REPORT

STATE TRUST FUNDS

By Governor WM. TUDOR GARDINER

AUGUSTA, MAINE

TRUST FUNDS OF THE STATE OF MAINE

Shortly after taking office in 1929 I requested the State Auditor, Mr. Elbert D. Hayford, to make a report on the State Trust Funds. This was printed as Senate Document No. 149 of that year. The report reviewed briefly the history of various trust funds and indicated that there was a discrepancy of over $900,000 in the amount with which the State was charged as Trustee for various purposes and the amount of securities and investments held to represent these funds. As Mr. Hayford stated in that report, "The state and many of its cities and towns had fallen into the unbusinesslike method of expending their trust funds and then raising by general taxation the annual interest on same to meet the conditions of the trust."

In 1923 at the suggestion of Governor Baxter Mr. Hayford drafted a law which would require all such trust funds to be covered by actual investments. Objection arose from some municipalities which had depleted their trust funds and the bill failed of passage. The act was rewritten, however, with terms applicable only to future trust funds coming into the hands of the State or municipalities. This became Chapter 222 of the Public Laws of 1923. By the end of 1928, 38% of the State's trust funds were actually invested.

Mr. Hayford's report traces the origin of some of these funds back to colonial days.

I transmitted Mr. Hayford's report commending for the consideration of the Legislature the question of such a policy as would permit the gradual restoration of the trust funds. Under the provisions of the state inheritance tax and the participation of the State in the federal inheritance tax occasionally we receive some very large receipts in the course of a given year. It is never safe to rely on these amounts until the tax is actually due and payable. The conservative practice has been followed of budgeting only the amount that may be reasonably expected in any given year. Whenever the excess amounts to a good deal over the budget figures the surplus revenue of the State is greatly augmented. This seemed a proper source from which restoration might be made and the Legislature accepted my suggestion in passing Chapter 189 of the Laws of 1929, providing that when in any year inheritance tax receipts exceeded $1,000,000 the excess should be applied to the restoration of the trust funds.

In 1930 a small restoration was made under the terms of this Act and in 1931 sufficient funds were received so that complete restoration was subsequently accomplished, the total amount of cash returned to the funds under the Act being $1,017,540.75.

In order that the greatest care might be exercised in restoring these funds the Attorney General's Department was asked to prepare a report on the matter. Attorney General, Clement F. Robinson, engaged Mr. Frank I. Cowan of Portland who made a most painstaking study of the matter and rendered a report September 11, 1931, with a supplemental report dated August 4, 1932, both of which are on file in the Treasurer's office, and in the Attorney General's office, where they may be consulted for reference.

In the course of Mr. Cowan's examination he found some difficulty in locating deeds of property for the State and the suggestion was made that all deeds should be deposited in some one office. The policy was later inaugurated of classifying and filing all state deeds in the office of the Forest Commissioner.

Attention was called to the fact that farm loans had been made as investments for the Lands Reserved for Public Uses Fund and it was pointed out that this was not only a fund from which credit was being extended to farmers but was also a trust fund that was being invested. I have elsewhere advanced a recommendation that the granting of such farm loans cease. The fund is now invested and the receipt and consideration of applications for loans, in view of the very small amounts that may be available with which to grant loans, makes the operation of the Act too expensive for the benefits accomplished.

Mr. Cowan also recommended provision for a safe vault in the State House. Funds have not been available for this purpose and it is deemed advisable to keep the securities in bank vaults. The report also makes the suggestion that advantages would accrue if all the trust funds of the State could be lumped together in one fund, the particular details of each trust being taken care of as a bookkeeping matter.

The examination clarified the terms of legacies and gifts made for various special purposes at various state institutions, and is accompanied by extracts from various statutes regarding the trusts.

Subsequent to the first report when various boards of institutional trustees were abolished other trust funds that should properly have been in the custody of the State Treasurer were transferred to the State. Council Order No. 98, dated March 2, 1932 recites the policy that has been adopted with reference to the administration of funds relating to the institutions. The Order reads as follows:

“Whereas public spirited and generous citizens have from time to time given or bequeathed funds to various state institutions, which have been of great benefit in supplementing the work of the State, and it seems desirable to have a uniform method of handling such funds, it is hereby Ordered, That

1. Unless expressly directed by the donor of a fund, the income only is to be used and no expenditure shall be made from capital.

