Executive Summary

Both the United States Constitution and the Maine Constitution provide that criminal defendants have the right to counsel. For clients who are not held in custody or released on bail pending the outcome of their cases, confidential communication with their attorneys is a matter of simply picking up the phone or visiting the attorney's office. However, individuals who are held in custody pending arraignment or disposition of a criminal case or who are serving a sentence in a correctional facility rely on a series of administrative processes to ensure that their communications with their attorneys remain confidential and are not overheard. Recently, local news stories have been published detailing instances in which attorney-client calls have been overheard by corrections workers or the prosecution.

Concern over the extent of these encroachments of the attorney-client privilege prompted the 130th Maine legislature to consider LD 1946, An Act to Ensure Constitutionally Adequate Contact with Counsel. The Judiciary Committee voted in favor of an amended version of the bill, Resolve 2021, c. 182, which established the Committee to Ensure Constitutionally Adequate Contact with Counsel.

The resolve required that the membership of the committee include the following:

- 1. Two members of the Senate appointed by the President of the Senate, including members from each of the 2 parties holding the largest number of seats in the Legislature;
- 2. Three members of the House of Representatives appointed by the Speaker of the House, including members from each of the 2 parties holding the largest number of seats in the Legislature;
- 3. The Commissioner of the Department of Corrections or the commissioner's designee;
- 4. The Attorney General or the Attorney General's designee;
- 5. The Commissioner of the Department of Public Safety or the commissioner's designee;
- 6. The Executive Director of the Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services or the executive director's designee;
- 7. The president of a statewide association of sheriffs or the president's designee;
- 8. The president of a statewide association of criminal defense lawyers or the president's designee;
- 9. The president of a statewide association of prosecutors or the president's designee;

- 10. A representative of a civil rights organization whose primary mission includes the advancement of racial justice, appointed by the President of the Senate;
- 11. A representative of a civil liberties organization whose primary mission is the protection of civil liberties, appointed by the Speaker of the House;
- 12. A representative of a statewide prisoners' rights organization, appointed by the President of the Senate; and
- 13. A representative of a statewide organization whose mission includes advocating for victims and survivors of domestic violence, appointed by the Speaker of the House

A list of members and the position they were appointed to fill is included as Appendix B.

The duties of the committee were established by the resolve as follows:

- 1. Review the federal and state constitutional and statutory requirements concerning adequate communications with counsel for those involved in the criminal justice system;
- 2. Review recent policies and practices that have resulted in reported violations of the requirements in the State;
- 3. Review how other jurisdictions ensure confidential communications by telephone, video or electronic communication or in person between counsel and criminal defendants who are incarcerated or detained or in court facilities for court proceedings;
- 4. Review how other jurisdictions ensure opportunities for document review by incarcerated persons without interception, monitoring, copying, redaction or other action or review of documents by anyone acting on behalf of a correctional facility, a jail or the State;
- 5. Review remedies used by other jurisdictions when the constitutional and statutory requirements are not met, including, but not limited to, exclusion of evidence, disqualification to participate in prosecution, licensure discipline and expanded opportunities for post-conviction review; and
- 6. Develop recommendations to implement in this State to ensure that residents of the Maine Department of Corrections' correctional and detention facilities, persons who are incarcerated in county jails and other county correctional facilities and criminal defendants in court facilities have constitutionally adequate contact with counsel.

The resolve also directs the committee to submit to the Joint Standing Committee on Judiciary by November 2, 2022, a report that includes a summary of the activities and recommendations of the committee, including suggested legislation, for presentation to the First Regular Session of the 131st Legislature.

The committee met five times in person, with remote participation available through Zoom for committee members and persons invited to present information to the committee. Members of the public and interested parties were able to watch and listen to the meetings in person and electronically. The committee's website, maintained by the Office of Policy and Legal Analysis, includes all the meeting dates, meeting materials, and audio and video links: https://legislature.maine.gov/constitutionally-adequate-contact-with-counsel-committee.

Recommendations

The committee, after five meetings, numerous presentations, testimony and serious discussion, makes the following recommendations.<sup>1</sup>

A. Recommendations related to the establishment of consistent standards

Recommendation #1

Direct the County Corrections Professional Standards Council to convene meetings of State, county and municipal law enforcement agencies, jails, the Maine Judicial Branch, the Department of Corrections, the Maine Sheriff's Association, the Office of the Attorney General, the district attorney offices, the Maine Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers and the Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services to develop a consistent set of policies and procedures to be implemented by all law enforcement agencies, district attorney offices, jails and correctional facilities that acknowledge that attorney-client communications are absolutely confidential and that clearly describe the following:

- A. The process for protecting and ensuring confidential attorney-client communications;
- B. The policies to be followed in the event there is a breach of confidentiality; and
- C. The methods by which attorneys and clients will identify confidential channels for communication and the methods by which incarcerated persons will be provided with information regarding their right to confidential attorney-client communications.

Recommendation #2

Require that all State, county and municipal law enforcement agencies, jails, the Department of Corrections, the Office of the Attorney General and district attorney offices adopt policies and procedures, as applicable to their respective offices, that ensure the absolute confidentiality of attorney-client communications.

B. Recommendations related to training

Recommendation #3

Direct the Board of Trustees of the Maine Criminal Justice Academy to amend the curriculum of the Basic Law Enforcement training and Basic Correctional Officer training to include information related to the confidentiality of attorney-client communications and to the protection of those communications.

Recommendation #4

Any policy relating to protecting confidential communications between attorneys and clients adopted by the Office of the Attorney General's office must include training for any law enforcement officer who, as part of a criminal investigation, may inadvertently hear privileged communications. The training must clearly outline the process for protecting confidential attorney-client communications as well as the policies to be followed in the event there is a breach of confidentiality.

Recommendation #5

Amend Title 25, Section 2802 of the Maine Revised Statutes to require that the Board of Trustees of the Maine Criminal Justice Academy be increased from 18 to 19 by adding a seat that is designated for an attorney who represents defendants in criminal cases.

C. Recommendations related to registration of attorney phone numbers

Recommendation #6 (divided)

Majority recommendation: Direct the Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services or its successor agency to develop and maintain a registry of the telephone numbers and other contact information given to them by attorneys providing legal services to persons who are incarcerated. The Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services must provide the registry information to sheriffs' offices and to the Department of Corrections weekly. The sheriffs' offices and the Department of Corrections are deemed to be on notice on the Monday following transmission of the information.

Designate the attorney names, phone numbers and contact information on the registry as confidential for purposes of the public records law.

Minority recommendation: Direct the Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services to develop and maintain an additional registry of the telephone numbers and other contact information given to them by attorneys providing legal services to persons who are incarcerated. The Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services must, on a weekly basis, provide the registry information to the county jails and to the Department of Corrections.

Designate the attorney names, phone numbers and contact information on the registry as confidential for purposes of the public records law.

Recommendation #7

Direct the Department of Corrections and the jails to develop and maintain systems and processes for registering the names, telephone numbers and contact information of attorneys who provide legal services to persons who are incarcerated in order to protect the confidentiality of attorney-client communications.

Recommendation #8

Direct the Department of Corrections to adopt rules requiring correctional facilities to proactively confirm on a timely basis the registration of attorney telephone numbers and other contact information protected from monitoring for attorney-client confidentiality purposes and to provide confirmation of registration at the request of the incarcerated person or the attorney.

Recommendation #9

Direct the Department of Corrections to amend the standards for jails to require jails to proactively confirm on a timely basis the registration of attorney telephone numbers and other contact information protected from monitoring for attorney-client confidentiality purposes and to provide confirmation of registration at the request of the attorney or an incarcerated person.

D. Recommendations related to physical facilities and space

Recommendation #10 (divided)

Majority recommendation: Require that the Department of Corrections and sheriffs ensure access on a timely basis to private space in correctional facilities and jails for attorney-client meetings and for the review and exchange of case materials.

Minority recommendation: Direct the Department of Corrections and sheriffs to work to ensure access on a timely basis to private space in correctional facilities and jails for attorney-client meetings and for the review and exchange of case materials.

Recommendation #11 (divided)

Majority recommendation: Require that by 18 months after the effective date of legislation, the Department of Corrections and sheriffs ensure that incarcerated persons have private and secure space available for the storage and viewing of case materials, including audio visual materials.

Minority recommendation: Direct the County Corrections Professional Standards Committee to work with county jails to develop private and secure space for the storage and viewing of case materials, including audio visual materials for incarcerated persons. Additionally, direct the Department of Corrections to work to develop within all of their correctional facilities private and secure space for the storage and viewing of case materials, including audiovisual materials for incarcerated persons.

Recommendation #12

Direct the Maine Judicial Branch to report by January 1, 2024, to the joint standing committees having jurisdiction over criminal justice matters and judiciary matters on the availability of space in public areas of courthouses and in secure holding areas of courthouses for confidential attorney-client communications, including space for the review of written, video and audio materials related to the criminal case. The report must include an assessment of each courthouse and, to the extent that space is inadequate for confidential attorney-client communications, a plan for the development of adequate space.

E. Recommendations related to remedies and consequences of breach

Although mutually exclusive, a majority of members voted in favor of the following two recommendations for potential remedies to address improper access to confidential attorney-client communication:

Recommendation #13<sup>2</sup>

Provide by law that, if a defense counsel or a defendant or a petitioner for post-conviction review can show actual or constructive notice to the State of an attorney's telephone number or address if there is a recording or interception of a communication, then the context and contents of that communication are categorically excluded from use or mention at trial and any person who accesses, monitors, records, copies, transmits or receives any copy of that communication is categorically disqualified from participating in the related investigation or trial. If counsel cannot show actual or constructive notice to the State, then the existing structure of laws and remedies applies.

Recommendation #14

Direct the joint standing committee having jurisdiction over judiciary matters to consider amending Title 15, section 712(2) and (3), which generally provide that investigate officers, Department of Corrections employees and jail employees are not violating state laws governing the interception of wire and oral communications if they intercept communications involving a person residing in a correctional facility or jail provided certain notice requirements are met, to clarify that communications between incarcerated person and their attorneys are nevertheless confidential.

Suggested draft legislation incorporating those recommendations supported by a majority of committee members, except recommendation #14, which does not require legislative language, has been included in Appendix A.

<sup>2</sup> Recommendation #13 and Recommendation #14 are presented separately rather than as majority or minority reports because some members voted in favor of both, but with an expressed preference for Recommendation #13. See the Recommendations section for vote tallies.

II. Background

A. General Background

The Sixth Amendment to the United States Constitution reads:

In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury of the State and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, which district shall have been previously ascertained by law, and to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation; to be confronted with the witnesses against him; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the Assistance of Counsel for his defense<sup>3</sup>

The right to counsel is also enshrined in the Maine Constitution. Article 1, Section 6 reads:

Section 6. Rights of persons accused. In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall have a right to be heard by the accused and counsel to the accused, or either, at the election of the accused;

To demand the nature and cause of the accusation, and have a copy thereof;

To be confronted by the witnesses against the accused;

To have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in favor of the accused;

To have a speedy, public and impartial trial, and, except in trials by martial law or impeachment, by a jury of the vicinity. The accused shall not be compelled to furnish or give evidence against himself or herself, nor be deprived of life, liberty, property or privileges, but by judgment of that person's peers or the law of the land.<sup>4</sup>

The right of indigent individuals to have counsel provided to them is derived from the United States Constitution and case law, most famously, the United State Supreme Court case of Gideon v, Wainwright. In Maine, counsel for defendants in criminal cases is not provided through a state-run public defender's office, but rather by private defense attorneys, who agree to represent the indigent at rates established by the legislature. The Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services, established in 2009, is responsible for managing the roster of attorneys who have agreed to take on indigent criminal defense cases, as well as juvenile defendants and children and parents involved in child protective cases. <sup>6</sup>

While the right to counsel is not the focus of this study, the right to counsel itself is closely connected to the right to contact with counsel. Clients hold the privilege of private conversations with their attorneys. The right to confidential communications between attorney and client is integral to an attorney's relationship to her client and her ability to provide effective legal representation. Indeed, the rules governing the conduct of attorneys require that attorneys maintain confidentiality, except in certain very specific circumstances.<sup>8</sup>

While this study report is not focused exclusively on attorney-client phone calls that originate from correctional facilities or jails, recent journalistic reporting has focused on instances in which such calls were recorded and overheard by law enforcement officers or others in Maine.<sup>9</sup> The Maine Monitor, a news publication, reported that nearly 1,000 calls from inmates to attorneys were recorded in a number of Maine's county jails. 10

Maine does have statutory law that governs wiretapping and eavesdropping. Title 15 of Maine Revised Statutes, Section 710, subsection 1 makes intentional or knowing interception or disclosure, attempted interception, and procurement of another to intercept a wire or oral communication a crime. Law enforcement officers, other employees of the Department of Corrections authorized to exercise law enforcement powers, officers and jail investigative officers are exempt from this prohibition. 11 However, section 712, which lays out the exceptions to the general rule that wiretapping is prohibited, does contain a general disclaimer that reads, "this subsection does not authorize any interference with the attorney-client privilege." The statute does not provide further details regarding the interpretation of that language.

В. Recent Legislative History

Legislation before the 130th Maine Legislature

During the Second Regular Session of the 130th Maine Legislature, the Joint Standing Committee on Judiciary considered one bill, LD 1946, An Act to Ensure Constitutionally Adequate Contact with Counsel, sponsored by Representative Thom Harnett. A copy of LD 1946 as originally drafted can be found in Appendix D. The bill did the following:

- 1. Prohibited intercepting, recording, monitoring, disseminating or otherwise divulging any oral, written, telephone, video or electronic communication between clients and their
- 2. Required correctional facilities to maintain logs of telephone calls and communications between clients and their counsel and required periodic auditing of logs;
- 3. Required facilities to provide written notice to clients when the client's counsel contacts the facility and asks for the client to contact legal counsel;

- 4. Required correctional facilities to provide inmates with the opportunity to review documents with legal counsel;
- 5. Required periodic audits and requires the adoption of policies that are published publicly and submitted to the Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services;
- 6. Established civil penalties, a private cause of action and post-conviction review in the event of violations of the law;
- 7. Prohibited use of illegally obtained information in court and prohibited participation in court by a person who has accessed or received a document recording or information in violation of the law;
- 8. Created a new Class C crime of unauthorized eavesdropping; and
- 9. Required the Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services, the Department of Corrections and the county jails and other county correctional facilities to conduct a retrospective review of telephone calls and electronic communications between clients and their counsel.

The bill was subject to a public hearing by the Judiciary Committee on February 28, 2022, and discussed during work sessions on March 11 and March 17. At the March 17 work session, the Judiciary Committee considered amending language proposed by Rep. Harnett. The Committee voted in favor of the bill with that amendment. The amendment changed the bill from an Act to a resolve, which ultimately was passed as Resolve 2021, chapter 182, Resolve, Establishing the Committee to Ensure Constitutionally Adequate Contact with Counsel. This committee originates from that resolve.

Judiciary Committee public hearing on LD 1946

At the public hearing on LD 1946, the Judiciary Committee heard oral testimony and received written testimony in support of the bill from Representative Harnett, Meagan Sway representing the ACLU Maine, Justin Andrus representing the Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services, Tina Nadeau and Walter McKee representing the Maine Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, and Whitney Parrish representing the Permanent Commission on the Status of Racial, Indigenous and Maine Tribal Populations. District Attorney Andrew Robinson representing the Maine Prosecutors' Association and Sheriff Dale Lancaster representing the Maine Sheriffs' Association provided written testimony in opposition to the bill. Assistant Attorney General Laura Yustak representing the Criminal Law Advisory Commission and Commissioner Randall Liberty of the Department of Corrections provided written testimony neither for nor against the bill. Attorney Robert Ruffner testified neither for nor against the bill.

The following testimony, here in abbreviated form, was provided to the Judiciary Committee in support of the bill:

- Both the Maine Constitution and the United States Constitution guarantee defendants charged with crimes or facing the loss of significant liberty interests with the right to counsel.
- The right to counsel is sacrosanct, as are the communications between defendants and their attorneys, regardless of whether those defendants are incarcerated. Access to effective assistance of counsel includes the right to have confidential conversations with one's attorney without the government overhearing what is said. If incarcerated defendants are aware that their calls with their attorneys might be recorded, it will chill those discussions, making it less likely that those incarcerated persons can have the full and complete conversations with their attorneys to which they are constitutionally entitled. It is the responsibility of state government to ensure that the right to effective assistance of counsel is protected.

