OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL,
PORTLAND, ME., December 1, 1904.

To the Governor and Council of the State of Maine:

In compliance with public statutes, chapter 79, section 64, I herewith submit my report of the business of the office of Attorney-general for the two years ending November 20, 1904.

HOMICIDES.

Indictments for murder and manslaughter have been disposed of as follows:

STATE OF MAINE vs. MARY HAPPY, alias MARY MASSAD.

At the September term, 1903, of the supreme judicial court for the county of Androscoggin, an indictment was found charging the respondent with the murder of her infant child, Mary Habi Massad.

The facts disclosed in the case are as follows:

The respondent was an Armenian woman, some thirty years of age, who had been in this country several years, most of the time in the state of Massachusetts where she claimed that her husband was living. She came to Lewiston in March or April, 1903, and was taken to the city almshouse on April 7, 1903, where she remained until the twenty-fourth day of the following June. The child, Mary Habi Massad, was born on June 12, 1903. The respondent left the city almshouse on the morning of June 24 with her child, went to the city of Lewiston where she called on some of her fellow countrymen, and was finally taken to the Maine Central station early in the afternoon by her friends, for the purpose, as they understood, of her going to her home in Lawrence, Mass. Her friends furnished her with means to go to Lawrence, and left her at the station awaiting the train, due to leave Lewiston at 2.18 P. M. After her friends left the station, the respondent, taking the child, went to the house of Benjamin Marcotte and wife and Samuel Renaud and wife. To one of the women she stated that she was waiting for her sister to come in on the train, and requested to remain at the house during the afternoon, and was given permission to do so. Later, pretending to have some errand out, she left the child in the care of Mrs. Renaud. She returned to the house, and left again between the hours of six and seven, still leaving the child there. Just before seven o'clock, the watchman at the Pingree Lumber Mills saw the respondent wandering in the rear of the mills on the bank of the Androscoggin river, looking into the water. He sent her away, and she returned to the house where she had left the child, where she remained till about 8.30 o'clock in the evening. At that time, she went out again, taking the child with her, saying that she expected her sister on the train, and was taking the child to her sister. In about ten minutes she returned to the house and represented that her sister had taken the child along with her on the train. To these people she had represented that the child was her sister's. When she last left the house the child was alive.

After returning the last time without the child to the house, she asked one of the men to find her a room somewhere in the city, and he finally left her at the Rockingham Hotel. Her conduct there was suspicious, and report was made to the police, who interviewed her. She, at first, denied all knowledge of any child, but Mr. Renaud being summoned to the hotel, she became confused, and finally resorted to her former story that she had left the child with her sister.

She was taken to the police station, and there she finally agreed to show the officers where she had left the child; in the morning she went direct with the police to the river where she had been seen by the watchman, passed down between two piles of lumber to the river's edge, and made a motion indicating that she had thrown the child into the river. A few days after this, the body of the child was discovered in the river. An autopsy was performed, and the physicians testified that the child was not drowned, and that there were no marks of violence on its person; that the child was apparently very weak and poorly nourished, and that a slight exposure or shock might have caused its death. They further stated that the weak physical condition of the child might have led to its instant death from the shock of being thrown and striking upon the surface of the water, suspending the action of the heart so suddenly as to prevent the drawing of water into the lungs, and that, on the other hand, they were equally confident from all conditions, that the child may have died before the mother reached the shore of the river with it.

When this case came on for trial before said court, the State, because of the conflicting and indefinite testimony of the physicians performing the autopsy, accepted a plea of manslaughter, and Presiding Justice Strout imposed a sentence of thirty days at labor in Auburn jail.

Messrs. McGillicuddy and Morey appeared as counsel for the respondent, and labored earnestly and faithfully for their client, although she had no means whatever to employ counsel.

STATE OF MAINE vs. FRANK W. SANDFORD.

At the January term, 1904, of the supreme judicial court for the county of Androscoggin, the respondent was indicted for manslaughter, for causing the death of Leander Bartlett, who died January 25, 1903, by reason of failure of the respondent to provide him with suitable food, medicine and medical treatment.

On the trial of this cause, the jury disagreed.

At the April term following of said court, a new indictment was returned by the grand jury of the same tenor, except that the middle initial "A" was added in the name of Bartlett.

The case was removed to the Franklin county docket on motion of the defendant, and tried there at the May term before Justice Savage. The county attorney for Androscoggin county appeared and prosecuted the case. After a careful and exhaustive trial, the jury returned a verdict of manslaughter. Exceptions were taken by the respondent, and the case was argued at the June term of the law court at Portland, where it is now pending.

Messrs. Henry W. Oakes and Henry E. Coolidge appeared for the respondent, and made every possible effort to clear their client of the charge brought against him, but the facts in the case, as disclosed by the evidence, were sufficiently conclusive to warrant the verdict found.

In both this and the prior case Hon. William B. Skelton, county attorney for Androscoggin county, appeared and prosecuted, in the former, being associated with the attorney general. Mr. Skelton, in both cases, gave his usual earnest and careful effort in the preparation and trial of the causes.

STATE vs. CHAS. A. WILSON.

About five o'clock Saturday night, March 19, 1904, Chas. A. Wilson, the respondent, shot and fatally wounded Leroy A. Brackley at his home in the town of Industry, county of Franklin.

Brackley was nineteen years of age and married. He was at West Mills on the day of the tragedy, and there met the respondent. They took dinner together in the village, and in the afternoon Wilson accompanied Brackley home. After reaching home, taking Mr. Billington with them, they started out to get some cider, and returned home, arriving about five o'clock in the afternoon, at which time Brackley was very much intoxicated, so much so that he smashed several windows and a stove, but after considerable persuasion desisted and left the house. Billington and the respondent remained in the kitchen, and in the meantime Mrs. Brackley was outside of the house.

Brackley re-entered the house, and as he did so, the respondent, standing about ten feet away, near a door entering into a bed room, drew his revolver and fired two shots, one passing through the left lung, the other entering the abdomen of Brackley. Brackley turned and ran, and as he did so Wilson fired a third shot which made a slight wound in Brackley's back. Brackley expired the following Tuesday morning at the Central Maine General Hospital, Lewiston.

The respondent made the statement that he intended to shoot Brackley through the heart, and tried to persuade Mrs. Brackley and Mr. Billington to say that he did it in self-defense. From the statements of Mrs. Brackley and Mr. Billington, Wilson was not intoxicated.

The respondent after remaining a few minutes upon the Brackley premises went to the village at West Mills and entered a store with his revolver still in his hand. He was arrested there, and lodged in Farmington jail. A prompt investigation of the case was had by County Attorney H. S. Wing, and thereupon, the respondent was arraigned before the municipal court of Farmington, where he waived preliminary hearing, and was committed to await the action of the grand jury at the September term of court, 1904.

During the night of July 21, Wilson and a fellow prisoner escaped from jail by sawing off the bars of their cell door and the bars at the window of the jail. The escape was discovered the next morning, and pursuit at once made by the officers. No trace of the course taken by the prisoners was discovered, and to this time they have not been captured. The grand jury at the September term of court returned an indictment against the respondent for murder.

The respondent had always borne a bad reputation, and had frequently, at the slightest provocation, drawn his revolver or dirk knife, and threatened those with whom he was angry.

STATE vs. JOHN BLOMILEY.

At the January term, 1904, of the superior court for Kennebec county an indictment was presented by the grand jury against the respondent for the murder of Hosea Stevens.

This case by special provision of law was transferred to the docket of the supreme judicial court, March term, 1904, for said county, Spear J. presiding.

A brief statement of the facts in the case is as follows:

Much ill feeling had existed for a long time between the respondent and said Stevens, largely by reason of the constant annoyance of the respondent by said Stevens. In fact, the evidence in the case showed clearly that Stevens made it a point to annoy the respondent in every way possible.

On the twelfth day of November, 1903, some of Stevens' hogs were found to be on the land of the respondent. The respondent, discovering the fact, left his work, and going to a neighbor's, borrowed a gun, saying he was going to shoot some hogs. On his way back, when opposite Stevens' place, Stevens came out of his barn, and asked Blomiley what he was going to shoot. Some words passed between them, and finally Blomley raised his gun and shot Stevens.

There is a long story of ill feeling existing between the two men. While the words that passed between them prior to the shooting were wholly inadequate to account for the action of the respondent, yet, beyond any question, the respondent was exceedingly wrought up and angry at the time.

All of the facts in the case were brought to my attention at the time appointed for the trial of the cause, and on the recommendation of the county attorney, Thomas Leigh, Esq., and acquiesced in by the presiding justice, all of the facts having been submitted to him, I recommended the entry of the plea of guilty of manslaughter offered by the respondent.

At said term of court, the respondent was sentenced to ten years imprisonment in the State's prison.

STATE vs. HENRY LAMBERT.

This case was tried at the September term of the supreme judicial court, 1901, for said county, and a verdict of murder in the first degree was found against the respondent. A motion for a new trial was filed by the respondent asking that the verdict be set aside and a new trial granted. At the time of my last report, this case was pending in the law court.

At the February term of said court, 1903, an opinion was handed down from the law court refusing the motion of the respondent, and sustaining the verdict of the jury, and thereupon, the respondent was sentenced to imprisonment and labor in the State's prison for and during the term of his natural life.

STATE vs. EDWARD BALLARD.

At the February term of the supreme judicial court, 1903, for Piscataquis county, Justice Powers presiding, an indictment was returned by the grand jury against the respondent for the murder of Martin Stanton on the eleventh of October, 1902.

The facts developed in the case are as follows:

On the tenth day of October, 1902, Martin Stanton with the respondent, started from Marsh's camp at Eagle Lake, in Piscataquis county, and proceeded therefrom over the old Eagle Lake tote road towards the town of Patten, in Penobscot county, from which place Stanton intended to go to Bangor.

On October 11th these men called at Lynch's camp, about twenty miles from Eagle Lake, and there took dinner. At that time Ballard was carrying a large-sized revolver, which he offered to swap for a rifle with one Perley George. Stanton was unarmed. After leaving Lynch's camp they were met by some hunters, and later on their way called at the Brawn camp several miles below, and made some inquiries of one Frank Crommett, after which they proceeded on their way. At this stopping place, Ballard still had his revolver.

On the same evening, Ballard appeared at the camp of one Samuel Robbins alone, and remained there over night. While at the Robbins place he said that "an old man came along with him until at a point a few miles back, when he turned off into a logging road;" that he asked him where he was going, to which he made reply, "I am going to H-11;" and that he, Ballard, thought the old man appeared to be crazy.

Ballard left the Robbins place on the morning of the twelfth, going down as far as the camp of Jeff Mitchell, where he remained until the morning of the thirteenth, when he left for Patten. At Mitchell's he gave his name as Martin Stanton, and there displayed to one of the men a sum of money, and a time check drawn in favor of Martin Stanton, which check was afterwards proven to have been drawn by the clerk at Eagle Lake in favor of, and delivered to the dead man, Martin Stanton, on October 9th.

Ballard proceeded to Patten, where he tried to sell the time check in several places, and finally delivered it to H. W. Marsh, the proprietor of the Eagle Lake camps. Ballard then went into the woods for one Tozier to Scraggly Lake. Later the body of Stanton was found about a mile east of the Brawn camp where he was last seen alive by Mr. Crommett. The body was found about five rods from the road, lying face down; two bullet wounds were discovered on the body, one entering the back and passing through the body, the other entering the back part of the head, and coming out near the right eye.

The motive for this crime undoubtedly was robbery, as the money Stanton was known to possess was found to be missing, as also was his time check, which was found in the possession of the respondent.

Ballard was arrested, arraigned, and entered a plea of not guilty, and the court appointed Henry Hudson, Esq., and Geo. W. Howe, Esq., as counsel for him.

On March 17th, the case was opened to the jury, and although there were thirty-two witnesses for the State who testified, yet their evidence had been so carefully sifted, that the case went to the jury at 4.25 P. M., March 19th, and the jury after being out scarcely an hour, returned a verdict of murder in the first degree. The respondent was then sentenced to imprisonment and labor in the State prison for and during the term of his natural life.

The respondent's counsel gave great care and attention to the trial of the case in behalf of their client, but the chain of circumstances surrounding the respondent was so conclusive that the jury could not do otherwise than to return a verdict of

STATE vs. CHARLES H. WYMAN.

At the February term of the supreme judicial court, 1904, for Piscataquis county, Whitehouse, J. presiding, the grand jury returned an indictment against the respondent for the murder of Maria Wyman on the twenty-fifth day of October, 1903.

The main facts in the case are as follows:

On Sunday, October 25, 1903, Maria Wyman of Kingsbury, in the county of Piscataquis, was found lying dead on the kitchen floor of her home. The cause of her death was apparent, for on inspection, a wound was found in her head, caused by a bullet which had entered the left side of her head, passing through to the right side just below the mastoid process, and lodging beneath the skin, probably causing instant death. There were also found in her brain small portions of a swab stick used in cleaning rifles, showing conclusively that the stick was in the rifle barrel when discharged.

The family consisted of the deceased, her husband, the respondent, and Ralph Wyman, their son, a lad of fourteen years. On Saturday evening, October 24th, another son, Dinsmore, came to the house and remained until Sunday morning, when he left at seven o'clock to go hunting.

