REPORT

To His Excellency, the Governor of Maine:

We herewith submit the report of the State of Maine Cattle Commission for the two years commencing December 1, 1908, and ending December 1, 1910, containing an account of cattle, horses and sheep, condemned and destroyed under the provisions of the Law of 1887, Chapter 19, relating to contagious diseases among cattle, horses and sheep, and as amended in 1899.

During the two years, there has been destroyed at Brighton, Mass., by the Massachusetts authorities, 143 head of cattle costing $4,803.18 or $33.52 each.

Of this number, 30 were destroyed under the old law of 1908 and cost $750.00 or $25.00 each.

The other 113 head were destroyed under the new law of 1909 and cost $4,053.18 or $36.00 each.

All of the 113 head were appraised at $50.00 each, and the salvage under the meat inspection law of Massachusetts amounted to an average of $14.00 per head.

Under a similar law in Maine, the salvage on 2,789 head might reasonably be expected to return to the state at least $10.00 per head or $27,890.00, which, under the present laws, has to be buried in the ground for want of a meat inspection law.

You will notice that more cattle have been condemned and destroyed under the last two years and more money expended, than under any previous period.

One part of the new law that has caused an increase in expenditures is the raise in the valuation of cattle, from one-half under the old law, to a full market value under the new law, at the time of condemnation.

Two thousand seven hundred eighty-six grade cattle under the old law would only have cost $69,650.00 whereas under the new law, the same have cost $23,407.73 more besides an added stimulus to the business.

The increase in appraisals has caused dairymen all over the state to call upon the commissioners to investigate their herds. The increase in compensation for condemned cattle has caused the owners to look more closely after the health of their animals and where there was a suspicion of disease the services of the Commissioners have been more freely sought for, for the purposes of investigation and this has brought the Commissioners into new sections of the state; sections where tuberculin had never been used.

This has raised the percentage of diseased cattle over what it would have been had we confined ourselves to the old law and only worked in sections where the dairymen were more acquainted with the use of tuberculin and where cattle to quite an extent had been tested for a number of years and the disease practically cleaned out.

It was shown in the last report that the city of Portland milk and cream supply had been greatly improved by the testing of the herds furnishing the same, for three years running. The first test showed 6% diseased and the third test showed about 2%.

In the testing of the Turner Center Creamery herds, we give Mr. Bradford's statement as follows:

"Three hundred fifty-four of our patrons have had their herds tested, 3,185 cows in all, of which number 101 reacted under the test and were destroyed. This is about three per cent or in other words an average of one diseased cow for every three herds of eleven cows each. A few of these herds have been tested annually for the second and some for the third time and no diseased animals have been reported in such cases. This speaks well for the tuberculin test, and for the efficiency with which it had been administered by the Cattle Commissioners and their authorized veterinarians."

This seems to us to be fairly conclusive evidence that bovine tuberculosis can be practically stamped out of our dairy herds by faithful and persistent work.

To show how the matter stands in sections where no testing has been done, we call your attention to the town of Sanford. It has a population of about 11,000 and it requires about 550 cows to furnish its milk and cream supply. These cattle have practically all been tested within the last year. There had never been but one herd tested in the town to our knowledge up to the time that the testing commenced, (October 1909) and that herd was practically all condemned. The result of the work done will show the difference in percentage of diseased animals between sections where no work has been done and sections where more or less work has been done by the Commissioners within the last few years.

In the last months of the year 1909, there were 455 head tested and 130 animals re-acted, or 28½%. To replace these animals the dairymen bought new cows, subject to the test, and no sales could be made without the test.

In this way, 356 more cattle were tested and 80 of them re-acted, or 22½%.

We do not say that all sections where no work has been done would be as bad as Sanford; but we do say that wherever disease is located and no effort has been made to suppress it, that there will be a very much larger percentage than in sections where owners of cattle have been trying for years to get rid of it.

Continuing this matter of saving to the state, it might be well to say :

That the labor of disinfecting the barns and tie-ups has under the law of 1909 been paid for by the State, and has constituted almost a gift in these cases and should be done by the owner at his own expense, which would have saved $2,121.40 during the last two years.

The law with regard to appraisals might appear to be too liberal in its provisions; yet in New York state, pure blood cattle are appraised at $125.00, grade cattle at $75.00 and horses at $120.00.

They are paid for on the basis of clinical and post mortem appearances.

Cattle affected with localized tuberculosis are paid for at 80% of the appraisal; those with generalized tuberculosis are paid for at 50% of the appraisal.

Horses affected with glanders, showing no clinical symptoms are paid for at 80% of the appraisal; those showing clinical symptoms are paid for at 50% of the appraisal.

Under such a system it is doubtful if there would be any saving in this state, as the appraised values now fall below these amounts, on the average.

Yet it would be well to consider whether it is right to pay full value for an animal that has been kept until it is ready to die with disease.

It has done all the harm that it is capable of doing, and the destruction of it can hardly be called "protecting the cattle industry of the state."