- According to a months-long investigation by the Maine Monitor, Maine jails have recorded some 967 calls from inmates to their attorneys at county jails in Aroostook, Androscoggin, Franklin and Kennebec County. Every one of these calls was made by an incarcerated person to an attorney's office. None of these calls implicated any form of circumventing the jail's telephone system in a way that might have reasonably rendered the calls subject to recording.
- Specifically, the bill addresses telephone, video and electronic forms of communication and person-to-person contact. The bill prohibits intercepting, recording, monitoring, disseminating or otherwise divulging any oral, written, telephone, video or electronic communication between clients and their counsel.
- The Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services is aware of a case in which a jail had recorded privileged, substantive client-attorney communications, and provided those communications to the State in a child protective action. In that case, the State distributed those calls to all the parties to that action through discovery. Counsel, and through counsel the client, became aware of the issue only through that discovery. No one caught the issue before distribution. No one advised counsel of the issue before distribution.

Additionally, one attorney testified that in reviewing the discovery for a client in a criminal case, he found that jail staff had not only recorded privileged calls but had identified 79 specific privileged calls and had burned those calls to a separate CD-ROM and then provided that disc to the prosecution.

The following testimony, here in abbreviated form, was provided to the Judiciary Committee in opposition to the bill:

- The Maine Prosecutors Association recognizes that communication between a person charged with a crime and that person's attorney is privileged. Prosecutors do not want to possess attorney-client communications and the association has conveyed this position to all of Maine's jail administrators in a letter sent in July of 2020. To the extent that this proposed legislation is designed to honor this privileged communication, the association supports that goal.
- The enforcement mechanisms built into this bill are broad and could have a detrimental effect on the prosecution of criminal cases. They could prevent a prosecutor from participating in the prosecution of the case whether or not the person has reviewed the substance of the document, recording or information. The determination of whether a prosecutor should be precluded from participation in a case should be a matter for the court to determine.

- The post-conviction relief provision in the bill would allow for a criminal conviction to be overturned without requiring a showing that the recording was substantively used by the State and had a substantive impact on the outcome of the defendant's case.
- The civil remedy and private cause of action provisions in the bill overlap with existing remedies of motions to suppress evidence and complaints to the Maine Board of Bar Overseers and call into play the Maine Rules of Evidence.
- The Maine Sheriffs' Association is committed to identifying problems in any jail-related system and working with legislators to find solutions that protect the rights of jail inmates, but in a way that does not jeopardize their fellow inmates or victims who deserve protection from additional harm.

The following information, here in abbreviated form, was provided to the Judiciary Committee by persons taking a position neither for nor against the bill:

- The Department of Corrections recognizes the importance of ensuring the constitutional protections associated with privileged communication between residents of MDOC facilities and their legal counsel.
- To protect communications beyond those recognized as privileged by applicable Bar Rules and Rules of Evidence, it would be appropriate to define those parameters. See, for example the Maine Rule of Evidence, Rule 502 and the Maine Rule of Professional Conduct, Rule 1.6.
- Maine statutes already govern interception of oral and wire communications. The proposed new Class C crime, "unauthorized eavesdropping," should be written so that it does not conflict with the definitions in Title 15, section 709 and the existing Class C crime of illegally intercepting wire or oral communications in section 710.
- The provisions of the bill regarding direct evidence, derivative evidence, and personnel apply even if the recording is not reviewed and is immediately disclosed to opposing counsel.
- The bill is broadly drafted and includes communications and contacts in courts, jails, detention, and correctional facilities, and includes video recording.

III. Committee Process

The committee was initially authorized to meet four times. The committee sought and was granted permission to meet one additional time.

September 7th Meeting

The first meeting of the committee was held on September 7, 2022. Committee members, who attended in person and remotely via Zoom, introduced themselves. Sarah Branch attended for committee member Amber Tucker, representing the Maine Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers. Deputy Attorney General Lisa Marchese attended for committee member Attorney General Aaron Frey. District Attorney Kathryn Slattery attended for committee member District Attorney Maeghan Maloney, representing the Maine Prosecutors Association.

Staff from the Office of Policy and Legal Analysis provided an overview of the authorizing resolve, Resolve 2021, chapter 182, included as Appendix C. Staff discussed the committee's website and resource materials, including a 50-state survey prepared by staff on statutes, regulations and guidance regarding access to counsel in correctional facilities. This chart is included as Appendix E. Staff provided an overview of the authorizing resolve, the Maine Freedom of Access law<sup>13</sup> and Maine's law on interception of wire and oral communications, <sup>14</sup> Title 15, chapter 102, which allows certain investigative officers and employees of jails and correctional facilities to intercept, disclose or use that communication if:

- Either the sender or receiver of the communication resides in a Department of Corrections adult or juvenile correctional facility or jail; and
- Notice of the possibility of interception is provided in a manner sufficient to make the parties aware of the possibility of interception. Notice may be provided by means of:
  - 1. Providing the resident of the correctional facility or jail with a written notification statement;
  - 2. Posting written notification next to every telephone at the facility or jail that is subject to monitoring; and
  - 3. Informing the recipient of the call by playing a recorded warning statement before the recipient accepts the call.<sup>15</sup>

Staff also provided a number of relevant Department of Corrections policies, which are on the committee website at https://legislature.maine.gov/constitutionally-adequate-contact-with-counsel-committee.

A panel discussion regarding constitutionally adequate contact with counsel, particularly attorney-client confidentiality of telephone calls, included Justin Andrus, Executive Director of the Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services, District Attorney Kathryn Slattery representing the Maine Prosecutors Association and Commissioner Randall Liberty of the Maine Department of Corrections.

Justin Andrus discussed breaches of attorney-client confidentiality. He noted that most recording of attorney-client conversations when the client is in custody is inadvertent. Recording may happen because of oversights or errors by the attorney or client in providing telephone numbers that should not be monitored or by the telephone service contractor or jail in noting and entering the directive not to monitor the phone number. Policies need to be adopted to standardize the blocking of attorney-client calls.

Mr. Andrus also emphasized that monitoring of attorney-client telephone conversations violates the client's constitutional rights. While it is difficult to show actual harm to a client's defense resulting from a violation, there is a broader chilling effect on protected communications. Mr. Andrus also remarked that there is concern over the ability of residents to exchange legal materials with counsel and the ability of residents to safely store legal documents.

Attorney-client conversations can also be illegally monitored or overheard by law enforcement court officers when consultations must be held in public spaces or with an officer present because the client is in custody or because of a determination that the client presents risks of escape, security or harm. Policies need to be adopted to prohibit listening in to attorney-client consultations.

Mr. Andrus stated that MCILS maintains a list of defense attorney telephone numbers that will enable Securus<sup>16</sup>, a corrections telephone service contractor, to receive attorney phone number information from MCILS instead of relying on individual attorneys and clients to provide that information. Mr. Andrus reported that MCILS has had difficulty getting information related to this topic from the jails.

Kathryn Slattery presented information from the point of view of the district attorneys. She emphasized that the district attorneys neither want illegal recordings to occur nor to hear illegally recorded calls. The district attorneys' offices have policies requiring them to stop listening to a recorded call from a jail or correctional facility as soon as they discover that the call is an attorney-client call. The policies require notification to prosecutors, defense attorneys and the court. However, the district attorneys do not have a uniform policy that applies statewide, nor are policies generally in writing. Ms. Slattery remarked that the increased use of cell phones has complicated the blocking of attorney-client calls from being monitored.

Deputy Attorney General Lisa Marchese, designee for Attorney General Aaron Frey, noted that attorneys in the Attorney General's Office know the procedures to follow should they come across a privileged call. The AG's Office has been in contact with MCILS to make sure members of the defense bar know to register phone numbers with Securus and with the jails. She noted that homicide investigators receive annual training.

Department of Corrections Commissioner Randall Liberty stated that the Department of Corrections recognizes the importance of confidential communications between attorney and client and provides 30 minutes per week of free telephone calls to residents of correctional facilities to speak with their attorneys if the residents have low cash balances in their savings accounts. Correctional facilities differ in their policies regarding the use of tablets for email and texting and for video conferencing with attorneys. However, all state correctional facilities have separate rooms in which attorneys can meet with their clients.

Commissioner Liberty noted that residents of state correctional facilities are informed that outgoing telephone calls, except to attorneys, may be monitored. Residents are provided with forms on which to give telephone numbers for their attorneys so that the correctional facility can block the monitoring function through their telephone services contractor. DOC facilities have less turnover than jails, so the process of protecting attorney numbers is easier to manage. Staffing is an issue that can complicate video calls, which staff need to monitor.

The committee reviewed information requests for the second meeting and the schedule for the remaining meetings of the committee. After the meeting, members made the following information requests:

• Department of Public Safety

- 1. With regard to the confidentiality of attorney-client telephone conversations for persons who are in custody in a jail, municipal detention facility or correctional facility:

• Maine Criminal Justice Academy

1. During the course of the meeting, the Committee discussed training of correctional officers, law enforcement officers and requested more information regarding the extent to which correctional officers and law enforcement officers are trained about how to ensure attorney-client confidentiality. This includes confidentiality during attorney calls, attorney visits, and of the handling of legal mail and documents. Does the MCJA have written training materials related to these topics? If so, could you please provide them to us?

September 21st Meeting

The second meeting of the committee was held on September 21, 2022. Committee members, who attended in person and remotely via Zoom, introduced themselves. Deputy Attorney General Lisa Marchese attended for Attorney General Aaron Frey, Maine Drug Enforcement Agency Director Roy McKinney and Paul Cavanaugh attended for Commissioner Sauschuck, and Jeremy Pratt attended for Amber Tucker, representing the Maine Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers.

Information regarding the operations of the Lawyer of the Day program, which provides representation for the first appearance and arraignment phases of criminal proceedings, was provided by the Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services and the Maine Judicial Branch. The committee heard presentations from Justin Andrus, Executive Director of the Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services and from the following attorneys who regularly serve as lawyers of the day:

- Joseph Belisle, who serves in Penobscot County;
- Dawn Corbett, who serves in Hancock, Washington and Penobscot Counties;
- Robert Ruffner, who serves in York, Cumberland, Kennebec and Somerset Counties; and
- Lisa Whittier, who serves in Kennebec and Waldo Counties.

Justin Andrus provided background information on the first appearance and arraignment processes, the Maine Bail Code<sup>17</sup> and the Maine Rules of Unified Criminal Procedure, Rule 5.

With regard to the duties of the committee that pertain to the Lawyer of the Day program, Justin Andrus, Joseph Belisle, Dawn Corbett, Robert Ruffner and Lisa Whittier provided the following observations and suggestions:

- MCILS does not have a general conduct rule for the Lawyer of the Day program because each court runs differently. Lawyers of the day are paid the $80/hour MCILS rate. There is a minimum reimbursement for a short day, but this is very unusual.
- Larger jurisdictions have two lawyers of the day on at a time, and occasionally three. In other jurisdictions only one lawyer of the day at a time will serve. Some jurisdictions have very few attorneys on the roster, so the system relies heavily on these attorneys' willingness to serve.

- The courts and clerks control the number of criminal cases before the court each day. Often the number of criminal cases requiring Lawyer of the Day representation is too high for the lawyer or lawyers designated for the cases to provide representation beyond the basic determination of bail. Continuity of counsel can be very challenging.
- Courthouses and jails lack sufficient space for confidential attorney-client consultations, impairing the free flow of information between attorney and client and resulting in conversations that can be overheard by the general public, other defendants and court officers. Private consultation spaces are needed. In one courthouse the only private consultation space that is available is inside a holding cell. The solutions to these issues are challenging to determine because of infrastructure limitations. Ideally each courthouse would have a holding area, a consultation area and an appearance area. Easy access should be available between the consultation and appearance areas.
- For an in-custody defendant attending a first appearance or arraignment through a video appearance, headphones and a microphone should be provided for the defendant. It is best if the attorney is designated as a "host" to improve privacy for the defendant and to allow control of the conversation by the attorney.
- Early advance access by the attorney to electronic documents related to the defendant improves the quality of representation.
- When the court appearance is conducted by video, courts across the state are inconsistent in the presentation of the explanation of rights video that is provided pursuant to Rule 5(b). <sup>18</sup> <sup>19</sup>
- Attorneys report suspecting or knowing that telephone calls from their clients have been intercepted, recorded and made available to prosecutors. These experiences have a chilling effect on attorney-client communications, so much so that some attorneys decline to have substantive conversations with their clients by telephone, conducting such conversations only when meeting in-person with their clients.

The statement of rights required to be given by this Rule shall be stated live to the defendant in open court by the court, or stated by the court in a video recording viewed by the defendant before his or her first appearance.

(b) Initial Statement of Rights by the Court. When a defendant arrested, either under a warrant issued upon an indictment, an information, or upon a complaint filed in the Unified Criminal Docket or without a warrant is brought before the court or a defendant who has been summonsed appears before the court in response to a summons, the court, in open court, shall, unless waived by the defendant's counsel, inform the defendant of:

<sup>(2)</sup> the defendant's right to retain counsel, and to request the assignment of counsel and to be allowed a reasonable time and opportunity to consult counsel before entering a plea;

<sup>(3)</sup> the right to remain silent and that the defendant is not required to make a statement and that any statement made by the defendant may be used against the defendant;

- Attorneys report difficulties in contacting the jails to get their telephone numbers on the list of numbers blocked from interception, monitoring and recording.
- Sheriffs report that the jails' contractors for outgoing telephone calls from residents have systems in place to block calls to residents' attorneys from interception, monitoring and recording. The sheriffs report that the systems should be easy for attorneys to access.
- When conducting remote appearances, there is a significant power differential between the remote lawyer of the day and the in-person prosecutor. Remote appearances can also feel less formal. It is hard to manage what a client is saying to the judge if you are not able to stand next to the client in person. Sometimes jails don't log in on time or at all for remote appearances.
- Penobscot is a good model courthouse, with two private meeting rooms. Other courthouses have no meeting areas at all. Penobscot also conducts remote appearances well. The case information is loaded onto a file share and available to the lawyer of the day in advance.
- Sometimes officers will not leave during attorney consultations with in custody defendants.
- It is important to have effective assistance of counsel during arraignment because that is when bail is established. Bail can mean the difference between going home and staying in jail, which can translate to lost wages or jobs and other compounded effects of incarceration.
- Currently all courts but Aroostook only do arraignments three days a week. Timing is driven by the US Constitution and case law. <sup>20</sup>
- Each facility has a different process to get an attorney phone number blocked and that can be confusing. It is not always easy to figure out whom to speak with in order to ensure a number is indeed blocked. A universal registration process would be ideal, or at least a uniform registration policy that each jail follows.
- There should be a consequence for breach of attorney client confidentiality beyond filing of a motion to dismiss, which requires a showing of actual harm and which can amount to an unattainable standard.

The committee next reviewed answers to questions sent by the committee to various parties following the first meeting, these answers are compiled as Appendix F.

Maine Judicial Branch

Amanda Doherty, Criminal Process and Specialty Dockets Manager, Maine Judicial Branch, spoke with the committee. She stated that private conference rooms in courthouses for use by attorneys and clients are very limited and that use may be restricted to maximum security defendants. The presence of COVID-19 in the community has restricted public access to courthouses and increased video court appearances, including for initial appearances and arraignments and statements of rights by the court under Rule 5 (a) and (b). For non-custody defendants' first appearances, the courthouses need space for attorney-client consultations to ensure the privacy of their communications. Most first appearances and arraignments for incustody defendants are conducted by video electronically. First appearances and arraignments for in-custody defendants in which the defendants are in their cells using tablets provide more privacy than those conducted via the Zoom platform. Staffing is a major issue and jails struggle to maintain sufficient staff to transport inmates to and supervise them at courthouses for appearances.

Maine Sheriffs' Association

Somerset County Sheriff Dale Lancaster presented information to the committee on the perspectives of the sheriffs on attorney-client confidentiality of telephone calls. Sheriff Lancaster stated that the jails are committed to ensuring the confidentiality of attorney-client telephone calls. However, the jails need to be provided with attorney telephone numbers so that outgoing calls to attorneys can be blocked from the monitoring and recording that is done by the contractors who provide telephone services for outgoing calls by jail residents.

Sometimes new jail residents do not know their attorneys' phone numbers or are otherwise not well equipped to provide information to the jail. In those situations, the jail relies on the attorney to provide the attorney's phone number to the jail directly.

