REPORT OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

To the Honorable Governor and Executive Council of Maine:

The Trustees of the University of Maine submit their forty-first annual report, with reports of the President and Treasurer. Full information in regard to the general and financial condition of the University will be found in the reports of President Fellows and Treasurer Stetson.

The past year, as in former years, has seen a steady and constant growth in the number of students and in the work done at the University. I am pleased to state that there have been no changes in the Board of Trustees during the past year. This year Prof. Aubert has followed Prof. Fernald on the retired list, and both, through the earnest efforts of President Fellows, have been put on the pension list of the Carnegie Foundation. Prof. Fernald's retirement was spoken of in our last report. Prof. Aubert gave to the University many years in the chemical department. He bore an international reputation in this subject and his department boasts of many graduates high in their profession. With the undergraduates he was ever fair and had the respect and esteem of all, and brought his department to a very high degree of efficiency. During the period covered by this report there have been many changes in the faculty, which have had a tendency to strengthen the instructing force. A full account of these changes will be found in Pres. Fellows' report.

The sudden death of Prof. J. W. Carr was a severe blow not only to the department of German of which he was the head, but to the University as a whole. Although not one of the oldest professors in the institution, he had, during his stay, endeared himself in the hearts of all, and by his work had raised his department to a state of efficiency that was second to none in the country.

Since last year the agricultural building has been completed, and that department has now taken up its work in the new building. The increased facilities for handling this work came none too soon, as this field of work has broadened to an almost unlooked-for degree. The increased interest in agriculture throughout this state cannot be too closely connected with the work of this institution, and with these added facilities we feel that we can give to the farmer the privileges that are rightfully his by support given the University. To be able to do this and show the state an adequate return for the money appropriated, is another stride toward the goal for which we are working.

The last legislature made an appropriation for a new dormitory, for which the plans have been completed and contracts let. The work will be begun at once and rushed to completion at the earliest possible moment. This new building will accommodate many students, besides having increased dining accommodations and club-rooms. This will fill a long-felt want, as many of the men have been obliged in the past to live in Orono and walk to and from their recitations. We feel that this addition to the University will bring the students closer together and make their relations and work much more successful than in the past.

While during the past few years we have had many improvements on the campus, there are still many pressing needs. Among the most imperative are new barns for the stock, greenhouses for the horticultural department and a new chemical laboratory. The need of these new buildings is fully explained in President Fellows' report.

The law school in its new quarters has had another of its successful years. Under Dean Walz this branch has grown rapidly both in prestige and numbers.

The attendance of the college has kept up its phenomenal growth, and this year there is a greater number of students than in any previous year. The health of both the faculty and students has been excellent.

In previous years special attention has been given to beautifying the campus, and this work should be continued as fast as funds will warrant in order to make it as attractive and pleasing to the students and community as possible.

The Board of Trustees, in reviewing the wonderful growth of the University, cannot urge too strongly the importance of providing for its future growth, with sufficient appropriation to make this institution what it should be, a credit to our state, and to rank with the strongest of the land grant colleges.

EDWARD B. WINSLOW,
Pres., Board of Trustees.

REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT

To the Board of Trustees of the University of Maine:

The President of the University has the honor to present his eighth annual report, covering the years 1908-1909.

PUBLIC RESPONSIBILITY FOR EDUCATION

The State of Maine is particularly fortunate above the other New England states in having directly under her control the various pieces of an organization for public education which need only to be coordinated to result in such an educational system as is unsurpassed in any of the states in the Union. The history of education in the United States shows very clearly that the public has recognized the necessity of a liberal and practical education for every one of its citizens and this not merely for the welfare of the individual citizen, but for the collective welfare of the whole body. Naturally, this recognition has not come all at once. First, the simplest rudiments of an education only were regarded as essential, the higher training being left for individual effort. As it progressed, public sentiment became as favorable to secondary education as it had been formerly to primary education and public high schools for several decades have been as firmly established as were the primary schools before them.