Again, under the old law owners of cattle paid for the testing of sound animals in the herd, even where disease was found; but under the new law, if only one diseased animal is found, the state pays the bill on the whole herd. This has raised the payments on account of veterinarians, to a large degree, that were formerly payments made by the owner.

Recoveries from the sale of hides have not been as large as they should have been as there has been no provision of law for the same; it has been only through the insistence of the Commission that anything has been saved at all. Under an inspection law, larger amounts can be recovered, as the present system of freighting the animals to a rendering plant eats up nearly all the returns, and unless they are so dealt with there are no returns at all, the killing, skinning and burying on the farm practically uses up all the returns that can be secured.

An inspection law enters into the saving question so closely that it is the basis of the whole question. The expense of inspection is to be borne by the Federal Government and they are willing to assume it.

The expense to the cities and towns affected will be small compared to the results obtained, and certainly not large in any case, and it is an open question if the disposal of the offal, in most cases, will not pay for the running expenses and show a profit.

In Massachusetts the cattle from Maine that are condemned under the tuberculin test are slaughtered under inspection and those that are fit for food, passed, the carcass sold, and the proceeds deducted from the appraised value.

In York and Cumberland Counties, there is a modified form of what might be called inspection; that is to say, butchers are their own inspectors and when tuberculosis is found, they notify the Cattle Commission, a post mortem examination is made and the carcass is condemned.

It has resulted in a cleaner meat supply. It has resulted in a reduction of tuberculous cattle because the butcher buys with more confidence what he formerly had fear of and left on the community. A fear not always justified as results have proved.

In the southern part of York County, there has not been much testing done.

Aroostook County is another section where practically no work had been done previous to 1909. During the year 1908 several carloads of dairy cattle were shipped in there from central Maine, and the people reading and hearing so much about what was being done in the western part of the state, became suspicious that they were having disease brought into their county, and there was a demand made upon the Commissioners to have some of these cattle tested and the result was out of 471 cattle tested, 71 were found to be diseased during the year 1909 or 15%, which shows that the Aroostook farmer did not commence any too soon.

There has been very little done in Knox, Lincoln, Washington and Hancock Counties. The other counties have had more or less done; some more than others.

There has been 44,274 grade cattle tested during the two years and 2,786 condemned or 6.3%. This includes good and bad sections.

There has been 5,846 pure blood animals tested during the two years and 146 condemned, or  $2\frac{1}{2}\%$ . This is a decrease of  $2\frac{1}{2}\%$  over the previous two years, and shows the percentage of disease in the state.

The new law requires the testing of all animals that are to be shown at the State Fairs. Also many herds containing part grades and part pure bloods have been tested for the first time owing to the more favorable aspect of the new law as regards compensation and for the free test by the state where disease is found. The old only required a test where the animal was to be transferred.

The law provides that the state shall pay for the testing of cattle where the evidence of disease is such as to satisfy the Commissioners that a test is necessary. Our rule is that whenever a case is found in a herd, that it is necessary to test the balance of the herd. That when a herd is found badly diseased, and a number condemned, that it is necessary to test the herd again, within six months or thereabouts.

In the testing of herds where no disease is found, the owner must pay for the test to the extent of $10.00, which usually pays the bill; but if the cost exceeds this amount, the state will pay the balance.

The law provides for a free test where disease or suspicion exists.

Dairymen cannot afford to carry disease in their herds when the state pays a fair market value for the animal; pays for the test where disease is found; and pays for the disinfection and making the premises safe for sound animals.

Some may say that the Commissioners are condemning too many cattle, and it is a fact that the Commissioners sometimes feel that way themselves; but when we consider that the Commissioners make no effort to locate or hunt for diseased herds; that the business is absolutely upon the application of the owners of the cattle themselves; that it takes the entire time of the Commissioners to keep up with the work; that it requires the services of 40 veterinarians to do the work of testing and disinfection of premises; and under the law the Commissioners have no way or excuse to curtail the business, it becomes evident that it is the policy of the state under the present law, backed up by public sentiment, that tuberculosis amongst our dairy herds must be eradicated as nearly as possible and that the commissioners are not responsible for the amount of money being expended further than the efficient manner in which the work is done, and an economical method of doing business.

There has been 50,120 cattle tested during the two years, costing the state for every expense pertaining to the business, $145,309.27, or $2.90 each on an average for every animal tested.

After deducting $2,687.66 paid to the State Treasurer for the sale of hides, the cattle tested cost the state $2.84 each, upon an average, and every expense paid for.

The owner received of this $2.84 for each animal tested	$2.09
The Commissioners received for each animal tested..	22
The veterinarians received for each animal tested....	48
It cost to disinfect and furnish supplies, postage, stationery, printing, for each animal tested .....	05

By this it would seem to imply that the veterinarians only received 48 cents on the average for testing each animal.

This would not be fair as the owners paid for testing about .....	8,000
F. S. Adams, Commissioner, tested .....	980
and there was tested at Brighton, about .....	11,200

This leaves 29,940, which the state paid for, or at the rate of 80½ cents each, for testing.

