first day ordered for the encampment, all of the companies of the First Regiment of Infantry, under command of Col. C. P. Mattocks, together with the unassigned companies of Biddeford Light Infantry, Montgomery Guards and Richards Light Infantry, numbering five hundred and seventy-one men, also the two companies of Cadets from the State College at Orono, the Waterville High School Cadets, and the Connor Cadets of the Augusta High School, having accepted an invitation to participate in the encampment, numbering one hundred and forty-four, reported for duty, and were assigned to their several positions in line.

On the third day of the encampment, the strength of the command was increased by the arrival of the Androscoggin Light Artillery, numbering thirty-three officers and men, Lieut. Thomas B. Mennealy, commanding.

The grounds selected were well located for the comfort of the troops, with sufficient room for nearly all the different evolutions of the command.

The Cadets, being without tents, were furnished with quarters in the State House at night, but were unprotected while off duty during the first four days of the encampment, subjecting them to some inconvenience from exposure to the hot sun ; aside from this, ample arrangements were made for the comfort of all the troops.

Two battalions were formed of the unassigned infantry companies and companies of cadets ; the companies of infantry commanded by Capt. D. O'C. O'Donoghue of the Montgomery Guards, and the companies of cadets under command of Maj. Francis L. Hills of the Maine State College.

From four to five hours each day were devoted to battalion drill, inspection and reviews, and the amount of military duty performed was large. It seemed to be the desire of the officers and men of the command to make this encampment a success, which was noticeable from day to day in the promptness and proficiency in executing the different evolutions. Many of the movements would do credit to troops of longer service and more experience in military. Guard mounting was very well performed, but the smallness of the command would not admit of instruction in this direction without drawing too largely from the number required for the other duties. To establish a proper guard around the camp would have required nearly half the strength of the command.

The reviews by the Commander-in-Chief and Major Gen. Chamberlain, on the fourth and fifth days of the encampment, were well executed, and it was apparent that all were interested in making this part of the duty interesting to the large number assembled in the vicinity of the encampment.

The order and discipline of the camp were good ; but little of an objectionable character noticed. The police of the camp was looked after closely, and the grounds and company quarters at all times presented a clean and orderly appearance. The inspection of arms and equipments was made on the fifth day of the encampment, and were found in most of the companies to be in good condition.

The uniforms of some of the companies were in poor condition, having been in service five years ; while others were in good repair. As some of the companies will be entitled, under the present law, to new uniforms the coming year, it is hoped that an appropriation sufficient to cover this expense will be made, in addition to the amount required for an encampment of the troops.

Too much cannot be said in praise of the interest displayed by officers and men in the discharge of their duties, and the interest manifested to avail themselves of the opportunity of becoming proficient in military. The fact that many of the men composing the military force of the State were willing to leave their business and devote six days for military instruction, and receive therefor compensation for four days, is evidence sufficient that they are interested in having an organization of which the State can well be proud, and for which it would seem that it should foster and care for in appropriating the small amount required for its support.

I desire to make mention of the companies of Cadets, under command of Major Hills. Their appearance on drill and soldierly bearing in camp, while bringing credit upon themselves, was a very desirable acquisition to the troops composing the First Division.

I am under great obligations to Major Gen. Chamberlain and Staff, the officers of the First Regiment and unassigned companies, for the courtesy and kindness extended me.

I have the honor to remain,

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

CHARLES W. TILDEN,

Inspector General.

REPORT OF THE INSPECTOR GENERAL ON ARMORIES, &C.

CASTINE, December 25, 1877.

GENERAL J. P. CILLEY,

Adjutant General of Maine:

SIR:—In the performance of my duties as Inspector General, I have visited the State arsenals at Portland and Bangor, also the armories of Company's A, B, C, G, H, I and K, of the First Regiment Maine Volunteer Militia, and the armories of the Biddeford Light Infantry, Montgomery Guards of Portland and Androscoggin Light Artillery of Lewiston, as per orders from the Adjutant General's office, dated October 3, 1877.

PORTLAND ARSENAL.

In my report of 1876, I alluded to this arsenal as not being a suitable place for the deposit of the military property of the State. The building is not what it should be, and the location unfavorable for keeping the property free from dampness. The property stored at this arsenal is mostly unserviceable. Everything connected with the premises, however, gave evidence that the keeper, Mr. Bigelow, was faithful in the discharge of his duties.

BANGOR ARSENAL.

This armory is in fair repair and the property well cared for. While the building cannot be considered perfectly safe for the large amount of property stored there, it has ample room for all the serviceable military property belonging to the State. Much of the property at this arsenal is unserviceable and constantly depreciating in value, and it would seem for the interest of the State that it should be sold and the proceeds applied to putting the building in good condition.