At about eight o'clock, the boy Ralph was sent by the respondent to a neighbor's some sixty rods away with a pail of apples and a letter. According to the boy's story, he was absent twenty minutes, and that when he left home his mother was alive and working about the house, and that his father was there with her. On his return, he went to the house, and looking in, saw his mother lying on the floor with blood trickling from the wound in her head. He ran to the stable some twenty rods away, and told his father, who was cleaning a horse. The respondent said that the boy was gone about half an hour, but admitted that when he left, his wife, Maria Wyman, was alive and well, and that he remained with her about ten minutes after the boy left when he went to the stable, and that he knew nothing of her death until the boy told him.

It was shown conclusively that no one outside of those mentioned was at the Wyman place that morning, and that Mrs. Wyman must have been killed either by the son Ralph or by the respondent.

The boy Ralph is an intelligent boy, and told a straightforward story, denying all knowledge whatsoever as to how his mother met her death. The apparent truthfulness of his statements led to the only possible conclusion; namely, that Maria Wyman was shot and killed by the respondent, he having had exclusive opportunity to commit the deed.

Two rifles were found to have been in the house at the time of the shooting, in one of which was an empty shell.

The respondent was a man sixty-nine years of age, passionate and somewhat weak-minded.

The foregoing facts among others which are not herein mentioned, were brought to my attention by the county attorney, Hon. M. L. Durgin, and on consideration of them, and on his advice in the matter, the court concurring, and believing that a trial by jury would result in a verdict of manslaughter, the State concluded to accept a plea of manslaughter offered by the respondent through his counsel, Henry Hudson, Esq., of Guilford, and thereupon, the respondent was sentenced to imprisonment and labor in the State's prison for the term of five years.

STATE vs. JOSEPH GUYETTE.

At the September term, 1903, of the supreme judicial court for the county of Piscataquis, Justice Savage presiding, an indictment was returned by the grand jury against the respondent for the murder of James Myers.

The facts in the case are as follows:

On July 8, 1903, a crew of woodmen were going by steamer from Greenville up Moosehead Lake to the camp of one Charles Jackson, among whom was the respondent and one James Myers. Both the respondent and Myers were somewhat under the influence of liquor. So far as could be learned, these men were strangers to each other. Myers came from Bangor, and Guyette first joined the crew at Greenville Junction.

Some distance up the lake, the respondent approached Myers, who was leaning against the rail of the steamer, and Myers addressed some remark to him which evidently provoked him, whereupon the respondent picked Myers up and threw him overboard. A boat was immediately lowered, and efforts were made to save the man from drowning, but he sank before help could reach him, and his body was never recovered.

Guyette was immediately taken into custody, and later brought to the jail at Dover. It appeared in evidence that no quarrel was provoked or actually occurred, and from the facts gathered from the men who saw the accident, it appears that the respondent was made angry by some remark which Myers made to him.

The defense offered to enter a plea of manslaughter, if the State would accept it. On a careful examination of all the details in the case submitted to me by Hon. M. L. Durgin, county attorney, it became evident that in all probability a verdict of murder could not be secured in the trial of the cause before a jury. I therefore advised that the plea of manslaughter be accepted, which was done, and thereupon the respondent was sentenced to imprisonment and labor for the term of three years in the State's prison.

The court appointed Hon. C. W. Brown and Hon. J. F. Sprague as counsel in this case, who carefully guarded the interests of their client.

In the foregoing cases, Hon. M. L. Durgin, county attorney of Piscataquis county, examined into and collected the evidence as soon as the offences were committed. He was of great service to me in preparing the evidence, and in fact, the work was so carefully done, and the evidence so thoroughly sifted by him, that I was relieved largely of the burden of disposing of the cases.

Piscataquis county, during the last four years, has been unfortunate in the number of its murder cases, but, on the other hand, it has been particularly fortunate in having the able services of the present county attorney in ferreting them out and in bringing the guilty parties to justice.

STATE vs. ALEXANDER TERRIO.

This case was tried at the September term of the supreme judicial court, 1901, for said county, and the verdict of murder in the first degree was had against the respondent. A motion for a new trial was filed by the respondent, asking that the verdict be set aside and a new trial granted. At the time of my last report this case was pending in the law court. At the March term, 1903, of the supreme judicial court for said county, an opinion was handed down from the law court granting the respondent a new trial.

At the September adjourned term of said court, on November 24th, the case was assigned for a new trial, Powers, J., presiding. On the second day of the trial Hon. George W. Gower, county attorney, was unfortunately taken sick with pneumonia, and was not able to continue in the trial. At about the time of the close of the taking out of the State's evidence, the foreman of the jury was taken sick with an attack of pneumonia, and the trial was suspended for some days, when it was found that there was no prospect that the trial could be continued, whereupon the trial was discontinued, and the court adjourned.

On account of the delays caused by sickness in this trial, and the large expense to which the county had been put by reason of the first trial and the second partial trial at December term of said court, the indictment was nol prossed.

This disposal of the case was, in some respects, unfortunate, and yet it has been found that a great deal stronger evidence is required to convict on a second or third trial than on the first, when all of the facts are fresh in the minds of the witnesses.

For the foregoing reasons, with the advice of the county attorney, I deemed it best not to go to a third trial of the cause.

STATE vs. EVERETT SOCABASIN AND NEWELL,
P. FRANCIS.

At the January term of the supreme judicial court, 1904, for the county of Washington, Powers, J. presiding, the grand jury presented an indictment against the two respondents for the murder of Joseph Socalexis.

The deceased, Joseph Socalexis, an Indian of the Oldtown tribe, about twenty years of age, was found dead on the evening of November 20, 1903, beneath a trestle of the Washington County Railroad near Carlow Island, in Eastport. A careful examination of the body indicated that the deceased came to his death from blows administered on his head by some blunt instrument. The surroundings where the body was found gave the appearance of recent scuffling, rough usage and foul play.

It was at first suggested that Socalexis had been run down while walking on the trestle bridge by a freight train running into Eastport, and thrown to the rocks below and killed. However, it was soon ascertained that he in company with two companions, the respondents, of the Passamaquoddy tribe, had been at Campobello during the day, and that when they returned to Eastport late in the afternoon, they were all partially intoxicated, and on their way to the Indian village at Pleasant Point, in Perry, they were wrangling and quarrelling with one another. The trial of the cause continued nearly a week, and there were about sixty witnesses examined. It appeared in evidence that the prisoners reported on the evening the body was found, that Socalexis and a companion had fallen through the railroad trestle, and that they, the respondents, immediately went for assistance without going near the body of Socalexis; but from other testimony it appeared that the men were not on the bridge together, and that although the respondents stated they did not go near the body of Socalexis after the accident, their clothing bore stains of blood which they neither satisfactorily accounted for nor explained.

The engineer of the train going into Eastport, which the respondents claimed had thrown Socalexis from the trestle to the rocks below, was examined, and testified that on the evening in question his train ran over the trestle on its way into Eastport at a speed of about four miles an hour, and that he could plainly see one hundred and fifty feet ahead of the engine, but saw no person on or near the trestle.

There were two lines of tracks in the sand approaching the point where the body lay, from the direction of Eastport. There were also fragments and parts of three bottles about the body of Socalexis where it lay and was first found.

The evidence at the trial showed conclusively that Socalexis was not run over, or thrown from the trestle by the train, and his wounds were of such a nature that they could not have been administered by himself. There was a mix-up of the hats and coats of the respondents and of Socalexis for which the respondents were not able to account, to say nothing of the fact that the garments of one of the respondents, at least, was besmirched with blood. The evidence in the case seemed to be conclusive that Socalexis came to his death by foul means and that the respondents were the parties concerned in his death. The case was given to the jury, which, after three and one-half hours' deliberation, returned a verdict of "Not guilty."

The court assigned R. J. McGarrigle, Esq., and A. D. McFaul, Esq., as counsel for the prisoners. They devoted themselves with great care and energy to the interest of their clients, and were rewarded for their efforts by the verdict returned by the jury.

The preliminary work of the case for the State was done by Hon. B. B. Murray, county attorney, who gave much time and careful attention to the details. He assisted me at the trial of the cause and devoted his time to the case with a great deal of energy and foresight, and, although the jury in its inscrutable judgment returned a verdict of "Not guilty," it was not because of the lack of effort and careful attention which the county attorney gave to this case.

STATE vs. CHARLES A. EASTMAN.

At the May term of the supreme judicial court, 1904, for the county of York, Emery, J. presiding, the grand jury returned an indictment against the respondent for the murder of Edith McIntyre.

The facts in the case are in brief as follows:

The respondent, Charles A. Eastman, at the time of the development of the facts in this case, had a so-called sanitarium under his special care in the town of Old Orchard, and on the morning of April 1st, a body was shipped from said sanitarium, apparently in great haste. A certificate of death was filed with the town clerk of Old Orchard by Charles A. Eastman, stating that the deceased, Edith McIntyre, of Boothbay Harbor, Me., had died at Dr. Charles A. Eastman's sanitarium about three o'clock A. M., April 1st, and that the body had been shipped on the early train of that day to Boothbay Harbor in charge of the deceased girl's brother, Capt. Albert McIntyre. The cause of the death was given as gastritis, resulting from the taking of oxalic acid salts by the deceased sometime in February of the same year.

The early developments in the case were immediately brought to the attention of the county attorney, Geo. L. Emery, Esq., who proceeded at once to make diligent inquiry and examination of them. Mr. Emery immediately went to Boothbay Harbor, and had an interview with Capt. McIntyre, whose statements he found to be conflicting and unsatisfactory. He learned also that the body had reached Boothbay Harbor, Friday night, April 1st, and was buried early Saturday, April 2d, and that the relatives and friends were not allowed to view the body. Request was made for a disinterment of the body for the purpose of having an autopsy performed, which was refused. Nevertheless, the body was disinterred, an autopsy had, and a coroner's inquest summoned. The autopsy disclosed evidence that a criminal operation had been performed.

On returning to Old Orchard, the county attorney found that the respondent had flown; that the sanitarium was deserted, except that it was in the charge of a nurse. Further damaging facts continued to develop in the case, and the county attorney had a warrant issued for the arrest of the respondent. The respondent could not be found, but later he was discovered in Lowell, Mass., where he was arrested by the police.

In the meantime, a careful examination and search of the so-called sanitarium at Old Orchard had been made, and very damaging evidence was found against the respondent. The respondent was arraigned on the charge of murder, and pleaded not guilty, and on his representation to the court that he was without means, Judge Emery assigned Hon. Enoch Foster of Portland and Hon. James O. Bradbury of Saco to act as his counsel. A trial was set for July 5th, at which time the case was open to the jury, and a large amount of evidence, including that of experts, as to the cause of the death of Edith McIntyre was presented.

The government contended that a criminal operation had been performed some time in March for abortion, and that the death of Edith McIntyre was caused by septicemia, or blood poisoning, resulting from this operation. On the other hand, the defence contended that an accidental miscarriage had occurred, which was not the result of any criminal interference, and that the proximate cause of her death was gastritis, resulting from a large quantity of oxalic acid salts taken by the deceased sometime in February. The testimony of John Morrill, who arrested the respondent, the letters written by the respondent to his wife while he was a fugitive from justice, and of Capt. McIntyre, who was more or less familiar with the facts, and the expert testimony of Dr. Alfred King of Portland and Dr. Geo. Gregory of Boothbay Harbor, Me., were very damaging to the respondent.

The trial lasted seven days, and on July 12th, the jury returned a verdict of guilty of manslaughter. The counsel for the respondent filed a bill of exceptions as to the admissibility of two letters introduced by the government to show the character of the institution which the respondent was conducting at Old Orchard, and also as to the testimony of Dr. Alfred King in regard to some of the medical features of the case.

The case is now pending in the law court, and will be argued this month. I did not appear with the county attorney, Geo. L. Emery, Esq., on the trial of this cause, it being the only murder case in which I have not appeared for the four years of my official term. Matters of great importance prevented me from trying this case with the county attorney. However, the case was tried by him with great ability. He had prepared the case exhaustively, and was more familiar with it than any other person possibly could be. The verdict obtained was as I expected from the first.

The counsel assigned for the respondent fully protected the interests of their client, but the evidence was so conclusive and overwhelming that the jury was evidently thoroughly convinced of the respondent's guilt.

The following additional homicides were referred to in my last report:

MARTIN STANTON.

In this case, indictment was found against Edward Ballard for the murder of Stanton as herein reported.

JOHN MCELWEE.

This case was examined into very carefully, and while all the evidence pointed in one direction, it was, nevertheless, too shadowy to warrant an indictment of any person for the offence, and it seems hardly possible that sufficient evidence will ever be discovered to bring the guilty person to justice.

WILLIAM THOMPSON, ALIAS WILLIAM RILEY, OF CHELSEA, MASS.

This case was referred to in my last report, and the facts therein stated. The perpetrator of the crime has never been apprehended. He, doubtless, will never again appear in this State; but since he is known to be a criminal, he may be apprehended elsewhere.

OLIVE H. BROAD.

This case was also referred to in my last report, and the facts therein stated. There have been few cases in the State where so much effort has been made to discover the guilty person as in this. Such evidence as has been discovered all points in one direction, and, although the officers are satisfied in their own minds as to the person who committed the atrocious deed, yet, not enough evidence has been brought to light to warrant the apprehension of the person suspected. It is hoped that some-time evidence sufficient will be obtained to bring the guilty party to justice.

DETECTIVE WORK AND OFFICIALS.

In my last report I had occasion to make mention of the laxness which pertained among officials in the matter of ferreting out crime. I am glad to be able to report that there has been great advance in the State the last two years on the part of the officials in every department of criminal prosecution. As a rule, the officers have displayed commendable and praiseworthy activity and interest in all criminal matters which have been brought to their attention, and particularly this has been the case with the county attorneys for the State. They have rendered most excellent, prompt and untiring service in their several counties. They have assisted me in every possible way, and I am indebted to them for the support which they have given me.