What have the Commissioners accomplished under the law?

Six years ago the Commissioners went before the Agricultural Committee and asked that the law be amended, so that all pure blood animals coming into Maine from another state might be tested within 30 days of arrival under the direction of the Commission; also that all pure blood animals sold within the state be tested before delivery.

At this time the Commissioners were discouraged, knowing by their experience that the disease was rapidly increasing and that unless something was done to check it, what money had been appropriated would be practically thrown away.

This was an experiment, and while many pure blood breeders were discouraged and some going out of the business, they were sceptical and felt that the law would be of great loss to them; but after careful consideration, they soon began to co-operate with the Commissioners, and the testing of pure blood herds began. During the first two years there were 909 head tested and 201 condemned or over 20% found diseased and condemned.

During the same period, 26 pure blood cattle were shipped into the state and found to be diseased, were destroyed without compensation to the owner.

These cattle were mostly bulls, purchased for use at the head of grade herds, throughout the state. Allowing 10 cattle to each herd, 260 would have been exposed to the disease through these bulls.

The two following years the percentage of disease in the pure blood herds dropped to 5 and the last two years it has dropped to 2½%.

These facts are proved by the records, and is worth more to the state than all of the money appropriated for the whole six years put together.

What would have been the result if the state had not taken it in hand, six years ago?

The Federal Government has taken the position (and made arrangements) that it is willing to test at its expense, all interstate shipments of cattle, and Dr. Melvin states that the Government is ready to do the work provided the owner would pay the travelling and other necessary expenses.

This proposition the Commissioners have not as yet accepted, as our present pure blood law will not allow.

In speaking of grade cattle, it is altogether a different proposition; but we do know, that by keeping the diseased pure blood bulls from being put at the head of sound grade herds is a strong point in the prevention of spreading of the disease; that by testing some 10,000 dairy cows furnishing milk and cream to the Turner Center Creamery, and 3,000 for the Oxford County Creamery, and by testing these cattle two and three years running, that the disease has been practically cleaned out of these sections.

By testing up the milk supply of Bangor, Waterville, Portland, Sanford, Oakland, Fairfield, Winslow and Bath, also Lewiston and Auburn to a great extent, and other sections in different parts of the state, during the last two years, 6.3% were found diseased. If the same sections could be retested during the next two years, judging from past experiences, there would not be over 3% found diseased. By liberal appropriations and by persistent work, tuberculosis can be practically eradicated within the next few years from our herds.

It would be bad policy for the state, after spending so much money and getting such good results, to adopt any method that would check the business, and allow bovine tuberculosis to increase in our state.

There is a stronger sentiment for a sweeping test than there was two years ago, and there is no question but what it would be the most economical in the long run. It is strictly a public health law; there is no agriculture in the business and it should not be so considered.

The reason why matters pertaining to the law come before the Agricultural Committee, is for them to have a right to set the values on their property. The state under the law is obliged to destroy it.

It is an expensive business and cannot be otherwise. It is a terrible calamity to the cattle industry of the state, as the more the disease exists, the less the industry is worth to the state.

The Commissioners have thought within the last two years that the owners would be willing to bear more of the hardship and would submit without complaining to a reduction in the appraisals; but if the appraisals should be reduced to such an extent as to discourage the owner, they would lose their interest and would not co-operate with the Commissioners.

This should be carefully considered, as the Commissioners cannot do very much without the co-operation of the owners.

The veterinary work cannot be obtained any less and the Commissioners only get what the law gives them.

The law requires that "such sum as may be deemed necessary by the Cattle Commissioners, shall be used from their appropriation for the purpose of vaccination of cattle against tuberculosis, under the rules and regulations as shall be made for the control of such work."

Our rule is, that the state will pay for the vaccine, if the owner will agree to pay the veterinarian, and conform to the regulations as laid down by the agents of the vaccine company:

There are but a half dozen veterinarians in the state that have been doing the work and they are selected by the agent of the company and approved by the Cattle Commission.

They are instructed to report to the Commissioners, all unfavorable results in the use of the vaccine.

During 1907-8 there were 50 calves so treated and during 1909-10 there were 145 calves treated and so far no unfavorable results have been reported. It has cost slightly under $300.00 to do the work.

It would be well to note that under the old law, the Commissioners expended $72,178.58 during the years 1907-8. The object of the new law was to authorize the payment of a higher price for a first-class cow, that re-acted to the tuberculin test. The new law as originally drafted, carried an appropriation of $65,000.00 per year for two years, and this amount was considered by the Commissioners, as low as they could possibly get along with and not have a deficiency at the end of 1910.

They expressed themselves to the committee in charge of the bill, that they would rather have $70,000.00 for the two years, under the old law, than to have $130,000.00 under the proposed new law; but the committee saw fit to cut off $30,000.00 from the appropriation of the new law, and pass it. The result is that the business has settled down to about $6,000.00 per month and a deficiency.

It was seen at the end of 1909, that there would be just this state of affairs and the Commissioners at that period considered just how the work could be curtailed.