COMPANY ARMORIES.

A COMPANY—Portland Light Infantry.

The armory of this company is in good condition, and the arms and equipments in most cases well cared for. The books and records of the company were not as complete as I would like to have found them, which was satisfactorily explained by Capt. Jackson, and I have reason to believe they will be promptly completed. The financial condition of the company is good, having about one hundred dollars in the treasury.

B COMPANY—Mechanic Blues Portland.

This company retains the reputation it has always had. Everything connected with its armory was in perfect order. Arms and equipments in good condition; company books properly kept and complete. Financial condition of the company good, having one hundred and eighty dollars in the treasury.

C COMPANY—Auburn Light Infantry.

Armory in fine condition and nicely arranged for the protection of the company property. Arms and equipments in good order, and company books and records properly kept. This company has about one hundred dollars, company fund.

G COMPANY—Jameson Guards, Bangor.

The armory of this company was not in the perfect condition I had reason to expect from the good record the company has attained, and from the appearance at my former inspection. The arms and equipments, however, were in good condition, and gave evidence of proper care. Much credit is due the efficient clerk of the company for the neat appearance of the books and records of the company, which were properly kept and complete. This company is out of debt, but is without any funds in the treasury.

H COMPANY—City Guards, Belfast.

The armory of this company consists of two small rooms in Hayford Hall, where the company property is kept. In addition to these rooms they have access to the main hall once a week for drill, as per terms specified in the lease of the armory. Everything about the rooms presented a cleanly appearance, and the arms and equipments were well cared for; company books and records not complete. Capt. Sanborn assured me that they should be completed at an early day. Have no funds in the treasury.

I COMPANY—Crosby Guards, Hampden.

This company has a nice armory, and the arrangements made for the protection of the company property, the care taken of the same and the interest manifested by the officers and men, reflect credit upon the company. Company books and records are complete and properly kept. The company has no fund on hand, but is out of debt.

K COMPANY—Hersey Light Infantry, Oldtown.

The armory of this company is nicely arranged, and everything in connection with the company arms and equipments was in good condition. The company books were not fully completed. The company is out of debt, but without any company fund.

Biddeford Light Infantry.

This company has a fine armory and the company property all in good order. Company books reported to be properly kept. Has about thirty dollars in the treasury.

Montgomery Guards, Portland.

The armory of this company presented a cleanly and orderly appearance. Arms and equipments all in good condition; books and records complete. Financial condition of the company good, having about one hundred and eighty dollars on hand.

Androscoggin Light Artillery, Lewiston.

A very decided improvement was apparent in this company over the inspection of 1876. The armory, or hall used for drill, was in perfect order, and the small arms and equipments clean and in good condition. The guns of the company are kept in the same building they were in at my inspection last year, and is not a safe place for their protection. Company books not fully completed, being without the requisite number for keeping their records correctly. The company is out of debt and has about thirty dollars in the treasury.

In nearly all of the companies I found more or less unserviceable property, and in some cases arms and equipments charged in the Adjutant General's report of 1876, which the company commander (where such cases occur) report an error. I would respectfully suggest that all the property in possession of the different companies of an unserviceable character, and all surplus ordnance and stores, be ordered to be deposited at the arsenal for safe keeping.

In all the companies there seems to be a good interest manifested for the welfare of the militia of the State, and in nearly every company a very decided improvement was apparent over the appearance of the armories and equipments at my inspection last year.

The company commanders should be required to be more particular in keeping a correct record of their company affairs. Some neglect in this direction came to my notice, of which I have felt it my duty to report, hoping that such neglect will not occur in the future.

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

C. W. TILDEN,

Inspector General.

INSPECTION OF THE CADET COMPANIES.

The organized companies of cadets were inspected without expense to the State; Co. A, Bath High School Cadets, by Gen. Thomas H. Hyde, who says: "The company and State property is in good condition, and you are safe in reporting that the drill has an excellent effect upon the boys individually, and the school as a whole."

Capt. Samuel J. Gallagher inspected the Connor Cadets of the Augusta High School at their armory, and reports that the arms accoutrements are in good condition; that all their officers were present, and appeared well qualified for their positions.

The report of Dr. Atwood Crosby, who inspected the Cadets of Waterville High School, is valuable from his medical as well as military experience, and is given in full.