I think this increased interest and activity on the part of the officials has resulted in great good. There has not been a period for a long while when so few bank and post-office breaks have been made as within the last two years, and I can but think that the increased effort to detect and ferret out such crimes has been the cause, at least in some measure, of their decrease in number.

In relation to the appropriation for the detection of crime, I can only reiterate in substance what I said in my last report. The law providing for the appropriation is a most wise one, and the good results flowing therefrom have fully established the fact that the State can best prosecute crime by having some such fund which can be resorted to in cases requiring prompt and aggressive action. The appropriation for this purpose has been of great assistance to me.

Of the appropriation for this purpose for the year 1903, I have approved the expenditure of $1,216.42, leaving a balance of $283.58 unexpended. For the year 1904, I have approved the expenditure of $512.84, leaving a balance of $987.16 unexpended.

CORPORATIONS AND FRANCHISE TAXES.

Under the provisions of Chap. 229, Sec. 7, of the Public Laws of 1901, the State treasurer in March, 1903, transmitted to this office the names of 461 corporations that had not paid their franchise tax for the year 1902. I immediately made demand on these delinquent corporations, so far as they could be found, to pay the tax then overdue. The result was that 186 corporations paid their taxes amounting to $3,620, all of which sum has been covered into the State treasury.

Under the provisions of Chap. 8, Sec. 22, of the Revised Statutes, the State treasurer, in March, 1904, transmitted to this office the names of 1,412 corporations that had not paid their franchise tax for the year 1903. I immediately made demand on these corporations as on those of the prior year, so far as they could be found, to pay the taxes overdue. The result has been that 356 corporations have paid their taxes amounting to $6,435, all of which sum has been covered into the State treasury. Doubtless, a very large percentage of these delinquent corporations, so far as doing any business is concerned, are actually dead. In a large number of instances, it is impossible to find any treasurer or officer on whom demand may be made.

As stated in my last report, while the statutes require that suit may be brought against such delinquent corporations, yet no appropriation has ever been made by the legislature for this purpose. In my judgment, the only result that could be obtained by bringing suits to recover such delinquent taxes, would be to make a large expense without being able to collect anything. The charters of such corporations might be forfeited by bringing such suits, but this result can be obtained with little or no expense by Act of the Legislature, as was done in 1903.

During the year 1903, I excused on application therefor 293 corporations from making annual returns to the secretary of State as provided by law, of which number 269 paid the statutory fee therefor, and 24 paid no fee whatsoever. For the year 1904, I have excused 365 corporations, of which number 346 paid the statutory fee, and 19 paid no fee whatsoever.

During the year 1903, the number of corporations dissolved by decree of court was 27, and for the year 1904 to November 4th, 30.

For the year 1903, the total number of certificates of incorporation approved by me was 1,265.

For the year 1904, the total number approved to this date, December 20th, is 823. If the rate for the balance of the present month of December continues, the approximate number of certificates approved for this year will be 849.

STATE INCORPORATION FEES AND TAX RECEIPTS.

As reported from the treasurer's office, the incorporation fees paid to the State treasurer for the year 1903 were $86,075; for the year 1904 to December 1st, $55,092. The franchise taxes paid to the State by corporations organized under the general laws on assessment for 1903 amounted to $61,585; for the year 1904 to December 1st, $49,400.

The annual amount of fees of the office for the four years past, while they have been in excess of any previous four years, yet the increased work of the office has far outstripped the increase of fees.

A State office that directly or indirectly has to do with a revenue to the State of 147,660 dollars, as in the year 1903, and 104,492 dollars, as in the year 1904, to the first day of December, should receive the careful and considerate attention of the Legislature before any radical changes are made; for it is doubtful if the State has to do with any branch of business that is so sensitive to changes in the law, as the incorporation business.

I assume that the State does not desire to drive this business away, since in years past, particularly in 1901, it passed laws directly fostering it.

The consensus of opinion of men who are familiar and versed in the incorporation laws of other states is, that the laws of the State of Maine, in this respect, are superior to those of any other of the eastern states, or of the middle states.

It would seem to be inadvisable, in view of the large revenue that the State is receiving from this source, to enact any measure in relation to the office of the attorney general, that shall be the means of affecting such revenue unfavorably.

For further information and data relative to corporations and franchise taxes and fees of the office, I respectfully refer to the office of the secretary of State.

STATE CASES IN SUIT.

STATE vs. BOSTON & PORTLAND EXPRESS COMPANY.

On March 12, 1904, suit was brought by the State against the Boston & Portland Express Company, and made returnable at the April term of the supreme judicial court held at Portland, for the county of Cumberland, for the collection of the franchise taxes for the years 1898 and 1899. In this case a statement of facts was made up and agreed to by the defendant's attorney and myself, and the case was submitted to the law court at the July term, 1904, holden at Portland. It was agreed that the case should be argued in writing. The arguments, both for the State and for the defense, have been submitted, and the case is now pending. The decision of the case depends upon the constitutionality and construction of the law which provides for the assessment of State taxes against such corporations.

STATE vs. CANADIAN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY.

On January 11, 1904, suit was brought by the State against the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, and made returnable at the April term, 1904, of the supreme judicial court, held at Bangor, for the county of Penobscot. In this case, as in the prior one, a statement of facts was agreed to by the attorney for said railroad and myself, and thereupon the case was carried to the law court to be argued on said statement of facts.

At the July term of the law court held in Portland, the case was argued by Hon. Charles F. Woodard, of Bangor, and myself. No decision has, as yet, been handed down by the court.

The suit was brought to recover the franchise tax assessed against said railroad for the year 1902, amounting to $15,042.03 with interest.

STATE vs. FRANK A. CREAMER.

In my last report mention was made of this case. On careful examination of the law and of the facts relating to the case, particularly the bond of said Creamer, it was found that a successful suit could not be maintained against the bondsmen for the reason of the defective bond which had been given by said Creamer, as clerk of courts for the county of Lincoln. It was useless to pursue the case without any prospect whatever of obtaining judgment against the bondsmen. The suit was therefore dropped and no further action in relation to the matter has been taken.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

The statute provisions relating to the payment of franchise taxes assessed on corporations organized under the general law, have been found to be inadequate in some respects, and large loss to the State has resulted therefrom. Under the present law, the tax is assessed the first day of July, and is made payable September 1st of each year. It then provides that corporations which do not pay their franchise tax before the first day of March following, shall be reported by the State treasurer to the attorney general for collection. Therefore, eight months must elapse after the assessment of the tax, before action can be taken against delinquent corporations. By the time eight months have passed, some of the corporations have ceased to do business; others have transferred all their interests to other corporations or individuals; and the long delay in enforcing the payment of the tax has rendered many others careless of payment. As an illustration, in March last 1,412 corporation, which had not paid their taxes for the year 1903, were committed to me by the State treasurer. Of this number 1056 have not as yet paid their taxes. It is doubtful if any of these will ever pay, and no property can be found on which to enforce payment. Any action brought against such corporation will cost the State from ten dollars upwards for each corporation, and in case of suit nothing can be collected.

I recommend, therefore, that the law be amended to the effect, that the date of payment of the tax be made August 1st in place of September 1st; that the Governor yearly issue his proclamation as early, at least, as November 1st, against all corporations organized under the general laws, in arrears in the payment of their taxes, declaring their charters to be forfeited on and after the first day of January following, in case such delinquent taxes shall not be paid at that time.

I have no doubt, that, with such prompt action, quite a large number of the franchise taxes, which are now lost to the State under the present law, would be saved.

Another great advantage that would result from such an amendment, would be, that the books of the State would be kept clear from dead corporations, and a large amount of work would be saved to the office of the secretary of State, and that of the State treasurer. In relation to the corporations which have not paid their taxes for the year 1903, I recommend that a law be passed, similar to that passed by the legislature of 1903, Public Laws, Chap. 235, forfeiting their charters, as the speediest and most satisfactory way of disposing of them.

My experience in the office of attorney general for four years, has fully convinced me that this office should take care of all legal matters arising in the various State departments. In this respect, and in many others, our laws are very meager as to the duties of the attorney general. Much more can be saved to the State in this department by requiring it to perform the duties which would naturally fall to the legal department, than any possible outset by reason of salaries or fees.

The business of every State department has, during the last thirty years, increased many fold, and the legislature, from time to time, has passed suitable laws relating to the various departments in consideration of such increased business. While the work in the attorney general's office has increased many fold during the same period, and more particularly within a few years, by reason of increased incorporations, the collection of overdue franchise taxes and miscellaneous business, yet the State has made little or no provision therefor.

This is a matter which will bear careful consideration, because I believe the interests of the State require that the office of attorney general should attend to the legal matters of the State exclusively. An examination of the attorney generals' reports of various other states, to which I have had access, show conclusively that we are lagging behind in this matter, and to the detriment of the State.

The work in this department, if it continues in the future as it has the last four years, is more than one individual can attend to properly, even if he devotes his entire time and attention to it. From time to time, I have employed more or less help at my own expense. If, therefore, the office is to be put on a salary as has been urged, I have no hesitation in recommending that an assistant be provided for, since I believe that such a course would be for the best interests of the State in every way. Careful, thorough and systematic work on the part of the State officials always brings a greater revenue to the State, than the paring of salaries, and the refusal of sufficient help to do the work of the State well.

Printed herewith may be found also, the tables usually accompanying the attorney general's report, relating to crime in the various counties, and the expense of prosecuting the same.

I have submitted many written and oral opinions during the last two years to the various State departments at their request, concerning matters relating thereto, the most important of which may be found on subsequent pages.

Respectfully submitted,

GEORGE M. SEIDERS,

Attorney General.

BOARDS OF HEALTH IN PLANTATIONS.

1. Organized "plantations" are included in the word "town" unless otherwise expressed, and are required to take the necessary measures to prevent the spread of infectious diseases.

2. Organized "plantations" are required to pay plantation clerks the fees required for recording births, marriages and deaths.

Dr. A. G. Young, Secretary of the State Board of Health, Augusta, Maine:

My Dear Sir:—I herewith make answer to your questions submitted under date of February 2, of the following tenor:

1st. Whether or not organized plantations are included in the law of 1887, Chap. 123, and acts amendatory thereof and additional thereto?

2d. Whether or not organized plantations are required to take requisite measures to prevent the spread of infectious diseases such as diphtheria or smallpox?

3d. Whether or not organized plantations are required to pay their plantation clerks the fees for receiving, recording and returning the facts relating to births, marriages and deaths, as provided in Sec. 17, Chap. 118 of the Laws of 1891 and Acts amendatory thereof and additional thereto?

OPINION.

Sec. 1 of Chap. 123 of the Public Laws of 1887 provides: "That there shall be a local board of health in each city and town in this State." * * * This section uses only the words "city and town," and in fact this same expression is used throughout the entire chapter, except in some instances the word "town" alone is used, as also in the acts amendatory thereof and additional thereto. The word "plantation" is not found in any of the laws relating to the board of health, so far as I have been able to discover. However, it is hardly possible that the Legislature would have passed a law providing against infectious diseases or for establishing boards of health with the intention that they should apply only to cities and towns, for by so doing a large part of the border section of the State would be left unprotected, besides infectious diseases are quite as frequent in plantations, where less care is taken to guard against them, as in more thickly settled portions of the State. The Legislature in using the words city and town must have intended to include plantations. This is borne out by referring to Chapter 1, Revised Statutes, 1883, Sec. 6, paragraph 17, which reads as follows:

"The word 'town' includes cities and plantations, unless otherwise expressed or implied." It is quite evident, therefore, that the use of the word "town" in said Chapter 123 and laws amendatory thereof and additional thereto, includes plantation. I do not find it otherwise expressed or implied.

The answer to the second query follows in the line of the answer to the first. Assuming that the word "town" includes "plantation," then plantations are controlled and governed by the same laws which control and govern towns in relation to protection against infectious diseases.

The answer to the third query proceeds upon the same ground. The word "town" as used includes "plantation" beyond any question of doubt; hence, plantations are required under Chap. 118, Sec. 17 of the Laws of 1891, and Acts additional thereto and amendatory thereof, to pay to the clerk of such plantation, the statute fee required to be paid for "recording and returning the facts required to be recorded" for each marriage, birth and death.

LOW GRADE FEED STUFF.

Prosecutions under Chap. 334, Public Laws, 1897, for violation of the law.

Hon. A. W. Gilman, Commissioner of Agriculture, Augusta, Maine:

My Dear Sir:—I herewith make answer to your letter under cover of February 5, 1903, submitting the following questions relating to the feeding stuffs law.

1. In case low grade feed stuff was sold by a wholesale dealer last November and complaint was made and notice given as required, could such dealer be legally prosecuted at the expiration of thirty days unless it can be shown either,

(a) That he made another sale of such goods after receipt of such notice; or,

(b) That he has on hand such goods for intended sale and has not during the thirty days had them examined and tagged as required by said laws?

2. If at the expiration of thirty days, such dealer has not complied with the requirements of said law or has paid no attention to such notice, and is prosecuted on subsequent complaint, can he successfully defend by proving that he sold his entire stock of low grade feed stuffs prior to such notice, and that when such notice was given him, he had none of such goods on hand for the purpose of analysis?