Many herds that should have been investigated on account of the almost absolutely known conditions, were not:

Many owners asked for an investigation on account of suspicious circumstances, and were not encouraged. Many were asked to do the work at their own expense, when they were justified under the law in asking the state to do it.

In every way in which they could, the Commissioners have tried to curtail the work and they have been criticized severely for not doing many things which under the law might reasonably have been expected of them.

Owners have insisted on having their herds tested and the Commissioners have been obliged to pay the expense on diseased herds and destroy the cattle. If the reasonable demands of owners of cattle had been complied with during the two years there would have been $50,000.00 more deficiency, to say the least. A tuberculous cow, under the law, must be bought by the Commissioners, whether they want to or not; whether there is a deficiency or not. The only question for the Commissioners to settle, is how cheap they can buy her and how much they can get out of the carcass as salvage.

During the two years, they have recovered $2,687.66 from the sale of hides, something not before accomplished, and something for which there is no warrant in law. It has been turned over to the State Treasurer.

It has been shown in another part of the report, how a salvage of $14.00 per head is recovered from the cattle destroyed in Massachusetts that go from Maine, and the same thing can be brought about here, under a meat inspection law, and the general conditions regarding a meat supply vastly improved, for which there is a crying necessity.

There have been many instances where reliable butchers have turned over to the Commissioners, cattle found to be diseased with tuberculosis and that part of the business has grown very fast and should be encouraged, and that class of men supported in their efforts to produce clean and healthy meat food products.

Unfit meat food products cannot be differentiated with any degree of certainty after slaughter, from the healthy product, and it pays vastly greater profits to the dishonest dealer, besides putting up an unfair competition against the healthy product. In these days of high priced meat products, the consumer is looking for a saving in his meat bill and the sale of the unfit product is stimulated by the high prices.

Unfit meat food products should not be allowed to be sold at any price.

The cow population of the state has been reduced during the last few years on account of the short hay crops. Dairymen have been weeding out the unprofitable ones, and while our numbers are less, the quality was never better and we might add, never higher, in price.

The high prices for dairy products make a good young cow worth from $40.00 to $85.00 and even higher.

You will notice by the report that the average payment for the condemned cattle is $33.41, while the limit for appraisal is $50.00, and in practice every owner is inclined to think that he should be entitled to a full appraisal.

Much time has been spent by the Commissioners in person making appraisals and the cold figures will speak for themselves, whether they have succeeded in keeping down the price and still leaving the owner in a satisfied condition of mind.

To the owner, also, much credit should be given for the reasonable manner in which he has met the situation, for financially he has been a severe loser. The cost has not been entirely on the state. It has been a hard situation for everybody; but we believe that the results justify the expenditures.

No state in the Union is freer from the disease, tuberculosis, and no state, save one, kills every tuberculous cow it finds as does Maine.

They isolate and brand the cattle, sterilize the product and seek by various means to get along without destroying. We believe that it is a wrong method and that the percentage of disease increases daily under such a system.

The dairyman is entitled to the protection of the state, to assist him in combatting a disease which he cannot combat alone.

The consumer is entitled to the protection of the state in assisting him in securing the product of the healthy cow.

The wealth and welfare of the state is increased thereby.

A list of the deficiency is annexed to this report, the owners, place of residence, number of cattle, the appraisal and the amounts for disinfection of barns and premises, etc. Also all orders issued during the two years, together with the laws under which the Commission works.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

NOTICE OF QUARANTINE.

Rule 1. The Cattle Commissioners of the State of Maine, having found from recent experience that it has become absolutely necessary to supplement our former notice of quarantine issued January 1, 1892, so that it shall include not only Massachusetts but all other states, order that no cattle for dairy or breeding purposes shall be brought into this State either by road, water, railroad or other conveyance until further notice; and all such cattle entering our State, without a permit signed by some member of our Board, will be subject to quarantine at the owner's expense, and the attention of all persons is directed to chapters 177 and 194 of the Public Laws of Maine of 1889 and 1893 respectively, which will hereafter be rigidly enforced.

Rule 2. Each and every animal brought into this State of Maine for any other purpose than those stated in Rule 1 shall be subject to the same restrictions, except Western cattle for slaughtering purposes. And all owners of such animals shall secure a written permit for transporting such animals into the State, which permit shall be signed by one or more members of the State Board of Cattle Commissioners, now existing.

QUARANTINE STATION.

Rule 3. There will be three quarantine stations provided, one at Saco, near the Eastern Division Railroad Station, the other at Brunswick, on the line of the Maine Central Railroad, also one at Westbrook Junction.

Rule 4. The style of permit shall in each instance be as follows:
No.....

STATE OF MAINE.

BOARD OF CATTLE COMMISSIONERS.

F. O. Beal, Bangor, President.

John M. Deering, Saco, Secretary.

.....1889.

Permission is hereby granted Mr. .... of.....
to bring into the State of Maine from ....., ..... head of neat stock. This permit is valid on any transportation company, railroad or steamship, if used within thirty days from its date.

