REPORT.

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of Maine:

In obedience to the requirements of the laws of the State, it becomes my duty and pleasure to lay before you a report of the Maine State Library for the years 1899-1900.

GROWTH OF THE LIBRARY.

The permanent growth of the library during the past two years has been remarkable. The appropriations for that period were not up to the average amount of former years, and the amount drawn therefrom in payment for extra labor and material has been in excess of any sum used for these purposes for any like period since 1893. Notwithstanding these facts the number of books and pamphlets placed on the shelves of the library during the past two years, is six thousand two hundred and ninety-one, nearly fifteen hundred more than have been secured at any former period of two years. There have also been purchased for the traveling libraries, two thousand one hundred volumes, which really form a permanent addition to the library, for the free use of the citizens of Maine residing in distant parts of the State.

This flourishing condition has been brought about by earnest work in enlarging the exchange of documents, reports, and duplicates, with other state libraries and with universities and historical associations throughout the United States. The increase in exchanges and in gifts to the library has been largely aided by the growing interest in books, and the desire on the part of all libraries and institutions of study to increase their collections by liberal exchange of duplicates. The library movement started in 1876, has increased to vast proportions, reaching every village and hamlet in our land. It is no longer a debatable question as to the utility and necessity of a free library. The only question that vexes the people of any town, is how to get a free library and maintain its efficiency without great sacrifice and burdensome taxation.

STATE AID TO FREE LIBRARIES.

Our State wisely and generously offers to help any community in establishing and maintaining a free library at the minimum of cost. The State offers to give to every town of less than fifteen hundred inhabitants, books to the value of one hundred dollars, provided the town shall raise, by taxation or otherwise, twice that amount for the purpose of establishing a free library. The various publications of the State are also donated yearly to these libraries, there to be kept for the free use of all citizens. The State also gives annually in cash from its treasury, ten per cent of the annual amount appropriated by towns to the maintenance of these libraries.

In addition to all this, the State now offers any community the use of a library of fifty books selected with great care, on payment of a fee to pay cost of transportation. Small towns, libraries of limited funds, schools, and literary clubs, are thus enabled to secure good reading at a small expense. Not content with all this encouragement and help to those who are willing to help themselves, the State has authorized its librarian to loan to any reputable citizen of the State, books from the shelves of the State library on payment of cost of transportation.

It would almost seem, that no citizen could suffer for want of books and the best of their kind. There is, however, a large and valuable collection of books and manuscripts in the State library, that cannot be spared from its shelves even for a short time without great inconvenience and disappointment to those who come here daily to consult them.

Another class of books cannot be loaned, for the reason that in case of loss they could never be replaced.

LEGISLATION SUGGESTED.

This objection can be limited and lessened in a great degree by the formation of a library association. This association should include the State library and every free library in the State, together with such other libraries and institutions as may desire to unite with them. The purpose of such association should be, to promote the use of books by exchanging or loaning, for a definite time, books found in one library and needed for temporary use by the patrons of another library—the borrowing library or association becoming fully responsible for the proper usage and safe return of the books or manuscripts loaned. Similar associations formed in several states have been very successful in promoting safety in exchanges and in the loaning of books. It is suggested that such an association be authorized in Maine, duly guarded by legal powers and responsibilities.

The Maine Library Commission unanimously recommend an amendment to the law relating to traveling libraries, whereby the fee shall be reduced from five dollars for a library of fifty books, to two dollars and fifty cents per library. It has been found by careful calculation that the reduced fee will fully cover transportation to and from the place of use. It is believed that this reduction in the fee will greatly increase the use of these libraries.

The commissioners also recommend that Chapter 233 of the Public Laws of 1897 be so amended as to authorize small towns to raise and appropriate money for the purpose of securing the free use of a library located in an adjoining town or city, and to enable two or more adjacent towns to unite in establishing a free library with branches in each town. I also suggest that the law be now so changed that any town or towns in the State establishing a free library at the expense of not less than $200 shall receive a gift of books from the State library to the value of one hundred dollars.