3. If such dealer disposed of all such low grade feed stuffs, and had sold none after said thirty days' notice was given, but should thereafter buy a new consignment properly marked, when so purchased by him, with analysis as provided by said law, and such goods were afterwards proved to be low grade, could he be prosecuted therefor until after another thirty days' notice had been given him and he had been given an opportunity to have such goods examined and tagged?

4. Does the act apply to the small country dealer who has purchased his goods in good faith but which proves to be low grade although they were tagged with a high grade analysis and sold as high grade goods? Therefore must every retail dealer have each new lot purchased by him analyzed or sell at his peril?

5. What is the first offense set out in section 6 of said act. Is it the first committed after the notice is given regardless of how many sales have been made before the notice?

6. Would it be within the province of the director of the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station to cause to be printed upon the inspecting tags furnished by him as provided under said law an analysis of the feed stuffs contained in the package to which said tag is to be affixed?

The various questions presented for my views cover the entire law as set out in chapter 334 of the Public Laws of 1897. I will not undertake to answer these questions seriatim, but as a whole.

Said law, to wit, chapter 334 of the Public Laws of 1897 was passed by the legislature for the express purpose of protecting those engaged in agricultural pursuits who make use of feed stuffs. The opportunity to adulterate and sell such commodity as high grade feed stuffs was so great, and the ability of the purchaser to distinguish or discover the fraud was so limited, that it became abundantly necessary to pass said law, hence it would be supposed that the most direct cut would have been taken to protect the purchaser. Strange to say, however, and it was probably an oversight on the part of the framers of the law, quite as great protection was given to the seller as to the purchaser, and on the whole a little more if anything.

Section 8 of said law provides, "Whenever the director becomes cognizant of the violation of any of the provisions of this act, he shall report such violation to the secretary of the board of agriculture, and said secretary shall prosecute the party or parties thus reported; (but it shall be the duty of said secretary upon thus ascertaining any violation of this act, to forthwith notify the manufacturer, importer or dealer in writing, and give him not less than thirty days thereafter in which to comply with the requirements of this act,) but there shall be no prosecution in relation to the quality of any concentrated commercial feeding stuff, if the same shall be found substantially equivalent to the certified statement named in section four of this act."

This section is a remarkable illustration of destroying by an injected sentence a law which otherwise would have been exceedingly salutary. Had the following provisional words been omitted from this section, then the law would have probably accomplished its purpose in a great measure: to wit, "but it shall be the duty of the secretary upon thus ascertaining any violation of this act, to forthwith notify the manufacturer, importer or dealer in writing and give him not less than thirty days thereafter in which to comply with the requirements of this act."

The question arises, what is the effect of these words upon the law as it stands? They apply to all acts which are prohibitory or directory.

Assume that a dealer on the first day of January last closed out a large stock of low grade feed stuffs without in any respect complying with the law. It is discovered after said date that such feed stuffs have been disposed of in the State contrary to law. Proper notice thereof was given to the secretary of the board and he, under the law, at once gave notice to the party making the sale and he is given thirty days to comply with the requirements of said law. How can he do it? His feed stuffs have all been sold, they have gone to all parts of the State. How can he give a sample to the proper authority for analysis? How can he have them properly tagged and marked for the purposes required? It is clear, therefore, that the requirement is sheerest nonsense. The dealer has gotten clear of his stuffs, they have gone to the various parts of the State. He has received his notice to comply with the law and he is not under any conditions able to do so. A law which requires an act from a man which cannot possibly be done cannot be enforced.

Again, supposing some dealer had sold only part of his stock and then had received notice from the secretary and then failed to properly mark the balance of his stock or to comply with the law in other respects and had neither offered for sale nor sold any more of his stock, the law could not reach him, for he could properly tag his remaining goods and submit them to analysis but need not sell or offer them for sale or for distribution.

Suppose, further, that on receiving notice he does mark the balance of his stock as high grade feed stuffs and that he even submits a sample for analysis which clearly shows that he is apparently complying with the law as to the quality of his goods but it proves to be otherwise, what can be done? Another notice must be issued to him running for thirty days and in the meantime he may dispose of the balance of his stock, at the end of which time the law would undertake to require of him an impossibility. The law cannot compel any dealer to mark his goods or have them analyzed until they are offered for sale or exposed for sale or for distribution. He may heap his buildings with them so long as they are not offered for sale or exposed for sale, or for distribution.

In this connection, as appears under section 1 it is evident that the law applies to the manufacturer, wholesale dealer or retail dealer offering such feeding stuffs for sale or exposing the same for sale or for distribution.

It is also apparent that although the dealer has been found wanting in selling a certain class of feeding stuffs, and although notice has been duly given to him of the illegal sale, yet on the sale by him of another consignment of feeding stuffs, he is entitled to the notice required by the law the same as in the first instance. The retail dealer who distributes such merchandise must necessarily have the same properly analyzed or sell at his peril.

The law should be enforced with such strictness against the wholesale dealer as to protect the retail dealer, or else the burden will necessarily fall on him and the real parties who are the most at fault will escape. The requirements of section 8 form the basis for the successful prosecution of any person under said law. This section, as the law now stands, must be complied with before prosecution can be commenced and the offense must be by reason of the infringement of the act and subsequent refusal to comply with the statutes, a double requisite, it will be noticed, which, as hereinbefore stated, amounts virtually to a nullity.

The words of section 5 of said law commencing with the tenth line, which read as follows: to wit, "The director of said experiment station is hereby empowered to prescribe the form of said tags and adopt such regulations as may be necessary for the enforcement of the law," seem to be sufficient to permit the director of the Maine Agricultural Station to cause to be printed upon the inspection tags furnished by him under article 5 of the act, an analysis of feed stuffs contained in the package to which said tag is to be affixed.

SMELTS.

Paying duties in this State, and shipping smelts through the State. Sale of such smelts within the State of Maine. Warden's authority.

Hon. A. R. Nickerson, Commissioner of Sea and Shore Fisheries, Boothbay Harbor, Me.:

My Dear Sir:—I herewith submit to you my views in answer to the foregoing questions presented by you for my consideration.

The questions in order are as follows:

1. Can smelts be lawfully shipped from New Brunswick to Boston or New York, landed in Eastport, paying duties at Eastport, and then reshipped from Eastport to the above mentioned ports? Or can they be received from New Brunswick by a resident of Maine, and after paying duty, sold in the State or shipped out of the State?

2. Whether or not you have exceeded your authority as given you by section 71 of chapter 284 of the Public Laws of 1901, by sending a copy of the enclosed letter to violators of chapter 284 of the Public Laws of 1901?

Copy of letter presented.

3. Does a fish warden have power to arrest a violator on board of a lobster smack while she is under way, or must he wait until she is at anchor, and can he arrest a violator on board a smack without a warrant?

4. In any case on shore where a warden cannot get the man's name has he a right to hold him without a warrant until such time as he can get the correct name?

5. Does a warden appointed by the governor, and with my written order to operate in another county, have power to arrest a violator in the county to which he is sent?

6. How should illegal lobsters be disposed of after seizure? These several questions are herewith answered in order.

First. Referring to section 48 of chapter 284 of the Public Laws of 1901, the law provides among other things as follows: "But no smelts caught in such weirs after the first day of April shall be sold or offered for sale in this State, nor shall smelts caught in any manner between the first day of April and the first day of October following be offered for sale, sold, or shipped from the State under a penalty of $25 for each offence."

The words "in any manner" may refer wholly to the method of taking and not to the place of taking. If these words should be construed as referring entirely to the manner of taking, without regard to the place where taken, then the rest of the clause might govern the place; that is, "smelts caught in such weirs." Without doubt the weirs referred to are weirs within the limits of the State of Maine. Nevertheless, it would seem to be a violation of the law to offer for sale, sell or ship from the State any smelts taken between the first day of April and the first day of October whether such smelts come from New Brunswick or elsewhere, with the single exception which reads as follows: "Provided, however, that dip nets may be used between the first day of April and the first day of May, and all smelts caught by dip nets between said days, may be lawfully offered for sale and sold in this State." This proviso, however, does not provide that such smelts may be shipped from the State.

If, however, smelts are shipped in bond from a foreign state or country through this State, then I do not understand that the law applies. The having of smelts in possession by a shipper within said periods of time within this State is, to say the least, prima facie evidence that they are being illegally shipped, and if this is persisted in, it would seem to be advisable to make a test case, for the words of the statute "or shipped from the State" are broad enough to cover in any and all smelts shipped within the said period of time from the State although they have come into the State from a foreign province. If it is lawful for the sale of New Brunswick smelts within this State for the purpose of shipping to New York or elsewhere out of the State, then it is lawful for the sale of smelts from New Brunswick to parties in this State anywhere. I do not believe that this point can be sustained. The only protection for shipping smelts from foreign territory through this State seems to be by shipping them in bond. When smelts are brought within the ports of Maine from foreign ports and sold within the State of Maine and thereafterwards are shipped out of the State, the whole intent of the statute seems to be violated.

Second. I have carefully read the letter which you enclosed to me and do not find anything in it whatever that appears contrary to the provisions of said section 71 of chapter 284 of the Public Laws of 1901.

The provision of the section seems to be specific wherein it sets out as follows, "and all offences under, or violations of the provisions of this statute, may be settled by the commissioner of sea and shore fisheries upon such terms and conditions as he deems advisable."

I take these words to mean that you may do just what your letter purports; that is, you may settle all offences under or violations of the provisions of said chapter, whether such offences and violations have been brought before the courts or not. In other words it is left with the commissioner to settle with the offending parties all offences and violations of said chapter as he deems for the best interest of the State so to do.

The giving of this power to the commissioner probably arose from the fact that there are a large number of seizures of small importance for violation of the laws where it is better for the commissioner to dispose of them without reference to the courts where he can properly do so, rather than to present them to the courts. Whether it is a wise policy is not the question raised here, although from the nature of the offences under said chapter it would seem to be for the interest of the State to grant this power to the commissioner as it has.

Third. A warden may arrest a violator of the law on any vessel within the three mile limit when he is able to get on the vessel so to do. He is not obliged to wait until the vessel is at anchor. There seems to be no reason why a vessel should be considered in any other light when within the three mile limit than though the offence occurred on land. The jurisdiction of this State extends to the three mile limit and while a State official has no right to seize or detain a vessel except under particular circumstances as set out in section 6 of chapter 284 of the Public Laws of 1901, nevertheless when it comes to arresting a violator of the law, the officer can do so the same on a vessel as upon the land; that is, within the officer's jurisdiction. Besides, section 6 of said chapter provides as follows: "The commissioner of sea and shore fisheries and fish wardens may, with or without warrant, enter upon any vessel, boat, receptacle for fish or lobsters, or any place or places used therefor, and seize and carry away all fish and lobsters liable to seizure found therein."

This section provides that a search and seizure may be had without warrant where the commissioner or wardens have reason to believe that the law is being violated. As to the arrest of the violator of the law, then reference may be had to section 4 of chapter 133 of the Revised Statutes, which reads, in part, as follows: "Every sheriff, deputy sheriff, constable, city or deputy marshal, watchman, or police officer, shall arrest and detain persons found violating any law of the State, or any legal ordinance or by-law of a town, until a legal warrant can be obtained."

Section 5 of said chapter 284 makes the authority of the warden equally as extensive as that of sheriffs, deputy sheriffs, constables, etc., so far as his duties and powers as warden goes.

An officer may arrest without warrant if he comes upon a person while violating the law. In the case of a lobster smack, if the captain has on board short lobsters the possession of them is in violation of the law, as appears by section 21 of chapter 70 of the Public Laws of 1903, which reads as follows: "It is unlawful to catch, buy or sell, give away or expose for sale, or possess for any purpose, any lobster less than 10½ inches in length, alive or dead, cooked or uncooked." * * *

It is a continuous violation of the law to have illegal lobsters in possession and at any minute the officer can reach such violator of the law, he is entitled to arrest such person without warrant and immediately take him before the proper tribunal and procure a warrant, but the officer does not have authority to make search without a warrant.

Fourth. Again, if the captain of a vessel is found to be violating the law and is arrested by the warden but refuses to go with him, that is resists arrest, and takes advantage of the warden by sailing his vessel away instead of allowing the warden to proceed in his business, the warden may call upon members of the crew for aid, and if the captain still resists he would then be liable for obstructing the officer.

While the party arrested may refuse to give his name, nevertheless that fact amounts to nothing since he may be arrested just the same and taken before the proper tribunal, where, if he refuses to give his name, the court will have complaint issued against him in proper form. But it must be remembered that an arrest without a warrant cannot be made, unless at the time of the arrest the party is found to be violating the law.

Fifth. Section 6 of said chapter 284 provides that wardens shall not exercise jurisdiction in any other county than that from which they are appointed, unless so instructed in writing by the commissioner of sea and shore fisheries.

