ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OFFICE,
WATERVILLE, Me., Dec. 1st, 1900.

To the Governor and Council of the State of Maine:

I herewith submit the report of the business of the office of Attorney General for the two years ending November 31st, 1900.

HOMICIDES.

State vs. Patrick P. Murphy and Dennis Leo Murphy. A full report of this case and the trial before the jury will be found in my last report, at which time it was pending before the law court upon appeal from the decision of the judge who tried the case denying the defendant, Daniel P. Murphy, a new trial. Since that time the case has been argued and determined by the law court, and the appeal was denied and judgment entered for the State, and the said defendant, Daniel P. Murphy, has been sentenced to imprisonment for life in the State's prison.

State vs. Frank P. Parks. On the afternoon of January 23rd, in 1899, Mary Tarlton, an aged lady living alone in her own house in the village of Kittery, was found by her friends in an unconscious and dying condition, having several bruises and cuts about the head showing that she had been foully dealt with by some person.

The defendant, Frank P. Parks, was seen a few minutes previous, coming from the back door of her house. The friends and neighbors very soon after gathered at the house, and medical attendance was secured, but in a few hours Mrs. Tarlton died from the injuries she had received from her assailant.

A large, heavy, glass bottle, which contained molasses, was found broken in the room, and it was evident that it had been used to strike Mrs. Tarlton with.

Parks was immediately arrested and committed to jail. Molasses was found upon his shoes. He was indicted for murder of Mrs. Tarlton at the June term of the Supreme Judicial court, held at Alfred, York county, and he was tried the same term.

The evidence shew the defendant, Frank P. Parks, to have been a heavy drinker of intoxicating liquors from early youth, and on the day of Mrs. Tarlton's assault he was known to have been drinking and that he was more or less intoxicated.

No motive could be assigned for his assault upon Mrs. Tarlton, except a desire for money with which to obtain more intoxicating liquors. There was some evidence to show that Mrs. Tarlton had drawn a small sum of money from a savings bank a few days before the date of the assault. Whether Parks knew of this fact or not this money was missing, and it was supposed that Parks obtained it, although there was no positive testimony to this effect. But the evidence clearly shew, from eye witnesses who were able to trace Parks' steps during nearly every hour of the day of the assault, and some of whom saw him come from the Tarlton house, that he was the murderer of Mrs. Tarlton. And his counsel was obliged to admit that he made the assault upon her, but claimed in his behalf and as a matter of defense that he was actually suffering from a mental disease called inebriety, which was uncontrollable, and was manifested by an overwhelming craving for intoxicating liquors.

They claimed that he had drank liquor on the day of the killing, and that from the effects of such drinking and at the time of the killing, he did not know what he was doing, urging insanity as a defense. A large amount of expert testimony was offered upon the question of what constituted insanity, and the relation of inebriety to insanity.

And the question of the defendant's insanity, at the time he committed the homicide, was submitted to the jury. The jury returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree.

During the trial, the court charged the jury that it was incumbent on the defendant to show by a preponderance of evidence that he had the mental disease and that he drank the liquor and became intoxicated because of such disease, and that he did not know what he was doing when he killed the deceased as a consequence of said disease. To this instruction the defendant's counsel filed exceptions, claiming that the burden should be upon the State to establish the fact of the sanity of the defendant as an affirmative proposition.

This was argued at the law court, and a decision was rendered which may be found in the 93rd volume of the Maine Reports, page 210, wherein the instructions of the presiding justice, which the respondents excepted to, were sustained; and the rule which had been previously established in this State in the case of State vs. Lawrence, (57 Maine, 574) was reaffirmed. The court in the opinion say:

"We reaffirm the decision in that case believing it to be sound in principle and supported by the weight of authority in this country."

It is very gratifying to me in this case to remember that the jury were not deceived by the plea of intoxication or inebriety, and that the law court has again reaffirmed the doctrine that men are presumed to be sane.

The defendant was very ably defended by Thomas H. Sims, Esq., and Samuel W. Emery, Esq., of Portsmouth, N. H., and I received great assistance in the prosecution for the government, by the county attorney of York county, W. S. Mathews, Esq.

State vs. Alexis Oakes. On August 31st, 1899, the defendant, Alexis Oakes, then past 80 years of age, was living with his wife in Sheridan plantation on the road leading from Presque Isle to Ashley. Nearly opposite his house lived his son, Oliver Oakes, with a wife and several children.

The trial disclosed the fact that there had been ill feeling between these two families for a number of years,

Early in the morning on this day Oliver turned a horse out of his barn to feed about his house. Very soon after, the horse was chased by a dog out of the door yard of Oliver, across the road and on to the premises of Alexis. Soon after, Oliver started for the horse to take it back home.