TRAVELING LIBRARY.

The traveling library established by law of 1899 has succeeded beyond the most sanguine expectations of its earnest advocates and friends. The record of forty libraries for six months contained in the appendix to this report shows a circulation of nine thousand readings. The circulation of these libraries in small country towns, quickens the intellectual activities of the people and excites in the community a desire for a permanent collection of books. They are forerunners of something better for the people to whom they are sent. They also form an excellent supplement to small free libraries destitute of funds with which to purchase new books. Should the fee for a traveling library be reduced to five cents per volume, I shall expect to see the number sent out increased fourfold. To meet the demand that will thus be made upon the library it will be necessary to increase by purchase the number of traveling libraries from forty, now in use, to one hundred. The Library Commission, after due consideration of the subject, recommend an appropriation of not less than one thousand dollars per year to be expended in this department during the next two years.

DISTRIBUTION OF REPORTS AND DOCUMENTS.

The distribution and exchange of documents and department reports has not yet become so systematized as to produce the best results.

No State in the Union is more liberal in the distribution of department reports than is Maine. This fact has become so patent that many literary institutions, public libraries and historical societies, beyond the limits of the State, apply freely and confidently to each department for a full set of its reports without any indication that anything will be given in return. When these are furnished on such application, our State Library is deprived of the opportunity to effect exchanges, and is often compelled to purchase the publications of these very institutions and societies which receive our state publications free of cost. There is not wanting evidence that certain individuals have adopted the profession of collectors, who by means of circular letters addressed to the departments in different states, solicit reports and state publications which they afterwards sell for profit and gain. Brokers, bankers, insurance agents, promoters and persons engaged in collecting material and statistics for their own publication and profit, do not hesitate to ask for the publications of our state, often assuming that these gifts should be sent prepaid.

By Sect. 1, Chap. 173 of the Public Laws of 1895, the State Librarian is authorized to sell department reports to the persons not entitled, by custom or courtesy, to receive the same free. This power has never been exercised by the library department. The many departments of our state have aided the library materially when fully informed in this matter. I believe, however, that some legislation is still necessary to perfect and extend our exchanges with other states and foreign lands, and to check the growing and selfish demands of individuals and associations that ask something for which they are willing to give nothing.

In the exchange with state libraries there is now a more frequent call for individual reports, or the reports of each department bound separately, than for the public documents. In the latter form the volumes are too cumbersome for easy use. I believe the binding of more than fifty sets of public documents to be unnecessary and wasteful. The day is not far distant when this form of binding will be entirely discarded. Three state libraries have already notified this department that reports massed into huge volumes are not acceptable. When the reports are furnished in the individual form, they can easily be placed in the class in the library to which they relate. Thus all matters pertaining to any subject may be found collected in its special section of the library devoted to that topic.

FREE LIBRARIES.

Within the past two years, free libraries have been established at Mechanic Falls, Thomaston, Readfield, Monmouth, Clinton, Newport, Houlton, Oakland, Scarboro, Southport and Cherryfield.

The free public libraries in the state now number seventy-two. In addition to these there are about two hundred circulating libraries, where the use of books can be obtained for a small annual fee. The Women's Federation of Clubs, and similar organizations also have collections of literature which circulate among the members of their organizations. The list of the free libraries and other associations found in this report, is well worth the study and thoughtful consideration of the legislators. They show that the people of Maine are not content with the education of their school-days, and that they are building up in every little town and village in the state, a great system of universal education, a system that shall embrace every individual in the state and comprise in its course of study, every grade from the kindergarten to the university course. It has cost the state but a small yearly sum to foster and encourage this system of education. No backward step can now be taken.