Section 5 of said chapter provides that "deputy wardens may be appointed by the commissioner and that they shall be subject to all the laws pertaining to wardens appointed by the governor and council and have the same powers." This provision seems to put deputy wardens on the same footing with wardens within their jurisdiction, but it appears further by section 6, that the commissioner may issue written instructions to a warden and he thereupon may operate outside of his jurisdiction. The written authority provided for by the statute cannot be a general authority, because if it were, it would have been a piece of folly for the legislature to have delegated to the commissioner this authority, when it may as well have been done by the legislature itself. Hence the instructions contemplated to be given by a commissioner to a warden to operate outside of his jurisdiction must, it seems, be restricted and specific instructions, that is, instructions in relation to a particular case or a particular piece of work and not instructions which provide for him to operate for an indefinite period of time in a general way in another jurisdiction than his own. The legislature scarcely would have delegated so large a power to the commissioner as to enable him to appoint wardens in writing to exercise generally throughout the State the powers which the State laws give them in their own jurisdiction. The largeness of the power is such, as has been said before, as the legislature would have exercised itself if deemed advisable. The authority to give written instructions to wardens seems to apply also to deputy wardens since section 5 of said chapter provides as follows: "Such deputy wardens shall be subject to all the laws pertaining to wardens appointed by the governor and council and have the same powers." This clause would seem to permit the commissioner to direct deputy wardens by specific written instructions to act outside of their individual jurisdictions as well as wardens, and in doing this under special written instructions I see no reason why he might not arrest a violator of the law in the county where he is sent other than that of his own jurisdiction.

Sixth. Section 29 of chapter 284 of the Public Laws of 1901, provides for the disposition of all lobsters seized, except those which are required by law to be liberated. This section states that such lobsters shall be appraised, that they shall be libeled, that the libel shall eventually be acted upon in court, and that if no one appears to claim the lobsters, or if appearing, are unable to show that they should not be seized, then they shall be confiscated by the State.

This section seems to provide fully for the disposition of all lobsters seized which are not required to be liberated. The officer, to protect himself, must have the lobsters appraised and libeled and the matter disposed of before the courts.

In case of mutilated lobsters, the provision of law is not so clear. The last clause of section 21 of said chapter reads as follows: "The possession of mutilated, uncooked lobsters shall be prima facie evidence that they are not of the required length." This section, as amended by the Public Laws of 1903, chapter 70, reads as follows: "The possession of mutilated lobsters, cooked or uncooked, shall be prima facie evidence that they are not of the required length." A further addition to the section is as follows: "All lobster meat so illegally bought, shipped, sold, given away, exposed for sale, or transported, shall be liable to seizure and may be confiscated."

This last provision, it is evident, seems to have some other meaning than that set out under section 29 of the Public Laws of 1901, chapter 284. The words, "and may be confiscated," would appear to make the act of confiscation optional with the warden. However, this cannot be the exact and legal meaning, for the title and ownership of lobster meat, freed from the shell, cannot be gained by the State without being libeled. The State cannot gain title to the property of an individual without legal process. An officer seizing lobster meat, as set out in said section, would not be protected in his official acts if he did not have the same properly libeled. Hence the confiscation of lobsters of illegal length, and of mutilated lobsters, must be by the same process. It would appear somewhat, by the use of the words "and may be confiscated," as appears in the amendment, that the officer may use his judgment in the matter. That is, if it is necessary for the officer to libel the meat for his own protection, he should do so. That if the seizure is so small and inconsequential, that the libeling of the meat may be dispensed with, then he may dispose of it without confiscation but at his own peril. There seems to be no other distinction to be drawn. It apparently rests in the judgment of the officer as to which course he shall pursue for his own protection.

But the words "and may be confiscated," refer to lobster meat only. They do not apply to uncut lobsters seized. The only absolutely safe course for the warden to pursue in the seizure of either uncut lobsters or lobster meat, is to have the same properly libeled. Doubtless, there are very many instances where for one reason or another the warden does not find it necessary so to do. But this is a matter entirely within his own discretion and if he fails to libel in either case he takes the chances of suit for damages.

INSURANCE.

"Executive agents" must comply with Insurance Laws of this state, relating to the appointment of agents.

Rebate. The compensation of "executive agents" from funds of insurance companies is not repugnant of the Rebate Laws of the state.

Hon. S. W. Carr, Insurance Commissioner for the State of Maine, Augusta, Maine:

Dear Sir:—In answer to your communication under date of July 24, 1903, relating to a blank application for the appointment of "executive agents" for the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Company, and a blank certificate of agreement to be entered into between said company and the applicant for such agency, asking whether said contract conflicts with the statutes of this State, I would say that two questions seem to be raised by your inquiry, to wit: first, that of agency; second, that of rebate, under the insurance laws.

In relation to the question of agency the law is specific as to what constitutes an agent under our insurance laws. Revised Statutes 1883, chapter 49, section 19. Also section 73 of said chapter, as amended by the Public Laws of 1885, chapter 295; 1887, chapter 109; 1891, chapter 112; 1895, chapter 95.

Said section 73, as amended, provides among other things, as follows: "For each such license the commissioner shall receive two dollars, and if any person solicits, receives or forwards any risk or application for insurance to any company, without first receiving such license, or fraudulently assumes to be an agent and thus procures risks and receives money for premiums, he forfeits," etc.

The agreement of the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Company submitted to me for inspection, relates back to the application of anyone desiring to be such "executive agent," and said application is made a part of said agreement.

Referring, then, to the application, we find the agreement of the applicant to be appointed, as follows: "to aid in promoting and maintaining the company's business; to advise it, upon request, as to the fitness of applicants for agencies; to furnish, upon request, to the company annually the names of ten persons whom I deem assurable; and to give it any information that may come to my knowledge which I think would be to its advantage or protect it from injury or loss, but it is understood and agreed that I shall not solicit assurance, nor forward applications for assurance to said company."

The words quoted in the application, "to aid in promoting and maintaining the company's business," are so excessively broad that all of the work in detail of the regular soliciting agent's business may be swept in and covered by this expression. Neither are these words qualified, except in this respect, to wit: "and it is understood and agreed that I shall not solicit assurance nor forward applications for assurance to said company." This last provision, in my judgment, is not sufficient to take the matter from under the insurance laws of this State which provides, as hereinbefore set out, to wit: "if any person solicits, receives or forwards any application for insurance to any company without first receiving such license," etc.

My opinion, then, in relation to the first query is, that "executive agents" sought to be appointed by said Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Company, come within the provisions of our insurance law as agents, and that they must comply with the provisions relating to such agents before they can legally act as "executive agents."

As to the question of rebate, on a careful examination of chapter 128 of the Public Laws of 1891, I do not see that the provisions of the application and of the agreement conflict with said law. The application and agreement when taken together provide for a certain kind of compensation for "executive agents." They provide that each $1,000 of insurance which is maintained on the company's books in force through a certain period of time shall be the basis of the "executive agent's" pay at the rate of $1 per thousand. This $1 is not deducted from the premium to be paid and the insured gets no advantage therefrom. The agreement seems to provide compensation on a sliding scale, which compensation is based on the number of thousands of dollars of original insurance issued during ten years between December 31, 1902, and December 31, 1912, at the rate of $1 on each $1,000 of insurance. This compensation is to be paid out of the "expense apportionment." It cannot be denied but that insurance companies have a legal right to set aside a certain amount of their income for the purpose of paying expenses in conducting business. For example, insurance companies may employ agents at stated salaries, which must necessarily come from some fund set aside for the expenses of the company. The provision for payment of "executive agents," as provided in the agreement, seems to be in the same line, only the amount of compensation depends on the amount of insurance which the "executive agent" is instrumental in securing and continuing in force.

I do not find that the application and agreement conflict with the insurance laws of this State. Our rebate law hereinbefore referred to provides generally that there shall be no discrimination in favor of individuals between insurants of the same class and expectation of life, in the amount or payment of premiums or rates charged for policies of life, or endowment insurance, or in dividends or other benefits payable thereon, or in any other of the terms and conditions of the contracts which it makes; that no company or agent, or any other person, shall make any contract of insurance or agreement as to such contract except as expressed in the policy issued thereon; that no company, agent, or any other person shall pay or allow, or offer to pay or allow, as inducement to insurance, any rebate of premium payable on the policy; or any special favor or advantage in the dividends or other benefit to accrue thereon; or any valuable consideration or inducement whatever, not specified in the policy contract of insurance.

The application and agreement submitted do not conflict with these provisions. However, it does not seem wise for the insurance department to either approve or disapprove such contract so to be carried out between insurance companies and their agents, in fact I do not understand that the department, through its commissioner, intends either to approve or disapprove such contract or agreement, but desires to know only whether or not such agreement and contract conflict with the statutes of this State.

In brief, then, my opinion is,

First: That if such "executive agents" are appointed under applications and agreements such as are submitted, by insurance companies, then such "executive agents" must comply with the laws of this State relating to the appointment of agents before they can enter legally upon the duties required of them by the agreement.

Second: That the application and agreement therewith do not infringe upon the insurance laws of this State relating to rebates.

NEW ENGLAND REAL ESTATE AND TITLE COMPANY.

The methods employed by said company in carrying on its business are repugnant to the law relating to Loan and Building Associations. The purposes set forth in the charter of said company do not permit the corporation to carry on the business indicated by its contracts.

Hon. F. E. Timberlake, State Bank Examiner, Augusta, Me.:

Dear Sir:—In answer to your letter under date of September 22, 1903, calling my attention to the business which the New England Real Estate and Title Company, located at Bangor, is doing, and asking my opinion as to whether or not the business as carried on by said company conflicts with the law relating to loan and building associations of this State and the requirements of said law, I submit the following opinion:

The New England Real Estate and Title Company was organized under the general laws of this State in April, 1903, and by its purposes set forth, purports to carry on a real estate business. The purposes as set out in the certificate of said company are within the laws of the State. The real question is whether or not said company in carrying on its business is exceeding its authority and rights under its certificate of organization, and conflicting with the law relating to loan and building associations.

To fully decide this question it is important, first, to review briefly the kind of business which said corporation is doing. From the certificate of incorporation nothing can be gathered as to what kind of business the company is doing, but by its circular and contract we find that it is doing business on the installment plan and collecting moneys for the purpose of securing homes for its patrons. It issues contracts for the deposit of money in installments by the covenantee.

(1) This contract, under the first paragraph, provides that the covenantee shall pay the sum of $4 for every $1,000 of the contract on the execution of the same, which said sum of $4 is paid to the use of the company. The contractee is to pay a further sum of $1 per month for commissions and for services to be rendered during the life of the contract, by the company. The covenantee pays the further sum of $2 per month on each $1,000 of the contract until the property agreed upon by the covenantee and the company shall be bought for the covenantee. After the purchase of the property desired by the covenantee, then a sum of $8 per month on each $1,000 is to be paid by the covenantee to the company until the total amount of payments shall be equal to the cost or purchase price of the property bought. When the property is purchased the company receives title to the same and on full payment being made for it by the covenantee, the company then executes a sufficient deed to the covenantee or his heirs, executors or assigns.

Under this paragraph the covenantee first pays $4 on the signing of the contract, and thereafterwards, so long as the contract continues, $1 per month for commissions and services to the company. He is also bound to pay $2 per month to be applied to the purchase price of the property when it shall be secured for him. This glaring inadequacy of the charges for services and commissions might well startle one as a business proposition. The covenantee is required to pay $12 per year for the right to deposit without interest $24 per year until the contract matures, and at least $96 per year after maturity, assuming that the contract is for $1,000.

(2) Under the second paragraph of the contract, among other things it is provided that if the title and price of the property to be bought is found to be satisfactory to both parties; that is, to the company and the covenantee, then the company shall buy such property at such price and upon such terms as it may agree upon with the owner, provided that the total cost shall not exceed the face value of the contract.

As pointed out in this paragraph, the property to be purchased is to be purchased on such terms as may be agreed upon between the company and the owner of the property. This provision cuts out the covenantee, who is interested because his money is at stake, from the exercise of his judgment as to the amount to be paid for the property. The company may purchase a piece of property below the face of the contract and turn it over at a price equivalent to the face of the contract. This on its face is pernicious and opens a broad door for fraud.

(3) Under paragraph three the contract provides that if the company shall fail through its own fault to purchase said property within sixteen months, the covenantee shall have the option to revoke his contract and thereupon shall receive from the company the amount paid in by him on the contract, and surrender the contract. And, further, in case the company fails to purchase such property for thirty-two months after the sixteen months aforesaid, then the covenantee shall receive, as liquidated damages, an amount equal to all the sums paid by him to the company, together with three per cent compound interest thereon computed from each semi-annual accumulation thereof, from the time such payments commenced to the expiration of the thirty-two months aforesaid; provided, however, that the covenantee shall continue to perform on his part all the conditions of the contract.

Hence, if the company shall fail to purchase the property desired by the covenantee within sixteen months from the date of the contract, then the covenantee has the power to revoke the contract and to receive from the company the amount paid in on the contract. The company may refuse to carry out the contract and in such case the covenantee may receive back what he has paid in, but without interest. This is plainly a hardship on the covenantee. And, further, if the company refuses for thirty-two months after the expiration of the sixteen months to carry out the contract, then the covenantee may recover liquidated damages equal to the entire sum paid in by him, together with three per cent interest, compounded, provided, however, that the covenantee shall continue to perform his part of the contract; that is, the company may refuse to perform its part of the contract, but the covenantee, to recover back anything of the sum which he has paid in, must continue to perform his part of the contract and in the end receive what he has paid in with three per cent compound interest. Even if there were no dangers surrounding such contract, yet the covenantee would get only his money back with three per cent interest, being less than that which the banks pay, and having no security whatever during the four years that his money will ever be paid. Besides, the company can cut off all interest by payment of the amount paid in any day before the close of the thirty-two months.

(4) Paragraph four of the contract provides that if the covenantee shall fail to make the payments as aforesaid, before the maturity of his contract, then the company shall have the option to declare the contract void and all the previous payments forfeited, time being the essence thereof. This provision is somewhat modified in case of sickness, loss of employment or other misfortune, when the company will give the covenantee three months additional time, or such time as may seem prudent to the company, in which to pay up arrearages. Said paragraph further provides that in case the covenantee fails to make the required payments after maturity, that is, after the purchase of the property by the company, which is designated as the time of maturity, then such failure shall operate as an assignment of the covenantee's equitable rights in such property, and shall pass to and vest in the company all of his equitable rights in such property without further process. This provision is modified by giving the covenantee the right to assign his equitable interest, but with the consent of the company only.