While on his way he met his mother, wife of Alexis Oakes, and the evidence disclosed that an altercation ensued between them, but Oliver had returned to his own premises nearly to the door of his house where he met his wife when the father, Alexis, appeared on the scene near the door of his house with a loaded gun that he immediately fired across the road to his son Oliver. At this time, Oliver's wife stood with her hand around his neck. The gun was loaded with buck shot which took effect in Oliver's neck and head, one of them hitting the wife's hand. From the effect of these gun shot wounds Oliver immediately died.

It was claimed on the part of the defense that Oliver also had a gun, and that when the father, Alexis, fired at him, that he was doing so in the act of self-defense; that Oliver at the same time had a gun which he was loading intending to shoot either his father or mother. This was denied by the government, and a great amount of conflicting testimony was introduced on the question of whether or not Oliver had a gun any time during this encounter.

It was also in evidence that Alexis fired one shot at the son from a small gun which did not take effect, and then he afterwards asked his wife, the mother of Oliver, to go and get a longer gun from the house which she did get, and from this long gun the father fired the fatal shot at the son.

Whatever may have been the facts, the father Alexis, admitted at the trial when upon the stand and in his own behalf, under oath, that he shot his son and that the son's wife had her hand upon his collar at the time; and when asked which one he intended to shoot said that he intended to shoot Oliver, and that his reason for so doing was that he was the one that had abused and "sassed" him.

He also stated that he intended to kill Oliver because he thought Oliver intended to kill him, but that he was within five or six feet of the door of his own house, and that Oliver was in the act of loading his gun, and that he had a plenty of time and opportunity to turn and get back into the house before Oliver could have shot at him. And it was my firm conviction, and I argued to the jury, that the theory of self-defense, or that Oliver had a gun at the time of the shooting, was pure fiction, and I am still of the same belief. And the jury sustained the position of the government by returning a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree.

There was no evidence in the case which would tend to reduce the degree of murder in the first degree to murder in the second degree or manslaughter, and the position taken by the counsel for the defense was that the defendant was either guilty of murder in the first degree or not guilty, and the case was tried out upon these lines. And the judge in his charge to the jury told them that this was in substance the position of the case which he should submit to them. The judge said in this part of the charge and among other things, "I don't remember any evidence in the case, gentlemen, which calls upon me to instruct you in regard to implied malice, because that is not the position as I understand is presented by the State or presented by the evidence and it is claimed by the learned counsel for the respondent that there is no evidence in this case which will warrant you in finding a verdict of manslaughter." "So far as I remember the case there is no evidence I think, which calls upon me to submit the question of manslaughter to you." "The defendant says there is a perfect and absolute defense." To all of this and other like statements made by the judge in his charge, the defendant's counsel filed exceptions which were argued at the June term of the law court held at Bangor, the defendant contending that the judge should have submitted to the jury for their determination, the question of all of the different degrees of homicide known to our statutes.

The State contended in its argument that it was not the duty of the judge to submit to the jury any question other than he did submit, for the sufficient reason that there was no particle of testimony tending to show that the offense was of any other grade than that of murder in the first degree, or that the defendant was not guilty. The case has not been decided by the law court.

I was very ably assisted in the management of this case by Hon. R. W. Shaw, county attorney of Houlton, and the defendant had the very ingenious and able efforts of the Hon. Don A. H. Powers of Houlton, assisted by S. S. Thornton, Esq., of Ashland, both of whom were appointed by the court as counsel for the defendant.

State vs. Bradford Knight. On the seventeenth day of February, 1899, Bradford Knight shot and killed Minnie Small, a sister of his wife's, in the street, at or near the house where she was at work in the city of Gardiner.

The circumstances of the killing were so brutal and inhuman, and the evidence so full and complete to establish the fact as to who did the killing, and the family relations of the parties were of such a nature as to arouse general public indignation; and insanity of the assailant was immediately suggested as a reason of this inhuman act. Knight was immediately arrested and held for the grand jury, upon a charge of murder.

At the next succeeding term of the Superior Court for Kennebec county, an indictment was found by the grand jury, charging him with the murder of the said Minnie Small. This indictment was certified and transmitted to the next (October, 1899) term of the Supreme Judicial Court in Kennebec county as provided by law, where it was entered and tried. The plea of insanity was made by the defendant.

The defendant had been previously placed in the insane hospital by order of the court, for observation, and at the trial a great amount of expert testimony was given upon the defendant's mental condition, and after a very long trial and a very complete and exhaustive charge by Judge Emery to the jury upon the mental condition of Knight, and its legal effect upon its responsibility at the time of the killing of Minnie Small, the jury returned a verdict of murder in the first degree.

A motion for a new trial was filed which was overruled, and exceptions were taken and the case was argued at the next term of the law court held at Portland, on July last. Exceptions were overruled by the decision of the law court, judgment was entered for the State, and Knight has since been sentenced to imprisonment in the State's prison for life.