The women who have been denied by the state that course of higher education prescribed in our colleges for men, have now entered this school for the people, and are rapidly preparing themselves for the larger life and domain of usefulness opening up before them. They have asked through their convention a liberal consideration of the wants and needs of the people at large, and request a continuation of aid to traveling libraries. Through their unselfish efforts and liberality, the rapid development of the free library movement in Maine for the past two years, is largely due. There is no valid reason why their wishes and wants should not receive from the legislature equal consideration with those of the lawyer, the judge and the politician, and the business man, when appropriations are being made for the libraries of the state.

The beautiful building presented to his town by Mr. Charles M. Cumston, LL. D. of Monmouth, is fully equaled by the library and equipment given by Mr. W. W. Brown of Portland to his native town of Clinton. These buildings will ever stand as monuments to the intelligent liberality of these two eminent sons of Maine, and as models that may well be copied in future constructions for like purposes in other country towns.

The increase in free libraries and in the demands for books and information upon all known subjects, has caused a corresponding increase in the work required of the State Librarian, his able and faithful assistant, and efficient cataloguer.

The amount of work required to answer the demands of the public upon the library has nearly doubled since the last meeting of the legislature. If the library laws are rendered more liberal to meet the recommendations of the Library Commission, the usefulness and the work in the State Library will be still further increased. It becomes therefore, a necessity that more labor shall be employed and paid for. The traveling library, if enlarged, and continued, will employ a large part of the time and attention of one person. The increased work of the library itself requires far more labor and attention than the librarian and one assistant can perform.

The selection and purchase of books, the answering of a score or more of letters each day, the search for information of a legal, literary, or historical nature, demanded by the patrons of the library in nearly every town in the State and in nearly every state in the union, together with the general management and direction of the detail work of the library fully occupies the time, attention, and energies of the librarian. The sending out of thirty thousand books and pamphlets each year in exchange and distribution, the receipt of three thousand books yearly added to the library and the preparation of these for use by inspection, cutting of leaves, cataloguing, stamping and recording, is ample work for the most diligent assistant. The loaning of books from the library and the selection and formation of traveling libraries, and the endless calls for information in reference to free libraries and traveling libraries, occupies fully the time of another clerk. Added to this the fact that our catalogue of the working library has only been provisional in its character. That while the books on the shelves have been listed according to the Dewey system, in a subject, author and title catalogue, the Cutter numbers have never been added. Anyone can readily see that it requires more care to keep books in place on the shelves. There are now nearly sixty thousand books and pamphlets in the new library, filling all available space. In the old library there are from fifteen to twenty thousand books, pamphlets, and manuscripts, including many records of census returns, valuation returns, bounty rolls, surveys, maps, newspapers and other manuscripts, which are of great value, and if destroyed or lost can never be replaced. This portion of the library has never been catalogued or even listed. To keep the library up with the times by perfecting the catalogue, in the working part of it, and in order that these invaluable documents may at least be listed so that it may be known what we really have, I ask that a permanent cataloguer be employed during the entire time and paid a fixed salary from the appropriation for salaries, and that there be allowed the sum of four hundred dollars to secure the services of extra help each year.

ENLARGEMENT OF LIBRARY ROOMS.

The great development of the State Library not only requires more work to administer its functions but also calls for more room in which to store its treasures. The present library is full to repletion, although nearly twenty thousand books, pamphlets, maps and manuscripts still remain unmoved in the old rooms near the dome of the Bulfinch front. It will soon become absolutely necessary to assign more rooms in the new wing to the library, or to provide a separate building for library purposes only.

The state of New Hampshire, a few years ago, erected a building for the accommodation of the State Library with art and natural history rooms, and a court room for the law terms of the supreme court. This building cost that state two hundred and fifty thousand dollars and was estimated to be of ample proportions for one hundred years. It is now thought that in twenty-five years all its available space will be filled with books. While Maine may not aspire to such ample accommodations for her library, the legislature should see to it that reasonable quarters are given for the preservation and proper use of the treasures of the library.

PURCHASES.

