AMENDMENTS ADOPTEDSUMMARY

LD 1492 proposed that the Legislature, in joint convention, elect the Public Advocate for a term of 4 years. In the event of a vacancy in the office during the period that the Legislature is adjourned, the President of the Senate would be authorized to appoint an interim Public Advocate who would serve until the Legislature convenes and elects the Public Advocate.

The Committee Amendment provided that the Governor would continue to appoint the Public Advocate who would be subject to confirmation every 2 years.

The deputy commissioner would establish a list of approved hardware, software, and services.

The purpose of the bill was to expedite agency acquisition of computer and telecommunications equipment, programs and services which currently require the deputy commissioner's approval. By creating a list of approved equipment, services, and software, agencies would not have to wait for the deputy commissioner's approval.

LD 1562 failed to receive Committee approval because it would have subverted the purpose of current law to make better use of equipment and software. Under the bill state agencies could purchase any amount