GENERAL CILLEY,

Sir:—In obedience to your request, I have the honor to report that I have inspected the Waterville High School Cadets, and find the number of uniforms about forty. Their arms and equipments are in excellent condition, looking nearly as well as when first received. Their discipline and intelligent appreciation of its advantages was especially pleasing. I particularly noticed their ready obedience to their officers both "on" and "off" duty.

I can only speak of their drill in the manual of arms, which will compare favorably with ordinary militia companies. Their loading and firing was nearly perfect.

As to the practical result of military drill in our schools, from my limited experience I now think most favorably. When the whole company drill is taught, it affords as good exercise as any system of gymnastics which has been devised, or that students can be induced to follow, and has the advantage of being of some practical use in time of the country's need, while flinging the arms about with dumb bells, etc., is simply time wasted in beating air. In the effect upon the general carriage and physical appearance of young men alone, it is decidedly marked, and sometimes particularly pleasing. I am supported in this opinion by Dr. Boutelle, whose son joined a rifle corps at Harvard College, and derives very great benefit therefrom.

I am confident that the organization in this town has resulted in much good to the young men.

I am sir,

Your obedient servant,

ATWOOD CROSBY.

QUARTERMASTER GENERAL'S REPORT.

The act approved February 23, 1867, provides that "The State shall supply a coat, cap, overcoat and pantaloons to each soldier" of the ten companies authorized by said act, and that "the above enumerated articles of clothing, or commutation in lieu thereof, shall be furnished once in three years."

By act approved February 22, 1876, this act was amended so as to read, "the above enumerated articles of clothing, or commutation in lieu thereof, shall be supplied once in five years, reckoning from April 1, 1873."

The object of designating a definite year for supplying clothing, was to secure uniformity in the appearance of the men through the entire command. In justice to the militia, it should be stated that they have not received overcoats from the State, but only caps, coats and pantaloons; that they have now worn the uniform nearly two years longer than originally intended by the law.

The uniforms now in the hands of the troops are the property of the State, and possess some value—perhaps enough to supply overcoats to the command, or a fair proportion of overcoats to each company. The militia during their last two years' encampments have been fortunately favored by the weather, but the medical officers of the troops represent that for guard duty at night, and for the protection of the men in rainy days, overcoats are absolutely necessary.

Under the act of February 22, 1876, eleven companies of infantry and one of artillery will be entitled to clothing this year. In estimating the cost of the same, I have omitted the overcoats allowed by law, and have taken the lowest contract price obtained this year, that of Wheelwright, Clark & Co., of Bangor.

Under existing orders, sixty uniforms are allowed to each company of infantry, and forty to the artillery company.

Number of infantry uniforms needed	660
Number of artillery uniforms needed.....	40
Total uniforms.....	700

The cost at $21 each, which supplies cap, coat and pantaloons, will be $14,700. An appropriation for this amount I recommend.

ARSENALS.

By the resolve approved February 15, 1876, authority was given to sell the arsenal building at Portland to any person or persons applying therefor. I have endeavored, with the aid of Councillor Jose of Portland, to sell this arsenal, but have received only one offer, which was received late, and was not an advantageous offer for the State. In view of this fact, and that the use of the arsenal was necessary at this time to store a portion of the ordnance and ordnance stores called in by order of the Governor and Council, it was deemed best not to sell the building.

The Bangor arsenal is in fair repair, and will contain the serviceable military property in possession of the State.

Both have been recently inspected by General Tilden, Inspector General.

ARMORIES.

By act of March 4, 1874, an appropriation of $1,400 will be required to reimburse the towns for rent of armories furnished the companies in their towns.

Ten of these armories were inspected by General Tilden, and were in good condition, as appears by his report.

I inspected the armories at Gardiner, Augusta, Skowhegan and Norway, and at the same time, with the exception of the Norway company, inspected the military property and witnessed the drill of the companies at the places named.

I found the armory at Gardiner conveniently located, and large enough for the ordinary drill of the company. The company had built neat wardrobes for their uniforms, and racks for their guns. Capt. Berry and one of his lieutenants and twenty of his men were inspected, and afterwards were drilled by the captain in the manual of arms and school of the company. The company books appeared to be well kept.

The armory of the Capital Guards at Augusta, is 55 by 50 feet, is large enough to admit of a change of front in either direction while drilling, and has a suitable closet for the uniforms, where they were apparently well protected against moths by camphor and cedar. All the company officers were present and twenty-seven of the men. The drill and bearing of the men under Capt. Blanchard, was excellent.

I found three guns with their sights broken, and one with the sight defective. Three bayonets were apparently too small for their guns, as they could not be removed in the usual manner.