The books purchased for the State Library since the last meeting of the legislature are largely composed of law reports, magazines, art and historical works. The demand for family and town histories seems to be without limit. Scores of the bright women of Maine, not content with the study of their own family history, are now studying closely and carefully, the early discovery, settlement and resources of our beloved state. The calls for biography have correspondingly increased. In view of these facts the further purchase of books of fiction, to any degree, does not seem advisable. The plan adopted in 1893, whereby the amount to be appropriated to the building up of the State Library was limited to a yearly sum not exceeding five thousand dollars has been strictly followed. The needs in the law department will be confined to completing and keeping up to date the Revised Statutes, digests and law reports of American courts; the purchase of Irish reports and the annual subscriptions to English and Canadian reports, now completed.

In the historical department, there is need of an increased appropriation over that of two years ago. The library needs many of the publications of historical societies, facsimiles of original documents and town and family histories. The cultivation of our closer relations with the free libraries of our State and with the library associations of the other states may call for a small outlay for contingent expenses which can be wisely directed and controlled by the governor and council.

I commend to your careful study and consideration the able report of the Library Commission of Maine, herewith presented. The systematic development of free libraries and the wise direction of library work in the state will be safely and intelligently administered by them.

LEONARD D. CARVER, Librarian.

Augusta, Maine, December 1st, 1900.

CUMSTON HALL AND LIBRARY.

A notable example of the generosity of Maine men, and their love for their native towns, will be found in the noble gift which Charles M. Cumston, LL.D., late Head Master of the Boston English High School, has made to the town of Monmouth.

This generous gift consists of a municipal building, which contains a town hall, opera house and public library equaled by few in the State.

At the annual town meeting in 1899 the gift was announced, and on June 27th, 1900, the building was dedicated with proper exercises, including an address by J. Roscoe Day, LL.D., Chancellor of Syracuse University, a native of Monmouth, and a concert in the evening by some of the leading talent in the country, the whole being under charge of Loretus Metcalf, LL.D., founder and editor of The Forum, a native and once again a citizen of Monmouth.

The building, cuts of which are here presented, is a compromise between the Renaissance and the massive Romanesque styles of architecture. It is ninety-one feet high and eighty-six feet long and presents, with the Selectmen's office at the left connected with the main building by port cochere, a front of one hundred and twenty feet. In the basement is a fine heating plant, while the entire building is lighted with electricity.

In the upper story is a modern opera house with auditorium fifty feet square, capable of accommodating five hundred people, with horse-shoe balcony, a sloping floor, stage, and boxes decorated abundantly with beautiful relief work in old ivory and gold, the arches of the domed ceiling containing panels representing in heroic figure Music, Drama, and Oratory, in exquisite grouping.

On the lower floor is a hall for town meetings, and at the south end a library, reading room and reception room, all connected and opening from the main entrance hall and staircase to the auditorium above, open to the public on two afternoons and evenings of each week. These rooms are bright and sunny, finished in highly polished cypress, with a massive fireplace in the reception room.

The library contains over sixteen hundred volumes, many of which are from D. Cumston's own private library, and many more are promised by former citizens and friends.

The architect who designed this building and carefully looked after every detail of its erection, is Harry H. Cochrane, of Monmouth, whose plans for the State of Maine building at the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo, N. Y., have been accepted by the Maine Commissioner. Its construction and ornamentation reflect great credit upon Mr. Cochrane.

Dr. Cumston, the donor of this useful structure, was educated at Monmouth Academy, Waterville Institute and Bowdoin College, receiving his degree of LL.D. from his alma mater in 1870. He taught successfully in many of the leading cities of Maine and Massachusetts, finally being called to the English High School at Boston, where he spent twenty-six years of service, the last six as Head Master. Since his retirement he has enjoyed his well-earned leisure at Monmouth, where he has in this building erected a most noble monument which will keep his memory green in the hearts of his townsmen.

FREE LIBRARY AT CLINTON.

The Brown Memorial Library at Clinton, Maine, with artistic embellishments, twenty-five hundred books and an endowment fund yielding $350.00 per year, is the gift of William W. Brown of Portland, Maine, to his native town, in memory of his parents, Jonathan and Betsey Michaels Brown.