(Signed)

Rule 5. In case any animal is found diseased, and is therefore condemned and killed by the Cattle Commissioners, the owner of such animal at the time of its killing shall give a release to the Board of Cattle Commissioners, and shall declare in the said release his acceptance of the appraisal. Said release shall read as follows:

STATE OF MAINE.

BOARD OF CATTLE COMMISSIONERS.

F. O. Beal, Bangor, President.

CONDEMNED LIVE STOCK RELEASE.

I hereby release the Board of Cattle Commissioners from all liability or action on account of killing.....owned by me, found diseased by ....., under the provisions of chapter 19 of the Public Laws of 1889, as amended by chapter 19 of the Public Laws of 1893. I also hereby agree to accept the appraisal of ..... in full compensation for said condemned animal.

Rule 6. If any person owning animals suspected of being diseased makes lawful application to the Cattle Commissioners for an examination of such animals, and the symptoms of the suspected animal are not sufficiently developed to warrant the destruction of the animal, the Commissioner or his agent making the examination may make an agreement with the owner to the effect that if said animal reacts under the tuberculin test, the State shall pay for such testing, otherwise the owner shall pay the expenses incurred.

Rule 7. Upon application of the boards of health, municipal officers or citizens and taxpayers of the several cities and towns within the State, the Commissioners stand ready to promptly investigate and examine such cases as are reported to them. The Commissioners are to be regarded as the examiners or judges of suspected animals, and consider it the duty of the board of health, and any others who may be interested of affected by diseased animals, to notify them of any and all cases which may be dangerous to the health of the community.

Rule 8. There shall be a meeting of the Board of Cattle Commissioners on the first Wednesday of January, April, July and October respectively, for the purpose of auditing bills incurred in the preceding three months, and all such bills shall then be paid, provided there are sufficient funds in the State treasury therefor.

Rules adopted by the Maine Cattle Commissioners June 27, 1899.

Remarks,

The new law for the eradication of contagious diseases among cattle which goes into effect, July 3, 1909, will materially change the rules and regulations of the Cattle Commission, regarding the same.

By the old law, diseased cattle were appraised upon the basis of health and the owner received one half of the appraisal, while under the new law, diseased cattle will be appraised upon the basis of the market value on the day of appraisal, the owner receiving the full amount of the appraisal, not to exceed $50.00.

Anyone desirous of having their cattle tested will apply to one of the Cattle Commissioners, who will send the applicant a blank application to fill out, which if properly filled out, will show to the Commissioner whether the cattle have been exposed to any contagious disease which will warrant the Commissioner in spending any of the State money to stay the spread of such diseases.

If the Commissioner decides, that there is not sufficient reason to have the cattle tested at the expense of the State, he may if the owner desires, cause them to be tested and if no disease is found the owner must pay for the testing, not to exceed $10.00. If any disease is found the State will pay the entire bill. The same rule will apply to cattle tested by order of Boards of Health.

The law now requires all owners of cattle kept for breeding or dairy purposes, intended for exhibition at the State Fairs, to have a certificate of Health from the State of Maine Cattle Commission dated within one year of the opening date of such Fair.

CHAPTER 19.

An Act to Extripate Contagious Diseases Among Cattle.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in Legislature assembled, as follows:

Sect. 1. That for the purpose of facilitating and encouraging the live stock interests of the State of Maine, and for extripating all insidious, infectious and contagious diseases, now or that may be among cattle and other live stock, and especially tuberculosis, the governor of the State is hereby authorized and required, immediately after the passage of this act, to appoint a board of cattle commissioners consisting of three persons of known executive ability, who shall be charged with the execution of the provisions of this act, and who shall be known and designated as the State of Maine Cattle Commission and whose powers and duties shall be those provided for in this act, and whose tenure of office shall be at the option of the governor. The compensation of said commissioners shall be at the rate of three dollars per day during the time they are actually engaged in the discharge of their duties as commissioners. The said commissioners shall respectively take an oath to faithfully perform the duties of their office, and shall immediately organize as such commission by the election of one of their number as president thereof, and proceed forthwith to the discharge of the duties devolved upon them by the provisions of this act.

