low income elderly homeowners whose assets are confined primarily to their principal residence.

A significant proportion of elderly homeowners lack sufficient liquid capital to meet their living needs, including the payment of property taxes. By borrowing against the equity in their homes, the low-income elderly could remain in their homes and not be forced to sell their homes which could later require other forms of state assistance.

An analysis of different models which included a variety of interest rates, amounts of taxpayer equity in a home, and various home owner loans from equity shows that an elderly taxpayer requiring annual supplements of $1,500 per year or less, could use their equity to finance these loans for a period ranging from 10 to 27 years. Elderly taxpayers borrowing $2,500 annually against their home equity could use up their equity in a period ranging from 7 to 17 years.

LD 2283 was amended to provide that priority will be given to low income households, participation in the program will be limited to persons 70 years of age or older, no loans will be made for which the loan to value ratio exceeds 80% and that loans may be used only for urgent matters such as payment of taxes, home care, or property maintenance. In addition, the Maine State Housing Authority will counsel potential elderly homeowner applicants with respect to the risks involved in borrowing against equity.

LD 2293 An Act to Determine the Extent and Impact of Unemployed Persons No Longer Eligible for Unemployment Insurance Upon the State of Maine (Reported Pursuant to a Study by the Committee on Economic Development) INDEF PP

SUMMARY

LD 2293 proposes that the recently created Human Resource Development Council develop and implement a procedure to determine the extent and status of persons no longer eligible for unemployment compensation in Maine. In addition, the council would determine the location of these unemployed individuals, the reasons for their failure to obtain employment and the means by which they could become gainfully employed.

The council will report its findings to the First Regular Session of the 114th Legislature.

The intent of the bill is to address the causes of the failure of unemployed persons to find employment. By determining the causes, whether they are illiteracy, lack of skills, lack of day care facilities, etc., the State can better target its social-welfare and labor programs to the causes of unemployment.