The building is of Conway granite, with sand-stone trimmings and slate roof. It has a capacity of ten thousand volumes.

BROWN MEMORIAL LIBRARY—CLINTON, ME.

FIRST REPORT OF THE
LIBRARY COMMISSION
1900

REPORT.

To His Excellency, the Governor of Maine, and the Honorable Council:

The Library Commission, constituted in accordance with the provisions of Section 4, Chapter 22, of the Laws of 1899, respectfully submits its first annual report. The commissioners were informed of their appointment in May, held their first meeting at Augusta on June 8, 1899 and organized with George T. Little as chairman and the State librarian, Leonard D. Carver, as secretary ex-officio.

The selection of books to be used in the travelling libraries was the first subject considered by the commission. Much time and thought was given to the question of the relative proportion of books of recreation and books of information to be included in these libraries as well as to determining the particular volumes of which they should be constituted. Lists of travelling libraries used in other states were consulted; original lists prepared by the chairman were submitted; the advice of those interested in the movement was sought. Finally at a meeting held in Bangor, August 11, 1899, at which the commission had the privilege of consulting with a member of the council, the librarian of one of the largest public libraries of the state, and a prominent officer of the Federation of Women's Clubs, it was decided that as a rule each library of fifty volumes should contain at least one book distinctly ethical or religious, one chosen distinctly for its literary form of excellence, one devoted to natural science, one to economic or political questions, five juveniles and ten novels, and that biography, history and travel should be fully represented in the remaining volumes. Half libraries of twenty-five books, selected for the particular needs of a community, or of a class of persons, or for the study of a special subject, were also authorized, so that by combining two half libraries, special as well as general reading would be afforded in a single collection.

To secure a certain individuality for these travelling libraries the original lists for the first thirty of them were arranged so that the history, biography, travel, and, as far as possible, the fiction, of each collection should illustrate a definite region, country or period of history. Unfortunately the inability of the booksellers to supply promptly certain books called for in the earlier of these lists, together with the urgent demand from several quarters for the libraries themselves, rendered it necessary to break away in large measure from this ideal of furnishing collections containing material for a combined course of reading, in which fiction and juveniles would supplement the less popular works. The libraries as now composed are possibly quite as serviceable, though of course destitute of the quasi unity which it was first intended each should possess. Lists of the contents of each are printed in the Appendix 1 of this report with full statistics as to the circulation of the component volumes.

The important task of formulating regulations for the use of the travelling libraries, of preparing circulars of explanation, of devising the most practicable method of charging the books, fell to the State Librarian. A special record book was devised by him, and supplied to each library sent out, which at the same time makes clear the facts respecting the circulation that the commission desires to be preserved and also simplifies and lessens the labor of recording them. The measures adopted and the restrictions which it was thought necessary to insist upon, seem to have met with general approval in most of the communities whither the libraries have gone.

The specific requirement of the law that the books should be free to every citizen of the town undoubtedly tends to check a general use of these libraries by granges and social clubs. This restriction does not in practice affect the use of libraries on special subjects. Books on these subjects are not and will not be called for by the community at large. It does prevent the possible abuse of the State's bounty by a coterie of individuals seeking for merely personal use a collection of recently printed popular books. For, in order to reach the smallest hamlet, a library is sent on the request of only five individuals.

Books do not catalogue and circulate themselves. Much time and labor is necessary to accomplish this. The work of purchasing, stamping, labelling, cutting the leaves, and cataloguing the books, of preparing cases for transportation and display, and of conducting the very extended correspondence involved in their distribution, has fallen upon the State Librarian as was clearly intended by the law .

Fortunately in the case of these travelling libraries the commission has found in every portion of the State scores of public spirited men and women who have not only freely given them proper housing and care but also the time and labor necessary to ensure their reaching those persons in the community for whom they were intended.