The provisions of this paragraph are thoroughly detrimental to the covenantee, because if he fails to continue his payments then the company has the power to declare the contract void and all payments made thereon forfeited. To be sure this is modified in case of sickness, etc., but why should the covenantee forfeit everything which he has paid to the company in case he fails to keep up his payments, particularly when the company has received the initial fee of $4 and also excessive monthly payments for commissions and services? The unfortunate covenantee under this provision has little protection if he fails to meet the regular monthly payments. After maturity the provision is still stronger against the covenantee, if possible, for if he fails to meet his payments then such failure operates as an assignment of all his equitable rights and vests his equitable title in the company without further process. To be sure this provision is qualified somewhat by giving the covenantee the right to assign his contract with the written consent of the company, but what does this right amount to when taken in connection with paragraph "five" which provides as follows: "But no assignment of this contract shall be valid if made while payments are due and unpaid"? I can hardly conceive of a more ingenious method to secure the property of others without adequate compensation than is set forth in these paragraphs.

(5) Paragraph six provides that the title to all property bought under said contract shall be taken in the name of the company, but that the equitable ownership thereof shall be in the holders of the unmatured contracts pending payment of the same by the covenantee in possession. There is also the further provision that the lien herein created by the holders of unmatured contracts on all such real estate shall be dissolved upon the failure to perform the contract by the holder thereof or his successor. What, then, becomes of the property? It is released from all lien claims and as the company holds the title, it becomes absolutely the property of the company.

At no time, as appears from this paragraph, does the covenantee hold any record interest or title in the property whatsoever until the contract is completed. And besides, provision is made that all of the covenantees shall have a lien claim upon all property so bought by the company. In other words, although a covenantee may have nearly paid for his property, yet until payment is completely made and the title has been passed over to him from the company, all the other covenantees have a claim upon it, and in case of the insolvency of the corporation the covenantee who has nearly paid for his house and premises will be required to divide the same with all of the covenantees in possession, according to their interest.

(6) Paragraph nine provides that the covenantee shall keep his life insured in a sum equal to the face of his contract, and in case of his failure so to do he thereby forfeits the contract and all sums paid thereon.

The covenantee may have nearly paid for his property and yet under this provision, if he allows his life insurance to lapse, all the moneys paid in on the contract are forfeited.

Following the contract form appears an explanation thereof, one paragraph of which is important, relating to the purchase of property, wherein it provides that "such purchase to be made at such time after the contract is dated as the covenantee's turn shall be reached in the order of his contract. Meantime from the beginning of the contract the covenantee agrees to make certain payments to the company to secure its services in his behalf."

These various provisions have been selected from the contract and the explanatory addition to show the method of the New England Real Estate and Title Company in pursuing its business. The provisions are so thoroughly hostile to the interest of the covenantee that little or no protection is left him. Taking them all together they amount to little less than the taking of the covenantee by the throat and requiring him to forfeit his property in case he is not able to keep up the payments or seeks to release himself from his contract.

Having considered the provisions of the contract under which the New England Real Estate and Title Company is doing business, the question naturally arises, do they or any of them conflict with the law of this State relating to loan and building associations?

Section 1 of chapter 79, Public Laws of 1891, reads as follows: "Except as hereinafter provided, no person, association or corporation shall carry on the business of accumulating the savings of its members and loaning to them such accumulations in the manner of loan and building associations within this State unless incorporated under the laws thereof for such purpose."

The gist of this section is the accumulation of the savings and the loaning to its members such accumulations in the manner of loan and building associations within this State.

First. No question can be raised but that the New England Real Estate and Title Company is accumulating the savings of its members, for it specifically provides therefor in the payment of $2 per month until the contract matures and $8 per month thereafter. This point does not require further consideration.

Second. Does the New England Real Estate and Title Company loan such accumulations to its members or are its methods of operating equivalent to a loan of its accumulations to its members?

Evidently the authors of the contract have sought to escape this provision. At least the wording of the contract would seem to indicate that particular care had been taken to escape it if possible. While on its face the contract does not purport to make loans direct to its members, nevertheless the whole method is equivalent to a loan. In the ordinary loan and building association a member mortgages his property to the association and the association furnishes him with cash. The title to the property is in the loan and building association and the equitable record title in the mortgagor, and eventually, to protect his equity, the mortgagor must pay the mortgage.

The New England Real Estate and Title Company in a sense turns the thing about. The title to the property purchased is taken by the company and it advances the purchase price to the seller, and, as set out in the contract, the covenantee holds the equitable ownership but no record title. The payment by the company of the purchase price of the property to the seller, and the holding of the covenantee under his contract to pay the same to the company, is equivalent to a loan to the covenantee direct. So that the situation as to the covenantee and the company is quite similar to that between the loan and building association and the party who mortgages his property, except that in the last case the mortgagor has a record title although only equitable, while in the case of the covenantee with the New England Real Estate and Title Company he has apparently no record title whatever but simply pays in his money to the corporation without security until he has paid for his property.

There is no question, then, but that under these two provisions of the contract of the New England Real Estate and Title Company said company is endeavoring in a roundabout way in some respects to carry on the business of accumulating the savings of its members and loaning them such accumulations in the manner of loan and building associations.

Third. If an association desires to accumulate the savings of its members and to loan to them such accumulations in the manner of loan and building associations, then it must become incorporated under the laws of this State for such purpose, and the words "incorporated under the laws of this State" as used here mean incorporation under chapter 47, Revised Statutes, and public laws additional thereto and amendatory thereof.

Fourth. The New England Real Estate and Title Company does not fall within the exceptions stated. These so-styled home buying associations regardless of the actual name under which they operate, have become numerous and their methods of operating are not new to this State. We find the same points raised in this case to have been raised in other states and to have been adjudicated upon. The methods are very similar, the difference, if any, being as to details. The central point with all is the accumulation of the savings or funds of its members and the purported use of it to purchase or secure homes for them. If companies doing business according to the methods of the New England Real Estate and Title Company are successful and do not meet very shortly with disaster, then it is for one reason only, viz.: that so many members drop out and forfeit their hard earned money to the company that the few who remain are able to profit thereby. In other words, it is a business which flourishes mainly on the misfortunes of others.

The proposition as set out in its explanatory note, that each member shall take his turn according to the order of his contract for the purchase of a home when sufficient funds accumulate in the company for that purpose, is simply preposterous when a large number have become parties to the company's contract. The man signing the one hundredth contract cannot obtain a home for many years, and during the waiting period he must continue to deposit his hard-earned money without interest and without any protection or security whatever further than the word of the company, at the same time paying excessive rates for the privilege of depositing his money with the company.

This very question has been discussed in Shaw v. Interstate Savings Loan and Trust Company, 8 Ohio, also in Nebraska v. Nebraska Home Company. And as a matter of fact the very points involved in this case have been decided in very many states as insecure and dangerous to the depositors.

In U. S. v. McDonald, 59 Fed. Rep. 563, Judge Grosscup said in relation to one of these companies: "This is plunder of the public. It is said that this has been fairly done. * * * Two elements are essential to an investment—profit and security. What equality of profit do these companies offer? What security do they offer to the holders of unmatured contracts who are required to make a deposit each month? * * * The naked promise of an unincorporated and non-capitalized company do not constitute securities." The same is true whether the association is incorporated or not in this State, unless incorporated under chapter 47 of the Revised Statutes.

In U. S. v. Fulkerson, 74 Fed. Rep., 629, the court says in relation to such companies: "An act or contract though not originating in an evil design, yet tending to deceive and mislead, or violate private confidence, is a constructive fraud, equally reprehensible with actual fraud and prohibited by law."

In Shaw v. Interstate Savings Loan and Trust Company, 8 Ohio, the court says: "Experience has demonstrated one inevitable result to all such enterprises, viz., that there comes a time that the influx of credulous people to these societies ceases, and as the money paid out to the lucky members has been wholly and grossly out of proportion to their contributions or investments, or to the mutual earnings of such contributions and investments, these societies necessarily collapse leaving the unlucky members to bear the losses * * *."

All such contracts are unlawful because of the discrimination which results between the various contractees who deposit their money with the company. Only a few, comparatively, can protect themselves, and this must be done invariably to the loss of the other contractees.

My decision in the matter, therefore, must be that said New England Real Estate and Title Company is carrying on a business contrary to the provisions of section 1 of chapter 79 of the Public Laws of 1891 in that it is not properly incorporated for that purpose, and that the purposes set out in the charter of organization of said company do not permit it to carry on such a business as indicated by its contracts.

WHITE PAUPERS ON INDIAN RESERVATION.

Tribal funds may not be used to assist white persons in distress, who are not members of the tribe, although they may have married members of the tribe, and have gained a settlement on the Reservation.

If such persons have not a residence on the Reservation or elsewhere in the state, then they are state paupers.

If they have gained a residence on the Reservation, and fall in distress, the oldest incorporated adjoining town, or the nearest incorporated town, when there are none adjoining, becomes liable to furnish relief to such persons.

STATEMENT OF FACTS SUBMITTED BY THE GOVERNOR AND COUNCIL.

There are seven or more white persons who have married members of the Penobscot tribe of Indians, but are not members of the tribe. Of this number, four are now living on the reservation, and two of them are too old and feeble to work, and have fallen into distress. At a public meeting the tribe by a large majority voted to assist those two, to wit, Gasper Ranco and Tuester Ranco, from the funds of the tribe. A minority objected thereto. It appears that both men have lived upon the reservation practically all their lives; that for the past eight years Gasper has lived on Olamon Island and Old Town Indian Island—for the last three years at the latter place; that Tuester has lived on Olamon Island and has spent almost all his life there. Gasper was born in Canada and presumably Tuester was also born there.

The questions submitted by the Indian agent are as follows:

First: Whether the agent has any right to take from the funds of the tribe any money to assist whites who are not members of the tribe, but have fallen into distress while living upon the Reservation, especially when some members of the tribe object to such assistance being given, even though said whites have married into the tribe and have had children by their Indian wives or husbands?

Second: If said agent has no right to afford assistance in such cases, will the State regard such persons as State paupers living in unincorporated places and aid them accordingly; or should they be considered paupers of neighboring towns which are accustomed to exercise police and sanitary jurisdiction over the Reservation?

OPINION.

In my judgment the first question must be answered in the negative. From an examination of the treaty of 1820 entered into between said tribe and the State of Maine, and from the various acts of the legislature from that time to the present, it is evident that the manifest and reasonable conclusion must be reached that the funds of the tribe are to be held and dispensed solely for the benefit of its members. Before any of its funds can be disbursed for the benefit of any person, such person must be a member of, or be adopted into the tribe, pursuant to the provisions of statute. Each member of the tribe is entitled to his full share of the funds, and he cannot be lawfully deprived thereof, against his will, by vote of a majority of the tribe which seeks to unlawfully divert said funds. Nor would it be in accordance with the provisions of statute and the treaty obligations, for the Governor and Council to cause such funds to be expended for the benefit of persons who are not members of the tribe.

Since the tribal funds are not available to assist in the support of these persons, we are brought to answer the second question propounded and to determine, if possible, who is to care for them. To answer this, involves the examination of various early Indian treaties to determine the status of the tribe, particularly in respect to the tenure of the lands which it occupies.

By the treaty of 1725, there was saved unto the Penobscots, and their natural descendants, "all their liberties and property not by them conveyed or sold or possessed by any of the English subjects," * * * and the same was confirmed by the treaties of 1749 and 1754. By their quitclaim deed of August 8, 1796, the Penobscot Indians relinquished to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, lands on each side of the Penobscot River, "excepting however and reserving to the said tribe, all the islands in said river above Old Town including said Old Town Island." * * *

By the treaty of 1818, the tribe quitclaimed lands on both sides of the river, excepting and reserving for its perpetual use four certain townships, and the islands above Old Town, including said Old Town Island.

The treaty of the State of Maine with the Penobscot Indians, (Mass. Archives, Treaties, etc., vol 1, page 366,) dated August 17, 1820, was a novation, substituting the State of Maine "in the stead and place of said Commonwealth of Massachusetts to all intents and purposes whatsoever" in respect to the treaty of 1818. By virtue of this, Maine assumed the obligations of Massachusetts pursuant to the Fifth Article of the Act of Separation. The four reserved townships were sold in 1833 by the Penobscots to this State of Maine for their benefit, the purchase money, $50,000 being placed in the State treasury and, increased by certain shore rents, is a part of the tribal funds. Thus all that now remains of the original reservations, are certain islands above Old Town Falls including Old Town Indian Island. Upon this I assume that the Rancos now reside.

In the acts incorporating Orono (Pub. Laws of Maine, 1840 Chap. 46) and Old Town, March 12, 1806, no mention is made of the Indian Reservation. Whether those towns are so bounded as to embrace it, I cannot absolutely determine from the description before me. I cannot pass on geographical locations. But I infer, and assume, from general statements that neither includes the reservation, and on such assumption base this opinion. For reference I append extracts of the acts referred to, showing the original limits of said municipalities.