Within the last half century, the people of the United States, with the exception of New England, have become as firmly attached to higher education by the public as to primary and secondary education and for the same reasons exactly—the protection of the public against the evils resulting from ignorance and incompetence. A very interesting study of the growth of public sentiment toward the management of higher education by the State may be made in following the history of Cornell University in the State of New York.

When the first Federal Land Grant was made to the states for the establishment of colleges “for the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes,” it was made use of by the Middle, Southern and Western States to enlarge the work of already established state universities, or to found new ones. But for the public spirit and generosity of Ezra Cornell, the benefit of the land grant would have been lost to the state of New York.

The great amount of land which was offered for sale at the same time because so many states had received the Morrill Land Grant, seemed likely to reduce the price of all such land so low that little benefit would be received by the new institution. Mr. Cornell purchased the land given to New York and held it until it could be sold at a good price, then devoted the proceeds to the foundation of Cornell University. Although this institution has always been intended to be of a public nature, the peculiar method by which it received its endowment, gave it a semi-private organization. Nevertheless, the College of Agriculture of Cornell University has always been a purely public institution.

From time to time, the authorities of Cornell University have made efforts to make it more fully a public institution. About a year ago, Andrew S. Draper, Commissioner of Education of the State of New York, called attention to the fact that Cornell University does not and cannot sustain the same relation to the state of New York that the Western state universities sustain to their respective states because the people do not feel a sense of entire proprietorship in it and further said that this condition could "never be cured until the university became the real instrument of the state." The opinions of Commissioner Draper are supported and emphasized by President Schurman in his last annual report. He further calls attention to the increased influence of the state in the government of the university and points out a method whereby Cornell University may become a state university in the fullest sense of the word.

I have called particular attention to the peculiarities of Cornell University because comparison is frequently made between Cornell and other real state universities. This comparison is always made to the advantage of the state universities, that is, it seems that the trend of opinion is toward the recognition of the duty of the public for general and higher education in every state. If so great an institution as Cornell feels that it should be wholly a state university rather than partly so, it is because other institutions which have the advantage of the Morrill Land Grant and which have become preeminent in the field of education are state universities and wholly so. The yearnings of Cornell to become a real state university should be an encouragement to the people of Maine who already have a state university in form and legality. The University of Maine is in no sense a private institution, but is the property and servant of the public. The legal title to the property rests in the State of Maine and thus Maine has a vast advantage over any other New England state in that she has the organization already perfect for the building up of a public university on the same lines exactly as those which have become so distinguished in the Middle West.

The fact that New York is striving for this ideal and that Massachusetts is making great efforts toward establishing some kind of a general public educational institution should inspire the people of Maine to take advantage of their unique position in New England and keep ahead of the movement, which is universal, in setting the pace of supporting and managing a university which shall benefit the people of all classes in their everyday life. To do this, little is needed but to continue the moral and financial support of the university, in proportion to its needs, that has been given for the past three or four years.

IDEALS OF SCHOLARSHIP

No one is likely to dispute the statement that a college or university is primarily an educational institution. There may be differences of opinion as to what influences are educational. Many would claim, and justly, that some social gatherings, musical and other entertainments, athletic training and contests are educational. Most people would agree in this view up to a certain point. The great difficulty lies in determining how much of such affairs should be permitted in connection with the usual curriculum of studies as laid down by the Faculty.

It is not in the University of Maine alone that too much attention is given to the so-called student activities. This complaint is made in a great number of colleges and universities in the country. It is a problem the consideration of which may well engage the attention of the clearest thinkers and ablest administrators. It appears to many of those who have discussed the subject that there has, with the growth of these outside student activities, been a distinct decline in scholarship. The prominence given to teams and clubs has eclipsed the prominence formerly given to diligent and distinguished scholars. I feel that this tendency has developed itself too strongly in our own university.