Jail procedures for ensuring that attorney-client telephone calls are not recorded are governed by Title 15, Maine Revised Statutes, section 712, subsection 3 and require:

- 1. Written notice to the jail resident regarding the possibility of interception and recording;
- 2. Posting of written notification next to every telephone at the jail that is subject to monitoring and informing the recipient of a telephone call from a jail resident of the possibility of interception and recording; and
- 3. Playing a recorded warning regarding the possibility of interception and recording before the recipient accepts the call.

Procedures in jails and practices by the contractors that provide telephone services for outgoing telephone calls by residents of the jails differ. However, all jails have policies on blocking the interception of outgoing calls from residents to their attorneys.

Information requested at the first meeting and committee discussion

In response to information requested during the first meeting, the committee heard presentations and held discussions with representatives from the Department of Corrections, Office of the Attorney General, Maine Drug Enforcement Agency, Maine Criminal Justice Academy, Maine Sheriffs' Association, Maine Prosecutors' Association, Maine State Police and Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services.

The Director of the Maine Criminal Justice Academy (MCJA), Richard Desjardins stated that the Maine Criminal Justice Academy (MCJA) is overseen by the MCJA Board of Trustees, which per statute sets minimum training standards for corrections officers and which approves curricula for basic certification training and certifies all law enforcement and corrections officers in Maine. The board membership is governed by Title 25, section 2802. Currently there are no defense attorneys on the board, though there have been in the past.

Mr. Desjardins noted that current basic law enforcement and corrections training includes information regarding the constitutional protections of individuals as well as attorney-client privilege. The Basic Law Enforcement Training Program also includes instruction related to United States and Maine Constitutional protections, admissions and confessions, and United States Supreme Court and other court decisions. These sections are taught by attorneys from the Attorney General's Office. Details of facility operations are not part of corrections training, as they are facility specific. Selected MCJA trainings are included on the committee website at https://legislature.maine.gov/constitutionally-adequate-contact-with-counsel-committee.

Commissioner of Corrections Randall Liberty emphasized that the Maine Criminal Justice Academy includes a course titled "Corrections Law," which appears in PowerPoint form on the committee website. Staff also receive refresher trainings throughout their employment.

Commissioner Liberty noted that residents of MDOC facilities receive a number of documents that mention attorney client confidentiality, including facility specific handbooks (see Appendices N). Selected MDOC policies appear on the committee website. Relevant policies include:

- 1. Adult Facility Policy 10.1, Resident Property
- 2. Juvenile Facility Policy 14.1, Access to Legal Rights
- 3. Juvenile Facility Policy 16.1, Resident Mail
- 4. Juvenile Facility Policy 16.2, Access to Telephones
- 5. Juvenile Facility Policy 16.3, Visitation
- 6. Adult Facility Policy 21.2, Prisoner Mail
- 7. Adult Facility Policy 21.3, Prisoner Telephone System
- 8. Adult Facility Policy 21.4, Prisoner Visitation

Residents of adult facilities are given a form on which to indicate their attorney's numbers for protection from recording. This form, the Resident Telephone System Legal Call Number List, is attached as Appendix G. Residents of Long Creek, the state's juvenile facility, do not need to provide attorney phone numbers, as the facility is aware of who represents each juvenile.

Commissioner Liberty stated that the MDOC discourages use of text messages or video for attorney visits, as these are not confidential. Residents with access to text messaging via the Edovo tablet system are made aware there is no way to designate recipients of text messages as legal counsel, and therefore there should be no belief that text messages can remain confidential.

The MDOC reviews the operations of all jails as outlined in the Detention and Correctional Standards for Maine Counties and Municipalities.<sup>21</sup> Standard J.20, which is mandatory, provides for unrestricted and confidential access and communications with the courts, confidential correspondence and phone communication with counsel, and the right to consult with the counsel under staff supervision if the inmate poses a risk of violence or escape.

In response to requests for information, the Maine Drug Enforcement Agency (MDEA) provided an Interoffice Memorandum (attached as Appendix H) to all MDEA staff dated September 24, 2020 from Director Roy McKinney entitled "Correctional Facility Inmate Calls Directive." The directive applies to all MDEA personnel and prohibits direct access to a jail telephone system except for some DEA personnel who are deputy sheriffs and only in certain circumstances. It provides a procedure for obtaining approval for monitoring inmate phone calls but prohibits monitoring attorney-client calls and states that, if during the review of a recording an officer discovers a conversation between an inmate and their attorney, the officer must immediately stop the recording playback and notify their supervisor and commander by email, the correctional facility point-of-contact for MDEA inmate phone recordings, and the case prosecutor. The officer must also return the recording containing the privileged call to the jail's point-of-contact and request another without the privileged call. Finally, the officer must complete a supplemental report detailing the event and compliance with the directive.

In response to information requests from the committee to the Department of Public Safety, the Maine State Police noted that that:

The Maine State Police provides a directive to all of its members that they may not to listen to phone calls between anyone in their custody and their attorneys. Should such a call be identified while the member is listening, the member is to immediately stop listening, document relevant information about the call and how long they listened and report the incident to their supervisor and appropriate prosecutorial office

Paul Cavanaugh, representing the Maine State Police, informed the committee that the policy is not written, that he does not know if the Maine State Police favored placing it in written form and that if a member of the Maine State Police violates the policy that law enforcement disciplinary action could be taken.

In response to information requests from the committee to the Office of the Attorney General (OAG), Deputy Attorney General Lisa Marchese responded that the OAG has no written training material or policies, procedures or written guidance relating to confidential communications with MDOC or county jail residents. Deputy AG Marchese also noted that the Attorney General's Office has a practice in place if an assistant attorney general or a law enforcement officer comes into possession of privileged communications. This practice has been discussed with attorneys in the criminal division on numerous occasions and with the law enforcement agencies with whom the OAG works.

Deputy AG Marchese stated that the prosecution team, including law enforcement, does not want to possess or listen to any privileged communications and the office recognizes and respects that a person has a constitutional right to confidential communications with their attorney. An assistant attorney general or law enforcement officer who believes they have been inappropriately provided a privileged call must immediately stop listening to the recording. If a law enforcement officer, that officer notifies the assistant attorney general assigned to the case, who immediately notifies the Division Chief and the defense attorney. If an assistant attorney general comes into possession of a privileged phone call, that attorney stops listening and notifies the Division Chief and the defense attorney. At this point in the process, the OAG defers to the defense attorney as to how the recording should be handled. Different defense attorneys take different approaches. In most cases, the court is notified.

Although the OAG does not have written policies or procedures relating to privileged calls, in July of 2020, the OAG collaborated with the District Attorneys and sent a letter from the Maine Prosecutors Association to all sheriffs and jail administrators, with a copy to the Executive Director of MCLIS, reminding them of the importance of protecting privileged communications. The July 2020 letter is included as Appendix I. The letter reminds the sheriffs and jail administrators that visits, calls and emails between inmates and their attorneys are privileged and confidential and cannot be recorded or shared. It states that investigators and prosecutors are not entitled to and do not want any communications between an attorney and their client. The letter stresses that the jails obtain attorney contact information, including office and cell and any other phone numbers and email addresses. Because some jails provide tablets for inmates to communicate via written communications, the letter asks jails to notify inmates that those communications with family and friends are subject to review and disclosure and reminds jails that it is important that inmates acknowledge this in writing. The letter states that the defense bar has been made aware of the importance of keeping the jails current on contact information and that attorney-client emails should not be documented or shared with law enforcement or the State.

The Maine Prosecutors' Association, in response to inquiries regarding training materials and policies and procedures, referred the committee to the July 2020 letter described above. District Attorney Maeghan Maloney, for Prosecutorial District IV, provided a copy of the office policy regarding domestic violence and sexual assault investigators. This policy is available as Appendix J. The policy requires domestic violence investigators to monitor jail calls from defendants held in custody for domestic violence and sexual assault offenses. If a defense attorney is identified as a party on a call, the investigator must turn off the recording, write down what was heard, notify the prosecutor and turn over the written document to the prosecutor. In turn, the prosecutor must notify the defense attorney and give that person the written document. The prosecutor and defense attorney will then notify the Court.

District Attorney Maloney noted that there is no statewide training for district attorney staff and district attorneys on protecting the confidentiality of attorney-client communications, but that there is nothing preventing prosecutors from establishing a uniform policy, and that she will address the issue at the next annual meeting of the Maine Prosecutors Association.

The committee began an initial discussion of possible recommendations from the committee and encouraging committee members to consider options for recommendations. Ideas that were mentioned included: standardized policies on ensuring confidentiality of attorney-client communications to be adopted by law enforcement agencies, jails, DOC correctional facilities; having jails and correctional facilities publicize the names and telephone numbers of attorneys whose calls with clients will not be monitored and recorded; designating one position on the Board of Trustees of the Maine Criminal Justice Academy for a defense attorney; having the Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services periodically send its list of defense attorneys to the jails; enacting laws to strengthen the guarantee of confidential attorney-client communications and specifying sanctions for violations (one member suggested that sanctions apply only when the defense has shown that the attorney had applied to block monitoring and recording).

The meeting closed with a request that the next meeting include opportunities for current and former residents of jails and correctional facilities to provide written or oral comments to the committee on their experiences with the confidentiality of attorney-client communications while incarcerated. Requests for public comment were to be sent out to current and former residents of jails and correctional facilities and attorneys for incarcerated persons to provide written comments to the committee and to provide oral testimony in person or via Zoom.

The committee also reviewed information requests for the third meeting. After the meeting the following information requests were distributed:

- Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services
  - 1. What space was available in each courthouse for attorneys to meet with their clients.
  - 2. Does MCILS track caseload statistics? The Committee asked for caseload data for each court.
  - 3. Do you have access to lists of protected phone numbers from Securus and GTL or any idea how we might obtain these lists? Also, we were hoping you could confirm (or correct) our understanding of the process for an attorney to protect their number from surveillance. Our understanding is that an attorney wishing to add a number to the list of protected numbers needs to contact the jail in which their client is residing, speak to whomever that particular jail has designated as a point person, and provide their number. The point person in the jail works with the vendor to add the number to the list, and the number is then protected from surveillance regardless of the inmate. Is that an accurate description of the process? An attorney would need to contact each individual courthouse to make sure their numbers are on that courthouse's list, correct?

4. As far as you know, is there any way for an attorney to confirm that the attorney's number is protected, aside from calling the jail and asking

• Judicial Branch

- 2. For each courthouse, what space is available for attorneys to meet privately with clients?
- 3. Are current arraignment caseload statistics available for each court (walk in and in custody arraignments) and if so, can these statistics be shared with the committee?
- 4. Can you describe the process each courthouse uses to determine whether appearances will be in person or remote?

• Sheriffs' Association

- 1. Do you have access to lists of protected phone numbers from Securus and GTL or any idea how we might obtain these lists? Also, we were hoping you could confirm (or correct) our understanding of the process for an attorney to protect the attorney's number from surveillance. Our understanding is that an attorney wishing to add a number to the list of protected numbers needs to contact the jail in which their client is residing, speak to whomever that particular jail has designated as a point person, and provide their number. The point person in the jail works with the vendor to add the number to the list, and the number is then protected from surveillance regardless of the inmate. Is that an accurate description of the process? An attorney would need to contact each individual courthouse to make sure their number is on that courthouse's list, correct?
- 2. As far as you know, is there any way for an attorney to confirm that her number is protected, aside from calling the jail and asking?

Prior to the October 5 meeting, the Sheriffs' Association posed the following questions to MCILS:

- 1. What is State's annual budget for legal defense for indigent people?
- 2. What is the number of individuals that the legal defense fund has represented in the last fiscal year?
- 3. What percentage of indigent people vs. non-indigent people are obtaining defense legal services in the last fiscal year?
- 4. How many practicing defense attorneys are currently practicing in the State of Maine?

- 5. How many complaints have been lodged from defense lawyers referencing phone call conversations being erroneously captured from registered phone numbers while their client has been incarcerated?
- 4. How many criminal cases have been developed in the State of Maine from conversations between a defense attorney and client?
- 5. How many convictions have there been from a lawyer/ client incarcerated erroneously captured conversations?
- 9. How many crimes have been prevented from properly captured communication in Maine's eight prosecutorial districts?

Members agreed that they would like to solicit public comment from individuals with lived experienced in the corrections system. Staff emailed the Judiciary Committee interested parties list, the Criminal Justice and Public Safety Committee interested parties list, and the committee's own interested parties list with invitations for public comment. A copy of the email sent to these groups can be found at Appendix K.

October 5th meeting

The third meeting of the committee was held on October 5, 2022. Committee members, who attended in person and remotely via Zoom, introduced themselves. Deputy Attorney General Lisa Marchese attended for Attorney General Aaron Frey, Associate Commissioner Scott Landry attended for Commissioner of Corrections Randall Liberty and District Attorney Kathryn Slattery attended for District Attorney Maeghan Maloney, representing the Maine Prosecutors Association.

Kevin Collins, who introduced himself as a former inmate at the Maine State Prison, attended the meeting and provided information in response to the committee's invitation for comments from the public on the confidentiality of attorney-client communications in jails, correctional facilities and courthouses. Mr. Collins stated that attorney-client conference rooms in courthouses often have listening devices built in, that in his criminal case limited access to discovery materials hampered him in his defense and that courts should be held accountable for the decisions of judges. He confirmed that some incarcerated persons have had problems with the telephone systems that were available to them and offered to provide additional information for the committee.

Attorney Robert Ruffner, who serves as a defense attorney and as a Lawyer of the Day, spoke with the committee and submitted testimony that is included as Appendix L. He stated that facilities for confidential attorney-client communications and review of documents vary greatly from jail to jail and courthouse to courthouse, that glass partitions used for some in-person consultations make confidential communication difficult and that headphones for clients improve the privacy of conversations. He suggested that instead of thinking about when conversations should not be recorded, the committee consider when conversations should be recorded. He stated that attorneys visiting clients in person instruct them not to discuss the details of their cases or their lives since they can be overheard and acknowledged that the openness and usefulness of conversations is compromised in in-person conversations. He suggested that Title 15, chapter 102, which relate to the interception of wire and oral communications be amended to continue to allow monitoring and recording of confidential attorney-client communications but to require for use of those recordings outside of the jail or correctional facility or in criminal proceedings the following: (1) a showing of risk to safety or security to the jail or correctional facility or an immediate threat to the safety of a person; and (2) the grant of a warrant by a judicial officer.

Following public comment, the committee reviewed the answers to questions submitted to various parties at the end of the last meeting. The questions and answers to those questions are compiled in the document attached as Appendix M.

Amanda Doherty, Criminal Process and Specialty Dockets Manager, Maine Judicial Branch, provided information in response to requests from the second meeting. This information is included as Appendix N. She also provided information on the numbers of arraignments in each court per month, which ranged from 1 to 24, and per session, which ranged from 10 to 100. This information is included as Appendix O<sup>22</sup>.

Amanda Doherty also provided information from each court on the availability of conference rooms, alcoves or open spaces for attorney-client consultations, lawyer rooms used for conference space, jury rooms used for conference space and prisoner conference rooms. She noted that the ratio of conference rooms to courtrooms is less than 2 to 1 for older courthouse structures. Spaces for attorney-client consultations ranged from zero to 15 per courthouse, including one courthouse that supplemented its three conference rooms by providing access to a jury room in a court that averages 75 cases per arraignment session. This information is included as Appendix O.

Amanda Doherty also requested information from all the jails about space available for attorney-client consultations, in-person and video arraignments, and the history of video arraignments, including their experience during the times that the courts and jails have been following COVID protocols. Eight jails provided responses, which are shown in the following chart and included as Appendix O. The jails reported a range of spaces for attorney-client conferences. Ms. Doherty noted that the courts or the courts and jails jointly determine whether court appearances will be in person or by video, the pre- and post-COVID practices in their courts and jails, and the jails' preferences for in person or video proceedings. Ms. Doherty offered to follow up with the jails that had not responded and to bring additional information to the committee.

Somerset County Sheriff Dale Lancaster provided information in response to requests from the first and second meeting. This information is included as Appendix P. Sheriff Lancaster reported that all but two of the 15 jails distribute written policies, procedures or guidance related to confidentiality of attorney communications with inmates. Eleven provide or makes available to inmates written materials regarding the recording of phone calls. Seven jails provide inmates with forms on which to indicate the telephone numbers of attorneys for the purpose of protecting attorney-client calls from monitoring and recording. Eight jails have policies, procedures or guidance related to the use of video, laptops or electronics for inmates to communicate confidentially with attorneys. Eight jails also have policies pertaining to storage of legal materials by inmates. Six have policies, procedures or guidance related to the confidentiality of attorney communications with inmates who are present in courthouses. All but one jail reported vacancies in correctional staffing, with some staff vacancy rates running to 60 and 65 percent.

