SUMMARY

Original bill amends the law restricting transportation of water by adding exceptions for water used in well-drilling, construction, cement mixing, swimming pools, firefighting, hospitals or civil defense. It also establishes a commission to study water supply issues.

The Committee Amendment adds exceptions to the water transportation law for distilled water produced in a manufacturing process, water used in aquaculture and water used for bottling if the source of water was used prior to July 1, 1987. It also provides that any authorization to transport water granted by the Commissioner of Human Services shall be subject to subsequent legislative limitations. The Committee Amendment removes the study proposed in the original bill because a similar study is being recommended in another bill.