The danger in advocating a restriction of student activities is that in the too rapid movement in this line irritation may be so developed as to work against the reforms desired. Yet many of the more earnest students undoubtedly feel that there are too many social engagements in which they are expected to participate. There is undoubtedly an educational value in these social engagements, but their occurrence on evenings other than Friday and Saturday cannot fail to seriously interfere with the preparation for classes. Athletic contests away from our own grounds are already reduced as far as possible to Saturdays. In my opinion, the first step would be to insist that all "house parties" should be held on Friday and Saturday nights only and that the meetings of the students on other than these nights should be confined to such as are of a distinctly educational nature, such as debating clubs and literary and scientific societies.

Since writing the above some of the fraternities have at their own initiative begun to restrict their own social affairs to Friday and Saturday.

COMMITTEE ON INDUSTRIAL EDUCATION

The Trustees will recall that in the Report of the President last year there was a recommendation that the Board of Trustees take the initiative in an investigation of the subject of "Industrial and Practical Education in Connection with the Public School System." A conference between the President of the University and the State Superintendent of Schools disclosed the fact that the Superintendent intended to ask the Legislature for an appropriation to begin a similar investigation. As the purposes of the two investigations were identical and the suggested members of a future committee were essentially the same, no further action was taken by the President of the University at that time.

The Legislature made an appropriation to be expended under the authority of the State Superintendent of Schools. An investigation is to be conducted by a committee consisting of the State Superintendent, the President of the University, the principal of a large preparatory school, the Master of the State Grange, the Secretary of the State Board of Trade, the principal of a large high school and a representative of a labor organization.

The committee as organized is composed of the following gentlemen: Payson Smith, George E. Fellows, W. E. Sargent, Francis R. North, C. S. Stetson, E. M. Blanding and Charles O. Beals. It is the intention of this committee to visit the important industries of the State, consult with the managers and superintendents of the chief enterprises and hold public meetings where practicable in the interest of industrial education.

As a result of these meetings and investigations, a report and recommendation will be presented to the next Legislature embodying some plan for the encouragement of industrial education. While this committee is not acting under the direction of the University, its work is one to which the President of the University should give all possible attention.

THE RELATION OF THE UNIVERSITY TO THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The President of the University has uniformly laid emphasis in public and in private on the close relation that should exist between the high schools and the University, as well as between the primary schools and the high schools. I should regard it as highly satisfactory if the work of the high schools in the state were such that we could receive graduates from them directly into the University. This at present is impossible, owing to the lack of uniformity of instruction in the high schools.

A plan, however, has been drawn up by the State Superintendent of Schools for the classification of the high schools of the state into three divisions, A, B, and C, so that by thorough inspection the Class A high schools shall be able to grant certificates which shall entitle the holders to admission into any of the colleges of the state. This I regard as a highly desirable end. It cannot be put into effect within a year and perhaps more, but if it can ultimately become effective, it will have a powerful influence in unifying the public educational system of the state from the lowest primary to the University.

RHODES SCHOLARSHIPS

In the year 1904, by the bequest of Mr. Cecil Rhodes, the state of Maine as well as all other states of the Union received the privilege of sending to Oxford University representatives from the colleges of the state. The President of the State University has been ex-officio chairman of the Committee of Appointment. Four scholars have been sent, one from each of the colleges. The colleges, for the first appointment, were permitted to name candidates in the order of the founding of the institutions, Bowdoin, Colby, Bates, University of Maine. The representative from the University of Maine is now entering upon his second year at Oxford.

The agent of the Rhodes Trustees now suggests that appointments hereafter be made from the total number of eligible candidates rather than from the colleges in rotation. While the question has not been settled, it is probable that such an arrangement will be agreed upon, it being understood that the state should have the best representative possible rather than that the institutions should be individually represented.

COOPERATION WITH DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

The usefulness of our College of Agriculture has for several years been greatly increased because of the hearty cooperation of the State Department of Agriculture. The work of our Experiment Station bearing upon potato growing has been ably supported by the Commissioner of Agriculture and great encouragement given to farmers, in all parts of the state, who are interested in growing this crop.