Sheriff Lancaster agreed to obtain information about policies on attorney-client confidentiality and national jail accreditation standards through the American Correctional Association.<sup>23</sup> In response to a question from committee member Justin Andrus, Sheriff Lancaster agreed to obtain information on the protection of attorney telephone numbers that were distributed to the jails in May by the Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services. See Appendix I for a copy of that letter.

The committee discussed with Sheriff Lancaster ways of obtaining defense attorney telephone numbers and learned from Associate Commissioner of Correction Scott Landry that department rules provide policies and procedures for protecting the confidentiality of attorney-client telephone conversations. The committee website at https://legislature.maine.gov/constitutionally-adequate-contact-with-counsel-committee includes Department of Corrections rules setting forth the procedures for adult residents of correctional facilities use of the facility telephone systems, monitoring telephone calls and privileged phone calls, including but not limited to telephone calls with attorneys.

The committee discussed the fact that attorney phone numbers registered at one jail will not transfer to another jail, even if an inmate is transferred to a different facility need to register their phone numbers with each facility separately.

The committee reviewed suggestions for recommendations from the committee that were offered at the second meeting and discussed additional suggestions. The suggested recommendations included:

1. Developing and adopting policies and procedures for all law enforcement agencies, district attorney offices, jails and correctional facilities that protect confidential communications between attorneys and their clients who are residents of jails and correctional facilities; policies to be followed if there is a breach of confidentiality; and methods by which jails and correctional facilities inform residents of their rights to confidential communications with their attorneys;

- 2. Adding to the curriculum of Maine Criminal Justice Academy for Basic Correctional Officer Training information on confidential attorney-client communications and the protection of those communications;
- 3. Requiring jails and correctional facilities to provide reasonably prompt access to private spaces for attorney-client consultations and review of documents;
- 4. Adding to the Board of Trustees of the Maine Criminal Justice Academy a seat designated for a criminal defense attorney;
- 5. Developing a system for registering telephone numbers and contact information of criminal defense attorneys so that telephone calls made by residents of jails and correctional facilities to their attorneys are protected from monitoring and recording; and
- 6. Requiring jails and correctional facilities to adopt procedures to respond to attorney inquiries about the protection of resident calls to their attorneys.

The committee set aside for discussion at the fourth meeting the following suggestions for recommendations:

- 1. Directing the Judicial Branch to ensure that space is available for confidential attorney-client consultations in public areas and secure holding areas of courthouses; and
- 2. Providing penalties for breach of attorney-client confidentiality through monitoring or recording of attorney-client telephone calls.

October 19th meeting

The fourth meeting of the committee was held on October 19th. Committee members who attended in person and remotely via Zoom introduced themselves. Deputy Attorney General Lisa Marchese attended for Attorney General Aaron Frey and Associate Commissioner Scott Landry attended for Commissioner of Corrections Randall Liberty. District Attorney Maeghan Maloney was joined by District Attorney Kathryn Slattery, who did not vote on recommendations.

Following introductions, the committee took additional public testimony. Defense attorney Verne Paradie spoke with the committee about his and his clients' experiences with unlawful recordings of attorney-client telephone calls. He stated that he did not blame the jails for his experience. He stated that the Office of the Attorney General and law enforcement officers with whom he was involved should have been more thorough in providing information to the defense attorney about the recordings during the discovery process by specifically identifying the date and time of the recorded telephone call and identifying precisely when during the call the law enforcement officer heard the attorney speaking. He noted that a motion to dismiss based on interception of attorney client calls requires a showing of prejudice, which is very difficult to do, especially when it is not clear to the defense attorney what calls and what privileged information have been overheard.

Attorney John Tebbetts attended the meeting and provided information regarding unlawful recordings of attorney-client telephone calls. He stated that the fact that calls are recorded has a chilling effect on communications between attorneys and their clients, resulting in some clients refusing to speak with attorneys over the telephone and necessitating much more time-consuming in-person visits to the jail. John Tebbetts agreed with Verne Paradie that the defense attorney should be provided the date and time of a recorded telephone call. He suggested that there be a system for registering the telephone number of a defense attorney that requires only one registration and provides protection for all calls to that attorney in all jails and correctional facilities. He described a situation in which his client was moved to a jail in a different county. Attorney Tebbetts did not realize that he has to register his number at the new jail, having assumed that registration at one jail was sufficient. He agreed with Attorney Paradie that fault does not lie with the jails themselves. He suggested that there be a per se rule established that failure to keep records of recorded calls means that the call is assumed to have been overhead.

Bobby Nightingale, a defendant in a criminal case who is represented by Attorneys Verne Paradie and John Tebbetts, provided recorded testimony which was played for the committee by Norman Kehling. Bobby Nightingale stated that the jail where he was held recorded confidential attorney-client telephone calls that he made to his attorney. He stated that the Office of the Attorney General and the investigating detective did not, during discovery, provide information about the recordings that was sufficient for his attorney to fully understand what was heard. Mr. Nightingale supported a single system for attorney registration that would protect against unlawful recording in all state correctional facilities and jails. See Appendix Q for a transcription of Mr. Nightingale's testimony.

The committee then reviewed answers to questions posed at the third meeting. These questions and answers are compiled as Appendix Z. Amanda Doherty, Criminal Process and Specialty Dockets Manager, Maine Judicial Branch, provided updated information to the committee on private space for confidential attorney-client consultations in courthouses and jails. See Appendix O for the final version of a chart describing this information.<sup>24</sup>

In a continuation of the discussion from October 4th pertaining to in-person and remote arraignments and first appearances, Amanda Doherty stated that judges in each region work with court clerks and the jails to decide whether court appearances for individuals held in custody will be conducted in-person or remotely. The factors considered by the regional judges include data on COVID-19 transmission in the counties, staffing and safety concerns and levels of personal comfort with in-person appearances. There is no standard policy on in-person as opposed to remote appearances.

Somerset County Sheriff Dale Lancaster provided information regarding when and how persons incarcerated in jails are informed of the process for protecting attorney-client telephone calls. Persons who are incarcerated are informed of the registration process during intake, during housing orientation and in the written handbook, which is given to all persons upon intake who are not immediately released.<sup>25</sup> Fourteen county jails contract with Securus for outgoing inmate telephone call services and the regional jail contracts with GTL, which has been acquired by ViaPath Technologies<sup>26</sup>. ViaPath provides these services to Department of Corrections correctional facilities. Associate Commissioner Scott Landry relayed the concern of the department regarding a prior suggestion by a committee member to have all jails and State correctional facilities contract with a single telephone service provider. Because each county negotiates contracts separately and because there are contracts and systems already in place, such a move would be inadvisable.

The committee discussed possible recommendations from the list which was developed at the October 5th meeting. The committee voted on recommendations 1 through 5 (See Recommendations section of this report).

Committee members who were absent for all or some of the votes were given 48 hours to submit their votes to the committee staff. While the committee had intended for the fourth meeting to be the final meeting, it became clear that additional time would be required to work through the proposed recommendations. The committee requested permission to hold an additional meeting on November 1st. This request was approved by the Legislative Counsel.

November 1st Meeting

The fifth and final meeting of the committee was held on November 1, 2022. Committee members, who attended in person and via Zoom remotely, introduced themselves. Deputy Attorney General Lisa Marchese attended for Attorney General Aaron Frey, Associate Commissioner Scott Landry attended for Commissioner of Corrections Randall Liberty and District Attorney Kathryn Slattery attended for District Attorney Maeghan Maloney, representing the Maine Prosecutors Association.

Following introductions, the committee took up review of the remaining draft recommendations. The recommendations, can be found in the Recommendations section. Committee members who were absent for all or some of the votes were given 48 hours to submit their votes to the committee staff.

IV. Recommendations and Votes

Votes on recommendations were taken during the fourth and fifth meetings of the committee. The recommendations and vote tallies are included below.<sup>27</sup>

&lt;sup>27</sup> Committee recommendations have been renumbered and organized for the sake of clarity and readability. However the substance of the recommendations remains the same.

A. Recommendations related to the establishment of consistent standards

Recommendation #1

Direct the County Corrections Professional Standards Council to convene meetings of State, county and municipal law enforcement agencies, jails, the Maine Judicial Branch, the Department of Corrections, the Maine Sheriffs' Association, the Office of the Attorney General, the district attorney offices, the Maine Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers and the Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services to develop a consistent set of policies and procedures to be implemented by all law enforcement agencies, district attorney offices, jails and correctional facilities that acknowledge that attorney-client communications are absolutely confidential and that clearly describe the following:

- A. The process for protecting and ensuring confidential attorney-client communications;
- B. The policies to be followed in the event there is a breach of confidentiality; and
- C. The methods by which attorneys and clients will identify confidential channels for communication and the methods by which incarcerated persons will be provided with information regarding their right to confidential attorney-client communications.

[Recommendation #1 Vote - 14 in favor and 2 absent]

All members present agreed on the need for the numerous entities involved to continue open dialogue around the need to keep attorney-client communications confidential. After much discussion, it was suggested that the best entity to take on the task of convening these groups and agencies was the County Corrections Professional Standards Council, which was established in 2021 and is staffed by seven members appointed by the Commissioner of the Department of Corrections and charged with a number of tasks, including developing rules for reporting information to DOC related to standards, policies and procedures in jails.

Members agreed that the group convened by the County Corrections Professional Standards Council could develop consistent policies for protecting and ensuring attorney-client confidentiality, policies to be followed in the event of a breach of confidentiality and methods by which attorneys and clients can be informed about means of ensuring confidentiality. Members emphasized the need for consistency to avoid confusion around, for example, the process for registering an attorney phone number, which currently may vary quite a bit from facility to facility.

Recommendation #2

Require that all State, county and municipal law enforcement agencies, jails, the Department of Corrections, the Office of the Attorney General and district attorney offices adopt policies and procedures, as applicable to their respective offices, that ensure the absolute confidentiality of attorney-client communications.

[Recommendation #2 Vote - 13 in favor, 1 opposed and 2 absent]

Members present, with one exception, agreed on a recommendation that law enforcement entities, jails, DOC, the Office of the Attorney General and district attorneys' offices adopt policies to ensure the absolute confidentiality of attorney-client communications. During the course of the committee's meeting, members learned that while some of these entities do have written policies that clearly explain the protocols for protecting the confidentiality of attorney client communications, others had no such policies, or had policies that were not memorialized in writing or that were not otherwise articulated to staff. While the majority of members did support the adoption of clear policies and procedures, members understood that those policies and procedures would vary given the unique nature and duties of each of the authorities involved.

B. Recommendations related to training

Recommendation #3

Direct the Board of Trustees of the Maine Criminal Justice Academy to amend the curriculum of the Basic Law Enforcement training and Basic Correctional Officer training to include information related to confidential attorney-client communications and to the protection of those communications.

[Recommendation #3 Vote - 14 in favor and 2 absent]

All members present were in favor of directing the Board of Trustees of the Maine Criminal Justice Academy, which is responsible for the curriculum of the Maine Criminal Justice Academy, to amend the Basic Law Enforcement training and Basic Correctional Officer training to include information related to confidential attorney-client communications and to the protection of those communications. The Basic Law Enforcement training is an 18-week program run by Maine Criminal Justice Academy and that is required for all aspiring law enforcement officers. The Basic Correctional Officer training program is required for all corrections officers. Members expressed hope that including this information in required training would enhance the knowledge of attorney client protections among those professionals who most frequently interact with residents of correctional facilities and those in courtroom settings.

Recommendation #4

Any policy relating to protecting confidential communications between attorneys and clients adopted by the Office of the Attorney General's office must include training for any law enforcement officer who, as part of a criminal investigation, may inadvertently hear privileged communications. The training must clearly outline the process for protecting confidential attorney-client communications as well as the policies to be followed in the event there is a breach of confidentiality.

[Recommendation #4 Vote - 14 in favor and 2 absent]

The members present were in favor of language proposed by Lisa Marchese, committee member and Deputy Attorney General, regarding training of law enforcement officers on what steps to take in the event an officer overhears privileged information.

Recommendation #5

Amend Title 25, Section 2802 of the Maine Revised Statutes to require that the Board of Trustees of the Maine Criminal Justice Academy be increased from 18 to 19 by adding a seat that is designated for an attorney who represents defendants in criminal cases.

[Recommendation #5 vote: 8 in favor, 5 opposed, 1 abstain and 2 absent]

Eight members voted in favor of increasing the Board of Trustee of the Maine Criminal Justice Academy from 18 to 19 members and designating that additional seat for an attorney who represents defendants in criminal cases. These members expressed concerns that the defense bar was not represented on the Board, which is responsible for the curriculum of the Academy. Five members were opposed to this recommendation and expressed concern that the Board was already quite large and had only recently been expanded.

C. Recommendations related to registration of attorney phone numbers

Recommendation #6

Majority recommendation: Direct the Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services or its successor agency to develop and maintain a registry of the telephone numbers and other contact information given to them by attorneys providing legal services to persons who are incarcerated. The Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services must provide the registry information to sheriffs' offices and to the Department of Corrections weekly. The sheriffs' offices and the Department of Corrections are deemed to be on notice on the Monday following transmission of the information.

Designate the attorney names, phone numbers and contact information on the registry as confidential for purposes of the public records law.

Minority recommendation: Direct the Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services to develop and maintain an additional registry of the telephone numbers and other contact information given to them by attorneys providing legal services to persons who are incarcerated. The Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services must, on a weekly basis, provide the registry information to the county jails and to the Department of Corrections.

Designate the attorney names, phone numbers and contact information on the registry as confidential for purposes of the public records law.

[Recommendation #6 vote: 8 in favor of majority report and 5 in favor of minority report, 1 opposed to both and 2 absent]

This recommendation was much debated among members. Five members were in favor of directing MCILS to develop and maintain a registry of contact information of attorneys representing incarcerated people. MCILS would provide that information, which would be considered confidential under Maine's Freedom of Access Act, on a weekly basis to the jails and DOC. This registry would be considered a backup, or additional registry, the system maintained by jails and correctional facilities being the primary manner of registering an attorney's information.

During deliberations, a second option was introduced, which ultimately won the majority of votes. This recommendation was to direct MCILS to develop and maintain a registry of attorney contact information, which would be considered confidential under Maine's Freedom of Access Act, on a weekly basis to the jails and DOC. It also recommended that the sheriffs' offices and the Department of Corrections be deemed to be on notice that an attorney's information is considered protected on the Monday following transmission of the information.

Recommendation #7

Direct the Department of Corrections and jails to develop and maintain systems and processes for registering the names, telephone numbers and contact information for attorneys who provide legal services to persons who are incarcerated in order to protect the confidentiality of attorney-client communications

[Recommendation #7 vote: 14 in favor and 2 absent]

All members present agreed that the primacy responsibility for registering attorney phone numbers and contact information to protect the confidentiality of attorney-client communications should be with the DOC and jails.

Recommendation #8

Direct the Department of Corrections to adopt rules requiring correctional facilities to proactively confirm on a timely basis the registration of attorney telephone numbers and other contact information protected from monitoring for attorney-client confidentiality purposes and to provide confirmation of registration at the request of the attorney or an incarcerated person.

[Recommendation #8 vote: 12 in favor, 1 opposed and 3 absent]

Twelve members supported a recommendation requiring DOC to adopt rules to require that correctional facilities timely confirm that an attorney number and other contact information is protected from monitoring and to confirm that a number is protected from monitoring at the request of the attorney or an incarcerated person. Members were concerned that no clear feedback loop currently exists by which an attorney can be sure that her contact information is registered with a facility and protected from monitoring.

Recommendation #9

Direct the Department of Corrections to amend the standards for jails to require jails to proactively confirm on a timely basis the registration of attorney telephone numbers and other contact information protected from monitoring for attorney-client confidentiality purposes and to provide confirmation of registration at the request of the attorney or an incarcerated person.

[Recommendation #9 vote: 11 in favor, 2 opposed and 3 absent]

Eleven members voted in favor of a recommendation similar to recommendation 11, except that this recommendation applies to jails rather than state correctional facilities.

D. Recommendations related to physical facilities and space

Recommendation #10

Majority recommendation: Require that the Department of Corrections and sheriffs ensure access on a timely basis to private space in correctional facilities and jails for attorney-client meetings and for the review and exchange of case materials.