The case was very carefully prepared and very ably and skillfully presented on the part of the government, by George W. Heselton, Esq., of Gardiner, county attorney for Kennebec.

And the defendant had the services of the Hon. H. M. Heath of Augusta who was appointed by the court as his counsel, and who conducted the defense with his usual great ability as a criminal lawyer.

State vs. Frank Pishon, alias Quirion. At the September term of the Superior Court the grand jury found an indictment against the said Frank Pishon for the murder of Andrew Roseby. This indictment, as provided by special statute, was certified and transmitted to the next (October, 1899) term of the Supreme Judicial Court for said county, where it was entered and it was tried the same term.

The scene of this homicide was in Winslow, Maine, and it occurred on April 15th, 1899, as a result of a row between some French people living upon what is known as Sand Hill, following a dance which was held at a private house, and at which intoxicating liquors had been freely used.

The defendant, Pishon, and his brother engaged in a fight with said Roseby and Louis Brassau and others during which time both Roseby and Brassau were stabbed or cut with a knife or sharp instrument, from which injuries they both died.

There were a number of eye witnesses to this scene, and there seemed to be abundant evidence to prove that Roseby at least was stabbed and cut by the defendant, Pishon, which caused his death.

In addition to this, Roseby made a statement to his attending physician and also to his attending priest, when fully aware of his immediate death, that Pishon was the man who had stabbed and killed him.

The witnesses in this case were principally French Canadians, and interpretators had to be resorted to, but after a long and patient investigation of the facts and circumstances surrounding the assault, there seemed to be no doubt left of the guilt of the defendant, Pishon, except upon the question of the degree of the defendant's offense.

The affair seemed to be more the result of anger and general fight, rather than a premeditated or deliberate murder, and the jury, in my judgment, very properly returned a verdict of manslaughter.

No motion or exceptions were filed, and sentence was imposed upon the defendant, at the same term in which he was tried, to seven years imprisonment at State's prison.

George Sheldon, Esq., of Augusta was appointed by the court as counsel for the defendant, and he conducted the case in a very skillful manner. I was assisted in the prosecution of the case by the county attorney, George W. Heselton, Esq., of Gardiner.

State vs. Arthur Sargent. The scene of this case is laid in Stetson, Penobscot county, Maine. On the afternoon of the eleventh day of August, 1899, it being a lowry day and not suitable for farm work at haying, three young men, William Colbath, Harry Quimby and the said Arthur Sargent, who were all farm hands and at that time at work for one, Charles Goodwin, left the house of the said Goodwin for the purpose of going fishing on Stetson pond. Colbath and Quimby were never seen alive afterwards by any witness that the State was able to procure, and Sargent was not seen until the following morning when he returned to the house of Goodwin, barefooted and with several articles of clothing missing, and in an apparently dazed or excited condition, and told the story, that while he and Colbath and Quimby, the previous afternoon, were fishing from a boat in the Goodwin brook, near its outlet into Stetson pond, the boat had been upset and all three thrown into the water, and that Colbath and Quimby had both drowned, and that he alone had been able to swim to the shore. That after wandering in the woods for a time, during which he lost his way, night came on and he had laid down and rested for the night; the next morning again wandering about until he found a road which led him out of the woods and back to the Goodwin house.

Immediately, searching parties were organized by Mr. Goodwin and his neighbors, and the bodies of Colbath and Quimby were found in the brook as Sargent had stated, and the boat which had been capsized was found near by.

The county attorney and sheriff of Penobscot county immediately took charge of the case. Post mortem examinations were made of the drowned men, and an investigation of the matter was begun under the direction of the county attorney.

Public opinion in the town of Stetson very early charged Sargent with foul play in connection with the drowning of Colbath and Quimby, and from time to time various stories tending to show that Sargent's story of the accident might not be true was brought to the attention of the county attorney. The case was presented to the grand jury of Penobscot county at the February term, 1900, and they returned an indictment against Arthur Sargent for the murder of both Colbath and Quimby, and the indictment for the murder of Quimby came on for trial at the same term. In the meantime the bodies of the two deceased men had been exhumed from the grave and different post mortem examinations made by different physicians and surgeons.

It was in evidence at the trial that these three men started out on this fishing trip with a bottle of whisky and a jug of cider, and Sargent admitted that they had drank either from the bottle or the jug before the accident occurred. That some of them were somewhat under the influence of these liquors, there can be no doubt.