The dairy industry of the state has also been developed by the plans of the Commissioner and in this development two young men from the University of Maine are regularly employed as inspector and instructor, while our Dairy Department is closely connected with all movements for the development of this industry.

Additional plans are under consideration for the cooperation of our Department of Horticulture with the Commissioner to develop a greater interest in fruit growing. The exhibit of Maine apples at the New England Fruit Show this fall was made conspicuous because of the excellent work of our students in Horticulture who did the packing for the exhibition. Too much cannot be said in favor of the close alliance between the State Department of Agriculture and of our own College of Agriculture.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE

The Department of Domestic Science, which was authorized by the Trustees several years ago and which had been unable to give more than a short course in connection with Farmer's Week, has been fully organized. Work has begun in the present semester in charge of Miss Laura Comstock, Assistant Professor in charge of the department. The large room, originally intended for a museum in the Hall of Agriculture, has been fitted up as kitchen and dining room and with such laboratory equipment as is essential. The appreciation of the work in this department may be noted from the number of students who have voluntarily registered for full courses and in the general approval by the public.

Miss Comstock not only gives the work to the regular students at the University, but in connection with the Extension Department goes to all parts of the state at the request of various organizations to give demonstrations and encouragement to local movements for establishment of work in this line.

Too much cannot be said in favor of a vigorous maintenance of the Domestic Science Department. Next to our work in Agriculture, this department offers more opportunities to be of direct assistance to the people of the state than any other department of the University.

POULTRY INDUSTRY

The Department of Poultry Industry has been, during the past year under the able management of Professor W. A. Brown, very thoroughly organized and developed. Two short poultry courses have been given during the year with an attendance of about eighty. A poultry show was held in connection with each. There is no doubt whatever that this particular branch of instruction will be able to develop profitable investment in the poultry industry, especially throughout the southern portion

FACULTY HOUSES

Owing to the scarcity of suitable dwellings which could be rented by the professors of the University, the Trustees have caused to be constructed during the summer of 1909 three dwelling houses on the campus. These houses have greatly relieved the pressure for the housing of the Faculty.

Another act authorized by the Trustees has also greatly contributed to the comfort and convenience of several members of the Faculty and many students. The Orono House which had been conducted for many years as a hotel has been leased for a period of ten years by the Trustees and refitted as a University Inn. The building now is in excellent condition, well finished, convenient, well lighted and heated and serves as an excellent home for several unmarried members of the Faculty, for a considerable number of students and as a convenient place to entertain visitors to the University.

NEW DORMITORY

For some years the dormitory accommodations have been totally inadequate for the housing of students who were unable to obtain board in the village or who were not members of fraternities. Accordingly the Trustees received from various architects competitive designs for a new dormitory. After careful consideration, the plan offered by Mr. William Hart Taylor of Boston was adopted. The architect is at present drawing the complete plans and specifications which will be offered to bidders in the near future. It is the intention to have the dormitory constructed just north of Oak Hall and it is hoped that it may be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1910.

CHANGES IN THE FACULTY

In addition to the usual changes in the Faculty caused by the resignations of the younger instructors to go into practical business or to accept positions in other institutions, the loss of a professor who was at the head of his department should be specially noted.

Professor J. W. Carr, head of the Department of German, died suddenly as he was ascending the steps of Coburn Hall to attend one of his classes. He had had the misfortune to sprain his ankle some weeks before and was walking on crutches. The cause of his death was stated to be fatty degeneration of the heart. Whether the sudden attack was brought on by the unusual exertion of walking on crutches is of course unknown. Professor Carr ranked high as a scholar and was a member of several learned societies. He had been specially prominent as a writer and an officer in the American Dialect Society. His death causes a serious loss not only to the University of Maine, with which he was immediately connected, but to the world of scholarship.