In September of 1899 the commissioners began to distrust their ability to find sufficient number of communities that desired the libraries which were being prepared and at the same time were able to pay the required fee of five dollars. For it must be remembered that several philanthropic associations in New England will send out similar libraries without expense to the recipients, provided their officers are convinced that good reading cannot be otherwise secured. Aside from the few earnest applications already presented to the commissioners there seemed, for the moment, little reason to anticipate a general demand. The following appeal was therefore made by a circular letter to the Women's Clubs:

"The passage of the Travelling Library bill by the last legislature was very largely owing to the efforts of the Women's Clubs of the State. Had it not been for their enthusiastic and able support of the measure, this important piece of legislation would not have been secured.

"But the appropriation of money and the appointment of commissioners are only the first steps. The success of the plan depends upon the coöperation of all who are interested in it. It is to the club women of Maine that the commission most confidently looks for assistance. Through them it hopes to come into touch with communities that are ready for the travelling library. It is relying on them to create interest in the travelling library in places where at present there is no interest. In short the commission asks of the women's clubs of this State their active assistance in the work it is trying to do.

"The commission fears that some communities which need the travelling library most, will find it impossible to raise the fee the law requires. There is an opportunity here for the women's clubs to contribute money for carrying on an important kind of home missionary work. Five dollars will give to any community the use of a library of fifty selected books for six months. It would be difficult to think of a way in which money could be expended at better advantage. If each women's club in the State would become responsible for the placing of a library, the success of the plan would be absolutely assured."

The response was general and generous. For whatever success has been achieved, for whatever good has been done, for whatever more may result from the seed now sown, full credit must be given to the women of the State. They have provided that no application for a travelling library need be refused because of the lack of ability to pay the required fee. They have also interested themselves and others in seeking out places where such libraries could be sent with advantage.

It nevertheless remains a fact that the size of the fee required hampers the chief object of the law, namely to reach the communities where the ordinary public library cannot possibly be maintained. It is larger than is usual in other States of the Union. It is greater than is necessary to cover the cost of transportation. For these three reasons the commissioners earnestly recommend that the fee be reduced one-half.

The work done by each of the 42 libraries sent out and returned prior to Dec. 1st, 1900 has been analyzed and is given in full in Appendix I. A summary presents some interesting facts. The total circulation of books is 9003. This is more than the average annual circulation of the largest library in the State, that of Bowdoin college. It does not of course approach the circulation of our largest free public library, that of Portland, but it is nearly three times as great as the combined circulation of seven public libraries in as many country towns in Cumberland county, though these libraries possess over 4000 volumes and minister to a population of upwards of 10,000. The cost to the State of this circulation, if we debit the entire appropriation and credit merely the present market value of books and cases is about six cents a volume. This is hardly more than the rate which the city of New York pays to established and endowed libraries in its midst for circulating books among people who live at their very doors. These books on the other hand have gone to every county in the State save two and to places reached only by the stage coach.

The character of the circulation was an agreeable surprise. It was hardly expected that the proportion of fiction would fall below that of many well conducted and ably administered public libraries. So much pains was taken to select wholesome, inspiring or instructive novels that had nine-tenths of the circulation been confined to this class, the commissioners would not have deemed the enterprise a failure. On the contrary, it is found that of the books that passed into the hands of borrowers one in every three must be classed as "solid reading." The percentage in round numbers is as follows: Fiction 66, biography and travel 14, history 10, literature and science 7, religion, economics and art 3. The largest circulation of any one book in a single library was 25 and the book was Barrie's "The Little Minister."