2. Wherever the donor has expressed any indication of the purposes of the gift, the income shall be spent in accordance with such suggestion.

3. In the absence of any express direction, the income of any fund may be applied for such purposes as will best promote the health, welfare, and happiness of the inmates of the institution, and shall be available for expenditure for such purposes as are ordinarily regarded as beyond the province of regular state expenditures.

4. In the case of each institution for which such funds may be held, the Treasurer of State, with the approval of the Commissioner of Finance and the Commissioner of Health and Welfare, is authorized to pay over to the superintendent of the institution concerned at convenient times the whole or any part of the income of the funds, to be expended in the discretion of the superintendent, subject to the approval of the Commissioner of Health and Welfare; the funds placed in the hands of the superintendent for this purpose to be accounted for and subject to audit.”

It would seem that the establishment of this definite policy should reassure those who may be benefactors of our institutions or our institutional inmates. It has now been definitely established that trust funds left with the State shall be preserved with integrity and the machinery has been standardized for carrying out the exact wishes of the donor.

Mr. Cowan's supplemental report recited the fact that all State Trust Funds had been restored and that the income was being used in accordance with the expressed wishes of the donors so far as they could be ascertained.

A statement is appended of the various trust funds with their investments and their amounts as of the beginning of the current fiscal year.

I believe the state may well take pride in the fact that it has now preserved its integrity as a Trustee and that all the funds are specifically invested. It is not to be forgotten that inasmuch as these investments earn income the necessity for legislative appropriation has been reduced by the extent of the income received.

At different times different statutes have been passed fixing different rates of interest on some of the trust funds. For the most part such determinations were made when the funds were non-existent and the interest was made available only by legislative appropriation. Mr. Hayford in his report summarizes the situation as follows:

"We now pay six per cent interest to the organized plantations on their reserved lands funds but our investments in farm loans and state bonds made out of this fund earn only five per cent and four per cent, respectively. The part of the lands reserved fund known as the unorganized townships fund by the provisions of the law earn only four per cent, which interest is annually credited to the equalization fund. These varying rates of interest should not exist, in my opinion. The difference between what the investments in these funds earn and the amount the state pays is included in the tax levy. Manifestly the state should not be obligated to pay over more interest than these funds earn."

I believe that this correctly states the policy that should be followed and I think there is much merit in Mr. Cowan's suggestion that for trust management purposes the funds should be held in common unless some donor has made it clear that he desires a specific and identifiable investment for his gift, or where the State has received a gift in securities not suitable for inclusion in any merged investment. As to the merged funds, each of them would have instead of a specific investment an equitable participation, each one pro rata as its principal would stand to the total of the principals of the funds, in the general investments. The income of the general investments could be held in a single account until appropriate times when the funds would be credited with income at a set rate which might be determined conservatively at a figure somewhat below the actual rate earned, any balance being carried to a reserve account to provide for lean years, the funds retaining their pro rata interest in the reserve. Profits and losses on general investments sold might be carried to another reserve account in which the funds would have the same pro rata interest or liability as the case might be. The individual funds, particularly the smaller ones would undoubtedly profit by such a practice, having the advantages of diversification of investment. The advantages of investment administration would also be a factor of real importance. Such an investment policy has been followed with notable success by Harvard College in the administration of its trust funds. It would seem that the same policy might be applied with equal advantages in the case of these public funds.

I have been frequently asked if there should not be apprehension that in succeeding years some administration might not openly or covertly encroach upon the trust funds so that the money would again become dissipated. I feel quite certain that there is no danger of this. Present day provisions for auditing and modern standards of administrative responsibility will take care of the matter. Any attempt to withdraw any of the trust funds would be very shortly discovered and publicity in public matters is an ever-present safeguard.

I am confident that the trust funds will remain intact and I hope that the possibility still remains that generous citizens may from time to time, by gift or by will, add to the funds for the benefit of the State or its unfortunate citizens. It has been a pleasure to have a part in this notable step for the restoration of these funds of the State.