Roland P. Gray, B. A., has been appointed Professor of English. He is a graduate of Columbia University in the class of 1893. While an undergraduate he carried graduate courses in Comparative Literature under Professor George E. Woodbury and in American Literature under Professor Brander Matthews. He won a first prize in oratory and at graduation was class orator. He has carried on graduate work at Harvard, Yale, and Oxford, and conducted special investigations in the British Museum. He was head of the English Department at the Marmaduke Military Academy, 1893-1894; Instructor in English, University of Nebraska, 1894-1895; Instructor in English, 1895-1902, and Assistant Professor of English, 1902-1905, University of Rochester; Professor of English, Acadia University, 1905-1908; and Assistant Professor of English, Indiana University, 1908-1909. For five years, he conducted Saturday conference for teachers of English in Rochester and surrounding towns. He was editor of the Nebraska Literary Quarterly, is the author of "Some Helps in Sentence Analysis," and published a series of theme tablets that were the pioneer in this field and have had a wide vogue. At present he is editing a translation of Béowulf, with introduction and critical notes. He has been in demand as a lecturer, and among the lectures which he has been called upon to give most frequently are those on Shakspeare, Browning, and the Evangeline country.

Ralph H. McKee, Ph. D., has been appointed Professor of Chemistry. Doctor McKee was graduated from Wooster University in 1895 and during his senior year was assistant in chemistry. He was Professor of Chemistry in Carthage College, 1895-1898, and a graduate student at the University of Chicago for three years, during one of which he held a teaching fellowship. He received his degree of Doctor of Philosophy in chemistry in 1901; since that time he has taught at Lake Forest College, having been Instructor in Chemistry during 1901-1902 and Professor of Chemistry since 1902. He is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and a member of the Illinois Academy of Science, American Chemical Society, Deutsche Chemische Gesellschaft, etc. He is vice chairman and secretary of the Division of Organic Chemistry of the American Chemical Society. He has contributed extensively to the American Chemical Journal, Science, Chemical Abstracts, Berichte der Deutsche Gesellschaft, Popular Science Monthly, etc. Dr. McKee is the discoverer of a process for obtaining soluble potassium compounds which renders it unnecessary to import them from Germany.

Charles W. Easley, Ph. D., has been appointed Associate Professor of Chemistry. Dr. Easley was graduated from Dickinson College in 1897 and received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy at Clark University in 1908, for work in Chemistry and Physics. He taught science at the Troy Conference Seminary, 1897-1899, and Dover Academy, 1899-1901. He was awarded a scholarship at Clark University in 1901 and a fellowship in 1902, and held an honorary fellowship, 1903-1908. He was Instructor in Chemistry in Clark College, 1903-1908, and Assistant Professor of Chemistry, 1908-1909. At a recent meeting of the American Chemical Society in Baltimore a paper on vapor pressures of liquid mixtures by Professor Rosanoff and Easley created much interest. He has designed improved apparatus which gives increased accuracy in analytical work.

Benjamin E. Kraybill, M. S., has been appointed Instructor in Industrial Chemistry. Mr. Kraybill, after graduation at the Millersville (Pennsylvania) State Normal School, taught successfully for four years in the public schools of Pennsylvania. He then entered Franklin and Marshall College, from which he was graduated in 1908, during his senior year holding the position of Assistant in Chemistry. During the past year he has held a scholarship in chemistry at the University of Pennsylvania where he specialized in Industrial Chemistry. For five summers he has acted as inspector for the Pennsylvania Steel Company.

Garrett W. Thompson, Ph. D., has been appointed Professor of Germanic Languages. He is a graduate of Amherst College in 1888, was two years a student at the University of Berlin, and received his Doctorate at the University of Pennsylvania in 1908 for work in Germanics. He taught for some years in the Friends High School of Philadelphia and was Assistant Principal. For the last two years he has been Professor of German in Franklin and Marshall College. Professor Thompson is the author of a novel, has published some charming verse, and is a talented musician.