The case of State vs. Newell, 84 Maine, 465, defines the status of the Passamaquoddy tribe, and for the purposes of this opinion the Penobscots may be considered the same as the Passamaquoddies. Speaking of the treaties the court says,

"But, whatever may have been the original force and obligations of the treaties, they are now functus officio. One party to them, the Indians, have wholly lost their political organization and their political existence . . . Though these Indians are still spoken of as . . . the tribe and consider themselves as a tribe, they have for many years been without a tribal organization in any political sense. They cannot make war or peace, cannot make treaties; cannot make laws; cannot punish crime; cannot administer even civil justice among themselves. Their political and civil rights can be enforced only in the court of the State; what tribal organization they have, is for tenure of property and the holding of privileges under the laws of the State. They are as completely subject to the State as any other inhabitants can be. They cannot now invoke treaties made centuries ago with Indians whose political organization was in full and acknowledged vigor." See also Murch vs. Tomer, 21 Maine 535, and Stevens vs. Thatcher, 91 Maine, page 70.

In view of State vs. Newell, and the frequent acts of the legislature, it must be held that the actual control of these tribal lands is in the State. In the first place an Indian agent is appointed who exercises authority over the lands in question; Secs. 7, 8, 9, Chap. 13, Revised Statutes, 1903. Also the purchase and disposal of reservation lands by an Indian is regulated and restricted by statutes, (Secs. 25-35, Chap. 13, Revised Statutes.)

The status of these tribal lands, is somewhat anomalous. Before the white man came they belonged to the Indian insofar as he claimed ownership therein. Gradually he relinquished, either voluntarily or by compulsion, all his lands within the State, saving only these islands in the Penobscot River, which were always specifically excepted by treaties, recognized by Maine, and by Massachusetts its predecessor in authority. Deducing the title to these excepted lands in accordance with the general law of conveyancing, it would seem that the fee simple still remains in the Indians; but whether rightly or wrongly, it has nevertheless become an accepted fact, that these lands are not within their control or disposal. The State, from the year of its creation, has assumed the high prerogative of restricting, and even prohibiting their alienation.

Therefore for the purposes of this case, it is my opinion that the Indian Reservation is State land and an unincorporated place, but subject to treaty obligations, over which no municipality has assumed or may assume general jurisdiction; although it is understood that the adjoining towns have control in certain cases, also that the State has the right to maintain highways (treaty of 1818). Moreover "the jurisdiction and sovereignty of the State shall extend to all places within its boundaries," Chap. 2, Sec. 1, Revised Statutes. The reservation is State land, but held for the use of the Indians, at least so long as they remain a tribe. Where then, rests the obligation to furnish relief for needy persons found in such places? Such obligation arises solely from statutory enactment. We are dealing with a matter which has "none of the elements of a contract expressed or implied." Davis vs. Milton Plantation, 90 Maine 512. There are no equitable considerations out of which presumptions will arise in favor of placing the burden either upon any municipality or upon the State. Sec. 30 of Chap. 27 of Revised Statutes reads:

"Persons found in places not incorporated and needing relief, are under the care of the overseers of the oldest incorporated adjoining town, or the nearest incorporated town where there are none adjoining, who shall furnish relief to such persons, as if they were found in such towns; and such overseers may bind to service the children of such persons as they may those of paupers of their own town, and may bind out persons described in section twenty-eight in manner therein provided, residing in such unincorporated place, as if in their own town, and such persons shall be entitled to a like remedy and relief. When relief is so provided, the towns so furnishing it have the same remedies against the towns of their settlement as if they resided in the town so furnishing relief. And when such paupers have no legal settlement in the State, the State shall reimburse said town for the relief furnished, to such an amount as the governor and council adjudge to have been necessarily expended therefor. And the reasonable expenses and services of said overseers relative to such paupers, shall be included in the amount to be so reimbursed by the State."

The first five lines of said section fairly and squarely put the primary obligation to furnish relief to those persons in need thereof, and who dwell upon the Indian Reservation, upon either the oldest incorporated adjoining town, if any such town adjoins it, or upon the nearest incorporated town; that is to say, either upon the city of Old Town or upon the town of Orono, according to their location in respect to said reservation. But the last six lines of said section 30, provides that when such paupers have no legal settlement in the State, the State shall reimburse said town for the relief furnished. If the Rancos have a legal settlement within the State, then recourse cannot be had to State funds; if, on the other hand, they have no legal settlement within the State, then they are State paupers and the town shall be reimbursed by the State. What, then, constitutes a legal settlement? Section 1, clause 8, of chapter 27 of R. S. is as follows:

“A person having his home in an unincorporated place for five years without receiving supplies as a pauper and having continued his home there until the time of its incorporation acquires a legal settlement therein. Those having homes in such places for less than five years, before incorporation, and continuing to have them thereafterwards until five years are completed, acquire settlements therein.”

In my opinion, both of the Rancos come well within the provisions of this clause. For many years, (to wit, for five years or more), they have continuously dwelt upon the Indian Reservation, which is an unincorporated place. That certainly is their home, and the fact that they may be aliens does not bar them from gaining a settlement in the State. Know vs. Waldoborough, 3 Maine, 455. Nor is there any evidence that either of them has at any time received supplies as a pauper from any municipality required to furnish the same. Therefore having determined that the Indian Reservation is an unincorporated place within the meaning of the statute, my opinion is, that the Rancos having lived there and made it their home continuously for the required period of time, they have a legal settlement therein; hence one of the municipalities, as before mentioned, is required by law to furnish them relief, and the State is not required so to do.

It may be added that this whole question, particularly in respect to the status of the Reservation lands, is not free from perplexing difficulties, and that conditions may arise whereby it would be inequitable, at least, for the adjoining towns to be required to care for persons who gain settlement and fall into distress upon these lands. It is a matter upon which further legislation may be found advisable and necessary.

SALE OF WILD LANDS FOR STATE AND COUNTY TAXES.

Want of sufficient description by the Assessors of lands so sold cannot be cured by the State Treasurer by enlarging or amending the description. Duties of State Treasurer, ministerial. Description of land sold must be sufficient to locate it and to distinguish it from all other lands in the State. Initial letters and abbreviations in the description, bad.

Hon. Oramandal Smith, Augusta, Maine:

Dear Sir:—The following questions submitted for my opinion have been fully decided by a continuous line of decisions in this State. I herewith make answer to your questions:—

First. Whether or not as State treasurer, you may, in giving deeds of lands sold for State taxes, enlarge or amend the description of the lands set out in the committal of such taxes to you, for the purpose of more fully and accurately identifying the premises intended to be described in such committal, and thereby make certain that which was before uncertain?

Second. Whether the description of the lands sought to be sold for taxes for the year 1901, as committed to you, was sufficiently certain and adequate to sustain title to them under the tax deeds given to the purchaser?

The duties of the State treasurer in the sale of lands for State taxes are wholly ministerial, and he is bound to adhere to the process and method provided by statute in such case. He cannot enlarge or diminish the process prescribed, neither can he cure a fatal error of the assessors in the description of the lands to be sold, by giving a more accurate and certain description, that will insure a better title than the purchaser would otherwise have acquired.

In Green v. Lunt, 58 Me., 533, the court says: "The collector must obtain his information from the assessment. He has no authority to add to or take from it; nor can the assessors, after the completion of the tax, add to the description so as to make that more certain which was before uncertain. The assessment must be complete in and of itself as much as a deed or contract. Parol proof may be resorted to for the purpose of applying the terms of the description to the face of the earth, but no further.

It cannot supply any deficiency in the butts and bounds. These must be ascertained from what is written, and from that alone."

The sale of lands by the State treasurer for State taxes is the last step taken in the process provided to collect such taxes. In a sense, the description of the premises, the valuation, assessment, and collection of the taxes or the sale of such lands for taxes, in case they are not discharged as provided, is a continuous process.

Section 4, chapter 8, R. S. This section provides in general for the valuation of such lands by the board of State assessors.

Section 40, chapter 9. This section provides that the board of State assessors shall make lists of such lands with as many divisions as will secure equitable taxation, conforming as near as convenient to known divisions and separate ownership, and report the same to each successive Legislature.

Section 42. This section provides that when the Legislature assesses such tax, that the State treasurer shall, within a specified time, cause the lists of such assessments to be advertised, etc., etc.

Section 43. This section provides in general, that if such State and county taxes advertised, are not paid with interest within the time limited for redemption, the lands shall be wholly forfeited to the State, and vest therein free of any claims by any former owner.

Section 44. This section provides, that the State treasurer, in case the State taxes on such lands are not paid in due season, shall give notice of sale by publishing a list of the lands to be sold with the amount of unpaid taxes, interest and cost of each parcel.

It is readily seen, therefore, that while the treasurer proceeds under definite statute provisions, to perform his part, yet the assessors must perform their part according to statute provisions, otherwise the acts of the treasurer will be of no effect.

It is therefore apparent, that the State treasurer can neither enlarge, amend or detract from the description of the lands to be sold, from that given by the State assessors. That is, if the State treasurer should enlarge, amend or add to the description of the lands in his deed to the purchaser, it would not give the purchaser any additional rights.

Primarily, the description required to be made of the lands taxed, is to definitely and adequately locate the premises and to give the extent of them, so that the owner may know on what lands he is paying taxes, and enable him to protect himself against excessive valuation and over taxation, and on the other hand that the rights of the State may be protected.

Secondarily, an accurate description is required, so that the notice which is given by the State treasurer for the sale of such lands, by reason of the failure of the owner to discharge the taxes thereon, shall contain such a description of the premises as shall distinguish them from all others in the State, and such as will enable the owner to know that it is his property, that is being advertised for sale.

It is evident, then, that the State treasurer must follow the description given by the assessors, for there is no provision of statute whereby he may substitute a description of his own, or enlarge or amend the description given by the assessors.

If the description given by the assessors is not sufficiently definite to locate the exact premises assessed and taxed, then the acts of the State treasurer in the sale of such property are invalid, and in attempting to make sale under these circumstances, the State conveys no rights whatever to the purchaser.

Those charged with the power of divesting individuals of their property rights in pursuance to provisions of law must comply strictly with such provisions, and when such person making a deed of real estate under such conditions, recites authority for so doing, as he ought to do, and the recital proves materially untrue, the conveyance becomes ineffectual and void, unless he has other authority so to do. Smith v. Bodfish, 27 Me. 294; Tolman v. Hobbs et als., 68 Me. 316; Skowhegan Savings Bank v. Parsons et al., 86 Me. 514; Phillips v. Phillips, 40 Me. 161; Brown v. Veazie, 25 Me. 359.

"The State treasurer cannot exempt any portion of the township, except the reserved land, from its liability for the tax, unless owned by individuals, who had paid their proportions of the tax; and, regularly, it should appear, in order to authorize the sale of the residue, by the recitals in the deed, who had so paid previously to the sale, and the amount paid by each, and the quantity of land, on which each payment had been made. If, therefore, the tax intended to authorize the sale was the amount named in the record, and that sum had been reduced after the advertisement, and before the sale, by payments made by various part owners of the township, it should have been so set forth in the deed or have been proved." Smith v. Bodfish, 27 Me. 295.

As to your second question, it is more difficult to make a full and definite answer, since to do so would require an examination of the books of the State assessors to learn definitely the description of every tract or parcel of land sold for taxes for the year 1901, and to pass on the tax deeds given therefor, which in the end would accomplish nothing. However, the court has in various cases passed on questions of description relating to the sale of wild lands for State taxes which are decisive in the premises.

The description of lands sold for taxes must be plain and accurate, so that the tax-payer may understand the premises taxed, and the purchaser at the sale may be able to find them from the description given.

Adams v. Larrabee, 46 Me. 516; Blackwell on Tax Titles, 2d Ed. 123.

In Adams v. Larrabee, the lands were described as follows: "S. W.  $\frac{1}{4}$ , Range 4, No. 6 North of the Bingham purchase;" also " $\frac{3}{4}$  Range 4, No. 6 North of the Bingham purchase."

The court held that the description was insufficient, and says: "If the assessment had been made upon the whole township in solido, designating the number and range, it would have been good. In such case each owner could have computed the amount due from him." It seems impossible from this description for their owner to ascertain whether his part was in the one-fourth or in the three-fourths, and, therefore, he could not ascertain the amount of his tax.

Griffin v. Creppin, 60 Me. 270.

This is a case where in Hancock county a tract of land was sold for State taxes. The lands were described as follows: "No. 8 S. D. 4,197 acres," with the additional data required.

Here the court held that the description was too vague to pass any title; that "No. 8 S. D. gives no satisfactory information." The court says: "What does S. D. mean? The advertisement gives no indication of the meaning of the letters. That must be sought elsewhere. Certain number of acres are to be sold.

Are they to be sold in common or in severalty? The language does not describe any particular portion of the township. If the sale is to be of a specified number of acres, where are they situated; in the eastern or western, in the northern or southern part of the town, or in the center?"

The court further says: "A part of the description of the premises conveyed may be rejected on account of its falsity, if after its rejection, there is enough left to show clearly what the owner intended to convey. But in sales for non-payment of taxes, there is no intention of the owner to convey anything. In such cases, therefore, no question of intention can arise. The description must accurately describe the land assessed and the land sold."

The description of the lands sold in this case was held fatally defective.

Moulton v. Egery, 75 Me. 485.

In this case, where a State tax deed was introduced to establish the title of the plaintiff, the deed ran as follows: "The following described parcel of land so forfeited, situate in the county of Piscataquis, viz.: 11,607 acres, No. 8, Rg. 9, N. W. P. Elliottsville."