Sect. 2. That it shall be the duties of the said commissioners to cause investigations to be made as to the existence of tuberculosis, pleuro-pneumonia, foot and mouth disease, and any other infectious or contagious diseases. And such commissioners or their duly constituted agent are hereby authorized to enter any premises or places, including stock yards, cars and vessels within any county or part of the State in or at which they have reason to believe there exists any such diseases, and to make search, investigation and inquiry in regard to the existence thereof. Upon the discovery of the existence of any of the said diseases, the said commissioners are hereby authorized to give notice, by publication, of the existence of such disease, and the locality thereof, in such newspapers as they may select, and to notify in writing the officials or agents of any railroad, steamboat or other transportation company, doing business in or through such infected locality, of the existence of such disease; and are hereby authorized and required to establish and maintain such quarantine of animals, places, premises or localities as they may deem necessary to prevent the spread of any such disease, and also to cause the appraisal of the animal or animals affected with the said disease, in accordance with such rules and regulations by them as hereinafter authorized and provided, and also to cause the same to be destroyed, and to pay the owner or owners thereof one-half of their value, as determined upon the basis of health before infection, out of any moneys appropriated by the legislature for that purpose; provided, however, that no appraised value shall be more than two hundred dollars for an animal with pedigree recorded or recordable in the recognized herd-books of the breed in which the animal destroyed may belong, nor more than one hundred dollars for an animal which has no recordable pedigree; provided, further, that in no case shall compensation be allowed for an animal destroyed under the provisions of this act, which may have contracted or been exposed to such disease in a foreign country, or on the high seas, or that may have been brought into the State within one year previous to such animals showing evidence of such disease; nor shall compensation be allowed to any owner who, in person or by agent, knowingly or wilfully conceals the existence of such disease, or the fact of exposure thereto in animals of which the person making such concealment, by himself or agent, is in whole or part owner.

Sect. 3. That the said commissioners are hereby authorized and required to make record, and publish rules and regulations providing for and regulating the agencies, methods and manners of conducting, and the investigations aforesaid, regarding the existence of said contagious diseases; for ascertaining, entering and searching places where such diseased animals are supposed to exist; for ascertaining what animals are so diseased, or have been exposed to contagious diseases; for making, reporting and recording descriptions of the said animals so diseased or exposed and destroyed, and for appraising the same, and for making payment therefor; and to make all other needful rules and regulations which may, in the judgment of the commissioners, be deemed requisite to the full and due execution of the provisions of this act. All such rules and regulations, before they shall become operative, shall be approved by the governor of Maine and thereafter published in such manner as may be provided for in such regulations and after such publication said rules and regulations shall have the force and effect of law, so far as the same are not inconsistent with this act and other laws of the State, or United States.

Sect. 4. That any person or persons who shall knowingly and wilfully refuse permission to said commissioners, or either of them, or their duly constituted agent to make, or who knowingly and wilfully obstructs said commissioners, or either of them, or their duly constituted agent in making all necessary examinations of, and as to animals supposed by said commissioners to be diseased as aforesaid, or in destroying the same, or who knowingly attempts to prevent such commissioners, or either of them, or their duly constituted agent from entering upon the premises and other places hereinbefore specified where any of said diseases are by said commissioners supposed to exist, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, or of either of the acts in this section prohibited, shall be punished by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment, not exceeding ninety days, or both fine and imprisonment, at the discretion of the court.

Sect. 5. That any person who is the owner of, or who is possessed of any interest in any animals affected with any of the diseases named in section two of this act, or any person who is agent, common carrier, consignee, or otherwise is charged with any duty in regard to any animal so diseased, or exposed to the contagion of such disease, or any officer or agent charged with any duties under the provisions of this act, who shall knowingly conceal the existence of such contagious disease, or the fact of such exposure to said contagion, and who shall knowingly and wilfully fail, within a reasonable time, to report to the said commissioners their knowledge or their information in regard to the existence and location of said disease, or of such exposure thereto, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punishable as provided in section four of this act.

Sect. 6. That when the owner of animals, decided under the provisions of this act, by the proper authority, to be diseased, or to have been exposed to contagion, refuses to accept the sum authorized to be paid under the appraisal provided for in this act, it shall be the duty of the commissioners to declare and maintain a rigid quarantine as to the animals decided, as aforesaid, to be diseased or to have been exposed to any contagious or infectious disease, and of the premises or places where said cattle may be found, according to the rules and regulations to be prescribed by said commissioners, approved by the governor, and published as provided in the third section of this act.

Sect. 7. That no person or persons owning or operating any railroad, nor the owner or owners, or masters, of any steam, sailing, or other vessels, within the State, shall receive for transportation, or transport from one part of the State to another part of the State or to bring from any other state or foreign country any animals affected with any of the diseases named in section two of this act, or that have been exposed to such diseases, especially the disease known as tuberculosis, knowing such animals to be affected, or to have been so exposed nor shall any person or persons, company or corporation, deliver for such transportation to any railroad company, or to the master or owner of any vessel, any animals, knowing them to be affected with, or to have been exposed to, any of said diseases; nor shall any person or persons, company or corporation, drive on foot, or transport in private conveyance from one part of the state to another part of the state, any animal, knowing the same to be affected with, or to have been exposed to, any of said diseases. Any person or persons violating the provisions of this section, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by fine not exceeding the sum of two hundred dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding six months, or by both fine and imprisonment.

Sect. 8. That it shall be the duty of the several county attorneys to prosecute all violations of this act, which shall be brought to their notice or knowledge by any person making the complaint under oath; and the same shall be heard in any supreme judicial court having jurisdiction in the county in which the violation of this act has been committed.