Minority recommendation: Direct the Department of Corrections and sheriffs to work to ensure access on a timely basis to private space in correctional facilities and jails for attorney-client meetings and for the review and exchange of case materials.

[Recommendation #10 vote: 11 in favor of majority report, 3 in favor of minority report and 2 absent]

Members put forth two competing recommendations regarding access to private space in jails and correctional facilities for attorney-client meetings and for the review and exchange of case materials. Eleven members were in favor of requiring that the DOC and sheriffs ensure access, while three members believed that this was too onerous a requirement and instead voted in favor of language directing that the DOC and sheriffs work to ensure access.

Recommendation #11

Majority recommendation: Require that by 18 months after the effective date of legislation, the Department of Corrections and sheriffs ensure that incarcerated persons have private and secure space available for the storage and viewing of case materials, including audio visual materials.

Minority recommendation: Direct the County Corrections Professional Standards Committee to work with jails to develop private and secure space for the storage and viewing of case materials, including audio visual materials for incarcerated persons. Additionally, direct the Department of Corrections to work to develop within all of their correctional facilities private and secure space for the storage and viewing of case materials, including audiovisual materials for incarcerated persons.

[Recommendation #11 vote: Vote – 8 in favor of majority report and 5 in favor of minority report, 1 abstain and 2 absent]

Members put forth two competing recommendations regarding access to private and secure space for the storage and viewing of case materials, including audio visual materials for incarcerated persons. Eight members voted in favor of a recommendation requiring DOC and the county sheriffs to, within 18 months of the effective date of legislation, ensure access to such space. Five members were in favor of directing the County Corrections Professional Standards Committee to work with jails to develop such space and directing the DOC to work to develop such space in state facilities. The group in favor of the second recommendation expressed concern over the timeline put forth in the first recommendation, as well as the inflexibility of the term "ensure."

Recommendation #12

Direct the Maine Judicial Branch to report by January 1, 2024, to the joint standing committees having jurisdiction over criminal justice matters and judiciary matters on the availability of space in public areas of courthouses and in secure holding areas of courthouses for confidential attorney-client communications, including space for the review of written, video and audio materials related to the criminal case. The report must include an assessment of each courthouse and, to the extent that space is inadequate for confidential attorney-client communications, a plan for the development of adequate space.

[Recommendation #12 vote: 14 in favor and 2 absent]

Members present voted unanimously to direct the Judicial Branch to, by January 1, 2024, submit a report to the joint standing committees having jurisdiction over criminal justice matters and judiciary matters regarding the availability of space in courthouses for confidential communications. The committee had previously discussed language that would require that the Judicial Branch ensure such availability, However, some members expressed concern with the potential cost of such a requirement, and instead determined that an extensive study of existing space would be a preferable first step.

E. Recommendations related to remedies and consequences of breach

Recommendation #13

Provide by law that, if a defense counsel or a defendant or a petitioner for post-conviction review can show actual or constructive notice to the State of an attorney's telephone number or address if there is a recording or interception of a communication, then the context and contents of that communication are categorically excluded from use or mention at trial and any person who accesses, monitors, records, copies, transmits or receives any copy of that communication is categorically disqualified from participating in the related investigation or trial. If counsel cannot show actual or constructive notice to the State, then the existing structure of laws applies.

[Recommendation #13 vote: 7 in favor, 6 opposed and 3 absent]

Members spent significant time discussing recommendation for how best to respond to breaches of confidentiality. Members considered the language in the original version of LD 1946, as well as alternative, more narrowly tailored options. Members considered but ultimately decided against recommending creation of a new crime for knowingly or intentionally intercepting or disclosing attorney client communications in a corrections setting.

Seven members voted in favor of recommending categorical exclusion from use or mention at a trial, the contents and context of any attorney client communication that is recorded or intercepted, if the defense attorney can show actual or constructive notice that the attorney's number was provided to the state. Similarly, any person who accesses, monitors, records, copies, transmits or receives any copy of that communication is categorically disqualified from participation in the investigation or trial. However, if counsel cannot show actual or constructive notice to the state then the existing structure of laws and remedies remains in place.

Recommendation #14

Direct the joint standing committee having jurisdiction over judiciary matters to consider amending Title 15, section 712(2) and (3), which generally provide that investigate officers, Department of Corrections employees and jail employees are not violating state laws governing the interception of wire and oral communications if they intercept communications involving a person residing in a correctional facility or jail provided certain notice requirements are met, to clarify that communications between incarcerated person and their attorneys are nevertheless confidential.

[Recommendation #14 vote: 8 in favor, 4 opposed, 1 abstain and 3 absent]<sup>28</sup>

Eight members voted in favor of a recommendation that the joint standing committee having jurisdiction over judiciary matters consider development of an exclusionary rule for intercepted information, and consider strengthening the wiretapping statute to make clear that communications between incarcerated persons and their attorneys are protected.

Suggested draft legislation incorporating those recommendations that were supported by a majority of committee members, except recommendation #14, which does not require legislative language, has been included in Appendix A.

APPENDIX A

Draft legislation

Draft Legislation - Committee to Ensure Constitutionally Adequate Contact with Counsel.

Be it enacted by the People of the State of Maine as follows:

PART A

Sec. A-1. 4 MRS §1804, sub-§3, ¶P is enacted to read:

The commission shall on a weekly basis provide the names of the attorneys and their telephone numbers and other contact information to all county sheriff's offices and Department of Corrections correctional facilities. The sheriffs' offices and the Department of Corrections are deemed to be on notice on the Monday following transmission of the information. For the purposes of the Freedom of Information Act the names of the attorneys and their telephone numbers and other contact information are confidential and are not public information as defined in Title 1, section 402, subsection 3.

PART E

Sec. E-1. Retrospective review and audit. The Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services established in the Maine Revised Statutes, Title 5, section 12004-G, subsection 25-A, the Department of Corrections and the county jails and other county correctional facilities shall engage in a process of retrospective review and audit. Within 90 days of the effective date of this Act, the commission shall identify and compile a list of telephone numbers and electronic addresses of attorneys to which incarcerated persons have placed telephone calls or sent electronic communications in the previous 6 years and shall notify each correctional facility or detention facility and each jail or county correctional facility. Within 180 days of the effective date of this Act, each correctional facility and detention facility and each county jail or other county correctional facility shall audit its records of telephone calls and electronic communications to determine whether any telephone calls or electronic communications on the list provided by the commission may have been recorded and, with regard to any telephone call or electronic communication that may have been recorded, shall provide to the commission sufficient detail on each telephone call or electronic communication to allow the commission to identify the attorney telephone number or electronic address involved in the telephone call or electronic communication, the affected client and the date, time and duration of the telephone call or electronic communication. After receipt of the detail of the telephone call or electronic communication required by this section, the commission shall inform each listed attorney, who shall inform each affected client.

39 SUMMARY

This bill ensures constitutionally adequate contact with counsel for residents of Department of Corrections correctional and detention facilities, for persons who are incarcerated in county jails and other county correctional facilities and for clients and their counsel in court facilities. The bill addresses telephone, video and electronic forms of communication and person-to-person contact. The bill prohibits intercepting, recording, monitoring, disseminating or otherwise divulging any oral, written, telephone, video or electronic communication between clients and their counsel. The bill requires facilities to maintain logs of telephone calls and communications between clients and their counsel and requires periodic auditing of logs. The bill requires a facility to provide written notice to a client when the client's counsel contacts the facility and asks for the client to contact counsel. The bill requires a facility to provide an opportunity to review documents with counsel. The bill requires periodic audits and requires the adoption of policies that are published publicly and submitted to the Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services. For violations of the law, the bill establishes civil penalties, a private cause of action and post-conviction review in addition to review provided pursuant to the Maine Revised Statutes, Title 15, chapter 305-A. The bill prohibits use of illegally obtained information in court and prohibits participation in court by a person who has accessed or received a document, recording or information in violation of the law. The bill creates a new Class C crime of unauthorized eavesdropping. The bill requires the Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services, the Department of Corrections and the county jails and other county correctional facilities to conduct a retrospective review of telephone calls and electronic communications between clients and their counsel, who are required to provide notice to their clients affected by prohibited recordings.

Committee to Ensure Constitutionally Adequate Contact with Counsel – Compiled Questions and Answers from the First Meeting

Wednesday, September 21, 2022

Department of Public Safety - Paul Cavanaugh

Questions

- 1. With regard to the confidentiality of attorney-client telephone conversations for persons who are in custody in a jail, municipal detention facility or correctional facility:
  - A. Please provide copies of any training materials, policies, procedures or guidance that are provided to members of the Maine State Police.

Please provide materials related to procedures to be followed by a member of the Maine State Police who comes into possession of attorney-client telephone conversations.

Answers

- 1(A). The MSP has a directive to its members that they are not to listen to phone calls between anyone in custody and their attorneys. Should such a call be identified while the member is listening, the member is to immediately stop listening, document relevant information about the call and how long they listened and report the incident to their supervisor and appropriate prosecutorial office. There are no documents or material to provide the committee.
- 1(B) Our answer is the same here as above.

Maine Criminal Justice Academy - Director Desjardins

Questions

During the course of the meeting, the Committee discussed training of correctional officers, law enforcement officers and requested more information regarding the extent to which correctional officers and law enforcement officers are trained about how to ensure attorney - inmate confidentiality. This includes confidentiality during attorney calls, attorney visits, and of the handling of legal mail and documents. Does the MCJA have written training materials related to these topics? If so, could you please provide them to us?

Answers

As you're probably aware the Mainer Criminal Justice Academy's Board of Trustees approves the curricula for the basic certification training and certifies all law enforcement and corrections officers in Maine. The current basic training programs for both corrections and law enforcement have lesson blocks with sections that inform the students on the constitutional protections of individuals and includes attorney/client privilege.

The Basic Law Enforcement Training Program (BLETP) has additional instruction related to Constitutional protections, including Admissions and Confessions and the guidance from Supreme Court decisions, i.e. the Mirada decision and other prevailing legal decisions. These blocks are typically delivered by attorneys from the Maine Attorney General's Office and have been a part of our curricula for many years.

Topics related to facility policies, internal system management, managing interactions with attorneys, etc. wouldn't fall within the scope our basic training programs nor does the Academy have exclusive jurisdiction in these regards. I would defer to the specific agencies on how they train locally on specific or advanced trainings methods.

Attached are a few examples of the training goals and objects in our basic training programs and I'm happy to help provide additional information or refer you to the instructors that cover the material.

Questions

- The Committee requests copies of any training materials provided by the Office of the Attorney General to AAGs or Office of the Attorney General investigators related to confidentiality of attorney communications with residents at DOC facilities or inmates at county or municipal facilities. The Committee is particularly interested in any materials related to confidentiality of telephone conversations.
- 2. The Committee requests copies of any policies, procedures, or guidance materials related to the use and confidentiality of attorney communications with residents at DOC facilities or inmates at county or municipal facilities. Again, the Committee is particularly interested in any materials related to confidentiality of telephone conversations, including any materials related to procedures to be followed in the event an AAG or investigator comes into possession of confidential communications.

Answers

The Office of the Attorney General has no written training material or policies, procedures or written guidance relating to confidential communications with DOC or County jail residents. I have been with the Criminal Division of the Attorney General's Office for 36 years, the last 8 years as Division Chief, and I would represent that we maintain very few written policies or procedures that govern our day to day practice. Although there is no written training material or guidance as it relates to privileged communications, we have a very specific practice in place if an AAG or a law enforcement officer we are working with comes into possession of privileged communications. This practice has been discussed with attorneys in the criminal division on numerous occasions and with the law enforcement agencies we work with. I wish to assure you and all individuals working on this important issue that the prosecution team, including law enforcement, does not want to possess or listen to any privileged communications. We recognize and respect that a person has a constitutional right to confidential communications with their attorney. If an AAG or law enforcement officer we are working with believes they have been inappropriately provided a privileged call, that person immediately stops listening to the recording. If it is a law enforcement officer, that officer notifies the AAG assigned to the case, who immediately notifies me as the Division Chief and the defense attorney. If an AAG comes into possession of a privileged phone call, that attorney stops listening and notifies me as the Division Chief and the defense attorney. At this point in the process, we defer to the defense attorney as to how the recording should be handled. Different defense attorneys take different approaches. In most cases, the Court is notified.

Although the OAG does not have written policies or procedures relating to privileged calls, in July of 2020, the OAG collaborated with the District Attorneys and sent a letter to all Sheriff and Jail Administrators, with a copy to the Executive Director of MCLIS, reminding them of the importance of protecting privileged communications.

Ouestions

The Committee to Ensure Constitutionally Adequate Contact with Counsel held its first meeting on Wednesday, September 7. During the course of the meeting, the Committee identified a number of questions and requests for the Department of Corrections. Those questions are below:

- The Committee requests copies of any correctional officer training materials provided by or known to the DOC related to confidentiality of attorney communications with residents at DOC facilities.
  The Committee is particularly interested in any materials related to confidentiality of telephone conversations.
- 2. The Committee requests copies of any policies, procedures, or guidance, including materials related to confidentiality of attorney communications with residents at DOC facilities. Again, the Committee is particularly interested in any materials related to confidentiality of telephone conversations.
- 3. The Committee requests copies of any written materials that are provided or available to residents regarding recording of telephone calls. If no such information is provided, it would be helpful to know that as well.
- 4. The Committee requests copies of any forms provided to residents that are used by the resident to provide the telephone numbers of their attorneys for the purpose of ensuring confidentiality of attorney calls.
- 5. The Committee requests copies of any policies, procedures, or guidance, including materials related to the use of video, laptops, or electronic means by a resident to confidentially communicate with attorneys.

- 6. The Committee requests copies of any policies, procedures, or guidance, including materials related to ensuring confidentiality of attorney visits with residents at DOC facilities.
- 7. The Committee requests copies of any policies, procedures, or guidance, including materials related to ensuring confidentiality (including storage policies) of legal materials held by residents at DOC facilities.
- 8. The Committee would like copies of any policies regarding strip/ body searches of residents following visits by attorneys to residents of Long Creek Development Center.
- 9. The Committee requests staffing data for DOC facilities, including, to the extent this information is available, the total positions at each facility and the current vacancy rate.
- 10. The Committee is interested in better understanding the degree to which the DOC provides guidance, technical assistance or oversight to DOC and to county and municipal facilities to help those facilities ensure that attorney client confidentiality is maintained.
- 11. The Committee requests copies of any policies, procedures, or guidance, including materials related to confidentiality of attorney communications with DOC residents who are present in courthouses.

Answers

  - Staff are also provided refreshed trainings throughout their employment on the issue of privileged communication.
  - MDOC facility staff are required to read and sign off that they understand the pertinent policies.
- 2. Attached are MDOC policies that include and or overlap with the topic of privileged communication:
  - Adult Facility Policy 21.2,
  - Prisoner Mail, Procedure D and Procedure K.1;

  - The adult facility phone policy is in each adult facility library and uploaded onto the facility Edovo tablet system.
  - The juvenile facility phone policy is in the Long Creek library.
  - The handbooks (attached) also make reference to the topic

    - o Maine State Prison, page 23
    - $\circ \quad Bolduc\ Correctional\ ,\ page\ 41$
    - o Downeast Correctional Facility, page 18
    - o Women's Services (MCC female), page 25
    - o Maine Correctional Center (male), pages 27-29
  - The general phone policy (attached as Policy Supplemental to Handbook) is also contained in the adult facility handbooks
  - In all MDOC facilities (including juvenile) there are signs next to the resident phones that state:

"WARNING It is possible that communications by or with prisoners (residents) made through any phone used by prisoners (residents) will be listened to and/or recorded by an investigative officer or other employee of the Maine Department of Corrections authorized to exercise law enforcement powers. This does NOT apply to attorney/client privileged calls."

4. Residents of adult facilities fill out the attached form called Legal phone call list form .i.e., Resident Telephone System Legal Call Number List.

Juveniles at LCYDC do not need a form, as each juvenile has an attorney, and the facility is aware who represents each juvenile. The phone numbers for these attorneys are all designated as privileged.

