SUMMARY

This bill implements changes to current domestic relations laws as suggested by the study group formed to examine the issues concerning parental rights and responsibilities in cases of domestic abuse. The study group was authorized by Resolve 1993, chapter 61.

COMMITTEE AMENDMENT "A" (H-621) makes several modifications to the original bill, including the following:

1. This amendment transfers the responsibility of developing standards for and then certifying batterers' intervention programs from the Maine Commission on Domestic Abuse to the Department of Public Safety. The Department of Public Safety will consult with the Maine Commission on Domestic Abuse in carrying out those activities.

The safety and well-being of the child are to be given priority in making decisions about primary residence. The safety and well-being of a parent who is the victim of domestic abuse is part of the consideration of how the child is affected emotionally and how the child's safety is affected.
3. This amendment gives the court discretion to appoint a guardian ad litem in child custody cases in which domestic abuse is involved, rather than mandatory appointment as in the bill. It removes from the bill the requirement that the courts appoint guardians ad litem in all cases of special concern and fund