Sect. 9. That the said commissioners are hereby authorized to appoint or elect one of their number as secretary of said board, who shall receive a reasonable compensation for his services during the time in which, under the provisions of this act, the services of the said commissioners shall be required. The said commissioners shall make and preserve a full record of all rules and regulations promulgated under the provisions of this act, of all payments and expenses hereunder incurred, and all other transactions performed by said commissioners in the discharge of their duties as herein provided; and the said commissioners shall, on or before the first Wednesday in January of each year, during their continuance in service, and at other times as they may deem conducive to the public interests, or as they may be required so to by the governor of State, report to said governor full and accurate accounts of their expenditures, and other proceedings under the provisions of this act, and of the condition of said diseases, if any, in the State, to be communicated by him to the legislature. Whenever the functions of said commission shall be suspended or terminated, it shall turn over to the secretary of state, all its books, papers, records, and other effects, taking his receipt therefor, and he shall remain the custodian of the same until such time as the functions of said commission may be restored.

Sect. 10. That the commissioners shall have power, and are hereby authorized to employ skilled veterinarians, and such other agents and employes as they may deem necessary to carry into effect the provisions of this act, and to fix the compensation of the person or persons so employed, and to terminate such employment at their discretion; and they are authorized out of the moneys by this act appropriated, to make such expenditures as may be needed for the actual and necessary traveling expenses of themselves and their said employes, stationery, expense of disinfecting premises, cars and other places, destroying diseased and exposed animals, and paying for the same, and such other expenses and expenditures as they may find to be annually necessary to properly carry into effect the provisions of this act.

Sect. 11. That the moneys appropriated by this act shall be paid over to the secretary of said commission, from time to time, as the same may be found to be needed, upon requisition made by the said commissioners, and shall be disbursed by the said secretary of said commission only upon vouchers approved by said commissioners or a majority of them. The said secretary shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, take an oath to faithfully discharge the duties thereof, and shall enter into a bond to the State of Maine, with sureties to be approved by the treasurer of State, in such sum as he may designate, for the faithful accounting of all moneys received by the said secretary of the commission, under the provisions of this act.

Sect. 12. That for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this act, the sum of five thousand dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Sect. 13. That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent or in conflict with the provisions of this act, be, and the same are hereby repealed.

Approved February 14, 1889.

CHAPTER 19.

An Act to Amend an act entitled "An Act to extirpate Contagious Diseases Among Cattle."

Sect. 1. Section one of chapter one hundred and seventy-seven of public laws of eighteen hundred and eighty-nine, is hereby amended by striking out the words, "and other live stock" in the fourth line, and inserting instead the words 'horses and sheep,' so that said section as amended, shall read as follows:

'Sect. 1. That for the purpose of facilitating and encouraging the live stock interests of Maine, and for extirpating all insidious, infectious and contagious diseases, now or that may be among cattle, horses and sheep, and especially tuberculosis, the governor of the State is hereby authorized and required, immediately after the passage of this act, to appoint a board of cattle commissioners consisting of three persons of known executive ability, who shall be charged with the execution of the provisions of this act, and who shall be known and designated as the State of Maine Cattle Commission, and whose powers and duties shall be those provided for in this act, and whose tenure of office shall be at the option of the governor. The compensation of said commissioners shall be at the rate of three dollars per day during the time they are actually engaged in the discharge of their duties as commissioners. The said commissioners shall respectively take an oath to faithfully perform the duties of their office, and shall immediately organize as such commission by the election of one of their number as president thereof, and proceed forthwith to the discharge of the duties devolved upon them by the provisions of this act.'

Sect. 2. Section two of said act is hereby amended by striking out the word "two" in the twenty-ninth line and inserting instead thereof the word 'one'; and by striking out the words "one hundred" in the thirtieth and thirty-first lines and inserting instead thereof the word 'fifty'; also by striking out the word "one" in the thirty-sixth line, and inserting instead thereof the word 'three'; also by inserting after the word "disease" in the thirty-seventh line the words 'and the owner or owners shall furnish satisfactory evidence as to the time such animal or animals shall have been owned in the State,' so that said section two as amended, shall read as follows:

'Sect. 2. That it shall be the duties of the said commissioners to cause investigation to be made as to the existence of tuberculosis, pleuro-pneumonia, foot and mouth disease, and any other infectious or contagious diseases. And such commissioners or their duly constituted agent, are hereby authorized to enter any premises or places, including stock yards, cars and vessels within any county or part of the State in or at which they have reason to believe there exists any such diseases, and to make search, investigation and inquiry in regard to the existence thereof. Upon the discovery of the existence of any of the said diseases, the said commissioners are hereby authorized to give notice, by publication, of the existence of such disease, and the locality thereof, in such newspapers as they may select, and to notify in writing the officials or agents of any railroad, steamboat or other transportation company, doing business in or through such infected locality, of the existence of such disease; and are hereby authorized and required to establish and maintain such quarantine of animals, places, premises or localities as they may deem necessary to prevent the spread of any such disease, and also to cause the appraisal of the animal or animals affected with the said disease, in accordance with such rules and regulations by them as hereinafter authorized and provided, and also to cause the same to be destroyed, and to pay the owner or owners thereof one-half of their value, as determined upon the basis of health before infection, out of any moneys appropriated by the legislature for that purpose; provided, however, that no appraised value shall be more than one hundred dollars for an animal with pedigree recorded or recordable in the recognized herd-books of the breed in which the animal destroyed may belong, nor more than fifty dollars for an animal which has no recordable pedigree; provided, further, that in no case shall compensation be allowed for an animal destroyed under the provisions of this act, which may have contracted or been exposed to such disease in a foreign country, or on the high seas, or that may have been brought into this State within three years previous to such animals showing evidence of such disease, and the owner or owners shall furnish satisfactory evidence as to the time such animal or animals shall have been owned in the State; nor shall compensation be allowed to any owner who in person, or by agent, knowingly and wilfully conceals the existence of such disease, or the fact of exposure thereto in animals of which the person making such concealment, by himself or agent, is in whole or part owner.'