Robert R. Drummond, B. S., has been appointed Instructor in Germanic Languages. Mr. Drummond was graduated from the University of Maine in the class of 1905, with a major in German, and entered the University of Pennsylvania for graduate work. He was University Scholar in Germanics, 1905-1907, and Harrison Fellow in Germanics, 1907-1909. In addition to his graduate work, he taught German in St. Joseph's College and the Pennsylvania Military College, and also had classes in the University of Pennsylvania. He will receive the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in December.

Laura Comstock has been appointed Assistant Professor of Domestic Science. Miss Comstock is a graduate of the Buffalo, N. Y., State Normal School and taught successfully for some years in the normal schools of Oswego, N. Y., and Stevens Point, Wisconsin. In order to prepare herself properly to teach domestic science Miss Comstock has studied at Pratt Institute and is a graduate of that institution. It will interest many people in the State of Maine to know that among those who recommended Miss Comstock highly was Miss Mary B. Snow, formerly Superintendent of Schools in Bangor, late Supervisor of Practice Teaching at Pratt Institute, and recently elected to a position in Chicago in which she has charge of all work in Domestic Science in the Chicago Public Schools.

Henry G. Bell, B. S., has been appointed Professor of Agronomy to succeed Professor William D. Hurd, resigned. Professor Hurd by his energy and affability has brought the College of Agriculture of the University into close touch with the agricultural societies of the state and with the farmers. He leaves us to take charge of the short course work at the Massachusetts Agricultural College. Professor Bell comes to us from the Iowa Agricultural College at Ames, Iowa, where he held the position of Assistant Professor of Farm Crops. Professor Bell is thoroughly trained practically, having been brought up on a farm. He obtained his bachelor's degree at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, Canada, in 1905, and remained there as assistant for the next year. The last three years he has been at the Iowa State College, the first two years as instructor and the last year as assistant professor. No two institutions are preparing better men for leadership in agricultural work than those at Guelph and Ames. We are therefore fortunate in securing the services of one who had studied and worked at both institutions.

Melvin Ernest Sherwin, B. S., has been appointed Assistant Professor of Agronomy to succeed Professor Ernest David Waid who resigned to engage in extension work in Ohio State University. Professor Sherwin was graduated from the University of Missouri with the degree of Bachelor of Science in Agriculture in 1908. Besides assisting in the teaching work at Missouri before his graduation, Professor Sherwin was engaged during the year 1908-1909 at the University of California as instructor and investigator in farm crops.

George E. Simmons, B. S., has been appointed Assistant Professor in charge of the extension work to succeed Professor James Earl McClinck who resigned to accept a position in the United States Bureau of Education. Professor Simmons was a college graduate before he took up the study of agriculture at the Ohio State University, having received the degree of Bachelor of Science at the Ohio Northern University, Ada, Ohio, 1902. He had been a teacher for several years, then entered the Ohio State University and was graduated in the agricultural course in 1909.

James R. Dice, B. S., has been appointed Instructor in Animal Industry. He is a graduate of the Michigan Agricultural College in the class of 1908, and while a student won the Michigan sweepstakes in stock judging. During the last year he has been having practical experience in farm management.

Wintha R. Palmer, B. S., has been appointed Instructor in Horticulture. He is a graduate of the Oregon Agricultural College in the class of 1909, and has had a valuable and varied experience in the great fruit regions of the Northwest.

Truman L. Hamlin, M. A., has been appointed Instructor in Mathematics. He is a graduate of Western Reserve University in the class of 1899. He was teacher of Latin in Benedict College, Columbia, S. C., 1899-1900, and Teaching Fellow in Mathematics at the University of Missouri, 1900-1902. He received the degree of M. A. from Missouri in 1902. From 1902-1908 he was Superintendent of the Jackson, Missouri, Military Institute. During the summer of 1909 he has been a student at Teachers' College, Columbia University.

Sherman D. Chambers, B. S., has been appointed Instructor in Mathematics. He is a graduate of Baldwin University in 1904. After teaching mathematics for a year in the Eaton, Ohio, High School and two years in the Wyoming Seminary at Kingston, Pa., he held a fellowship in mathematics at the Ohio State University for 1907-1908.
