By a provision in the General Property Taxation Laws the Board of State Assessors constitute a board of equalization, whose duty it is to equalize the state and county taxes among the several cities, towns and unorganized townships in the state. They exercise general supervision over the administration of the assessment and taxation laws of the state, and over local assessors in the performance of their duties. One or more members of the Board are required to visit officially every county in the state at least once each year, and to confer with and give instruction to all local assessors as to their duties, to the end that all property shall be assessed at its just value, in compliance with the laws of the state.

The assessors of each town are required to make a return or report to this department annually, on or before August first, this return to be made on blanks furnished by the department, and containing information necessary to enable the Board to equitably distribute the state and county taxes among the several cities and towns. It is especially important that this requirement be promptly and fully complied with. The biennial report of this department, compiled in part from these returns, must be ready for distribution upon the convening of the legislature. This report cannot be completely compiled until all of the cities, towns and organized plantations have made their return. In this connection, we are asking the cooperation of all assessors. These returns must be received on or before August first to enable this department to comply with the law relative to the completion and distribution of our report.

The Board of State Assessors must equalize and adjust the assessment list of each town by adding to or deducting from it such an amount as will make it equal to its value. They must, at their own instance, or on complaint, investigate all cases of concealment or undervaluation of property.

If justice requires, they may within one year from the date of assessment abate any state, county or forestry district tax.

They must examine the method of taxation of other states and also make careful and constant inquiry into the practical operation and effect of the laws of this state.

They are required to assess the tax on corporate franchises, and an excise tax on Steam and Electric Railroad Companies, Telegraph and Telephone Companies, Express Companies, Insurance Companies, Savings Banks, Loan and Building Associations, Foreign Banking Associations and Corporations, Trust and Banking Companies, also to place a value upon and assess a tax of fifteen mills upon the stock of Trust Companies and National Banks.

They are also required to locate and place a value on and assess a tax upon personal property in unorganized townships, and biennially, under the general property tax law, they must place a value and assess the state tax upon all the property in the state, both real and personal, not exempt by law from taxation.

Taxation is the means employed by a state or locality to obtain the revenue with which to conduct its necessary operations. Absolute equality in the distribution of the tax burden is a dream which will never be fully realized. Theoretically, every property owner contributes in proportion to the amount of property he owns, assessed on a full value basis. The value of property for taxation purposes, under the law as administered in Maine, is but the opinion of individuals, presumably arrived at after a careful investigation of all conditions which affect property values. Taxation, as administered under the general property tax law, is subjected to considerable criticism and comment, largely due to increased valuations and rates which are made necessary by increased state, county and local appropriations. Other states have enacted taxation laws, which in the making, promised glowing and satisfactory results, but in practice and enforcement have proven sadly disappointing. The general property tax has been characterized as old fashioned and away behind the times and out of date. There never has been a taxation law enacted that has proven entirely satisfactory, and there probably never will be until the affairs of government in making appropriations and expending money are administered on a basis of rigid economy, and demanding a dollar's worth of service or material for every dollar appropriated, collected and expended. Many people in Maine are seriously talking about and proposing a reduction in taxes. In doing this, we are advocating something that can only be done in two ways: First, by abandoning some of the things we are now doing; and Second, by carrying on our activities for less money.

We commend the wise business judgment of the taxpayers in a Cumberland County town who met for the purpose of discussing the articles in the warrant to be acted on at the annual town-meeting. From the reports coming from this meeting, it seems evident that extravagant and unnecessary appropriations were cut out, and that only those appropriations necessary to keep the machinery running smoothly, economically and efficiently were allowed. It is our opinion that this can only be done when the taxpayers are vitalized by a fine abiding sense of individual responsibility and are willing to practice that self denial in the administration of public affairs that so many of us have had to practice in our lives and business as individuals.