- If a juvenile wants to designate an additional attorney, they simply inform LCYDC staff. The addition happens seamlessly.
- 5. Generally speaking the MDOC does not encourage the use of video visitation, texting, and/or email for privileged communication between a resident and their legal counsel. Primarily because:
  - Resident use of email via departmental issued laptops and/or computer is only approved for those residents in certain educational programs.
  - "Video visitation" is a term MDOC uses to designate a virtual visit by a family member/friend and includes a process for signing up for and agreeing to the technology utilization and other requirements for these sorts of visits.
  - Those residents with access to text messaging via the Edovo tablet system are aware there is no way to designate recipients of text messages are legal counsel, and therefor there should be no belief that text messages can remain confidential.
- 6. Many of the attached policies relate to this question, including:

- Adult facility visit policy (Procedure A.10, 18 and Procedure K.1);
- Juvenile facility visit policy (Procedure A.10, 15 and Procedure O.1);
- Signs in the visit rooms at all the MDOC facilities, including the juvenile facility state clearly:

"WARNING It is possible that communications by or with prisoners (residents) made during visits will be listened to and/or recorded by an investigative officer or other employee of the Maine Department of Corrections authorized to exercise law enforcement powers. This does NOT apply to attorney/client communications."

- 7. The attached policies address this:
  - The facility mail policy addresses
  - The facility property policy
  - Juvenile facility mail policy
- 8. The Committee would like copies of any policies regarding strip/ body searches of residents following visits by attorneys to residents of Long Creek Development Center.

Unclothed body searches of juvenile residents following visits from anyone (not exclusive to legal counsel) do not occur –unless there is reasonable suspicion that cannot be confirmed through less intrusive means.

- The attached juvenile facility visit policy outlines this (procedure L)
- LCYDC reports the last time an unclothed body search took place, post visit was prior to 2019.

9. As of 9/3/2022:

	Total # officer or juvenile program worker positions	Vacancies
MSP	206	45
MCC	167	53
MVCF	83	16
LCYDC	74	15
Total	530	129

10. The MDOC conducts reviews of county jails' compliance to standards as outlined in the Detention and Correctional Standards for Maine Counties and Municipalities, which is attached as jail standards.

• Standard J.20 outlines the method for compliance related to privileged communication.

The MDOC is not aware of county jails requesting technical assistance related to this mandatory standard. The MDOC would provide assistance on this topic if requested.

11. This is outside the jurisdiction of the MDOC.

INTEROFFICE MEMORANDUM

TO:

MDEA ALL

FROM:

ROY E. MCKINNEY, DIRECTOR

SUBJECT: CORRECTIONAL FACILITY INMATE CALLS DIRECTIVE

DATE:

CC:

FILE

BACKGROUND:

It has recently come to the attention of some correctional facilities that not all attorney phone numbers had been flagged by inmate telephone providers. This has resulted in these privileged, confidential calls between attorney and client being included in those inmate's calls received by an investigator requesting inmate phone calls. Some of you may have already heard of or encountered this. This directive is not to be interpreted as any MDEA staff having purposefully listened to inmate-protected calls or that any don't understand that such calls are privileged communication.

To establish protocols for obtaining, reviewing and reporting when inmate calls are sought for investigative purposes, and to ensure continued total transparency and ethical practices by Maine Drug Enforcement personnel, all will adhere to the following directive.

If correctional facilities currently allow you, as a MDEA Special Agent, to have direct access to the jail telephone system you need to formally relinquish this direct access immediately notifying the jail recording system manager to revoke your access. Deputy sheriffs assigned to MDEA may retain this access should their Sheriff require it. However, those MDEA staff will not use that access in support of your MDEA duties. The only exception to this is if, as a deputy sheriff, the MDEA agent is designated as the jail's point of contact for phone recording requests submitted by MDEA.

PROCEDURE:

ALL requests for inmate calls will only be made in writing and transmitted by State of Maine email by the requesting officer to the correctional facility point-of-contact for MDEA inmate phone recording requests.

The request will document that:

- A. You are requesting calls only specific to an ongoing investigation or pending prosecution;
- B. MDEA incident #;
- C. The inmate's name;
- D. Timeframe of the call recording request; and
- E. Include a statement that "no attorney calls are to be included."

Only an officer will make requests and listen to the calls received from the jail. A copy of the call(s) may be provided to the case prosecutor.

Upon receiving the recording(s), the requesting officer will immediately complete a supplemental report detailing the request for inmate call(s), number of recorded calls that were received and what medium they are stored in, which is labeled and made part of the case file. The email message requesting the calls is to be included with the supplemental report and both uploaded to the applicable Spillman incident after supervisor review and approval.

If during the review of a recording an officer discovers a conversation between an inmate and their attorney, they will immediately stop the recording playback.

The officer will then immediately notify the following of their discovery:

- A. Their supervisor and commander by email;
- B. The correctional facility point-of-contact for MDEA inmate phone recordings; and
- C. The case prosecutor.

In addition, the officer will return the recording(s) containing the privileged call to the jail's point-of-contact and request another without the privileged call. A supplemental report detailing this will be completed.

For any clarification, do direct questions to your respective commanders.

Good afternoon, counsel.

Attached to this email are documents that may be useful to you on the issue of jail recordings. These include the list of people we've received telephone numbers from, together with the notices I have sent to Securus, the Sheriffs, DOC, the Maine Prosecutors' Association, and the Office of the Attorney General. If you were one of the people who provided numbers that we included on the list, you may want to retain copies of these documents to eliminate any argument the State might raise on the issue of notice. At least for the reasonably foreseeable future, I am available to you to testify as to delivery of these missives, should that be helpful to your cases.

I am frustrated beyond belief that our efforts to address these issues through legislation were rebuffed. For now, this is what we can do. We will be back at it next session.

STATE OF MAINE OFFICE OF THE DISTRICT ATTORNEY PROSECUTORIAL DISTRICT IV

Policy for Domestic Violence/Sexual Assault Investigators, Prosecutorial District IV

Purpose: The purpose of this policy is to assist the Domestic Violence Investigator/Detective (DVI) in their duties, responsibilities and job scope as it pertains to conducting investigations, operations and assistance to other agencies.

The DVIs for the Kennebec and Somerset County District Attorney's Office will report to the District Attorney, or the assigned Assistant District Attorney on any case involving a domestic violence crime, sex crime or elder abuse situation as necessary. DVI's are sworn, full time law enforcement officers.

Definitions:

DVI-Domestic Violence Investigator. A detective level position working for the Kennebec/Somerset County District Attorney.

EM-Electronic Monitoring. GPS electronic ankle bracelet monitor.

HRRT-High Risk Response Team. The High Risk Response Team are a group of involved individuals in any domestic violence case were the defendant has a high risk of re-offending once released from custody. The DVI will stand up the HRRT when necessary for the protection of a victim. The DVI is responsible for coordinating and disseminating this information when appropriate.

FVP-Family Violence Project. The civilian agency responsible for assisting victims of domestic violence.

PFA-Protection from Abuse Order. Court order for protection of individuals.

VWA-Victim Witness Advocate. The VWA works in the DA's office as the direct link between prosecutor and victim. DVI's and VWA's will work closely to coordinate activities involving Domestic Violence cases.

Independent Investigation. Case initiated by our office without being submitted by an outside law enforcement agency.

Primary Duties and Responsibilities

Review all Domestic Violence Cases received by the District Attorney's Office. The DVI's are divided into three sections; Northern Kennebec and Southern Kennebec County and Somerset County. Each DVI will handle the cases originating out of their respective section. See Attached for Kennebec County map divided by Northern and Southern towns/cities.

DVI's will write affidavits, coordinate investigations that are multi-jurisdictional, investigate cases assigned by the District Attorney, track DV cases through the judicial process, interview victims, witnesses, defendants, photograph and collect evidence as needed, enter information into various computer systems, arrest defendants for violations.

Offense Log: Upon receipt of a DV case the DVI will log it into their DVI cases log spreadsheet for reference. The spreadsheet will consist of the following information: 1) Date of offense, name and dob of offender, charge(s), Arresting department, town of offense, status of incarceration, victim name, current disposition, any notes, BID number. This document is used internally only for easy reference, status of offender and tracking of follow ups by the DVI.

When indicated, DVI's will conduct follow up interviews with victims to include gathering more information necessary for the prosecutor and work closely with the victim witness advocate (VWA). Liaising with local law enforcement in their assigned section of the county as well as Statewide is essential in successful investigations. DVI's will be sworn in by the Attorney General's office as Detectives with statewide jurisdiction for the purpose of conducting these investigations.

Bail Checks: DVI's will conduct bail checks involving those defendants on pre-conviction bail as appropriate. Possible bail violations will be reported and appropriate enforcement action (arrest, summons, warrant request, etc.) will be taken. In some cases, DVI's will be required to operate the GPS ankle bracelet electronic monitoring (EM) device. In those cases, prior training with the EM device is necessary and will be completed prior to deploying the device.

Protection from Abuse Orders (PFA): During the course of any investigation when appropriate, the DVI will assist the victim in obtaining a PFA. This will include follow up with the Family Violence Project, assisting the victim with the court process, serving the order on the defendant when proper to do so. DVIs will attend PFA hearings as necessary to determine possible violations of the PFA or courtroom testimony which could become useful in the underlying domestic violence case. If the DVI, through the course of their work during the process observes or obtains information about a possible PFA violation, a report will be generated by the DVI and an investigation will be conducted to determine if a violation has occurred. Proper enforcement and reporting action by the DVI will be undertaken.

High Risk Response Team: The DVI in consultation with the appropriate victim witness advocate (VWA), FVP representative, and area law enforcement is responsible for coordinating a HRRT informational report and meeting (virtual or in person) regarding those defendants who are deemed high risk and for victims who request an elevated level of safety planning. The format for this informational flyer is attached to this policy.

Community Outreach Programs: The DVI will work cooperatively with other agencies, programs and entities in furtherance of the protection of victims. These include but are not limited to the Family Violence Project (FVP), the Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS), Elder Abuse Task Force, Kennebec/Somerset Domestic Violence Task Force and the Sexual Assault, Crisis, and Support Center. DVIs will become familiar with these organizations and attend regular meetings, seminars and working groups in furtherance of victim protection and successful prosecution of offenders.

Report Writing: DVI's are responsible for completing reports through their agencies electronic records management system. Each DVI will have separate access to this Records Management System (RMS) for the completion of offense reports (OF), arrest reports (AR) and field interviews (FI) as necessary. Cases resulting in prosecution will be uploaded to the Sharefile cloud system and use of that website will be granted by the DA's office to each DVI. Consultation with the proper ADA or legal secretary prior to uploading is indicated in cases already under investigation by another agency. First time offenses being enforced by the DVI can be uploaded directly after the IMC report is completed and copied for upload to the Sharefile site.

No Independent Investigations are to be conducted, except for VCR's or with approval of the DA/DDA/ or First Assistant DA.

DVI's will complete reports, affidavits, request arrest warrants and search warrants. DVI's should become familiar with latest information pertaining to search warrants, especially when dealing with social media or electronic devices. The Maine Attorney General's Office has specific information regarding the latest search warrant formats.

In Custody Defendants: DVI's will maintain a list of current, in custody DV and sex assault defendants. It will be the responsibility of the DVI to monitor jail phone calls, video chats, etc. in order to detect violations of bail conditions, protective orders and possible tampering cases. DVI's will follow the Securus training. Securus blocks all defense attorney phone calls (provided the defense attorney has given his or her number to the jail). If a defense attorney call is accidently heard, the following procedure will be followed:

- 1. As soon as a defense attorney is identified--turn off the recording. Write down what you heard.
- 2. Notify the prosecutor handling the case and provide your written document.
- 3. The prosecutor will notify the defense attorney and give your written document to the defense attorney.
- 4. The prosecutor and the defense attorney will notify the Court.

Investigative Programs: There are several types of programs essential to the success of the DVI while conducting investigations, follow up, surveillance information and assisting other agencies. These include the OpenFox system for running criminal history, obtaining DMV information and generating ATN's for criminal cases. DVI's will obtain the proper certification through the Maine State Police for access to this system.

JUSTWARE: DVI's will become familiar with the prosecutor's records management system for research, information and updating pertaining to a particular case or defendant including adding notes. NESPIN (New England State Police Information Network) provides a myriad of services and training; login and password are required for access to their network. The DA's office pays an annual fee for their services so DVI's will complete the training associated with this service.

SECURUS jail phone call monitoring. Recorded non-confidential phone calls are captured through this system and using it will allow the DVI the ability to provide information, generate cases, and ensure victim safety.

MIAC (Maine Information Analysis Center) is the Maine State Police fusion center. Information is shared through their portal and creating an account and getting on their listserv for this purpose is essential for the DVI.

Training: DVI's are required to maintain their full-time law enforcement certification. This requires the DVI to keep up to date with the current Maine Criminal Justice Academy licensing standards as required by law. DVI's are also encouraged to request further police related training as it pertains to their position as a detective with the DA's office in order to enhance their abilities as detectives within this office. DVI's will adhere to the standard operating polices of the DA's office and the law enforcement polices of the Kennebec/Somerset County Sheriff's Office and the Maine Attorney General.

Solicitation of Public Comment for October 5, 2022 Meeting

The Maine Legislature's Committee to Ensure Constitutionally Adequate Contact with Counsel is seeking public comment. The Committee was established by legislation, known as Resolve 2021, c. 182 (or LD 1946), which you can read online at the following link: http://www.mainelegislature.org/legis/bills/getPDF.asp?paper=HP1451&item=3&snum=130. ### Background

Residents of correctional and detention facilities and criminal defendants in court facilities have a constitutional right to counsel, which includes the right to confidential communications with their attorneys. In response to concerns regarding the ability of residents of correctional facilities and defendants to communicate in a confidential manner with their attorneys, the Maine Legislature established the Committee to study this issue and submit recommendations to the Legislature.

Public Comments requested for Meeting on Wednesday, October 5, 2022:

The Committee is seeking public comments on the following questions:

- 1. For incarcerated or formerly incarcerated individuals:
  - a. While incarcerated, what was your experience communicating with your attorney in a confidential (private) manner?
  - b. How were you made aware of your right to speak confidentially with your attorney while in jail or prison?
  - c. When you arrived in prison or jail, were you given the opportunity to provide the phone number for your attorney, in order for that number to be added to a list of phone numbers to be protected from recording?
  - d. When you spoke to your attorney by phone while you were in jail or prison, did you feel comfortable that your conversation was not being recorded?
  - e. When you have been in a courthouse to appear before a judge or when you have appeared remotely (for example, over Zoom) before a judge, what has been your experience in having time and a place to speak privately to your attorney?

- f. When you received mail from your attorney in prison or jail, was that mail opened in your presence?
- g. In prison or jail, did you have a safe place to store legal documents?
- h. What recommendations do you have for this Committee?

2. For attorneys:

- a. What has your experience been in speaking with clients over the phone when the client is incarcerated at a prison or jail? Does your experience differ from facility to facility?
- b. Have you ever experienced a situation in which a conversation with a client was recorded, that you are aware of?
- c. What has been your experience in getting your telephone number on the list of numbers exempt from phone surveillance at each facility?
- d. What has been your experience meeting with clients confidentially in jails or prisons?
- e. What has been your experience meeting with clients confidentially in courthouses?
- f. What recommendations do you have for this Committee?

How to provide public comments:

You may submit your comments orally at the Committee meeting scheduled to take place on October 5, 2022 or you may submit written comments or you may choose both to speak during the meeting and to submit written comments.

1. Public comments during the October 5, 2022 meeting: If you would like to speak during the meeting, you may attend the meeting in person in Room 228 of the State House (the AFA Committee Room) or you may attend the meeting remotely using Zoom. ## APPENDIX L-1

Public comment testimony submitted for October 5, 2022 meeting 1. Bate, D.

Dear Committee to Ensure Constitutionally Adequate Contact with Counsel:

Thank you for your attention to this issue. I have been taking court-appointments in Penobscot County since 1994. I have not been made aware of confidentiality issues regarding attorney-client communications at PCJ. However, the jail phones' sound is inadequate about half the time. It's only a guess but, because the quality has gone down over time, I would assume that the phones have been abused by inmates not happy with the news they receive through the phone -- a kind of shoot-the-messenger mentality.

Communicating confidentially with in-custody clients at the Penobscot Judicial Center has been adequate.

I think very special attention should be given to the non-contact visit rooms at Somerset County Jail where I am often visiting my federal clients. These comments would apply to State clients as well. Communication is frustrating: difficult to hear and very echoey, especially when one raises one's voice to be heard. The visitor and inmate are separated by glass. The frame on the glass on the side has small holes through which almost no sound passes. Contact visits are still not permitted due to COVID, I believe. The staff is always nice and efficient with me but the non-contact communication is inadequate. I would highly suggest that someone investigate this issue at SCJ. Other facilities have glass partitions with holes drilled in them and the acoustics are much better.