The company books were well kept, except that the description book showed twenty-nine men discharged by vote of the company, for whom no discharges had been received from Regimental Headquarters. Capt. Blanchard stated he had made more than one application to have the discharges sent him.

The company charge one dollar for admission to membership in the company, and lay an assessment of ten cents per month on each member, and have during the past year made a special assessment of $1.50 on each member. The balance now in the treasury of the company is $8.05.

COMPANY E, SKOWHEGAN LIGHT INFANTRY.

The armory for this company is thirty-eight feet by twenty feet, and not high enough for a drill in the manual of arms. It is entirely unsuited for the purposes of company drill. I have informed the Selectmen of Skowhegan on this point. I found the orderly and descriptive books well kept, and a complete file of orders. The company have no company fund; no regular assessments.

The company turned out twenty-three men and the commanding officer. The men in size and bearing furnished material for one of the best companies in the State, and if Capt. Emery would tone up his severity and quicken his perception of irregular alignment his company would stand among the first in the State. I found fifty-nine muskets in the armory, and of these two had lost their sights and one the ejector spring. The uniforms were kept in a room above the armory, and were well cared for.

COMPANY D, NORWAY LIGHT INFANTRY.

I found the armory of this company in a bowling alley, and unsuited for any purposes of drill. Capt. Whitmarsh showed me a new hall now being finished, fifty feet by twenty-eight feet, with a side room for uniforms and other purposes twenty-four feet by twelve feet, which he said was now being finished as an armory and drill room for his company. Through some failure of the mail, the captain did not receive notice of my coming, and no opportunity was had for inspecting or seeing his men in uniform. The guns in the armory were clean, and showed good care. I found three of them with ejector springs missing, one with tumbler lost and two with tumblers imperfect.

The company has no company fund, but make assessments whenever any expense is incurred. The company books were correctly kept. All the orders received were carefully copied, and a full record made of all the company acts, incidents of encampment and personal history.

ORDNANCE.

By section three of the act of Congress approved March 3, 1875, the Secretary of War was authorized, upon a proper showing by States of the faithful disposition of the arms and ordnance stores issued to them between January 1, 1861, and April 9, 1865, to credit such States with the sums charged to them respectively for arms and other ordnance stores issued to them between said dates, and charged against their quotas under the law for arming and equipping the militia.

It was among the first of my duties on accession to this office to present the claim of this State for the arms and ordnance stores due her under the above act. I am pleased to report that the claim has been substantiated by the required evidence, and the amount of $13,959.25 placed to the credit of the State.

Arms and ordnance stores, including one Gattling gun and carriage, have been received from the Chief of Ordnance of United States army during the year, to the value of $10,697.10, and there is now due the State on this account the sum of $7,111.59.

By the direction of the Governor and Council the arms and military property in the hands of the citizens have been called in for sale or storage as may be deemed best. A large proportion of this property has been properly forwarded to the arsenals, and it is hoped before the close of another year to have it all stored or sold.

To encourage the knowledge of military drill, and to meet the desire of a portion of the veterans of the war of 1861, authority was given this office by the Governor and Council to sell organizations of veterans, and to other companies who would use them for purposes of drill and military manœuvre, the muzzle-loading Springfield and Enfield rifles, with bayonet and a full set of accoutrements, for the low price of one dollar and a half. The Doughty Veterans of Dover have been supplied at this price, and this office is now in correspondence with other similar organizations to effect further sales.

ACTING COMMISSARY GENERAL'S REPORT.

In compliance with the directions of the Commander-in-Chief the provisions for the troops at muster were purchased by contract, in bulk, and issued to the troops in the field as from depot of stores. The full ration allowed by the United States regulations was issued, with extra issues of one pound of potatoes to each ration per day, and pickles with extra hard bread the last day. The ration of fresh meat was one and a quarter pound of steak without bone.

It was supposed that the contract for rations was more advantageous to the State than that of last year. The delay in issuing, the changes made in the contract, the hard bread ordered from Portland and left as surplus, for which this department was not responsible, and the issuing of some fifty rations per day more than the number of men in camp, all tended to unduly increase the price of the rations. Had the morning report called for by Section IV of General Order No. 6 been received during the encampment instead of afterwards, the over issue could have been corrected.

The cost of the rations was thirty-two cents, in 1876 it was twenty-three cents, in 1874 forty cents, and in 1873 thirty-five cents.

That the rations issued more than sufficed to feed the men is evinced by the large quantity sold and exchanged by some companies,—the amount taken home by them,—and that one small battalion of 134 men turned back as the encampment broke up one hundred and fifteen pounds of the last day's issue of fresh meat.