The court says: "It is admitted that the township, if it is sufficiently designated, contains more than 20,000 acres. It nowhere appears whether the 11,607 acres, the forfeiture of which is claimed, was held in common with other owners of the township or in severalty."

There was nothing in the description of the lands sold to locate the same in any part of the township whatsoever, or whether held in common or in severalty. Evidently, from an examination of the case, it was sought to be established by the plaintiff that the lands sold were those which were formerly owned by one R. D. Hill, and upon which he had formerly paid taxes, but that there was nothing in the description of the lands as assessed or sold by the State treasurer describing them as the lands which were formerly owned by R. D. Hill.

The court in this case held that the description of the land sold was "not sufficient to pass title to any particular parcel or interest in land or to enable the plaintiff to maintain his action."

It further appears that the court, from the expression, to wit: "It is admitted that the township, if it is sufficiently desig- nated,'” had some question whether the description of the township was ample and sufficient, although this point is not particularly raised or debated.

Skowhegan Savings Bank v. Parsons et al., 86 Me. 514.

In this case, which was an action of trespass “‘the defendants justified under two deeds of the locus from the State treasurer upon a sale for the non-payment of taxes to Oliver Moulton, one of the defendants.’”

The description in one of the deeds was: “9,098 acres in 2 R. 2 W. K. R. Highland.” In the other deed: “12,093 acres in 2 R. 2 W. K. R.”

Here the court says: “Where is this land? What do these figures and initials mean? There is nothing in the case to explain their meaning. Such description is insufficient to convey title.”

The court further says that the land is described in the writ as “‘a certain parcel of land situated in township numbered two in the second range west of Kennebec river, in Bingham’s Kennebec purchase,’” with description by metes and bounds, “‘containing about 5,000 acres. If the land described in the treasurer’s deeds to Moulton were conceded to be in township 2, it by no means will be assumed, without evidence, that the plaintiff’s 5,000 acres are included in the 9,098 acres in one deed, or in the 12,093 acres in the other deed.’”

It would seem that the court might have gone even further, and have inquired as to the locus of these two parcels of land. Whether they were held in common or in severalty. In what part of the township they were held, and what boundaries they had, if they were held in severalty?

There are other material points in the case, but those which I have mentioned particularly interest us.

The court held the description herein to be fatally defective as well might have been expected.

Section 40, chapter 9, R. S., hereinbefore referred to, carries out the foregoing suggestions as to the description of the property.

It provides as follows: “The board of State assessors shall make lists thereof, with as many divisions as will secure equitable taxation, conforming as near as convenient to known divisions and separate ownership.” * * *

Among the conclusions that may be drawn from the statutes and the foregoing cases cited, the following are pertinent to the second query.

1. The township should be accurately described in the assessment, in the notice of sale and in the tax deed. Letters are not sufficient for that purpose, except when the township is named by letter, and, perhaps, in the use of the letters "W. E. L. S.," meaning west from the east line of the State, but in this last instance where these words are vital to the description, it would seem to be better and safer to make use of the words which the letters are supposed to represent. The letters, if they mean anything at all, may be construed as West, East, Line, State, which, without the necessary prepositions, mean nothing. The prepositions must be read in to give any meaning to them. The intent cannot be considered, for nothing is left to intent in the case of the disposing of lands by tax sales.

2. When such a township is assessed alike per acre throughout, and is held in severalty or in common and undivided, it may be taxed in solido.

(A) In case such township is held in severalty, either by an individual, copartnership or corporation, the description in the assessment should set out that it is so held, and if the data can be had, it is advantageous to set out by whom held. However, the name of the owner is not vitally material to a valid assessment.

(B) In case such township is held in common and undivided, the description in the assessment should give not only the whole number of taxable acres in the township, and the fact that the premises are held in common and undivided, but, also, the fractional interest also of each owner therein, and accordingly the number of acres held by each owner. The advantage of so doing is obvious. The State treasurer can, by elimination, as the several owners pay their taxes, accurately discover the delinquent owner, and can set forth in his notice of sale, not only the number of acres to be sold and the fractional part of the township or of the whole block of land assessed, but he can also insert in his deed the name and fractional interest of such delinquent owner as well as the acreage.

3. The foregoing conclusions, A and B, may be applied to any portion or tract of a township, if such portion is taxed equally per acre, and the township, and portion or tract thereof, are accurately described.

4. It also follows from the foregoing, that lands sold in severalty should be described by some metes and bounds, or by some name and location, which will enable the purchaser to locate the premises by the description given in the deed, which description must be taken from that given in the assessment.

Adams v. Larrabee, 46 Me. 516.

Recitals in tax deeds taken by themselves are not evidence of the facts, as is plainly shown by the foregoing discussion.

Phillips v. Sherman, 61 Me. 551; Libby v. Mayberry, 80 Me. 138.

The foregoing discussion and a reference to the cases cited, when applied to the tax sales for the year 1901, show conclusively that a large portion of such sales were absolutely void on the ground of inadequate and insufficient description of the premises assessed and sold.

LIFE INSURANCE.

The contract of Wood, Harmon & Co. hereinafter referred to, is a contract of life insurance. The Home Life Insurance Co. hereinafter referred to, has no authority to insure the life of a contractee of Wood, Harmon & Co., who is a resident of this State, except through their resident agents in the usual manner.

STATEMENT OF FACTS.

Wood, Harmon & Co., a copartnership, or corporation of New York, agree with parties in this State, called the assured, to sell them the preferred stock of the United Cities Realty Corporation of New York, on the conditions and obligations specified in their bond and contract, on the payment of monthly installments therefor, for the period of ten years, till the full face value of said preferred stock becomes paid. Then said stock is to be delivered to the assured, and in addition thereto a certain amount of cash to be adjusted at the time of payment. In case of the death of the assured within said period of ten years, the representatives, or beneficiaries of said assured are to receive said preferred stock and said cash values as hereinafter specified, although not fully paid. To protect themselves, Wood, Harmon & Co. agree to have the life of the contractee insured in the Home Life Insurance Co.

The following questions were submitted by Hon. S. W. Carr, Insurance Commissioner, to wit:—

1. Is the contract, which the fiscal agents of the corporation make with the purchaser of the certificates, a contract or life insurance?

2. Has the Home Life Insurance Co., which is authorized to transact business in this State by duly constituted licensed resident agents only in accordance with the provisions of section 79, chapter 49, Revised Statutes, a right to issue to said Realty Company or its agents a policy of life insurance contingent upon the life of a citizen of this State except through the medium of a licensed resident agent in the usual manner?

May, in his work on insurance, 3rd Ed., chapter 1, section 1 gives the following definition of insurance in general terms, to wit:—

“Insurance is a contract whereby one for a consideration undertakes to compensate another if he shall suffer loss.”

This definition, because of its brevity and its comprehensiveness is one which writers have scarcely been able to improve.

If then, we consider the business of said Wood, Harmon and Company in the light of this definition, and find that said corporation in carrying on its business, exercises the same principles and conditions as covered by said definition, and by insurance companies generally, then we may conclude that the business of said company is that of insurance, and if carried on in this State, should become subject to the insurance laws of this State.

The general contract for the purchase of shares in said corporation in which the purchaser is named as the “assured,” taken in connection with the “terms and conditions” set out on the back of the certificate, are conclusive as to the nature of the contract. The “terms and conditions” referred to are made a part of the contract.

In brief, the contract, which is designated as a “bond,” on its face provides for the purchase of shares of the preferred stock of the United Cities Realty Corporation upon the “terms and conditions" printed on the back of the contract, and which are made a part thereof.

Said "terms and conditions" provide generally as follows:—

First: The "assured" agrees with Wood, Harmon and Company to pay one dollar per share monthly for the period of ten years, until the preferred stock of the United Cities Realty Corporation contracted for has become fully paid.

* * * * *

Third: That, in consideration of the purchase of said stock upon the terms indicated, Wood, Harmon and Company agree to pay the premiums on a policy of insurance issued by the Home Life Insurance Company on the life of the "assured," to wit, the purchaser of stock, if the contract is not allowed to lapse.

Fourth: That should the "assured" die before the maturity of the "bond," no monthly payment thereon having been made at any time thirty days in arrears * * * * * then, in that event, Wood, Harmon and Company will deliver to the personal representatives of the "assured," a certificate of the number of shares of preferred stock of the United Cities Realty Corporation contracted for, together with interest as specified.

Fifth: That at the maturity of the "bond" the "assured" will also be entitled to receive in addition to the preferred shares of stock contracted for, an additional cash balance as provided.

Sixth: That should the "assured" default in his monthly payments anytime after two years, then he may surrender his "bond" and receive from Wood, Harmon and Company the number of shares of stock and the amount of cash shown in the "table of surrender values," attached thereto, according to the age of the "assured," on the date of the issuance of the contract.

A careful examination of these provisions shows conclusively:—

1. That the "assured" in paying one dollar per month per share for the period of ten years, until his shares become fully paid, is thereby paying monthly premiums on his contract, the same as an assured pays on his contract with an insurance company, either annually, semi-annually or quarterly. In other words, the monthly payments take the place of the premiums paid in regular life or endowment insurance.

* * * * *

3. The fact that Wood, Harmon and Company agrees to pay the premiums on a policy of insurance issued by the Home Life Insurance Company on the life of the purchaser of the preferred stock has no bearing on the question now under discussion.

Wood, Harmon and Company simply take out a re-insurance of their risk with the Home Life Insurance Company. They do this to protect their contract with the "assured," the same as any insurance company may protect itself against loss by re-insurance with another company.

The fact that Wood, Harmon and Company insure their contract against loss does not establish the fact whether or not the contract is one of insurance. Hence, the determining of the question whether or not the contract of Wood, Harmon and Company is a contract of insurance, must be decided by the provisions alone governing such contract.

4. In case of death before the termination of the endowment term, to wit, ten years, the personal representatives of the "assured" receive a certificate of the number of preferred shares of stock contracted for, together with interest as provided.

This comprehends the meaning and purpose of all life insurance. It gives protection in case of death whenever it may occur within the period of ten years. Bearing in mind the definition given by May, it is clearly apparent that this is a provision for indemnity against loss in case of death.

5. At maturity, to wit, after the stipulated payments have been made by the "assured" for the period of ten years, he then becomes entitled not only to the shares of preferred stock contracted for, but in addition thereto, a cash consideration in the way of accumulated interest on monthly installments paid.

This provision takes the place in every respect of endowment payment, as also the payment of accumulated dividends made in case of regular life insurance.

6. This provision provides for a surrender value to the "assured" in case he has paid his annual installment for two full years and is unable to continue them. This surrender value is based on a "table of surrender values" attached to the "bond," and while the provision is very crude, yet it takes the place of and answers to the provision for surrender values in regular life insurance companies.

From the foregoing consideration of the provisions of the "bond" and its "terms and conditions" only one conclusion can be reached, viz. :—That all the essential conditions of regular life and endowment insurance are covered and provided for in the contract, and that said Wood, Harmon and Company in carrying on said business, is doing a life insurance business.

That preferred stock of another company is to be paid in case of death, at the expiration of the contract or on the surrender of the contract, does not affect the situation, since the preferred stock, whether of any value or not, takes the place of the usual cash payments made by regular life insurance companies.

The United Cities Realty Corporation has nothing to do with the insurance contract of Wood, Harmon and Company, and is in no way apparently interested in the insurance side of the business. Wood, Harmon and Company agree, on the consummation of certain conditions, to sell to the "assured" certain shares of preferred stock of the United Cities Realty Corporation without its apparent knowledge or agreement thereto. Said company might agree to sell to the "assured" United States bonds or the securities of any company in the same manner and under the same conditions. Hence, the United Cities Realty Corporation has apparently no part or interest in the insurance contract.

The question might arise as to who or what Wood, Harmon and Company is. There is nothing to show positively whether they are a co-partnership or a corporation. On the "bond" their name appears, "Wood, Harmon and Company," while as the guarantors of the preferred stock of the "United Cities Realty Corporation," they appear as "Wood Harmon Warranty Corporation." How these parties are related, it is not easy to say. In fact, it looks very much as though the "United Cities Realty Corporation," the "Wood, Harmon Warranty Corporation," and "Wood, Harmon and Company" might be one and the same parties.

Such a combination, if such is the case, is not conducive to confidence in the scheme or to prospective advantage financially to the "assured."

The second question may be answered much more briefly than the first.

It would appear from your query that the Home Life Insurance Co. is authorized to transact business in this State, and the question is whether said company has a right to place insurance upon the lives of citizens of this State through any other medium than its regularly constituted and licensed agents in the State.

Said company has no authority to do business in this State except through its regularly constituted and resident agents. It is perfectly plain, then, that said company cannot pursue life insurance business in this State except through such agents, and if it undertakes to do otherwise, there would seem to be good grounds for the revocation of its license.

Just what kind of policy and what obligations the Home Life Insurance Company issues, in insuring the contractees of "Wood, Harmon and Company," we do not know. That a person in this State may contract direct with a foreign company for insurance on his own life cannot be denied, but if the insurance of said contractees of "Wood, Harmon and Company" is taken on regular lines of insurance, except through its regularly constituted agents in this State, the company would, evidently, thereby be exceeding its authority under its license, for said company in doing business is known only through its regularly licensed agents. Not knowing the exact process or kind of insurance referred to in the "terms and conditions" of the "bond," it is only fair to assume that the ordinary methods of life insurance are to be pursued, and therefore, the question asked must be answered in the negative.

Respectfully submitted,

GEORGE M. SEIDERS, Attorney-General.

November 2, 1904.