APPENDIX L-2

Public comment testimony submitted for October 5, 2022 meeting 2. Ruffner, R.

Good morning, (please excuse the typos)

I am LOD today and will be tied up with that duty for much of the meeting but will listen when I can and will attend after I complete my duties as LOD this afternoon.

I wanted to present you with my perspective on the issue as it pertains to monitoring of calls of those in custody from our jails and prisons.

We are looking at entirely backwards.

The issue isn't when should the State not be allowed to monitor calls and other electronic communications but rather:

- 1 When, if at all, should the State be allowed to monitor communications of an incarcerated individual?
- 2 Who should be allowed to monitor?
- 3 To what end or purpose?
- 4 Under what circumstances could it be shared outside of the incarcerating facility?
- 5 Under what circumstances could it be used by the State for purposes beyond facility safety and security?

I would answer these as follows

- 1: Any communications should not monitored until the individual is either sentenced or had their initial appearance in Court before a judge.
- 2: Absent a court order, only facility employees should be able to monitor or review communications
- 3: Absent a court order, the communications may only be used for facility safety and security purposes internally
- 4: Absent a court order, only to prevent the immediate loss of life of an individual
- 5: Absent a court order, none.

The State and Law Enforcement in Maine, and across the nation, talk about need to monitor communications in order to investigate crimes. This is a ruse. The State and Law Enforcement enjoy free rein to invade the privacy of incarcerated individuals and to listen to their most private conversations all without meeting the prerequisites for a warrant.

I personally have had the prosecution use calls with family:

— As grounds to increase the client's bail when then believed the family was going to be able to post the current bail amount

- Disclose they listened to discussions about whether the client would accept a felony plea (against counsel's advice) if a misdemeanor was not offered
- Disclose they listened to conversations explaining that the case would be continued to seek a private mental health evaluation
- Disclose they listened to conversations where the client conveyed the attorney's opinion as to the strength of the State's case.
- and countless others

There is no reason that the State should have ever had access to these communications. Remember, the Prosecution would never be able to do this for someone who had the means to bail out. The Prosecution would never be able to get a condition of bail that allowed the State to tap all of the defendant's phone calls while out on bail. They should not have access to these communications for the poor.

Besides the privacy and Constitutional dimensions to this issue there is the mental and emotional toll on incarcerated individuals which have been shared by others with the Committee. If they listen to their attorney, incarcerated individuals are completely cut off from family and supports with respect to their legal issues. They would be advised not to discuss anything unless to their attorneys. Not just case related but not taking about substance abuse, not taking responsibility for their actions or acknowledging the effect of their actions on those they care about. They would be advised not to engage in any conversation about anything that could be used against them for bail or sentencing purposes. Not to share plans for the future (employment or education) in case it could somehow be used against them. "Your Honor, we oppose the reduction in bail as Mr. Smith has been speaking with family about possibly pursuing opportunities out of State"... referring to job or education opportunities discussed with family.

The emotional and psychological toll, not to mention thwarting the beginnings of accepting responsibility, are immeasurable.

For all these reasons, and many I have not raised, I would urge Maine stop thinking about the way this issue is and start thinking about it, like the sign says, "the way life should be".

Thank you,

Robert J. Ruffner, Esq. Ruffner - Greenbaum Attorneys At Law

Re: Comments on Counsel Contact with Incarcerated Clients

In response to the Committee's request for comments regarding defense counsel experiences in communications with incarcerated clients, particularly by telephone, I want to submit the following observations:

a. What has your experience been in speaking with clients over the phone when the client is incarcerated at a prison or jail? Does your experience differ from facility to facility?

Response: I note that it has been my experience that defense counsel are unable to telephone a client who is incarcerated, meaning that the attorney is unable to telephone a jail or state prison facility to have immediate or direct contact with a client. During the Covid-19 emergency, when personal attorney-client visits were impossible due to facility shut-downs, my experience was that county jails and state prisons would make good faith efforts at arranging for the defendant client to telephone the attorney. Prior to the Covid-19 emergency, incarcerated defendant clients had the option to make telephone calls from facilities, mostly using the "inmate" telephone services (usually at excessive cost to the call-recipient); during the Covid-19 emergency, it was my experience that facilities worked to enable no-cost but brief (15 minute limited) calls from inmate to the attorney.

Overall, it was my experience that the staffs at the Cumberland County Jail, York County Jail, Hancock County Jail, and Two Bridges Regional Jail were courteous and made efforts to arrange to telephone contact. I also note that the staff at the Maine State prison also made efforts to arrange to telephone contacts. (I want to add that jail and state prison staff assisted me in arranging for Zoom Meeting participation in hearings for incarcerated clients.)

However, I do think that the inmate telephone service, which requires that the recipient establish an account and pay an excessive rate, borders on a denial of attorney/client communication. In addition, the apparent "automatic" limitation of attorney/client telephone calls to no more that 15 minutes significantly limits the ability of the attorney to advise the incarcerated client.

Facility Differences: My experience is primarily in dealing with the County Jail staff at Cumberland and York Counties and the Two Bridges Regional Jail. I have had occasional contact with county jail staff at Lewiston-Auburn and Hancock jails. I have dealt with state facility staff on limited occasions. Overall, county jail staff have been helpful in arranging telephone contact with clients, and is addressing the inmate telephone system. I recognize that most (if not all) county jails have been experiencing staffing shortages, which limits the jail responsiveness. As for the Maine State prison system, I have experienced these facilities to be more "bureaucratic" but also willing to be of assistance.

b. Have you ever experienced a situation in which a conversation with a client was recorded, that you are aware of?

Response: No. However, as I am aware that jail facilities often (routinely?) record inmate telephone conversations, other than those with the inmate's attorney, I found it necessary to always advise a client that telephone calls could be recorded, and as such I would limit the client's conversation with me to avoid any client statements that would incriminate the client. As such, I had to arrange in-person attorney/client meetings. This presented difficulties during Covid-19 "lock downs".

c. What has been your experience in getting your telephone number on the list of numbers exempt from phone surveillance at each facility?

Response: I do not recall ever being informed or finding any information about getting on an "exempt" list, although I do recall a staff person at the Cumberland County Jail informing me that the CCJ exempted attorney calls.

d. What has been your experience meeting with confidentially in jails or prisons?

Response: It is important to note that I, and I am certain other defense attorneys, recognize that county jails and state DOC facilities have staffing/personnel limitations that affect the ability and timing for attorney/client meetings at facilities. In jails that routinely did not allow "face-to-face" visits, requiring visits to be conducted using a "phone" and having the client and attorney separated by a thick glass barrier, these meetings were better that telephone "meetings", but still hampered communication for proper representation. It is hard to review evidence, or even conduct a conversation regarding the case under such restrictions. Again, I understood some of the need for such denial of "face-to-face" attorney/client meetings due to security issues and jail staffing issues.

At the Cumberland County Jail, before Covid-19 restrictions, attorney/client meetings were held in individual meeting rooms. However, even in such "private" rooms, I cautioned the client to keep our voices as quiet as possible as these rooms are never "sound proof"

At the Two Rivers Regional Jail, when I did Lawyer of the Day arraignments, confidentiality was a significant problem as the LOD often had to meet with the defendants within "ear shot" of jail deputies in the same video room for the arraignments and hearings on Motions. (I would also add that in LOD client meetings, defense counsel are not afforded sufficient time to review case information and advise the client, making such meetings a somewhat meaningless exercise.)

e. What has been your experience meeting with clients confidentially in courthouses?

Response: In a word, awful. First, I think that the "in-custody" Lawyer of the Day format for the initial appearance of defendants borders on a denial of due process. My experience as LOD was before the Courts for Cumberland County and the courts housing inmates at the Two Rivers Regional Jail. In Cumberland County, the LOD would not have access to the Discovery materials (including Complaint or Indictment) until mid-morning on the day of the 1:00 p.m. court session. Inmates would be brought to the Courthouse around 11:30 a.m. to Noon, allowing the LOD very little time to review (sometimes) extensive Discovery materials, then meet with the defendant. LODs had to meet with the defendants in the small holding cell, always in the presence of other defendants. There was simply no reasonable opportunity to discuss plea offers or possible defenses, or bail arguments. Under Covid-19 restrictions and the use of Zoom Meeting video arraignments, this process became even less meaningful. Constitutionally meaningful representation, even at the initial appearance stage handled by the Lawyer of the Day, requires an opportunity to confidentially meet with the defendant, adequate time to review the Discovery, and an opportunity to confidentially discuss bail and possible plea offers with the Assistant District Attorney. Before the Portland UDC for the initial appearance as LOD, I do not think the LODs are afforded time and an environment to do the job.

In Portland, if the defendant was in custody, defense counsel had no place for a confidential attorney/client meeting. In addition, due to "transport" issues and timing, defense counsel are not given sufficient time to meet with the client.

My other experience was in serving as LOD at the Two Rivers Regional Jail. In my opinion, this was a denial of sufficient opportunity to review Discovery, discuss plea options and offers, confidentiality, and with no opportunity to discuss bail or plea offers with the DA representative. I would also note that in the Two Rivers Regional Jail LOD sessions, the various DA Offices would post the Discovery in bits and pieces on a "secure" web-link, during the morning and often just before the start of court; this prevented the LOD from adequately reviewing Discovery. (When I attempted to inform one of the Judges of these problems, he said "If you don't like it, just quit", so I did!)

I recall also doing the initial arraignment LOD sessions at the York County Jail on a few occasions. This was several years ago, so my not be the current practice. In one session, I was able to meet with defendants in a visitation room, in another session, I had to meet with defendants in a storage closet!

In instances when the client defendant was not incarcerated, the Cumberland County Courthouse does have a limited number of "conference" rooms, allowing for adequate attorney/client meetings.

1. Lawyer of the Day: I think that the Courts place an undue burden on the attorneys serving as the Lawyer of the Day to meet the constitutional burden of due process. First, LODs are expected to pick-up and review Discovery materials (for "walkins" [defendants not in custody], LODs may obtain most of the Discovery the day before, for "in-custody" LODs were to pick-up the Discovery from the DA office after 10:00 a.m. despite the fact that it was regularly not complete). The LODs have to then review the often lengthy Discovery materials, then have sufficient time to meet with the defendants in a small, cramped, and very uncomfortable courthouse "holding cell", lacking in any confidentiality. As the Sheriff deputies would often be late, LODs were regularly able to just spend a few minutes with each defendant before the Judge started court. I think that it should be the Court's responsibility to assure that the defendants are afforded due process, and not place that responsibility on the LODs!

My recommendation, particularly for "in-custody" arraignments/initial appearances: (1) require that the DA Offices provide all Discovery 24 hours before the arraignment/initial appearance, (2) require that the LODs are provided a secure, individual conference room allowing for confidential meetings with individual defendants, and (3) require that the LODs have sufficient time for each defendant, allowing for time for bail and possible plea discussion with a DA authorized to make definitive decisions.

2. Telephone and In-Person Meetings: This pertains mostly to cases where the defendant is incarcerated and particularly with court-appointed cases. I recommend that all telephone calls from the incarcerated defendant and the appointed attorney be free of costs, AND that the attorney not be required to work through the "inmate telephone system" to set-up an account or to otherwise assure that access is enabled. (I have personally spent many hours just to attempt to set-up such contact, often without success). It should be the responsibility of the Court, through the Clerk's office, that the court-appointed defense attorney has this access. (If it is too hard or burdensome for the Court Clerk office, then why it is burden placed on the attorney?)

As for in-person meetings at a jail or other facility, such facilities should be required to provide secure, confidential meeting rooms to allow for face-to-face meetings between the attorney and the defendant. Talking through a thick glass window on a poorly working hand phone is not adequate. In addition, the times for allowing attorney/client(defendant) meetings should be a great as possible during the business day (8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.).

I am highly supportive of facility security, and do not oppose reasonable security efforts in any facility visit. However, such security should NOT allow for any facility to monitor attorney/client conversations or correspondence.

At courthouses, there should be a requirement that an adequate number of confidential conference rooms exist for attorney/client meetings

It should be the responsibility of the Court to assure that the defense attorney has the physical facilities at the courthouse to provide constitutionally adequate initial and subsequent representation. The Court should also be responsible to require both the Court Clerks and the District Attorneys to provide full and timely Discovery materials and access to files. Defense attorneys should not have to carry the burden of protecting the defendant's constitutional rights, while also assuring the criminal justice system (prosecutors and court clerks) do their jobs to make the criminal justice system work.

Sincerely,

John F. Zink

Committee Questions

- For MCILS
  - 1. Committee members were interested in learning what space was available in each courthouse for attorneys to meet with their clients.

Our response to this request is in process. We will share responses we get.

2. Does MCILS track caseload statistics? The Committee asked for caseload data for each court.

MCILS has access to data that allows us to generate certain reports about some caseload data. We do not necessarily routinely produce reports on all data. We can break out data out by the court in which a case was pending. We would be happy to produce information on request. Information may be subject to redaction to comply with the requirements of our statute.

MCILS does not track court specific data other than that contained in our case management and billing software.

In the contest of our last conversation, I understood that one specific request was for data showing the number of people involved in each lawyer of the day program. This is not information to which MCILS has access outside of a few limited instances in which someone has happened to share a list with us.

3. Do you have access to lists of protected phone numbers from Securus and GTL or any idea how we might obtain these lists.? Also, I was hoping you could confirm (or correct) my understanding of the process for an attorney to protect her number from surveillance. My understanding is that an attorney wishing to add a number to the list of protected numbers needs to contact the jail in which her client is residing, speak to whomever that particular jail has designated as a point person, and provide her number. The point person in the jail works with the vendor to add the number to the list, and the number is then protected from surveillance regardless of the inmate. Is that an accurate description of the process? An attorney would need to contact each individual courthouse to make sure her number is on that courthouse's list, correct?

We do not have access to a list or lists of protected telephone numbers from any telecom provider or client facility. Past MCILS efforts to obtain data from the facilities was only partially successful. In my view, the Committee should request that each facility provide these lists. (See my request of 9/28/2022 regarding proposed information requests from the facilities.)

I am not able to provide you with the process by which an attorney may successfully protect a telephone number from being recorded. MCILS has attempted to participate in that process, most recently by providing each facility with a list of then known to MCILS attorney numbers on May 3, 2022. I can tell you that the York County Jail has accepted a list of numbers from MCILS with a commitment to enter those numbers into its telephony account. We appreciate the ability to work with that facility on this issue.

Attorneys have had varying experiences in trying to make safe their telephone numbers.

Our perspective is that there should be one statutorily defined process by which attorneys register their numbers for blocking; by which those numbers are in fact blocked; and by which there is produced an auditable record of that process.

4. As far as you know, is there any way for an attorney to confirm that her number is protected, aside from calling the jail and asking?

Not to my knowledge

- For Courts
  - 1. For each courthouse, what space is available for attorneys to meet privately with clients?
  - 2. Are current arraignment caseload statistics available for each court (walk in and in custody arraignments) and if so, can these statistics be shared with the committee?
  - 3. Can you describe the process each courthouse uses to determine whether appearances will be in person or remote?
- For Sheriffs' Association
  - 1. Do you have access to lists of protected phone numbers from Securus and GTL or any idea how we might obtain these lists.? Also, I was hoping you could confirm (or correct) my understanding of the process for an attorney to protect her number from surveillance. My understanding is that an attorney wishing to add a number to the list of protected numbers needs to contact the jail in which her client is residing, speak to whomever that particular jail has designated as a point person, and provide her number. The point person in the jail works with the vendor to add the number to the list, and the number is then protected from surveillance regardless of the inmate. Is that an accurate description of the process? An attorney would need to contact each individual courthouse to make sure her number is on that courthouse's list, correct?
  - 2. As far as you know, is there any way for an attorney to confirm that her number is protected, aside from calling the jail and asking?

We will endeavor to ascertain the answers to your questions. We would like to have the following questions answered and respectfully request they be added to the next meeting agenda as discussion items:

- 1, What is State's annual budget for legal defense for indigent people?
- 2. What is the number of individuals that the legal defense fund has represented in the last fiscal year?
- 3. What percentage of indigent people vs non-indigent people are obtaining defense legal services in the last fiscal year?
- 4. How many practicing defense attorneys are currently practicing in the State of Maine?
- 5. How many complaints have been lodged from defense lawyers referencing phone call conversations being erroneously captured from registered phone numbers while their client has been incarcerated?
- 6. How many criminal cases have been developed in the State of Maine from conversations between a defense attorney and client?
- 7. How many convictions have there been from a lawyer/ client incarcerated erroneously captured conversations?
- 8. How many crimes have been prevented from properly captured communication in Maine's eight prosecutorial districts?

