which the maximum time period for receiving cash assistance benefits under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program is 24 months. Families may receive Medicaid benefits for no more than 36 months following the expiration of eligibility for cash assistance benefits. After receipt of benefits for the maximum time period, a family is ineligible for similar benefits for a period of 5 years.

In section B-1, this bill alters the education, training and employment participation requirements for the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program. It lowers from 3 years to one year the age of children that exempts a parent from participation. It lowers from 25 to 24 the age for parents who may choose between employment, training and a new Learnfare Program. It repeals choice of education, training or employment options applicable only to parents ages 18, 19 and 20. It limits provision of services under the program to 24 months in any 36-month period. Compliance with the Learnfare Program is required to qualify for benefits.

In section B-2, this bill requires the Department of Human Services to apply to the United States Department of Health and Human Services for a waiver to establish the Learnfare Program. All children 5 years of age and older who have not completed high school or its equivalent and all heads of household under 24 years of age who have not completed high school or its equivalent must attend school regularly to be eligible to receive cash assistance benefits under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program. Heads of household under age 24 who have full-time jobs are exempt from participation. The department must provide case management services. Services under the Learnfare Program may not be provided for more than 24 months in any 36-month period.

In section C-1, the bill directs the Department of Human Services to apply to the United States Department of Health and Human Services for a federal waiver for the Family Responsibility Program to provide no additional cash assistance benefits to recipients who conceive or have additional children while receiving benefits. The bill does not cap the cash assistance benefit for a child conceived prior to the date on which eligibility was determined.
