SUMMARY

The bill creates a restitution center in Southern Maine for people who are sentenced to reside there as a condition of probation.

Committee Amendment "A" removes references to a single Southern Maine facility and authorizes the Department of Corrections to establish an unspecified number of restitution centers. The amendment also allows up to 10% of center residents to be people in the Department's custody, and clarifies that the intent of the centers is to divert people who would otherwise be incarcerated in a state or county facility.

Senate Amendment "A" to Committee Amendment "A" removes references to a center director and makes the bill contingent upon ratification of the general bond issue which would fund the capital costs for two centers (see LD 2469).

SUMMARY

The bill makes counties responsible only for emergency medical conditions of prisoners which arise during the prisoners' incarceration. Presently, counties are responsible for all necessary medical treatment. The bill also requires that the county in which a person is brought to trial is responsible for the costs associated with supporting that person in jail during the trial.

Committee Amendment "A" represents the minority report. The amendment clarifies the bill's intent to make counties responsible only for emergency medical needs which arise during incarceration. The amendment also shifts responsibility for prison costs associated with trial from the county where the person is brought to trial to the county where the person is indicted.

The majority report was "ONTP".