It is extremely important that we protect the lawyer/ client privilege. I believe to address their concerns, we need to be cognitive of the scope of the concern.

Questions from Sheriffs Association

- For MCILS
  - 1. What is State's annual budget for legal defense for indigent people?

For Fiscal Year 2022, MCILS spent $20,358,402 on direct and indirect costs associated with providing legal services to consumers of indigent legal services. On that, $18,616,677 was spent on the direct cost of legal fees to attorneys serving those consumers across our program.

2. What is the number of individuals that the legal defense fund has represented in the last fiscal year?

Assuming for the purpose of this answer that "legal defense fund" means "Maine Commission on Indigent Legal Services," during the period July 1, 2021 to June 30, 2022

MCILS assigned counsel provided legal services to 36,880 uniquely identified people. This number includes those whose cases were open on July 1, 2021, and those whose cases were opened during the window. Some people have more than one matter. Those people have not been counted more than once. This number excludes those people who were served by lawyers for the day, but who were not then represented by assigned counsel in the remainder of a substantive matter.

3. What percentage of indigent people vs non-indigent people are obtaining defense legal services in the last fiscal year?

MCILS does not have the ability to answer this question directly because the information we would need to do so resides with the Court. The last best information MCILS has in its possession on this issue was received from then Judicial Branch staff person Anne Jordan in mid-2021. The following table is excerpted from her communication

FY21	35,615	12.6%	35.9%	51.5%

4. How many practicing defense attorneys are currently practicing in the State of Maine?

MCILS does not have the ability to identify those attorneys who may practice criminal defense in whole or in part, but who are not part of the MCILS ecosystem. As of September 28, 2022, there are a total of 209 individual attorneys available to serve consumers of indigent legal services. Of those, 24 serve only as lawyers for the day. 164 attorneys currently serving consumers indicate at least the limited availability to serve additional clients. 8 attorneys appear to be available but do not appear to be actually accepting cases.

5. How many complaints have been lodged from defense lawyers referencing phone call conversations being erroneously captured from registered phone numbers while their client has been incarcerated?

For clarity, no defense lawyers have lodged formal complaints with MCILS around this issue, because we are not the authority able to address it outside of our efforts in the legislative arena. The information we have has been anecdotal to date. We have asked our counsel to report their experiences to us so that we can share that information with the group. We will do that as the information arrives.

Our understanding is that for the bulk of the history of MCILS, properly blocking attorney phone numbers from recording depended on the prisoner to designate the attorney's number, and a jail staff person to enter that number. We do not have the ability to know how or when that happened.

The most useful information on this issue would come from an analysis of jail recording logs after MCILS promulgated its list of known attorney telephone numbers on May 3, 2022.

6. How many criminal cases have been developed in the State of Maine from conversations between a defense attorney and client?

MCILS does not have the ability to answer this question because the information we would need to do so resides with law enforcement or in the offices of prosecutors. The fact that no one in the defense function can assess the prevalence of this issue is a primary driver of the need for a system level solution to the issues. I would note that privilege extends to members of the defense team, and that the analysis should thus include calls with investigators and others inside the defense privilege.

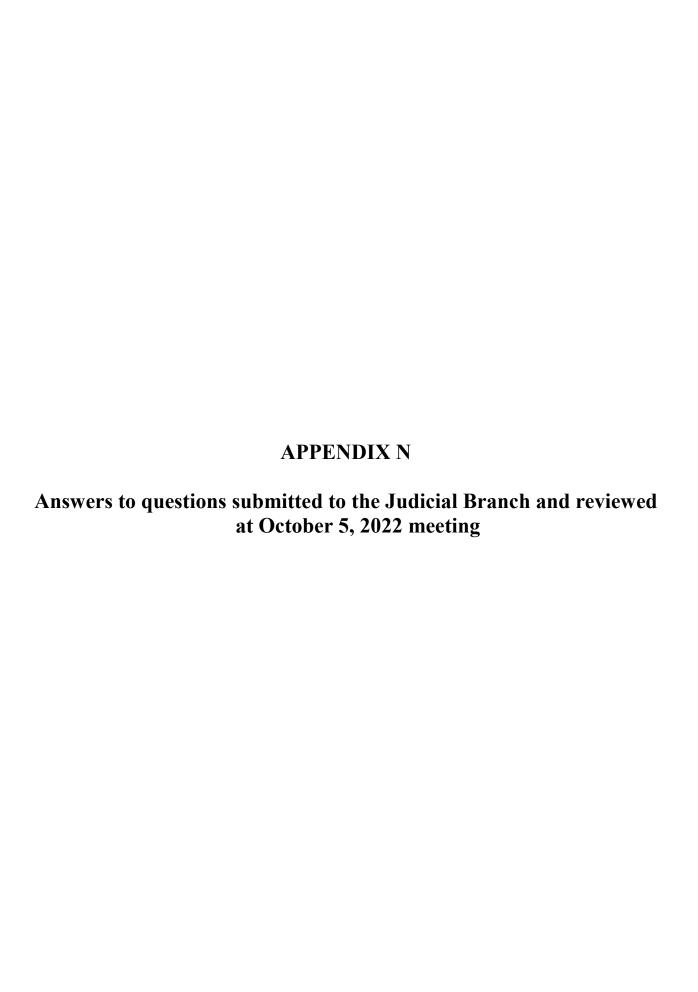

7. How many convictions have there been from a lawyer/ client incarcerated erroneously captured conversations?

Again, MCILS does not have the ability to answer this question because the information we would need to do so resides with law enforcement or in the offices of prosecutors. The fact that no one in the defense function can assess the prevalence of this issue is a primary driver of the need for a system level solution to the issues. I would note that privilege extends to members of the defense team, and that the analysis should thus include calls with investigators and others inside the defense privilege.

8. How many crimes have been prevented from properly captured communication in Maine's eight prosecutorial districts?

MCILS does not have the ability to answer this question because the information we would need to do so resides with law enforcement or in the offices of prosecutors. MCILS does not question that some crimes have been prevents through recorded conversations. A comparison of the relative counts of instances of improper recording and playback against the instances of proper recording and subsequent proper law enforcement deployment of that intelligence would be grounded in a false equivalency, however. Law enforcement enjoys no constitutional prerogative to record prisoner communications, while prisoners do enjoy a fundamental right to adequate privileged contact with counsel.

QUESTIONS:

COURTHOUSE SPACE

(1) What type of space is available at each Courthouse for confidential meetings between attorneys and defendants? How many of these types of spaces are available? ***While the inquiry is general, the primary focus of this Committee's work is on those first court appearances (Initial Appearances and/or Arraignments), so the answer to this question would be referring to the space that Lawyers of the Day have to meet with defendants.

SEE SPREADSHEET

(2) If in-custody persons were brought to the Courthouse, rather than appearing by Zoom, what type of space is available at each Courthouse for confidential meetings between attorneys and incustody defendants? How many of these types of spaces are available? ***While the inquiry is general, the primary focus of this Committee's work is on those first court appearances (Initial Appearances and/or Arraignments), so the answer to this question would be referring to the space that Lawyers of the Day have to meet with in-custody defendants.

SEE SPREADSHEET.

***NOTE FROM FACILITIES/MARSHALS:

Though few courthouses are set up with dedicated space(s) within the secure prisoner circulation area for meetings with counsel, MJB security manages the need operationally using the other conference and meeting rooms in the courthouse facility.

(3) Is there a difference between older courthouses and newer judicial centers in terms of the type and number of confidential spaces for lawyer/defendant meetings?

YES.

***NOTE FROM FACILITIES/MARSHALS:

The new YJC is designed with 2 public conference rooms per courtroom. The PJC & CJC follow this general plan. This ratio is more generous than typically seen in older courthouses. As older buildings evolve to meet the current operational needs of a courthouse, conference rooms are a prime candidate for repurposing. I only mention that to further suggest that the ratio of conference spaces to courtrooms is less than 2:1 for older structures.

VIRTUAL vs LIVE

(4) Who decides if Court (especially Initial Appearances and/or Arraignments) is virtual versus live? Has the answer to this question changed since the onset of COVID-19? ***While the inquiry is general, the primary focus of this Committee's work is on those first court appearances (Initial Appearances and/or Arraignments), so the answer to this question would be referring to who determines if Initial Appearances and/or Arraignments are virtual vs. live (with an emphasis on those in-custody, which are believed to be virtual in all but 1 county at this time).

~NOTE: Prior to the onset of COVID-19, many Districts handled in-custody Initial Appearances and/or Arraignments by Video, so the pandemic didn't change that practice, but the Committee still wants to know who made the decision pre-COVID for the court appearances to be by video, and who has made the decision for it to continue in that manner.

SEE SPREADSHEET.

NUMBERS

(5) What are the caseload numbers for both in-custody and walk-in Initial Appearances/Arraignments at each courthouse? How do the present numbers compare to 2019?

SEE SPREADSHEET (for walk-in data, other than Cumberland).

***NOTE: Unable to specifically compare to 2019 at this time.

Kennebec	The jail has 3 spaces for for confidential meetings with attorneys, but they are non-contact. There are also interview rooms on each floor, and bigger or different space can be accommodated if appropriate notice is givenif Arr were at the Courthouse, there is a private space on the 1st floor and 3rd floor, and then other larger general holding areas, but given the staffing and security concerns, video Arraignments are better all-around.	Court	Prior to COVID, the Court in consultation with the jails conducted Arraignments by video.	Video Arraignments started before 2006, but an exact date is unknown.
Knox	1 designated holding area at the courthouse	Court	Prior to COVID, Arraignments were in person	N/A

Piscataquis	Yes, two in holding area.	The Clerk of Courts directs virtual or in person appearances.	Clerk of Courts	5 years ago; unknown why the change
Somerset	No (there is an area for meetings, but it's not private because jail staff is present and it's through glass with necessitates louder voices).	The Court.	Prior to Covid, DA/Court determined video vs in-person for in-custody Arraignments (M/F video; Wed in person)
Two Bridges (Sag & Lincoln)	Two	Court	Court	At least 14 years, possibly longer 2- 3 areas in jail for LODs to meet with inmates for Arraignments
Waldo	Break-out rooms now; new courthouse since COVID, their holding area has 2 spaces for private meetings (non- contact, but totally private)	Court and jail jointly	Prior to COVID court was in-person	N/A

Washington	Washington County has a new courthouse with multiple rooms for private meetings, but most attorneys meet with their clients at the jail prior to any in-person Court.	Court and Jail jointly.	N/A	N/A
York	At the jail, there are 4 spaces for confidential conversations; while the current courthouses do not have dedicated spaces for in-custody persons to have confidential meetings with their clients, the new courthouse (opening April 2023) will have 5 private	Court and jail jointly	Prior to COVID, video Arraignments have been going on for years (court and jail decision)	As long as anyone at the jail can remember

Bobby Nightingale - transcribed testimony

Testimony of Bobby Nightingale for submission to the Committee to Ensure Constitutionally Adequate Access to Counsel

Transcribed by Office of Policy and Legal Analysis

Norman Kehling: Bobby, please state your name and give your testimony please

Bobby Nightingale: My name is Bobby Lee Nightingale and this is my testimony about the Securus phone calls that have been recorded. I don't blame the county jails of Maine for the recording of my lawyer's phone calls or for the recording of any of the calls made to attorneys. The Securus company is to blame. The same issue that we are facing today has become a trend for Securus. Lawyer calls are recorded, please complain to Securus, Securus fights, then they settle and they do it again. Those are the facts in a nutshell. Maine just happens to be Securus's newest victim.

The county jails of Maine have a contract that tells Securus it is illegal to monitor or record lawyer phone calls. Securus has lawyers register their phone numbers with Securus so Securus can put those numbers on a do not record list. Our lawyers also register those numbers with the bar association and with the lawyers association. But with those precautions why would any lawyer think that they also need to register that number with every county jail in the United States of America as a precaution, when a client gets locked up in any of those counties. Securus is used in over 3,000 facilities in the US. That a lot of calls that my lawyers need to make to ensure that I can talk to them.

In my case, I blame Securus for recording my private calls. But I don't... but I blame Detective Roy and Attorney General Meg Elam for not being honest with my lawyers and with the court. Detective Roy should have immediately reported this issue the first time he heard one of my calls, but he didn't. He waited months. He should have taken note of when he heard it.

If this is an attorney call, please hang up and call 1-800-844-6591

The fact he didn't even think to make a side note leads me to believe he was never going to report this issue. He was never gonna tell anybody about the calls. Not to mention, he changed his story from him reporting to the AG's office on his own accord. He waited months..

If this is an attorney call, please hang up and call 1-800-844-6591

He waited months and reported it only because a newspaper article gave a push at his conscience for him to do the right thing. AG Meg Elam has made what should have been a very simple, lets figure this out, cooperate with each other and move on situation to a complicated, blame everyone else, take no responsibility, I did nothing wrong situation.

It reminds me of two kids, child number one, who is covered in magic marker and child number two that is clean. The wall is covered in magic marker. As a parent, we might have had this situation happen a time or two, and it's a chance to find out what morals and principles we have instilled in our kids, and if they are gonna be honest. So as a parent, we've all asked, what happens when child number one immediately points at child number two and says, "he did it." Ok, look, we can make our own assumptions here. Child number one did it but is scared of the consequences. The crazy part of this story here is that child number two says, "mom, dad I messed up by leaving my markers out and my brother used them." Child number two didn't need to say that, but the kid is being honest and accepting his part of the responsibility.

My lawyer, Jack Tebbetts, is child number two. Even if he didn't register his phone number with the Cumberland County jail, he didn't know he had to. He didn't register with the Aroostook County jail – he didn't know he had to when they switched their system. He registered with Securus, who said they would take care of everything. He didn't know he had to, it's that simple. Just like he didn't know that Detective Roy would listen to the lawyer calls and not research the phone number, not record it right away, and not even tell us where he heard it, when he heard it, or even the month that he even, he heard these calls, so that we can try to find out on our own what he may have heard. Jack Tebbetts also didn't know that Meg Elam would be so defensive over an innocent mistake and instead make all of us believe that there could be more to this. We can't as lawyers and clients begin any type of investigation without there being a law set in place to help us.

I believe the best way to fix these problems in the future would be simply to have in our contracts with Securus or any phone company that does stuff with the county jails, would be that they check with the American Bar Association, they check with the lawyer's association, and if that number to my lawyer, Jack Tebbetts, or Verne Paradie or any lawyer in the state of Maine, is already with those, then that should be it. If I were to still have to call Securus or call one of the companies out there, to do lawyer phone calls, or do phone calls for the jails, it should be that simple. One call to stop it from ever being listened to again. If the situation arises again, that's in your guy's hand to make it to make a decision on what should be done. I thank you guys for your time and for the chance to be heard. Thank you.

Norman Kehling: Bobby, thank you for your time. I appreciate your time, thank you.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Committee to Ensure Constitutionally Adequate Contact with Counsel

FROM: Sam Senft and Jane Orbeton

DATE: October 18, 2022

RE: Information for October 19th meeting

1. Deputy Attorney General Lisa Marchese emailed following regarding the Prosecutor's model policy as it relates to training law enforcement officers who listen to jail telephone calls:

As part of any policy relating to protecting confidential communications between attorneys and clients adopted by the Attorney General's office or the District Attorney's office, the policy must include training for any law enforcement officer who, as part of a criminal investigation, may inadvertently hear privileged communications. The training must clearly outline the process for protecting confidential communications between attorneys and clients, as well as the policies to be followed in the event there is a breach of confidentiality.

2. Anna Black, Department of Corrections, Director of Government Affairs, emailed the following information regarding a possible recommendation that all jails and the Department of Corrections contract with a single entity to provide outgoing telephone and tablet communications services for persons who are incarcerated:

While the MDOC understands the theory behind the interest in creating a unified phone system that would include State and county correctional facilities, this is not something the department is willing to consider at this point. As the committee has heard and seen during reviews of the many phone and communication policies the MDOC's system works well. Among other concerns, we'd fear that forcing disparate systems together would have a negative impact on residents and put into jeopardy the legally binding state contracting in place with phone vendor and tablet vendor.