There was a large amount of expert testimony offered at the trial tending to show that these bodies had received blows or injuries previous to drowning; but this evidence was not conclusive or convincing. After a very patient listening to all the evidence which the government could produce, I became satisfied, as I think did also the county attorney, that we were dealing with a drowning accident and not a homicide, and after the opening of the case by the defendant's counsel, and listening to the defendant's testimony in his own behalf, I became convinced that such was the fact and that Sargent was not guilty of any crime; and I immediately informed the court of my opinion in the premises, and the presiding justice acting upon my suggestion, instructed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty, which was done, and Sargent was released from custody. The other indictment which has been returned against said Sargent for the murder of William Colbath was nol prossed.

Hon. Lewis Stearns and P. H. Gillen, Esq., both of Bangor very ably conducted the defense, and I was assisted in the prosecution by Bertram L. Smith, Esq., county attorney, who had in a most thorough manner, prepared the case for the government, and whose opening of the case and presentation of the evidence was accomplished in a most able and complete manner.

State vs. George H. Champion. At the September term of the Supreme Judicial court, 1900, held at Alfred, York county, George H. Champion was indicted by the grand jury and placed on trial for the murder of Mrs. Elsie M. Horn.

He was also indicted at the same term for the murder of three other persons.

On Monday morning June 10th, 1900, the farm buildings of Geo. W. Goodwin of West Newfield were found burned to the ground, and among the ruins were found the dead bodies of said George W. Goodwin, Elsie Horn, Scott S. Goodwin, his adopted son, and Fred L. Bertch, a farm hand, who were all the inmates of the Goodwin farm at the time.

Champion, the defendant, was found to have been at the Goodwin house on the previous day, and suspicions immediately pointed to him as the perpetrator of this foul crime. All of the bodies were found in a more or less cut and bruised or mutilated condition, indicating that they had been murdered and the buildings had been set on fire for the purpose of consuming the buildings and bodies, and blotting out the guilt of whoever was responsible for the death of these persons.

Detectives and officers were immediately put upon Goodwin's trail, and he was traced from there into the state of New Hampshire, and from there to Boston, and from Boston to Milford, Mass., where he was found, arrested and brought back to the State of Maine. In his flight he had changed his shirt, leaving the dirty one in the depot at Farmington, N. H., which it is now evident, from human blood spots found on it, he had on at the time he killed these four persons.

And he was also found to have on a pair of shoes which were believed to have been worn by Scott S. Goodwin the last day of his life. And a watch known to have been Mr. Goodwin's was found on his person.

It is believed that Champion thought Goodwin had quite a considerable sum of money in his possession, and that it was Champion's object in killing these persons to obtain the money in their possession, but it seems to have turned out that Mr. Goodwin had previously, and doubtless unbeknown to Champion, deposited most of his money in a bank at Biddeford; but no other cause had been assigned for this homicide than his purpose to obtain possession of this money.

George F. Haley, Esq., and Benjamin F. Cleaves, Esq., both of Biddeford, Maine, were appointed by the court as counsel for the defendant.

I was unable to be present at the trial, on account of sickness, but the government was very ably represented by the county attorney, W. S. Mathews, Esq., who had prepared the case with great care, and who presented a mass of testimony, both positive and circumstantial, and in such a manner as to leave no doubt in the jury's mind, that Champion was the man who committed the murder, as charged, and they returned a verdict of murder in the first degree.

No exceptions were taken, and Champion was sentenced to imprisonment in the State's prison for life, and at the same term of court at which he was tried.

CORONER'S INQUESTS.

I wish to renew the recommendation which I made in my former report for the years 1897 and 1898 relative to coroner's inquests, and to call the attention of the legislature again, particularly to that part of my former report. I am more than ever convinced that the coroner's inquest is unsatisfactory and worthless, and a considerable financial burden to the most of our counties, and many times a great hinderance and stumbling block in the way of the proper administration of criminal law.

DETECTIVE WORK.

I would also like to recommend again as I did in my former report that the legislature make an appropriation to be at the disposal of the attorney general for the purpose of employing detectives, or in any other way to obtain evidence for the detection of crime. I find that the county officials, particularly in some counties are extremely conservative and careful about paying bills for detective work; and public sentiment seems quick to criticise the expenses for the prosecution of crime. This is no doubt a wholesome sentiment but if carried to the extreme would allow offenders to go unpunished for the lack of a little money to ferret out their crimes. If the attorney general had at his disposal, a small fund which he could use as occasion required he could very naturally assist the work of the county attorney in the several counties in a way which he is now unable to do.

We have had a number of most horrible murders in this State, for which no one has yet been apprehended, and the prospect seems to be that the parties who have committed these crimes are liable to go forever unpunished. Had the attorney general had at his disposal sufficient means with which to employ detectives immediately after these crimes were committed, and had there been no bungling of the several cases before coroner's inquests, it is my judgment in some of these cases at least, the offenders might have been apprehended and brought to punishment.

On the pages following will be found the tables usually accompanying the attorney general's report.

Respectfully submitted,

WILLIAM T. HAINES,

Attorney General.