STATE OF MAINE.

IN THE YEAR OF OUR LORD ONE THOUSAND NINE HUNDRED AND FIVE.

An Act in addition to chapter nineteen of the Revised Statutes, relating to contagious diseases among cattle.

Section 3. Any person bringing pure blooded cattle into this State for breeding purposes shall report to the commissioners the name and residence of seller, number purchased, age and sex upon blanks furnished by the commissioners upon application. Such cattle shall remain upon the purchaser's premises thirty days from the date of arrival and within that time be tested by order of the commissioners. But nothing herein contained shall be construed as requiring the testing of calves under four months old.

Chapter 121 of the Public Laws of 1909.

That such sum as may be deemed necessary by the Cattle Commissioners shall be used from their appropriation for the purpose of vaccination of cattle against tuberculosis, under such rules and regulations as may be made for the control of such work.

Chapter 133 of the Public Laws of 1909.

Section 1. All so called pure blood or registered cattle and all grade cattle used for breeding or dairying purposes that are to be shown in competition for prizes at state agricultural shows in the state, shall be tested with tuberculin, within twelve months of the opening date of the exhibition where they are to be shown. Such test shall be made under the direction of the state of Maine Cattle Commission, who shall furnish a certificate of test, to the owner or owners of such animals. State agricultural associations who receive any aid from the state, shall demand a certificate of test, duly authorized by the state of Maine Cattle Commission, from owners, of cattle that are to compete for prizes, in accordance with the above, under penalty of forfeiture of such aid. Calves under four months old excepted.

Section 2. When the owner or owners of grade cattle shall make application to the state of Maine Cattle Commission, to have their cattle tested with tuberculin, the said commissioners shall cause such test to be applied, when in their judgment necessary, and the same shall be paid for out of the funds appropriated for the use of the state of Maine Cattle Commission.

Provided, however, that no tests of grade cattle shall be made at the expense of the state of Maine at periods of less time than twelve months.

The said commissioners shall make all needful rules, and regulations as to the manner in which application shall be made to them, the manner in which the test shall be applied and shall not be held responsible for any private test made.

Section 3. All grade cattle condemned by the State of Maine Cattle Commission and slaughtered under their orders shall be appraised at a fair cash value at time condemned, not to exceed fifty dollars, and there shall be left or deposited with the owner of the cattle so condemned a proper certificate duly authenticated, showing the number of cattle condemned and the value at which they were appraised, and shall be paid for at the appraised value out of the funds appropriated for the use of said commissioners.

Section 4. Whenever it has been determined that an animal is diseased with tuberculosis and when it shall have been condemned and slaughtered under the direction of the cattle commissioners, then the said commissioners shall thoroughly and effectively disinfect the stable where such animal has been kept or cause the same to be done by a competent agent in the employ of said commissioners, and the expense incurred on account of such disinfection shall be paid for out of the appropriation allowed for the use of the cattle commissioners.

Section 5. Whenever a person shall ship cattle subject to the tuberculin test, to the quarantine station at Brighton, Massachusetts, and any such cattle respond to such test and the inspector for the Cattle Bureau of Massachusetts shall find, upon post mortem examination that such cattle were diseased with tuberculosis, and will so state in writing within twenty days from shipment from the state, to the Maine board of cattle commissioners, and shall also give in writing the description of such animal and the name of the owner or shipper, the place from which the same was shipped and the fair cash value at time condemned of such animal, not to exceed fifty dollars, and shall also comply with any other regulation that the Maine board of cattle commissioners may require; the shipper shall be entitled to receive a fair market valuation, not to exceed fifty dollars, for said animal; but in no case shall he be paid for any animal condemned under the provisions of this section until he has filed with the cattle commissioners a claim stating the name of the shipper, his post office address, place and date of shipment, price paid for said animal, name of person from whom said animal was purchased and such other information as the Maine board of cattle commissioners may require, and such claim shall be accompanied in every instance with a sale ticket for such part of the animal as may be sold, and the amount received from such sale shall be deducted from the appraised value due the owner of the condemned animal.

Section 6. That for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this act, the sum of fifty thousand dollars for 1909 and a like amount for 1910 or as much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any moneys in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.
