Introduction

Anyone can lobby the Maine state legislature; it is a fundamental part of our democratic system. State law additionally recognizes the right of individuals or groups to hire persons familiar with the legislative process and all its intricacies, to advance a particular issue or agenda.

But the State believes, and I concur, that government reflects the will of the people only if information on lobbyist activities is as open and accessible as possible. The paid lobbyists have the advantage in information and resources; but if knowledge about what they do is publicly available, anyone can move to support or counter them.

My office, by law, keeps on file yearly and monthly (in session) reports on the lobbyists, the organizations which employ them, and the clients who hire those organizations. The files are available for public inspection, and we publish several summaries such as this one, now in your hands.

I invite your suggestions as to how we can make this report more meaningful to you. In the meantime, I hope you find this compilation useful.

With best wishes,

Bill Diamond
Secretary of State