According to the statute, it is the duty of the commissioners to encourage the establishment of free libraries. As individuals they have been able to give advice in case of several of the generous benefactions by which public spirited men of wealth have made the past year a memorable one in the history of Maine libraries. Their secretary, the State librarian, has continued the watchful and active interest in this direction which has for many years been manifest in his biennial reports and in library legislation. In its corporate capacity the commission feels that the first step is to gain a definite knowledge of the library facilities of each town in the State. Such an examination of the condition of Cumberland county has been attempted and while by no means completed the commission is able to present the following facts. Of the three cities and twenty-three towns in this county only six, Baldwin, Cape Elizabeth, Harpswell, Naples, Pownal and Raymond are reported without public libraries. In the remaining places there are five free public libraries, supported in part at least by municipal taxation; seventeen public libraries open to all borrowers on the payment of a small fee (which does not as a rule exceed fifty cents a year) ; three school and college libraries that loan books to those not connected with the institutions, 27 school or society libraries available only to pupils and members. The volumes in libraries of the first class are in round numbers 70,000; in those of the second 18,500; in those of the third 70,000; in those of the fourth 30,000. The county, therefore, with a population of less than 100,000 has in its public libraries nearly 200,000 volumes, a proportion of books to people which compares well with that prevailing in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. It must be noted, however, that this showing is due to the presence in the county of the large reference library of Bowdoin College and particularly to the generous facilities which the city of Portland offers its citizens. Its well housed, and well administered public library with nearly 50,000 volumes, and an annual circulation approaching 100,000, is supplemented by a most extended system of public school libraries. That of the high school with 2,500 volumes, serves 300 scholars, ten grammar school libraries with an aggregate of 3,175 volumes are available to 1,750 pupils and teachers, and there are as many more separate libraries of from 50 to 300 volumes in the different primary schools. The valuable and extensive collections of the Maine Historical Society and the Maine Genealogical Society are also available for use in the society rooms under reasonable conditions.

The flourishing condition of the libraries in Portland and Westbrook can be distinctly traced to the generosity of individuals. Without similar gifts from men of wealth it is never easy and often impossible for a small town to maintain at public expense a good free public library. In such a town the absolute number of people interested in books and reading is not large. Their personal needs can be supplied by a limited association. Consequently the majority of the voters can rarely be led to appropriate the amount necessary either to equip or to maintain a library in a proper manner. Under such circumstances the commission recommends co-operation between well established libraries and communities without any. As an illustration of what can be done may be cited the experiment tried by the public library of Brunswick. Two stations, respectively three and five miles distant from the main library, have been established, and at these over 300 volumes are annually circulated with little or no expenditure of money. If reasonable compensation is given, there seems to be no reason why the library needs of Harpswell should not be met in a similar manner; why the town of Cape Elizabeth with less than a thousand inhabitants should be cared for by Portland Public Library. The legislation necessary to render it legal for one town receiving from the State an annual subsidy for its own library to render this service to another town destitute of a library is earnestly advised by the commission.

The women's clubs and other literary associations have been so closely connected with the work of establishing and maintaining free libraries and of increasing the facilities for serious study throughout the State that the secretary of the commission has compiled tabular statements of their activities which will be found as Appendix 2 of this report.

No careful student of the histories of libraries in Maine can fail to be impressed with the great mortality characteristic of public library associations. In the writer's native city the present prosperous free public library, receiving an annual appropriation from the city treasury, was preceded at various periods by three distinct library organizations, each of which in turn did good work for a time but died years before its successor ran its brief career. In all three cases the cause of death was the same, the lack of new books. Libraries to be strong and vigorous must receive regular supplies of food. Until the town can afford a regular appropriation of money for this object, or until the library itself has won a firm hold upon the community or has touched the heart and purse of a rich benefactor, the State can most properly and wisely maintain the value and efficiency of the collection of books to which it has already contributed by the occasional loan for six months of a travelling library containing the best of current literature.

Should further argument be needed to justify the small annual appropriation made for travelling libraries, the commissioners believe it can be drawn from the following facts. The State in accordance with the provisions of the statutes has paid the past year the free public libraries of Cumberland county, with a population of about 100,000, $888.40; the free public libraries of Waldo county with a population of about 30,000, $19.55. The commission has sent eleven travelling libraries into Waldo county and none to Cumberland county.