Keeping within our ability to pay, it should be the ambition of everybody to get the best possible results from money expended. With the very best business management possible, it costs a large amount of money to maintain state and local governments, to build and maintain highways, provide proper school facilities, maintain penal and charitable institutions, protect the life and property of our citizens, pave and light public streets, safeguard public health and provide ample municipal sanitation, but if in providing for these things we try to keep pace with communities or states whose ability to have and pay is far in excess of our own, we invite financial disaster. We have always known, we always shall know and are largely responsible for the amount of money demanded of us in taxes, yet we have not always been well informed and have been doubtful at times as to the wise expenditure of the money and as to the return received for payment made. The whole matter of valuation, assessment, collection and the purposes to which the sum raised shall be apportioned is of vital interest to all, and we believe that among the people as a whole there is a widespread sentiment for a readjustment of ideas relative to appropriating money and expending the same. We are beginning to realize that if we teach music, cooking and agriculture in the schools, if we build expensive school buildings, if we build and maintain expensive roads and bridges, the bills come back to us in taxes and must be paid, and by experience dearly bought we are learning that the only practical and workable readjustment in the administration of public affairs and the expenditure of public money must be based upon our ability to pay the bills after they are contracted, and the taxpayer certainly has every right to insist that every public official and every employee shall render a dollar's worth of service for every dollar received. And let us all of the time keep steadily in mind the fact that every state in the Union is confronted by the same perplexing problems that we in Maine are trying to solve, and also the fact that the sturdy type of New England manhood and womanhood in Maine will bring these problems through to a successful solution that will best serve the interests of all our people.

"In the administration of the general property tax system, the most vulnerable feature is the local assessor. In fact, the assessor is the most important cog in the whole system of taxation. To him is entrusted the apportionment of the tax burden so that equality will result. The assessor must be familiar with values, not only of real estate, but of all species and kinds of personal property. He must be a man of good judgment and endowed with a sufficient amount of moral courage to be fair and he must be active and diligent in locating and placing property on the tax rolls. Unless he possesses these qualifications, a gross injustice results and generally those who escape their just burden are those who can best afford to assume it. The duties of the office are disagreeable and difficult and the compensation is inadequate. With a few exceptions the same compensations prevail which were considered a fair remuneration thirty years ago. Yet what other lines of industry maintain a salary list which compares in any detail with that of thirty years ago? It is true that there are many competent men who find the work congenial and are willing to work for the salary offered but by the time they have familiarized themselves with the work, they are obliged to seek re-election. The result is that the administration of our taxing system is weakest at the point where it should be the strongest." Uncertainty of the tenure of office and inadequate compensation are largely responsible for this condition of affairs.

It is our opinion that no one can question the equity and justice of the general property tax system when it is properly enforced. When it is enforced in accordance with the constitutional provision, each taxpayer bears no more and no less than his share of the public burden. It is probably true that no system of taxation ever has or ever will be worked out which will be absolutely fair and with which everybody will be satisfied. Perfect equality in valuation of property is the goal toward which we are constantly looking and striving. It is also a dream which we never expect to see fully realized. It has been our aim to get in as close touch as possible with taxation officials, not only to give instruction and advice relative to the law and its enforcement, but also to get all possible information and data in each taxation jurisdiction.

The equalization of property values for the purpose of taxation is the great problem that assessors are called upon to solve, and realizing that a correct solution can be more quickly and safely arrived at by harmonious cooperation with local assessors, and also realizing that valuation reform is largely an educational problem, our Board has devoted its time in trying to obtain accurate information relative to different kinds of property in all the taxation jurisdictions in the state, and in conferring with local assessors as to assessed and actual value of different classes of property, both real and personal. We have collected a large amount of information that directly affects the valuation of property and this information so far as possible has been turned over to local assessors, and has been used by us in equalizing values between cities and towns.

In our opinion any percentage basis of assessment is contrary to law and offers no advantage to the taxpayer. It fosters inequalities because under it all sense of comparison is lost. When valuations are figured on full valuation basis, the figures means just what they represent and comparisons and corrections can readily and easily be made.

The only safe and just system of assessing property is on the full valuation basis, and all assessors should approach this task unbiased by friendship, enmity or politics. Experience tells us that the only way to solve the taxation problem right is on this basis. In no other way permitted by law can every taxpayer know that he is having a square deal without favor or prejudice. Taxation officials should obey the law and respect the oath taken by them, and in so doing they actually act for the best interest of the people they serve, and in our opinion a great majority of our taxpayers will appreciate their work and will vindicate their judgment. In our judgment the present system of electing assessors for short terms is wrong. For the interest of all concerned they should be elected for longer terms, and they should be adequately paid for service rendered. The importance of the position of the office is not generally appreciated. When the office is raised to the dignity which the importance of its work demands and with adequate pay, the assessor will command the respect of the community, and will become more efficient and business-like, which in our opinion, will more than compensate for the expense involved.
