SUMMARY

This law allows for the export of Maine sardines which, while not meeting Maine Sardine Law standards, do meet Maine Food Law standards. All carton marking and bonding regulations will remain intact, thus ensuring that Maine sardines not meeting the standards of the Maine Sardine Law can not be sold in the United States.

It also prohibits the sale of whole herring for use in the manufacture of fish meal, but ensures that the processing and sale of herring cuttings, by-products or waste is not prohibited.

It changes the composition of the Maine Sardine Council from not less than 5 members to not less than 3 members.
